Petes Victors First Game O.B.A. Finals

Peterboro Scores Four in Eighth To Win Five-Two

(By Cecil Perdue)

Lefty McNally, ace hurler of the Petes hurled and slugged his team to victory today when the Petes defeated the Stratford Nationals 5 to 2 in the first game of the O.B.A. finals. McNally with his first double scored Cadd and then again in the eighth his double counted in the four runs which the Petes put across. The Nationals were held scoreless until the ninth inning.

The lineups:

95 Miles Off Hankow

SHANGHAI, Oct. 8—(CP).—The Japanese occupation of Kichun and the consequent placing of the invaders' naval forces just 95 nautical miles from Hankow was announced today by Japanese officials.

After 458 days of fighting in the Yanktse river valley, with the provisional capital of Hankow as the goal, the Japanese warships steamed past Kichun, 505 miles from the sea.

French Reds Out To Bring Daladier's Fall

PARIS, Oct. 8 (AP)—French Communists sought today to reform the shattered people's front on a broader base in an attempt to overthrow Premier Edouard Daladier's government because of the Munich accord and to prevent a possibility of French recognition of insurgent Spain.

At the same time Maurice Thorez, secretary general of the Communist party, made an apparent bid for cooperation with such former enemies as the Liberal nationalist deputy Henri De Kerillis. Thorez referred flatteringly to the latter by name as having realized where the nation's interests were in voting against the government.

Leon Blum, former Socialist premier, has agreed the Socialists would accept the new Communist proposals if Daladier's use of his new decree powers should force the Socialists to break their tacit alliance with him and the premier then decided to dissolve parliament and hold new elections. Daladier has been widely reported to be considering this step.

The Communist proposition was that the unified parties would throw all their support to the present candidates for re-election in senatorial elections Oct. 25 and agree to support a single candidate in other constituencies.

The renewed activity was believed based on the Communists' increasing fear that Daladier was about to make a bargain with Italy to recognize the Spanish insurgents, as well as dissatisfaction in Socialist ranks over the party's vote of confidence in Daladier after the signing of the Munich pact ceding parts of Czechoslovakia to Germany.

Distance Hop Fails 380 Miles Short

Mercury Out Of Gas Lands On River After 6,000 Miles

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Pick-A-Back seaplane Mercury, Great Britain's greatest experment with long-range bombing planes, made an emergency landing today just 380 miles short of her goal in an attempt to break the world's distance record in a flight from Dundee, Scotland, to Cape town.

The Mercury came down at 7:25 a.m. GMT (2:25 a.m. EST) at the mouth of the Orange River. Short of fuel, the Mercury had covered nearly 6,000 miles of the projected 6,370-mile flight.

The seaplane settled in Alexander Bay while the pilots debated whether to resume the flight after refuelling.

First messages to Cape Town indicated the Mercury landed near the mouth of the Orange on the Atlantic coast along the border between the Union of South Africa and Southwest Africa.

The Mercury was released from its mothership, the Maia, at 1:30 p.m. (8:20 a.m. EST) Oct. 6. The aim was to surpass the 6,296-mark set by three Russian fliers in July, 1937, who flew from Moscow to California via the North Pole.

The Mercury's average speed from Dundee to Alexander Bay was 144 miles an hour, a world record for a distance flight. The average speed of the Soviet fliers, who set the world non-stop record last year, was slightly more than 100 miles an hour.

Got Him At Last

IRONTON, O., Oct. 8 (A.P.), — In his 75 years, George Herrin learned to be careful handling his squirrel gun. So, while hunting yesterday, he held the muzzle close to the ground. The gun discharged accidentally, and shot off his big toe.

Taking Cheers

Her face reflecting the happiness within, Mrs. Neville Chamberlain, wife of Great Britain's premier, is shown waving to the huge crowd that gathered outside her home, No. 10 Downing Street, after news had been received from Munich that war had been averted by the four-power conference.

International Talk Of Disarming Decidedly Premature Says High Berlin Official

By Louis Lichner
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

BERLIN, Oct. 8 (AP)—All international talk and hopes about any disarmament plans Chancellor Hitler may have were branded "decidedly premature" today by a foreign office spokesman.

"Our top men and those who determine foreign policies in other capitals have so many immediate things to worry about that the armaments question is necessarily in the background," the official asserted.

A prominent Nazi editor who is close to Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering added that "our fuehrer does not believe disarmament or even the limitation of armaments can be achieved until there has been first a restriction in the use of armaments."

With the arms question and the German colonial problem temporarily in abeyance and with an indication seen of the gradual restoration of normal German-Czechoslovak relations, German diplomacy became centred on attempts to reach a French-German understanding.

Hostages Released

The arrival of 400 Sudeten Germans at Karlsbad and 300 more at Eger after they had been held by Czechoslovaks as hostages was taken to foreshadow an improvement in relations with Czechoslovakia, of whose 54,244 square miles Germany will have annexed 11,500 square miles by Monday according to German estimates.

(A Reuters News Agency despatch from Prague said the Czechoslovak Cabinet met during the night and declared an amnesty for Sudeten German, Hungarian, and Polish political prisoners.)

Nazi diplomats seek a French-German understanding similar to the agreement between Chancellor Hitler and Prime Minister Chamberlain at Munich on October 1, that Germany and Britain would never fight each other again.

They even expressed the opinion a French-German accord may be delayed until after Great Britain, France and Italy have first arrived at an amicable arrangement among themselves.

Such an arrangement, it was said, depends upon an early settlement of the Spanish Civil War—if Italy, France and Britain agree on a solution to the Spanish problem, the ground would be considered sufficiently spaded for a general European appeasement.

Two Toronto Women Die In Fire

Man Badly Burned In Vain Try To Rescue Pair

TORONTO, Oct. 8 (C.P.). — Two elderly women were burned to death to-day in a fire that swept their central Toronto home. A man who attempted to save one of them is in hospital in critical condition.

Mrs. Isabel Davis, 87, and Miss Elizabeth Bryson, 67, both died in the flaming ruins of the building. Albert Nichol, believed to be the owner of the home, attempted vainly to save Miss Bryson. He dashed into the house, but the flames drove him back and he was so severely burned he was removed to hospital.

Followed Explosion

Police said they believed the fire followed explosion of a tin of gasoline Miss Bryson apparently was using to light a kitchen fire in the small frame building at 650 Merton street. The punctured tin was found in the kitchen.

Nicholl, asleep in the house, heard a scream and ran to help Miss Bryson. When police arrived they found him beating out the flames in his own clothes.

He had thrown a blanket over Miss Bryson's body. The flames seared his hands and body and he was forced to flee.

Suffering terrific pain, he extinguished the fire in his clothes by rolling in the grass outside the building.

Eleven Escaped

Coroner Dr. R. J. W. Brooks said Mrs. Davis died of suffocation. Th 87-year-old woman's body was found in the corner of her bedroom on the second floor. She had left her bed and tried to make her way to the back staircase but her escape was blocked by flames sweeping up from downstairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Martin, who were sleeping in an upstairs bedroom with their two children, aged one and three years, barely escaped in time.

In the embers of the back porch, fireman found the body of a small dog which had been chained to a bed.

BULLETIN

LONDON, Act. 8. — (CP). — It was officially announced to-night the King and Queen will visit Canada next summer.

The announcement made at Balmoral, Scotland, where their majesties are now in residence, said:

"The King and Queen have graciously consented to accept the suggestion of the Prime Minister of Canada that they should visit Canada next year.

"Their majesties hope to arrive in the early summer and spend about three weeks in the Dominion."

Italy To Recall All Troops 18 Mos. In Spain

ROME, Oct. 8.—(AP).—The government announced today that Italian troops with more than 18 months' service in Spain would be recalled to Italy.

The announcement was made in the form of a communique from General Franco's headquarters at Salamanca, Spain, and was distributed by the official Italian news agency, Stefani.

The communique, without stating the number of troops actually to be withdrawn, said:

"General Franco is preparing immediate repatriation of Italian legionnaires who have had more than 18 months uninterrupted campaigning in Spain.

"Nationalist Spain, in effecting this substantial withdrawal of volunteers, is contributing in an efficacious manner to the re-establishment of international confidence, and at the same time satisfying in this monner the desire minifested by the non-intervention committee."

The question of removing Italian troops from Spain has complicated Italo-British relations for nearly a year.

It was understood to have been a primary theme of several conversations this week between the British Ambassador, the Earl of Perth, and the Italian Foreign Minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano.

An Italo-British accord negotiated last Easter to eliminate friction between Italian and British interests in the Mediterranean has not become effective because it was made dependent upon "settlement" in Spain. "Settlement" has been interpreted generally to mean the withdrawal of Italian forces from the Civil War.

At the time the accord was negotiated, it seemed likely this end would be achieved automatically by an insurgent victory.

Diplomatic circles have expressed the opinion during the course of the Ciano-Perth conversations that Premier Mussolini might to willing to withdraw at least part of his in-

Yankees Beat Cubs 5-2 In 3rd Game

Pearson Strikes Out Nine Batters, Yields Five Hits

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, Oct. 8. (AP).—Monte Pearson struck out nine batters and yielded only five hits as he pitched the champion Yankees to a 5-2 victory over Chicago Cubs in the third game of the World Series here to-day. Joe Gordon, rookie second baseman, knocked across three runs with a single and a home run, as the Yanks drove Clay Bryant from the mound and gained their third straight triumph.

First Inning:

Cubs.—Hack walked. Herman also walked on five pitched balls and the crowd let out a yell. Pearson was having trouble cutting the corners. The Yankee infield played in close as Cavaretta came to bat. Cavaretta sent a high fly to DiMaggio in short right centre, swinging at a high pitch. Marty singled to deep short, Crosetti stopping the ball but being unable to make a play, and the bases were filled. The crowd was whooping it up as the Yankees appeared in trouble. They howled as Pearson threw a high ball to Reynolds which almost got away from Dickey. Reynolds then fanned on a two and two pitch. Gabby Hartnett, playing with an injured hand, was given a round of "Come on, Gabby," from the stands as he came to the plate. Hartnett struck out, swinging at a third strike that broke inches wide of the plate.

No runs, one hit, no errors, three left.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Second Inning:

Cubs.—Cub fans were liberally sprinkled throughout the stands and cheered each batter as he came to the plate. Collins struck out on a high outside pitch and a howl went up. Pearson, having worked his way out of a bad hole in the first inning, was pitching much easier in this frame. Jurges worked the count to two and two, then fanned. He was Pearson's fourth straight strikeout victim. Bryant went all the way to second when Crosetti after taking his easy grounder, threw wide over Gehrig's head for an error. The ball bounded into the boxes back of first base. Pearson took Hack's roller and beat him to the bag to put him out.

Yankee—DiMaggio walked on five pitches and the crowd pepped it up. Gehrig was booed as he came to the plate. He forced DiMaggio, Herman to Jurges on an easy play, but Gehrig was safe at first on the fielder's choice. Dickey walked on four straight balls, all high and outside. As the first pitch to Selkirk was also a ball, the Cub bullpen came to life. Selkirk fanned on a low inside pitch and the fans whistled and shouted as Bryant appeared to be getting out of a tight spot. Gordon fouled off two pitches, then he too struck out on a high inside pitch to the cheers of the crowd.

No runs, no hits, no errors, two left.

Third Inning:

Cubs.—Herman became Pearson's fifth strikeout victim as he swung at a slow low pitch. Cavarretta lined the first pitch into right field for a single. It was the second hit off Pearson during the game. Marty

Hitler's Prestige And Debt, Soar All Happy, On The Surface

By Dewitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

BERLIN, Oct. 8. — (AP) — The proverb that a prophet is not without honor save in his own country does not apply to Nazi leader Hitler.

At this moment fresh from his triumph in the Czechoslovak crisis he is riding the crest of a wave of German adulation that in many instances closely approaches worship.

This in itself is a partial answer to the oft repeated query in other countries as to whether Hitler has imposed himself and Nazism on an unwilling people who are only awaiting an opportunity to escape.

Nazidom has its opponents—some of them representing powerful interests—in the Fatherland.

But broadly speaking Hitler is the idol of the masses.

Thatis the way matters stand and they may so continue indefinitely, but close observers say there are a number of things against which he must safeguard his political house if he is to ensure its permanence.

Som Problems

1. An exceedingly difficult economic situation which must be righted if it is not to founder.

2. The urge of the intellectual section of the population for democracy or at least for intellectual self determination.

3. The repression which has been applied to churches both Catholic and Protestant.

The government's anti-semitic campaign which has had an international repercussion that has adversely affected not only Germany's relations with some other countries but her economic position.

Experts say the economic difficulty is the most dangerous of the lot.

Cabinet Shuffle Is Predicted

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Oct. 8.—(CP Cable).—Reconstruction of the Chamberlain cabinet is regarded as a distinct possibility in political circles.

Prime Minister Chamberlain may not fill the admiralty post vacted by Alfred Duff Cooper for some days and it may be used for a general reshuffle of portfolios. Viscount Hailsham, Lord president of the council, and Lord Maugham, lord chancellor, are two elderly members of the cabinet, who may step aside, both having hinted recently to friends that they find their duties onerous.

One of the men mentioned for the admiralty post has been Viscount Runciman, but this may not come true. In some quarters Lord Runciman, is reported to be the prime minister's choice to reorganize the merchant marine and some announcement of this plan may be made before parliament meets.

Meanwhile, Mr. Chamberlain is keeping his own counsel on the cabinet changes, turning them over in his mind while he fishes for salmon in Scotland. He may not complete the whole reconstruction until a few days before parliament reassembles Nov. 1.

Propose Bren Guns For Cavalry Forces

EDMONTON, Oct. 8.—(CP)—Encouragement of manufacture of arms and equipment in Canada by the National Defence Headquarters was urged in a resolution adopted by the Canadian Cavalry Association as it neared the close of its annual convention.

The convention asked that National Defence Headquarters supply non-permanent force of cavalry with Bren guns.

Two prominent Canadian militiamen, Lieut.-Col. Thomas Guerin, of Montreal and Col. R. T. Hall of Paris, Ont., were made life members of the Association. Liut.-Col. Guerin is officer commanding the Reserve Regimental debot of the Sixth Duke of Connaught Royal Canadian Hussars, an armored car regiment. Col. Hall is officer commanding the First Cavalry Brigade in the Toronto-Niagara district.

Keep Cash Going To Prague, Home For Arms, Advises Beaverbrook

LONDON, Oct. 8.—(CP Havas).—Opposition to a British guarantee of the new boundaries of Czechoslovakia, and against British loans to the Prague government, was expressed today in the Daily Express in an article signed by its owner, Lord Beaverbrook.

"Now we are making the grievous error of guaranteeing the boundaries of a truncated Czechoslovakia," Lord Beaverbrook wrote. "It is not our business. We are against it in any circumstances and every situation. Millions of our pounds are being sent to the Czechs in Prague with no justification.

"The money will go straight to the Germans, who are thus getting a reward from our government for conduct which our ministers deplore and condemn. Yet every penny of this capital is needed to equip our own country in armed isolation.

"Here, too, let it be said, emphatically and without fear of contradiction by any minister of the crown, that we know the Dominions will only take part in quarrels that concern the British Empire. They will not participate in territorial disputes and boundary demarcations in central Europe."

Open Doors to Refugees

"There can surely be no man or woman in Britain," said the Daily Herald (Labor), "whose heart and conscience are not troubled as they read of the plight of refugees fleeing before the German army of occupation in the Sudetenland. But to be troubled in heart and conscience is not enough.

'Thumber' Pays For Ride With His Life As Car Rolls Over In Ditch

North Bay, Ont., Oct. 8 (CP)

Police said Hendry had "thumbed" a ride with a motorist on the North Bay - Sudbury highway. Shortly afterward the car overturned in a ditch.

Graham Morrow, 19-year-old Powassan youth, was driving the automobile. He was not held by police and investigation is continuing pending the inquest.

Gang Cracks Jordan Station Bank Vault Loots Six Safety Deposit Boxes

Jordan Station, Ont., Oct. 8 (CP)

SIX safety deposit boxes were broken open and robbed early today when robbers blew open the vault of the Imperial Bank of Canada branch here. The manager, E. H. Coleman said as far as he knew only bonds and other private papers were contained in them. There was no money in the vault of the bank which is open only three times a week.

The robbery was discovered early today by Mrs. R. J. Vangorder, the caretaker. Manager Coleman notified provincial police from St. Catharines who began an immediate investigation of the robbery.

Acetlyene torches stolen Thursday night from a Jordan garage were used by the hugs to cut open the door of the vault in which the safe-crackers placed the charge of explosive.

Siam Revolt Nipped, 10 Arrested

Believe Plot Aimed To Restore King Prajadhipok

SINGAPORE, Oct. 8 (AP)—Ten arrests had been made today in connection with an attempt to overthrow the Siamese government.

It was believed those arrested intended to try to restore former King Prajadhipok to the throne from which he abdicated March 3, 1935, to be followed by his young nephew, now King Tnada Mihidol.

King Prajadhipok abdicated after a length controversy with the Siamese parliament. Since he had no son, the throne went to his young nephew, Anada, who was nine years old at the time.

Anada was proclaimed King four days after Prajadkipok abdicated. He remained in school at Lausanne, Switzerland, however, and a regency was set up to rule until he was of age.

A plot against the government, said to have been started by non-commissioned officers of the army, was nipped in August, 1935.

Expect Grondin Verdict Today

ST. JOSEPH DE BEAUCE, Que., Oct. 8—(CP).—The 12 Beauce county farmers who scrutinized more than two weeks' testimony in the murder trial of Mrs. Achille Grondin were expected today to decide the fate of the St. Methode woman, accused of poisoning her first husband, Villemond Brochu.

Judge Noel Belleau started his charge to the jury today, after they had heard a summing up of the cases for the defence and prosecution, following testimony of more than 90 witnesses, since the trial opened in the tiny box-like courtroom here Sept. 20.

Next week, a new jury will be empanelled to try Achille Grondin, Brochu's hired man who married the widow of the St. Methode taxi-man-farmer two months after Brochu's death from what the crown charges was poisoning. Grondin is jointly charged with the murder.

Yesterday the jury heard a four-hour address by Crown counsel Noel Dorion in which he revived long-spoken words and year-old movements of the woman, attempting to bind them into a case supporting the charge against her. He recalled "ominous predictions" by Mrs. Grondin before the death of her first husband, and "incriminating avowals" by her afterwards.

Southwest African Plebiscite Hinted

WINDHOEK, Southwest Africa, Oct. 7—(AP).—The administrator of Southwest Africa was urged by a political meeting today to take action looking toward a plebiscite to determine whether this former German colony should be restored to Germany or remain under the Union of South Africa.

A resolution adopted by the Omaruru branch of the united nationalist Southwest African party asked the administrator to summon the legislature to arrange for a vote on the question of ending the League of Nations mandate and either returning the territory to the Reich or annexing it to South Africa, which holds a League of Nations mandate over the colony.

The population of Southwest Africa includes 30,000 persons of European ancestry, including 21,000 Africans (mixed Dutch and British stock), 6,000 Germans naturalized as South African citizens and 3,000 German nationals.

(Southwest Africa, with an area of 317,725 square miles and a total population of about 360,000, mostly natives, was annexed by Germany in 1884, but was surrendered to the forces of the Union of South Africa early in the Great War, July 9, 1915.)

Mad Partridge Gives Lakefield Couple A "War Scare"

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Lakefield, Oct. 8.

DOUBTS as to the successful settlement of the recent war crisis rushed into the minds of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Burgess and family, when they were awakened at 7 a.m. one day this week, by a terrific crash.

Rushing to the front of the house Mr. Burgess found a large plate glass window in the living room had been shattered.

Investigating he was informed by Mr. Cecil Wingett who happened to be passing, that a partridge had swooped down against the window. Frightened by the noise, the bird had swooped away again, seemingly uninjured.

Wheat Futures Are Easier Exports Drop

WINNIPEG, Oct. 8—(CP).—A lull in the Winnipeg Grain Pit after three weeks of stormy dealings sent wheat futures 1 to ⅛ cent lower during the past week. Settlement of European political differences gave brokers a rest and left them without a major market influence.

Daily volume was light and prices were irregular within a narrow range. October future closed yesterday at 59⅛, November 59⅝, December 59⅝ to ⅝, and May 63 to 63¼ cents.

The market generally took its cue from Liverpool which was influenced by slow mill demand and Southern Hemisphere crop reports. Beneficial rains were recorded in Argentina where a good outturn is anticipated in northern areas late next month.

Large quantities of Canadian wheat have been booked for clearance overseas, chiefly the United Kingdom, during the Fall months. Boat space for much of the business has been taken care of, shippers reported.

But the dispute over shipping rates on wheat to be moved from the Lakehead to Lower St. Lawrence ports threatens to hinder clearance of Western Canada wheat to overseas shipping positions which would facilitate export sales during winter months.

Shippers maintain that during the last week no boat space on the Great Lakes from the Lakehead to Montreal and other St. Lawrence ports was booked. Shippers await the Boar dof Grain Commissioners' final decision on the maximum rate, which may be settled next week. The board exercised its power and fixed the Lakehead-to-St. Lawrence ports at seven cents a bushel. Shipping firms want a higher rate.

Coarse grains, except flax, closed the week yesterday at higher levels, oats up 1⅜ to 1, barley ⅜ to ½, and rye 1⅞ to ⅞ cent. Flax sagged 2½ to 2 cents.

Norwood Board To Engage School Nurse

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Oct. 8.—The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was held on Monday with Messrs. John Marks, chairman; M. W. Bailey, T. M. Lumsden, E. T. Cuffe, W. Bitten, W. H. Giffin, H. G. Charlton, W. Burgess and Mrs. E. P. Cuffe present.

Library books were being purchased by Miss Flemming, and books for the public school by Principal Nelson.

The property committee reported that the fence at the High School was completed except for painting. The chairman reported he had interviewed Miss Cuthbertson regarding school nursing, and it was moved by Bailey and Lumsden, that the board recommend to the Board of Health, that Miss Cuthbertson be engaged as school nurse for the present school year at a salary of 12c per pupil per month.

Mr. Brackon asked that the board grant the usual amount for field day prizes and scholarships, and on motion of Buck and Carleton, the board granted $10 for scholarships and $10 for field day prizes. Mr. R. G. Lawlor was appointed a member of the Library Board to succeed the late Charles Tucker, on motion of Mrs. Cuffe and Mr. Bailey.

The Finance committee reported that remittance had not been received from the county, and that the village council had not as yet arranged for advances to the school.

Messrs. Burgess, Bitten and Marks were named a committee to see the village council, and impress on them the necessity of making advances to the school immediately.

The boiler inspector's report was read, received and filed. Accounts were passed as follows: W. G. Barrie, lumber, posts, etc., for fences, H.S., $43.57; T. M. Lumsden, material and labor (art cabinet, H.S., $14.65; Harold Beavis, gravel, culling and hauling wood, H.S., $3.00; Trebilcock Bros., chalk and supplies, H.S., $1.75; Robert McNeely, work on fence, H.S., $15.25; Cole's Hardware, supplies, H.S., $6.95; Norwood Register, paper, H.S., 23c; R.C.A. Victor Co. (Ltd.), records, H.S., $6.89; Whaley, Royce Co., music, H.S., $14.36; J. McConnell, wall paper, H.S., 20c; John Hope Gore Ins., premium, P.S., $28.12; Norwood Register, 500 report cards P.S., $12.00; Moyer School Supply Ltd., P.S., $8.85; R. H. Gardner, books, glue, paster paris, etc., H.S. $8.15.

Moved by Messrs. Buck and Bitten, that the account for insurance premium be paid, and the other accounts be referred to the committees and if found correct, be paid.

Millbrook Y.P.A. Hears Fine Talk

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 8.—The Y.P.A. of St. Andrew's United church, Millbrook, held heir weekly meeting in the Sunday School auditorium Tuesday evening. Miss Della Mae Sisco, the christian fellowship convenor, was in charge, assisted in the devotional period by Miss Mary Dawson, who read the Scripture lesson.

Following in close detail the topic for the evening, "The Kingdom of God," papers containing statements to be answered by "True" or "False" were passed around, after which they discussed the same.

Mr. B. B. Dawson, president, announced a newspaper party scheduled for Friday evening under the leadership of the recreational convenor, Mr. Kenneth Kidd.

A splendid recreational period was enjoyed before closing under the direction of Miss B. McDowell, assistant to Kenneth Kidd.

St. Thomas' Guild

Miss Anna Kells was hostess to members of the Guild of St. Thomas' Anglican church this week for their first meeting since June. The president, Mrs. L. H. Winslow, occupied the chair.

Arrangements were made for a friend of Mrs. W. Simpson, a Miss Fordyce to lecture to them on Friday, October 21, on her trip to Russia.

CENTRETON

Several of our villagers attended the auction sale of farm implements and household goods on the premises of Mr. Charles Youngman, Carmel, on Tuesday afternoon.

The local school teachers, Misses Norma Nicol, Marion Nichol and Bessie Hinton attended the teachers' meeting at Warkworth on Wednesday afternoon.

A Pentecostal service was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Webb on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blogett and Miss Merle Blogett spent Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. F. Blogett and Mr. Lorne Blogett, Welcome.

The W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. James McKenzie on Wednesday afternoon when the Thanksgiving meeting was held. Readings on the work of the Honan missions were given by several members. Mrs. Simmone contributed a solo, Mrs. P. Curtis gave a reading, "Thanksgiving Ann." Program committee for the November meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Etcher, is Mrs. Webb and Mrs. Walton.

A Friend Lost

TORONTO, Oct. 8.—(CP)—Rt. Rev. A. R. Beverley, Suffragan Bishop of the Church of England in Canada, said today the church army "has lost a very great friend" in Rt. Rev. R. J. Lucas, former Anglican Bishop of Mackenzie River and honorary warden of the Church Army in Canada who died suddenly in Worthing, England

Peace Prayer Set To Music

Edwin Markham, 86-year-old poet, author of the "Man With the Hoe," is pictured, RIGHT, with Dixie Brand, composer, who set the words of Markham's peace poem to music. The song is to be published next week. The League of Nations will receive a copy.

Lakefield W.M.S Has Fine Rally

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 8.—The beautiful autumnal weather Tuesday afternoon may have accounted for the large attendance at the October meeting of the W.M.S. of Lakefield United Church, held at the home of Mrs. George Spence. In her ever kind and genial manner, the hostess received the members and placed her comfortable and spacious rooms at their disposal.

In the absence of Mrs. Yale, the first vice, Mrs. Kelly presided, with Mrs. James Hendren as leader of the program. It was a Thanksgiving service in memory of the Honan jubilee. In war-ridden China it was impossible to have a jubilee celebration in Honan itself. The first hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past," was followed by a prayer of Thanksgiving.

The leader said, "Let us think of the fifty years of missionary work in Honan as a river beginning in a tiny stream into which brooks and streams have entered to make a mighty river. Let us follow this river from its tiny beginnings fifty years ago and see how it has grown through the years in the face of great difficulties."

Mrs. Hendren then called on different members to deal with the different phases of work carried on by the missionaries in Honan.

Mrs. Kelly dealt with the channel of Christian education. Among other things the missionary educates the young in the art of home-making with model homes, etc.

Mrs. E. J. Millage dealt with the channel of Christian healing and gave interesting facts about the medical and welfare work. All joined in singing the hymn, "Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life."

Mrs. Charles Hunter then dealt with the channel of rural reconstruction, and told how the simple methods of rural service work out—giving better returns from better-tilled land, thus overcoming want. By the new reading system many were learning to read and write, thus expelling ignorance.

Mrs. Frank Darling gave a brief sketch of the church in Honan today and spoke of the leadership assumed by the native Christians. A missionary writes that in the church of Honan when a pastor prays for China he also prays for the Japanese people. A Japanese woman writes: "Let us pray for the re-creation of humanity into the son-ship of God, the Father of mankind."

Mrs. W. J. Charlton then offered prayer for China and Japan, asking God's mercy on the homeless wandering hordes of people in the war-stricken area.

The hymn, "O Lord of Heaven and Earth and Sea," was heartily sung by all. Then followed the offering and prayer of dedication by Mrs. Deck. Mrs. Hendren closed with a benediction.

A few items gleaned from the business period: The sectional rally to be held at Warsaw October 20th at 10 a.m. Speakers to be Miss Rorke, missionary from Japan, and Miss Hanbidge, summer student.

Mrs. Bullock, leader of the Mission Band, asked the members to encourage the children to raise their allocation by attending the pictures and lecture to be given by Rev. Mr. Parr of Peterborough in the near future.

The November meeting will be in charge of Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. Pearson and Mrs. Orr.

Joy Over Peace In London Amazes Rinfret

QUEBEC, Oct. 8—(CP).—Joy displayed by the people of London when they learned war had been averted was wonderful to observe, Fernand Rinfret, secretary of state for Canada, declared on his arrival here today from overseas aboard the liner Empress of Britain.

Mr. Rinfret, who was on his way to Budapest, changed his plans when the war scare arose and came back to this country after short stops at Paris, Rome and London.

Mr. Rinfret left the Italian capital on short notice, having been informed by Consular authorities that it might be unwise to stay any length of time in the Eternal city. In the short time he was there however, he visited the vatican.

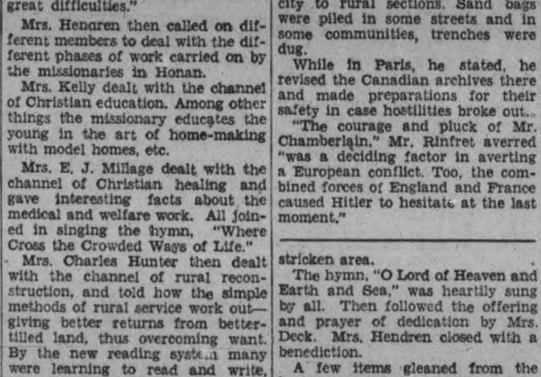
In London he witnessed the preparations made against air raids with the people wearing gas masks and also observed the anti-aircraft gun manoeuvres.

Thousands of children, Mr. Rinfret said, were evacuated from the city to rural sections. Sand bags were piled in some streets and in some communities, trenches were dug.

While in Paris, he stated, he revised the Canadian archives there and made preparations for their safety in case hostilities broke out.

"The courage and pluck of Mr. Chamberlain," Mr. Rinfret averred "was a deciding factor in averting a European conflict. Too, the combined forces of England and France caused Hitler to hesitate at the last moment."

Flowers For France's Peace-Maker



Gendarmes were obliged to work harder than usual to prevent mobbing of Premier Edouard Daladier, of France, when he returned from Munich after the four-power conference that brought Europe back from the brink of war. Here is the scene at Le Bourget aerodrome on Daladier's triumphant home-coming. The premier is at LEFT, holding a big bunch of roses presented by an admirer.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 8 (C.P.). — Wheat ran up briskly 1½c a bushel late yesterday at Chicago and held most of the gain.

Helping the bulge was word in Chicago that the United tSates Agricultural Adjustment Administration is already about one-third through with placing in foreign markets 100,000,000 bushels of that country's wheat surplus. It was announced also that the United States flour export subsidy rate other than from the Pacific Coast has been increased 10 cents a barrel.

Notice of proposed purchases of corn for Government relief distribution had some stimulating effect on the corn market there.

Jumps of Chicago prices were in the face of decided downturns of Liverpool wheat quotations, nearly 2c a bushel at times. Continued reports of moisture deficiency both in United States winter and spring crop areas served to offset to a material extent the influence of Liverpool action ascribed to advices of rains in Australia and to free offerings of European surplus supplies.

W.A. Collects $125 Drops Fowl Supper

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 8.— Eighteen ladies attended the meeting of the St. Andrew's United Church Women's Association of Millbrook at the home of Mrs. P. Stinson, Centre Street, this week, to complete plans for the month of October. The president, Mrs. P. I. Bentley, who opened the gathering, was assisted during the devotions by Mrs. A. L. Sisco.

Quite a sum has been dispensed recently by the society for new curtains for the choir loft, felt for the church doors, and carpets for the aisles. This year, for the first time, the ladies gathered donations in place of holding their annual fowl supper, and on Sunday, October 9, at the church anniversary, will place on the collection plate the sum of $125 as their contribution to the church board. The sum of $500 is being asked for by the board of managers for anniversary offerings.

It was decided that the W.A. pay the eighty some dollars taxes on the parsonage in the near future. Plans are being laid for a bazaar and hot supper early in December, with final details arranged for at their November meet.

Miss E. Rogers of Manvers contributed a pleasing solo, after which a hymn and prayer by the president concluded the routine business. During the social half-hour which followed, their hostess served homemade candy.

BON VOYAGE TO SWALLOWS

When swallows started from Edinburgh, Scotland, for their winter flight south crowds gathered in the main street to see them off.

MARMORA, Oct. 8. — Clarence Hooey, principal of Deloro Public School was elected first president of the newly formed North Hastings Teacher's Institute which convened at Bancroft on Thursday and Friday of this week. Other local teachers elected to the executive are E. C. Prentice, principal of Marmora Public School, Miss Florence Auger, principal of Marmora Separate School and Miss Helen Lynch, teacher at Marmora S.S. No. 2.

G. Roy Fenwick, Mus. Bac., Provincial Supervisor of Music who was present at the Convention gave two splendid addresses and illustrated the new method of teaching music in rural schools of the province where no facilities have been provided.

A successful euchre party was held by Group 2 of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild in the Paris Hall on Thursday evening, 12 tables being in play. Prizes went to the following: Highest scorer—Gent, James Linn; lady, Miss Dora Lawrence; lowest scorer, Mrs. D. McInroy. Refreshments were served at the close of play.

Belmont W.I. Holds Progressive Euchre

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Oct. 8. — A progressive euchre party was sponsored by the Belmont Branch Women's Institute on Wednesday evening in the Belmont Township Hall. Although there was not a very large attendance, a very entertaining evening was spent.

Prizes were won as follows:

Ladies' first, Mrs. Ezra King; men's first, A. King; ladies' second, Mrs. H. L. Scott; men's second, Graydon Harris; ladies' consolation, Miss Goldilene Dafoe; men's consolation, Ralph Ellis. The players were directed throughout the evening by Mrs. William Harris.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the evening by the committee in charge.

Masonic Event.

The Most Excellent the Grand First Principal of the Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons of Ontario, William Y. Mills of Kingston, paid St. Andrew's Chapter, R.A.M., No. 139, of Havelock, an official visit for the purpose of dedicating the Chapter Room in the Masonic Temple. He was accompanied by the Most Excellent Comp. Edwin Smith of Toronto, the Grand Scribe E., and many illustrious Companions from surrounding towns. The Grand Z. delivered a most eloquent and convincing address after the ceremony when the Companions sat down to the Fourth Degree, most capably catered by the members of the Eastern Star. Mr. Mills' address on Royal Craft Masonry linked it up intimately with Craft Masonry. During the evening Ex. Comp. B. W. Squire of Norwood was presented with his Veteran's Jewel, emblematic of his 25 years as a Past Z. in the local Chapter.

Stalk 10 Feet High

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 8.—A hollyhock stalk, ten feet high, exclusive of roots was displayed here yesterday by Albert Brooks and grown in his flower garden. This example of abnormal growth is but one example of several freak growths to come from the same garden this year. Mr. Brooks said there were many stalks nearly the same height.

The Golden Text

John 4:24—"God is a Spirit; and they that worship him must worship in spirit and truth."

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James, Toronto

THE TEMPTATIONS OF OUR LORD.

IMMEDIATELY the Spirit driveth Him into the wilderness and He was tempted of Satan. St. Mark 1; 12.

It is not difficult to understand what the Lord Jesus meant when He said that the Spirit immediately drove Him into the wilderness. Who is this Spirit? It is that spiritual power that came upon Him at His baptism. He was filled with the Spirit of God and that Spirit never left Him. It is the overflowing energy of that same Spirit which passes into every man who believes in Him. "I live yet not I but Christ liveth in Me." When the Sanhe drim saw "the holiness of Peter and John they took knowledge of them that they had been with Jesus." His Spirit is in them.

At His baptism He heard the voice of the Father testifying:—"Thou art my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." He is now conscious that in some mysterious way He is the Son of God. Harnack, that profound Christian thinker, teaches that the Lord Jesus already regards Himself as the Son of God and that at His baptism is born within Him the consciousness that He is indeed the Messiah, the CHRIST.

What did it mean to be the Son of God? How must the Son of God live and act? These are the pressing questions which must be answered by Him before He enters upon His ministry. Our Lord's temptations, which took place within the chamber of His inner life, is a mysterious subject; yet it is our duty to try and get a glimpse of some of its meaning.

Who is this evil one. He is the Spirit who is at war with God. He is the adversary, the devil, the Satan. He is a real spiritual power.

You are kneeling down striving to say your prayers. Suddenly their flashes upon your mind other thoughts, sometimes in distinct opposition to God. How did they enter? It is the work of the evil spirit.

This spirit of evil came to Him to test Him along three lines. Never forget that Our Lord is truly man—"bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh; or, in words which have been repeated by countless Christians for over sixteen hundred years, "who, for us men and for our salvation came down from Heaven and was incarnate by the Holy Ghost of the Virgin Mary and was made Man." The gravest peril of evangelical preaching is to forget His real manhood and to over emphasize His Diety.

So the Devil tempts Him through His manhood. He is a real man. He is hungry. "If Thou be the Son of God command that these stones be made bread." The appetite craves for food. Self preservation is the first law of nature. As a man He needs food to sustain His life. It is a natural instinct and desire. So the evil One whispers: "Surely your Father, Who loves you, and Whom you love, expects you to sustain your life. Use your supernatural power and turn this stone into bread."

The Messiah was expected to have power over nature; to be able to work miracles. After His feeding of the five thousand the men decided to take Him by force and make Him a King. This was right in line with the popular expectations of the Messiah. The Master had grown up in the atmosphere of such expectations and the evil spirit now brings this to His mind.

How did He resist? He remembers the Scripture where it is written: "Man shall not live by bread alone but by every word which cometh from the mouth of God."

It is the temptations to shirk hardships and discomfort. What a satisfying statement to make to your friends: "He is in comfortable circumstances." He has bread enough and to spare. But does He trust in God? As a son of God is he putting his whole trust and confidence in the Father? Does he live by the Word of God?

Our Lord's humanity was strengthened by His victorious resistance to temptation. This is the only way in which a free being can be strengthened. So we, made in His image, must receive something of His perfect humanity to conquer and become like Him. This is the meaning of the prayer: "That Christ may be formed in you."

Our Lord is tempted to use His power for His own comfort and at the cost of no one else. You have an ambition. You desire to attain it without thrusting yourself over the shoulders of others. You do not desire to hurt anyone else. You are perfectly innocent of any such desire Yet it may not be God's will you should attain to that ambition. There must be no degree of selfishness. It is the temptation to selfishness in its most subtle form.

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for October 9 is Exodus 20, 4-6; 32, 1-8; John 4, 19-24, the Golden Text being John 4, 24: "God is a Spirit; and they that worship him must worship in spirit and truth.")

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL.

"Thou shalt not make unto thee a graven image, nor any likeness of of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth: thou shalt not bow down thyself unto them, nor serve them: for I, Jehovah ,thy God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, upon the third and upon the fourth generation of them that hate me, and showing loving kindness unto thousands of them that love me and keep my commandments." In these words God expressed His will regarding spiritual worship. When any so-called aid to devotion diverts attention of the worshipper from God to itself it becomes a substitute for God condemned by this commandment.

Our Mammon Worship.

This command strikes not only at the crude and cruel idolatry of paganism, but at the cultured, perhaps none the less cruel, idolatries of our civilized materialism. Jesus said: "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon." When money is permitted to become an end desired instead of a means employed for the glory of God and the expression of love in the service of our neighbor, it becomes a graven image, a golden calf as abominable to God as was the golden calf. Aaron led the Israelites in worshipping. Just because it is the idol of our hearts' devotion makes it none the less an idol, and us none the less pagan in our materialistic chase of what our new paganism has even come to call "the almighty dollar."

Other things than money may become our pet idolatry. That in the pursuit of which we stifle and stultify the law of God in our conscience for the satisfaction of our ambitions or appetites, "the lust of the flesh and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life" becomes our idolatry. It may be a patriotism that defies the clear will of God in the matter of the rights of weaker nations, feeling that the state can do no wrong, and therefore shouts, "My country right or wrong, but still my country." It may be a social code that stifles conscience by saying, "Everybody's doing it," and, to be in the swim casts morality aside. It may be an economic system that idolizes profits and dividends, salaries and wages without consideration of our duty to God or our neighbor as we hide behind the idol on which we engrave the text, "Business is business." All these and hosts of others represent the polytheim of our polite and cultured materialim.

The Centre of Gravity.

Where is the centre of gravity of our hearts' desires, in things or in God? God is jealous for our undivided love. Israel danced in shameful licentiousness about Aaron's golden calf, and brought down God's righteous judgment upon the nation. We think that we have improved the technique as we point to the works of our hands and cry, in action if not in words, "These be thy gods which will deliver thee, O America." "God is a Spirit; and they that worship him must worship in spirit and truth." We may worship him in spirit and truth at our business and with our business provided the centre of gravity of our hearts' devotion is always kept in him and him alone and not in our business or the works of our hands.

A FLOATING ISLAND

An island about forty feet across and with bushes four feet high growing on it is floating around in Lake Chemong. The edge of the island is lined with bull rushes and the island is well covered with sod. It floated into a small bay between a cottage owned by J. C. Poolman and another owned by Alex Elliott, a farmer living at the north-east end of the lake, and the island almost filled the bay.

A National Message

Another element in another stratum of society enters into the resistance. It is the pride of scholarship and in "Alma Mater". It seems to be an impertinence to suggest that during ones course of education knowledge should be sought or accepted through any other channel than that of our own schools and our own professors. This is a static state of affairs, and is being constantly met in every quarter where education is valued.

There is another element of resistance which must be taken into account. We refer now to loyalty to an accepted formula or doctrine which is being, or has been imbibed from our own denominational standards, and from our own school of theology. This is a source of very stiff resistance. The medium is not limpid water which may be easily divided by the prow of the boat and swept aside. It is a heavy substance, semi fluid only, and the resistance is accordingly very great.

So the many parts are combined into a constant resistance. We have to work in such circumstances as this. So had all the prophets, and all the Apostles; and so have all Christian ministers, whenever they have striven or still strive to bring new knowledge to the minds of men.

This element of static resistance was enough to bring the progress of such a mighty sweeping movement as the reformation to a standstill. The resistance was there from the beginning. The reformers knew and provided power to overcome it, through the clearness and the intensity of their doctrine, and the dynamic of their faith. But the fires of the reformation cooled off, and as the resistance remained constant the movement was brought to a standstill.

This resistance operated also in the field of natural science. The loyalty of the supporters to Church dogma was a constant element of resistance to the spread of scientific knowledge. Accordingly, for ages it was thought that there was ultimate and deadly conflict between religion and science.

It is true there was conflict between accepted dogma and progressive science. The resistance was present in static form. While science stood still there was no resistance manifest. When science began to move, the inertia of dogma began to assert itself. Disturbed by the movement of scientific knowledge, the resistance became active, as the placid sea is thrown into waves of considerable height and power by the movement of a powerful boat.

So when the Copernican system of astronomy was discovered after having been repressed and buried out of sight from the time of Herodotus, the Church arose in its wrath and resisted the movement. It is historic that the Church sat in solemn judgment on the advanced theory, and compelled retraction from Galileo, the astronomer.

From that time to this, such resistance to new advances in truth has been present, both in theology and in science.

Cathedral Musings

It is perhaps unfortunate that the phraseology of our liturgies and scriptures tend to convey the idea that God is a person and masculine, at that. This is perhaps due to the fact that our religion is of Eastern origin and also that our Western mentalities are fundamentally unable to appreciate the richness of Eastern symbolism so freely used by oriental thinkers and writers. Hence the average Christian idea of God, or indeed of all spiritual truths are perhaps, the last extreme is crass materialism. The child's conception of God as an angry old gentleman with a white beard, ever ready to pounce down on it for every little childish misdemeanour, is no mere absurd, nor, it may be added, no more pitiable than the idea of many an adult who strains at a gnat and swallows a camel in the way of blind, unthinking credulity that he fondly misnames "faith." It is entirely idle to speculate upon the nature of God, for man, as man, can never approach the actuality of His Being. In this sense it can only be said that God is everything that man is not. No man has, or ever can, see God, the only approach that is at all possible is by the realization of God in man, for there is a gulf between the actuality of Spirit and our material selves. So that as far as we are concerned, there is no need to even think of a God external to our selves, or external to the universe, for we can never ascertain the truth of such. All speculation on the subject is but speculation and therefore has no value. To put it into biblical terms, it is only by the Son that man may come unto the Father, that is, only by the indwelling Logos, the Divine Word within every man that man may apprehend Divinity. It is said and truly that man is the temple of the Living God, but like the earthly temple there is a veil, the veil of self-knowledge, that hides the holy of holies wherein He dwells, so that to most of us, the temple is a sorry affair, with a neglected and lonely God dwelling within, while in the outer courts we keep busy worshipping the false god of self. For inasmuch as God in man is the personification of God, so also is self in man the personification of all that is utterly in opposition to His Love.

Colonel F. Agnew Coming To City

Mention the name of Colonel Fletcher Agnew among Salvationists, and they think instantly of rare spiritual powers, keen mental endowments, business acumen, and genuine consecration to the War. For these are the capacities and characteristics which have made him well known and much beloved, and which have brought him step by step to the important post of Chief Secretary for the Central Territory.

COL. F. AGNEW

In reviewing this 37-year career under the tricolor, there seems to be nothing to which, at one time or an-1896, he was induced to attend Comgies. Col. Agnew will visit Peterborough over the week-end.

The colonel first met the Army while a student at Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois. In 196, he was induced to attend Commander Booth-Tucker's first spiritual campaign in Chicago, where God clearly revealed to him that his talents could best be employed for the benefit of God and mankind in the ranks of the Salvation Army. After three weeks of serious thought and prayer, this studious and retiring young man followed the call of God, threw aside glittering commercial prospects, crucified his love of propriety and decorum and "joined the noisy crew." Three years later he was in the Training College.

In addition to corps work, he served in various Division Headquarters positions, and in the Western Territory as private secretary to the Commissioner, Territorial Auditor, and Territorial Special Efforts Secretary.

It was during the World War, in his capacity as Special Efforts Secretary, that the colonel displayed brilliant initiative, originality and ability to "put things over in a big way," in the city of Chicago and the Western territory. After working hours on the evening of December 17, 1917, with the consent of the Postmaster-General at Washington, and the Chicago Postmaster, 1,000 of Chicago's letter carriers, in uniform, covered their routes in a raging blizzard and brought back in cash fifty thousand dollars. Later, letter-carrier drives were put on under the colonel's direction in a number of large Western cities, bringing in around a million dollars for the Army's War work.

Other appointments filled by the colonel has included Editor-in-Chief at Chicago; Editor-in-Chief at New York City; Territorial Men's Social Service Secretary for the Central States; and Field Secretary for the Eastern Territory.

Rev. J. S. Ferguson To Preach In City

On Sunday next special Thanksgiving services will be held in St. Andrew's Church morning and evening. In the morning Rev. J. S. Ferguson, B.A., of Keene will conduct the service. His address will be on the subject of Thanksgiving. The choir under R. B. Harle, L.L.C.M., A.T.C.L., will render music suitable to the occasion. A letter has been sent to the members and adherents of the church by E. F. Reid, chairman of the Board of Managers, and G. A. Gillespie, chairman of the Finance Committee, reminding them of the exceptional causes of thanksgiving that recent international events have called forth. God through gifted statesmen has saved us from the appalling tragedy of a world war. In the evening the pastor will deal with a parable that gives a false portrait of God and a true portrait of man.

Royal Proclamation About Thanksgiving

WHEREAS it hath pleased Almighty God in His great goodness to vouchsafe this year unto Our Dominion of Canada a bountiful harvest and other blessings,

We therefore conserving that these blessings enjoyed by our people do call for a solemn public acknowledgment have thought to appoint Monday the 10th day of October as a day of general thanksgiving to Almighty God and we do invite our loving subjects throughout Canada to observe the said day as a day of general thanksgiving.

One word to be emphasised in this royal proclamation is "public." Because many of our people sincerely desire to be united in some public acknowledgment of thanksgiving for God's blessings the Peterborough Ministerial Association have arranged for one public service to be held in All Saints' church at 10 o'clock in the morning. This will be a one hour service of praise and prayer and thanksgiving with a brief address by the President of the Association.

It is much to be desired that the public generally and the leaders of the people especially should carry out the spirit of this Royal Proclamation and this united service will afford an opportunity to begin our Day of National Thanksgiving with the recognition of Almighty God.

Spiritual Worship — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 20:4-6; 32:1-8; John 4:19-24.

On Mount Sinai God gave the command against idolatry, "Thou shalt not make unto thee a graven image . . Thou shalt not bow down thyself unto them, nor serve them."

While Moses was upon the mount the people fell into great sin, worshipping a calf they had made of their golden jewelry. As Moses saw this he threw down the tables of stone in his anger.

God told Moses of the people's sin, saying, "Thy people have corrupted themselves. They have made them a molten calf, and have worshipped it, and said, "These are thy gods, O Israel'."

To a Samaritan woman at a well Jesus defined God and how to worship him, saying, "God is a Spirit; and they that worship him must worship him in spirit."

He Took Offence

There are times when a small incident will reveal much of the nature of the person concerned. When Chancellor Hitler was making a sort of triumphal tour of the Sudeten area some admirer in the crowd tossed a bouquet and it struck the Fuehrer in the face.

The result was an immediate order that Nazi leaders in various districts which he would visit were to be held personally responsible for making certain that no more flowers were to be admitted to the line of the procession. Even small bouquets in the hands of spectators must be seized.

Whether the man is afraid that some person might desire to conceal a bomb in a bouquet and toss it in his direction is something we do not know, but unless there is that element of personal fear then the order looks like the work of a man who is easily upset, one in whom sportsmanship has not been developed and who would take offence where none was intended and where none should be anticipated.

The ordinary happy individual would recognize that perhaps there was a little too much enthusiasm on the part of some individual if a bouquet were to land in his face, but he certainly would not express annoyance even if he felt any. One may often enough wonder what sort of an individual Hitler actually is, and a relatively small incident such as that which took place in the tour of occupation may furnish a large portion of the answer.

Limits In Taxation

A deputation of Labor men waited on Premier Hepburn suggesting there should be a super-tax placed on large incomes, and the money secured in this way should be used for defraying the costs of relief. The answer of the Premier was that he was in favor of breaking up large estates, but he also had to consider the danger of driving capital out of the country. He was also inclined to believe people would not stand for any more increases in income taxation.

The provincial government has in its possession a list said to contain the names of 300 Canadian business men who had organized companies in the British West Indies and the plain purpose is to take their money out of this country and avoid paying taxes levied here.

There appears to be a fixed line beyond which it is not wise to go in seeking increased taxation. The policy of "soak the rich" is an easy one to formulate, but it is not so easy to effectively enforce with fairness. The lack of fairness enters easily enough because a man who had been soaked may not care to remain in that condition. He may not be the sort of patriot who concludes that in paying his taxation he has made his contribution to the welfare of the country. He may set about at once seeking to regain the amount of his taxation from those with whom he does business. If he is in a position to pass it on he may do so. If he looks upon his income as overhead then he will include that in the cost of doing business. Those who cannot do any thing are the salaried class, and they stand at the end of the line where there is no one in sight to whom they can pass their taxation. When taxation reaches the degree to which it has been driven in this country it is at the dangerous stage and attempts to force it higher will not be profitable.

Go The Whole Distance

York Township Council has decided that its police officers will have to be equipped with heavier guns than they have been carrying. Also the cruiser cars used by the police are going to have an assortment of sawed-off guns. Instead of .33 revolvers the new weapons will be .38, and the decision was arrived at after the experience of the police in a recent bank robbery. They found the lighter weapon not good enough.

The sawed-off gun was originally the weapon of the thug and the gangster and the police adopted it afterward. The thugs were the first in United States to make use of machine guns to do their shooting and how they ever came into possession of them in the first place is something regarding which satisfactory explanation has never been made. After they started using the machine guns police started equipping their cruiser cars with the same thing. It has developed into open and blatant competition as to which would have the most powerful weapons, the police or the leaders in gangdom.

We have not yet moved a sufficient distance in taking weapons from those who have no right to possess them. We did change the Criminal Code to make it harder for those who used weapons during a robbery and we also made it obligatory for those in possession of weapons to register them. But this has not cleaned up the situation. The people who go out and register their weapons are the ones who can be trusted not to make unlawful use of them. Our efforts have not reached down into the pocket of the individual who totes a gun for the purpose of accomplishing an illegal objective. We realize such a clean-up may be difficult, but when there is persistent effort and pressure we could do a great deal more than we have yet accomplished. There is no doubt regarding the thoroughness of the manner in which our Income Taxation division can go through the business records of every man or woman in the Dominion. They know to the last red cent what should be paid—and they get it. If we were to employ the same persistence in rounding up illegal weapons we could cause many of them to be surrendered. Arming police with heavier revolvers and with sawed-off guns is only half the battle. Disarming the thugs and bandits is the rest of it and is a field where we have moved without the determination and the vigor which the situation warrants.

Where The Farmer Loses

When the date for the Canadian Thanksgiving Day was moved up to the early part of October there could have been no thought given to its effect upon the farmer and his chances of getting sale for turkeys and geese. We noticed a large picture on the cover of one leading farm paper this week showing a woman holding a platter on which was a large and well-finished turkey, but that is about the only place such a bird would exist—in a picture.

There are three occasions on which a farmer used to have a good enough opportunity to get rid of turkeys and geese, Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year, and changing the date for Thanksgiving has taken away about one-third of his chance for selling because turkeys and geese are not ready for the market at this season, and that is particularly the case with turkeys. A farmer who was discussing this with the Examiner used the phrase: "Right now the turkeys are all pin feathers and they have not begun to put on weight."

The result is that the farmer has to depend on two days, close together, Christmas and New Year's, to dispose of his turkeys and geese, and then the market is likely to be flooded with all the turkeys which are shipped in here from the West. Placing the date for Thanksgiving so early in October, not far removed from the time when summer vacations are over, has diminished the chance for the farmer to finish his turkeys and geese for the Thanksgiving market and as far as consumers are concerned it has caused them to rely on cold storage stock or do without.

Shooting Pheasants

There are several townships where successful protests have been made against pheasant shooting. In some sections there are not many birds and farmers do not want hunters roaming all over their premises. They look upon them as somewhat of a nuisance and feel it would be better to lock the poultry up for a few days until the hunting season blows over.

There are sections where the government department releases a large number of pheasants and then collects gun licenses from those who are bent on shooting them. The pheasant has not increased in this district and there are not many places now where a hatch is made. There were a number who have tried it, securing the eggs from the government in the first place and also complying with the regulations regarding feed and the time at which the birds had to be released. Birds raised that way never become as thoroughly a bush bird as the partridge. We have seen a few pheasants recently and some of them were neither wild nor tame. If one were bent on shooting them it would be quite simple because they would not go in flight fast enough. There is really not much sport or sportsmanship in shooting a bird which does not try to escape.

The partridge is different. It seems to take it for granted that human beings are a bad lot and should be avoided. And how that bird can attend to the serious business of avoiding! On the approach of the man with the gun the partridge in rising makes a peculiar noise with its wings and then is off for shelter as deliberately as though it was convinced the best policy was to hide behind a tree.

Shooting pheasants is not so good. It can be claimed they are wild, but the case is difficult to prove in its entirety especially when a man living in Peterborough reports that today there was one in his yard which was showing no signs of departing.

A Proper Decision

The Relief Department in Peterborough has considered it advisable to serve notice on sources of supply that beer, wine or liquor must not be sold to a list of 32 individuals who are drawing relief.

That is of course placing these men in a different class to other citizens; they may even feel it is taking away some of their personal liberty.

But when men find it necessary to ask the municipality to provide funds for their keep, and the funds come from all classes of citizens who have to support their own homes at the same time they are helping others, then the decision of the Relief Department appears to be quite right.

The wonder is that recipients of relief would not become cognizant of the fact that they are jeopardizing their own chances of proving their sincerity by spending money for drink. Such a custom is apt enough to arouse the indignation of a good many contributing people who find it hard enough to pay their own way.

Relief Costing More

Peterborough City Council underestimated the amount which would be required for relief during the year 1938, with the result that the money set apart for that purpose for the entire year has already been spent. This city has been paying cash for its share of relief expenditure, and has been doing it regularly since the year 1932 when the last debenture was issued to cover relief work.

We are not surprised that the calculation was in error because there are a good many other organizations which have tripped up on the same thing. In the field of large business the C. P. R. admits it made expenditures to take care of the 1938 wheat crop, and spent much more money than the size and extent of the crop has since warranted.

At the turn of the year business conditions were good, but the recession in United States started then and that has a close enough bearing on our outlook in Canada. In addition one of our textile mills has moved a large portion of its equipment out of the city and has thus ceased to be a place of large employment. An overdraft is not a desirable thing, but we see no other way of meeting the situation, nor do we believe any blame can be attached to those in our civic body who have charge of financing relief costs.

NOTE AND COMMENT

On an average there are 1,000 U.S. hunters who lose their lives each year. They go out to kill and evidently they succeed.

Things are getting better in Europe. It appears France and Britain can do things now provided Mussolini and Hitler and Stalin agree.

One Japanese writer makes it plain: "We are not asking for criticism." The reason is very plain—they can and do get it without the request.

Our 1939 car markers will be black with white figures. All of which causes one to think that it seems only a short time ago we were poking remarks at the 1938 markers.

The victory of former mayor William Stewart of Toronto in the Parkdale by-election was not one of those things that could be listed under the heading of surprises.

One celebrity returning from Europe remarked that he could not recall just where he had secured the suit he was wearing. It must be pleasant doing business with a tailor like that.

Boston lady says that dunking a doughnut in coffee is all right, but the real trick is in conveying it to the mouth with a gentle swooping motion without leaving a trail.

There appears to be one advantage in being a husband in United States. Judging from several court verdicts if your wife shoots you it is only manslaughter.

"The poor are welcomed in every church," is something we read in a religious paper. And the folk who count the collection are certain at times the welcome is meeting with a right royal response.

Suggestion is being made by a churchman in Calgary that the word "obey" be left out of the marriage ritual. It would not make much difference as a good many folk regard it as a promise somewhat similar to the kind used by the politicians.

PATRIOT

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I think we ought to fight said Joe, let's gather up our men and go, I see no other way; the bullies of this world I think, are going to shove us from the brink, it's sure to come some day.

¶ We've got the kind of men they need, they'll do a good and valiant deed, the war would not be long; we've thousands in this land who'll go, nor would they move or gather slow, for they are young and strong.

¶ But would Joe go along to war, and see what they were fighting for, stand where the battles rage; he'd be the one to stay at home, for years have settled on his dome, and he is past the age.

¶ We should conscript all wealth said Joe, before we start to strike a blow, let all the people pay; take all the bonds and dollar bills, and scoop loose money from the tills, that's just how we should play.

¶ The rich could not escape their dues, 'twould leave them trembling in their shoes, for they'd part with their wealth; they could not go and hide the stuff, and know that yet they had enough, laid on some handy shelf.

¶ Would Joe kick in on such a scheme, surrender gladly his last bean, and shoulder up his yoke; 'twould make no difference to him, for years ago he lost his tin—and he is now dead broke.

GADGETS ON DISPLAY.

(New York Times)

A BEACH UMBRELLA that can be converted into cane, hat and skirt, a footstool that can be converted into a coffee table, and a bicycle that can be converted into a tricycle were among the newest manifestations of American ingenuity on display last week at the New York convention of the National Inventor's Congress.

The congress claims 31,000 dues-paying members, most of them amateurs. Each year three conventions are held—one in the west, one in the mid-west, one in the east—at which the more ambitious members exhibit their brain children in the hope that some manufacturer or financial backer may be impressed.

Most attention, perhaps, was attracted by the "McEase", so named by its inventor, G. L. McClellan, of Chicago; it is a head support supposed to permit of sleeping while sitting up, and especially recommended for tired automobile drivers.

MAY COST SOMETHING

"I wonder how much they charge for those snaps they take on the front?"

"Extraordinarily expensive, I should imagine. That happens to be my office boy." —Humorist.

• Baldwin Talks Common Sense

SO MANY AMONG us these days says the Ottawa Journal, talk and believe the nonsense of slogans and phrases, it is refreshing to have a word from one of the experience and wisdom of Earl Baldwin, Speaking in the Lords on Tuesday, he said this:

"Had there been a war, there would have been tens of thousands of mangled people—civilians, women and children—before a single soldier or sailor gave his life for his country. It is a very awful thought and therefore you must take every precaution that human foresight can devise—human skill, human knowledge and human science.

"You cannot do more. You cannot protect everybody. There will always be fearful casualties.

"But what right has any man to condemn to a terrible death the hosts of civilians unless he knows that all that can be done has been done?"

Mr. Chamberlain is being attacked for not "standing up to the dictators", for the "humiliation" he brought to England by going to meet Hitler. Said Earl Baldwin:

"I cannot help thinking that when people talk as though there were something unclean in having to face discussions with a dictator, I wonder if they realize that one of our greatest difficulties throughout the last five years has been how to get into contact with the dictators. This troubled me long before I was Prime Minister when I was Lord President (of the Council)."

Earl Baldwin had a word, too, for those people who are forever repeating the things they have read somewhere or heard said by somebody else. Thus:

"There is one comment at this moment on the lips of many people. I believe it to be a complete fallacy: 'You have got to fight some day. Fight now.'

"No greater fallacy was ever uttered. War is never inevitable in the distance and if there were a 95 per cent. chance for war at some future date, I would hold on to the five per cent. until I died and I believe this Government will do that and I believe that this was in the mind of the Prime Minister."

Concluding his speech, Earl Baldwin spoke one of those inspired passages that only he could have spoken. Describing the scene when Herr Hitler's invitation came to Mr. Chamberlain in the House of Commons, he said:

"The prayers of nations had ascended night and day not only here but in other countries, but no answer had come.

"In the middle of that speech the Foreign Secretary was handed a telegram. He showed it to me and it was the long-expected answer to the Prime Minister. It was just as though the finger of God had drawn a rainbow once more across the skies and ratified once again his covenant with the children of men."

It is sometimes difficult to argue with people who think that the way to save civilization is to start destroying it. Earl Baldwin, with that gift of simplicity and rich wisdom for which he is famed justly, has here given them all the answer they will ever need.

• Getting Names For Warships

(From the New York Times)

THE BRITISH, WITH the world's most famous navy, have muddled through without any single, consistent system of naming their numerous ships. Geographic, historic, descriptive, metaphoric and mythological motifs are mingled. Among the mighty battleships and battlecruisers, for example, there are royal personages—King George V, Prince of Wales, Queen Elizabeth; there are admirals like Hood, Nelson and Jellicoe; there are words like Revenge, Valiant and Warspite, Cruisers carry such assorted names as Dido and Newcastle, Galatea and Shropshire, Adventure and Cornwall. The aircraft carriers speak for themselves; they are Glorious, Furious, Courageous, Illustrious and Victorious. Destroyer crews can describe themselves as from the Spitfire or the Thunderer. Submarines are named for fish.

Russia's fleet was rebaptized after the revolution. The battleship Gangut became October Revolution; the Sevastopol became Paris Commune. The Soviet destroyer Komintern may some day give battle to the German-Japanese-Italian alliance against the Comintern (Communist International).

Last week the United States, now turning out ship after ship in a vast new naval building program, adopted a rigorous system of nomenclature. The following plan, which follows some past usages and confirms some new tendencies, was approved by President Roosevelt:

Battleships: States.
Cruisers: Large cities.
Aircraft carriers: Historic ships and battles.
Destroyers: Officers and men connected with the navy.
Submarines: Fish.
Minesweepers: Birds.
Gunboats: Small cities.
River gunboats: Islands.
Repair ships: Mythological characters.
Oilers: Rivers.
Cargo ships: Stars.
Tugs: Indian tribes, chiefs and Indian words.

• Which Claim Tells the Truth ?

HYDRO COMMISSIONER J. Albert Smith, says the Woodstock Sentinel Review, made a speech yesterday at Windsor to representatives of Lambton, Kent and Essex municipalities. He said that at the end of 1929 the amount held by the provincial commission for reserves in the four large systems totalled $42,500,000, whereas in 1937 it had reached $93,465,120.

"In other words," he pointed out, "within a period of eight years, and despite the most severe business depression of all time, the commission's financial reserves increased by more than $50,000,000, or over 100 per cent."

It is just a little more than a year since Hon. T. B. McQuesten, another member of the commission, made a speech at Hamilton and said the reserves of Hydro were "all gone." He described the enterprise as "wrecked" and "bankrupt." The latter term he repeated three times.

And now his colleague states that in 1937— when Mr. McQuesten delivered his speech—the reserves were in fact double what they had been in 1929.

There are a couple of reasons why we think Mr. Smith is right. One is that statistics in the annual reports of the commission show increases in the reserves, and not impairment. The other is that Mr. McQuesten last September was speaking in an election campaign and was trying to show the terrible effects of the Quebec power contracts. But is it necessary, even in an election campaign, to perpetrate that sort of thing?

THE FEAR OF HUNGER

David Croll, M.L.A., speaking at London, said:—

"We who are dedicated to the Canadian way of life feel we have something we want to protect. The basis of democracy had always been equality, fraternity and liberty.

"But today the people in one half the world are selling their democratic rights and their liberty for some form of security. That statesman who said 'Give me liberty or give me death' was thinking of an ideal. He was choosing a quick death, not a slow death by starvation.

"We must remember that the totalitarian state gives work to its people, even if it is only work in a labor camp. The dictator provides sausages for people to eat, even if they are artificial sausages. The dictators try to raise the morale of the people even if it is only by giving them brown shirts to parade in. To a great extent they have been successful in removing the fear of hunger. That is what they have given the people for the surrender of freedom. So no matter what we think of dictators, we must give them their just dues."

ONE THOUSAND A DAY.

(Municipal Journal, London)

NEARLY ONE THOUSAND persons are being moved every day in Great Britain from slum houses to new and decent dwellings. Today one-third of the population are living in post-war houses. Since the end of the war over three and a half million new homes have been provided in England and Wales, and of these more than a million have been built by local authorities. What other country can show such a record in this sphere of social improvement?

THE GERMAN STATE.

(Toronto Saturday Night)

IT IS POSSIBLE to have an extremely low opinion of the present regime in Germany, and yet to feel that it is less of a threat to the general peace and stability of Europe than the condition which, at least temporarily, would follow its overthrow.

The whole of German policy is at the moment in an extraordinarily artificial and delicate position—rigid, inelastic, brittle, capable of being shattered by a sufficiently severe blow, but incapable of adjusting itself to any change of internal pressure.

A few years from now it may have matured into something which will be less of a menace to Europe both in its existence and in its collapse. For the moment, perhaps, civilized Europe is wiser to take the risks of the Hitler regime's continuance than those of its collapse.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

THIS CHARGE I commit unto thee, son Timothy, according to the prophecies which went before on thee, that thou by them mightest war a good warfare. . . .

I exhort therefore, that, first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men.

For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Saviour; who will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth. . . .

These things write I unto thee, hoping to come unto thee shortly; but if I tarry long, that thou mayest know how thou oughtest to behave thyself in the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth.—I Tim. 1, 18; ii, 1, 3, 4; iii, 14, 15.

To The Editor

THE WHEAT GROWERS

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—If all urban Canadians really are "in the wheat business" as indicated in The Examiner's editorial columns the other day, then it seems to this reader that we had better interest ourselves in finding a way to give a squarer deal to the 5 million Canadians "down on the farm"?

I think there must be something very wrong about a situation in which the following factual paragraphs appear on the same day, as culled from the columns of your contemporaries "Canadian Business" of Montreal, and "The Herald" of Lethbridge:

"I have personal knowledge of hundreds of farm homes in this area" (Hanna, Alberta) "and I know that in practically all of those homes the necessities of life are down to the vanishing point. Clothes are worn out, bedding is gone, children and adults need medical, surgical, dental and optical services in the very worst way. Poverty in all its terrible stark reality is in evidence in almost every home. Farm equipment of every kind is worn out and obsolete. How could it be otherwise with no pay cheque since 1928?".... Jack Sutherland, in Lethbridge Herald, September 17th.

"A lowering of the tariffs would have another much-needed and long overdue beneficial effect on our great Canadian wheat industry. It would mean the lowering of the prices of 'the things which farmers buy' and which now cost, according to the Searle Index of 'things that farmers buy', no less than 38 per cent more than the same things, of the same quality, cost before the War. This additional burden of 38 per cent, I calculate, takes out of Western Canada, each year, a sum of at least $60,000,000, for which our Western farmers receive virtually no return".... H. G. L. Strange, in "Canadian Business," September, 1938.

MOVING THE WHEAT.

(Lethbridge Herald)

WHEN WE'RE PASSING around the bouquets these days don't forget the service of the Canadian Pacific Railway on the Lethbridge division. This month, without blare of trumpets, the company has handled on the Lethbridge division well over 10,000,000 bushels of wheat. In the two months since August 1 the company has handled more than 18,000,000 bushels. That's as much as South Alberta produced last year. It's a fine service record and one that South Alberta farmers will not forget.

The Pupil: "The potatoes."

Poultry Show Is Withdrawn From Warkworth Fair But Board Put On Good Show

(By Staff Reporter.)

WARKWORTH, Oct. 8—The poultry show was omitted for the first time from the Warkworth Fair Friday afternoon because local interest had declined to the fadeout point, and for years the prize money was going one hundred miles or more away from here. Apparently most of the crowd of 3,000 people or thereabouts from Northumberland and adjoining counties didn't miss the Barred Rocks and Rhode Island Reds. It perturbed the directors more than it did the visitors.

President Gordon McCubbin and his associates were reluctant to withdraw the poultry section, but when none of the money remained even in the county, to say nothing of this northern sector of it, they decided to spend the money on something else. So the turkeys and geese and hens were somewhat conspicuously absent.

It is not so long ago that the Curtis, Evans, Hutchison and other flocks from the Norham-Warkworth-Dartford flocks could stage a poultry show of their own without much outside assistance. And they used to; but of late interest in the exhibiting of poultry had been diminishing around here, and the prize money was a total loss to the neighborhood.

Splendid weather Friday, blue skies and the hills and woods brilliant in their tapestry of autumn, brought out a little larger attendance than last year, and the number of exhibits was reported by the secretary, Dr. Herb. S. Allen, to be slightly more than last year. It was almost as fine an October afternoon as that day when the Hon. Manning Doherty, who died within the last few weeks, officially opened the Fair. So swiftly does the scene change from year to year perhaps without any lasting impressions that few people who were there that afternoon recalled the occasion. The Minister of Agriculture in the Drury government, guest of the fair board in a typical agricultural district, was easily the most smartly dressed man of the big crowd that day. He might have been accepted by strangers as anything but the Minister of Agriculture. But that was a bygone that intruded as a little memory springing up from nowhere Friday afternoon, possibly a vagrant bit of cerebration inspired by the temporarily golden hills of old Northumberland.

Races A Feature

The Fair program included a full card of horse races, three classes, three heats to a class, and each heat a race. George Tice of Belleville ran them off without much delay, and a whole string of close finishes delighted the crowd. And closest of all was a half-mile canter called a slow race with only two entrants. They would probably be classed as "plugs," hadn't cantered in ages and probably wouldn't gallop for a peck of oats. They did their heavy best, and they crossed under the wire only a nose separating them.

The directors included a group of novelty events of that kind as a variant of fun, and one of them caused a rather serious accident far back near the last turn. It was a race for old Model T. Fords, twice around. On the second lap one car cut in too sharply toward the rail and collided with another two men taking the air. They were taken on a truck to a doctor's office, and it was reported one of them had suffered a fractured leg.

Over at Madoc on Wednesday Rex Grattan owned by Payne of Napanee couldn't win a heat in the 2.25 class and was withdrawn after the third. Yesterday in the 2.27 pace with nearly the same company he walked off with three in a row; while Richard Hall and Madeline Grattan, Madoc heat winners, couldn't threaten the leaders here.

The results of the races were as follows:

2.27 Class

Rex Grattan, H. Payne, Napanee	1	1	1
Goldie Grattan, H. Hooey, Orono	7	3	2
Lee Bennett, S. Craig, Kingston	2	7	x
M. Senator Patch, H. Vanalstine, Port Hope	3	4	x
Richard Hall, H. Ingles, Campbellford	6	6	3
Orphan Annie, S. Palmer, Port Hope	5	2	4
Madeline Carrol, W. Fowler, Kingston	4	5	x

2.22 Class

Ollie Evans, Vanalstine	2	2	2
Infringer Grattan, Ingles	5	3	4
Roselind, J. F. Vincent, Oshawa	1	1	1
May Worthy, Mrs. Gilligan, Smith's Falls	4	4	5
Gentry Grattan, H. Caldwell, Avonmore	6	5	3
Tod Grattan, C. B. Lawrence, Durham	3	6	6

Free For All

Miss Peter Grattan, Al Brown, Newcastle	3	5	1
Bedford Grattan, W. Fowler, Kingston	1	3	4
Mollie Hall, H. Caldwell, Avonmore	5	1	5
Ginger Direct, E. Jones, Hastings	2	2	2
Prudent Grattan, C. B. Lawrence, Durham	4	4	3

The officials were: George Tice, Belleville; judges, S. A. Lowe of Marmora and Frank Lowe of Port Hope; timers, J. C. Anderson of Campbellford and Loule Bennett of Port Hope.

Horses A Feature

Lloyd Kennedy of Bethany and Allan B. Mann of Bridgenorth were prominent winners in the light horse classes; and among those who were prominent in the heavy draught classes were Sam Adams and W. A. McGee and Sons of Hastings and W. J. Ross of Brighton. The showing of horses was one of the features of this year's Fair. In the cattle classes the sharpest competition was in Shorthorns and Jerseys.

The midway was much the same as usual.

The judges were: John Davidson, Cobourg, light horses; W. Cruse, Bewdley, heavy draught horses; beef cattle, Col. R. E. Birdsall of Birdsall's; dairy cattle, Fred Hubbs, Bloomfield; sheep and swine, A. Ayre, Hampton, except in one class of sheep in which he was an exhibitor; grain seeds and vegetables, Ian McLeod, Brighton, representative of the Department of Agriculture; fruit, S. J. Pinson and Corey Snider of Brighton; ladies' work, Miss May Needham, Millbrook.

Results of the judging of horses and cattle are published herewith:

NEVER SLEEP ON AN UPSET STOMACH

Often neutralizing excess stomach acids can make the whole world smile in the morning

To relieve the effects of over-indulgence—escape "acid indigestion" that can ruin the whole next day—simply do this:

Take 2 tablespoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water—AT BEDTIME.

While you sleep, this wonderful alkalizer will be sweetening your stomach . . . easing the upset-feeling and nausea . . . helping to bring back a "normal" feeling. By morning you feel like a million.

Then—when you wake—take two more tablespoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with the juice of a whole orange.

That is the quickest, simplest, easiest way to overcome the bad effects of too much eating, smoking or drinking. Thousands use it.

But—when you buy, make sure you get the Real Article. Never ask for "milk of magnesia" alone—always ask for "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia"—the kind many doctors endorse.

Duce Forbids Italians To Wed Jews Then Adds Africans, And Others

ROME, Oct. 7—(AP)—Italy struck at "world Hebrewism" as the "inspirer of anti-Fascism" to-day by forbidding intermarriage of Jews and Italians and restricting Jewish economic activity.

The Fascist Grand Council laid down the anti-Semitic regulations in a series of orders for "defence of the Italian race." Many of the new restrictions were directed against Jews, but the policy was drafted on board lines to affect "African Semitic and other races" than Italian.

The Grand Council declared the necessity for "race consciousness" to be urgent "since the conquest of empire," and called for "quantitative and qualitative betterment" of the Italian race.

It made two concessions to Jews in line with Premier Mussolini's promise of moderation in his speech at Triese, September 18, exempting Jews who had served the country meritoriously in war and holding out the possibility of sanctuary for Jews in Ethiopia.

The mixed marriage ban forbade union of Italians and "African Semitic and other races," and marriage of civilian and military employees of the state of "foreign women of whatever race." Other Italians were required to have the Interior Ministry's permission before a foreign marriage.

Party Banned To Jews.

Special economic and political restrictions prohibited Italian Jews from belonging to the Fascist party, owning more than 50 hectares (123.5 acres) of land, or entering Italy's military services.

Further Jewish immigration was banned and expulsion of "undesirables" was supported. This referred to the Cabinet decree of August 1, ordering all Jews who have settled in Italy since January 1, 1919, to leave the country. Census figures published two days ago said there were about 70,000 Jews in Italy.

The exceptions extended to families of decorated war veterans, of volunteers and of soldiers killed in the Great, Libyan, Ethiopian and Spanish Wars, families of those killed or wounded in fighting for the Fascist cause.

In addition, the council exempted from the expulsion order foreign Jews over 65 years of age and all who had married Italians before October 1, this year.

The decrees were made to apply to Italians whose parents were Jews, those whose parents professed the Jewish religion regardless of race, or those whose fathers were Jewish and mothers Aryan.

Provisions regulating the activities of Jews in professions are to be made public later.

Some Concessions.

Guarantees given Italian Jews were: Assurance of pension rights to public employees; freedom from "every form of pressure to make them abjure (presumably religion), the free exercise of their religion in accordance with existing laws, and special elementary and upper grade schools for Jews.

Jews previously had been excluded from present state-recognized schools and universities.

Although the Grand Council held forth the hope that Jews might be permitted to settle in "some parts of Ethiopia," it warned that this and possibly other concessions offered to Jews might be annulled or changed "according to the attitude which Hebrewism assumes toward Fascist Italy."

The Council led off its Jewish declaration with a general statement on "world Hebrewism," which concluded:

"All anti-Fascist forces have Hebrew elements at their heads; world Hebrewism, here and in Spain, is to be found among the Bolshevists of Barcelona."

OBITUARY

FREDERICK ARTHUR BOYCE

The death of Frederick Arthur Boyce, life-long resident of Smith township, occurred at Nicholls hospital this morning. In his 63rd year, he had been ill for about four weeks.

Mr. Boyce was a successful and highly respected farmer in Smith township all his life, was widely known throughout this district. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Boyce of Smith. The farm that he operated all his life was only a mile away from that owned by his parents, and is now being carried on by his son, Oswald. He was a member of Lakefield United church.

Surviving are his wife, formerly Elizabeth Heard; two daughters, Mrs. Warren Northey, and Mrs. Stanley Pearson; and two sons, Oswald and Arthur, all of Smith; also two sisters, Miss Ada Boyce and Mrs. B. Carley, both of Macdonald, Man.; and one brother, Wellington Boyce of Ethelwyn, Alta.

The funeral will be on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of his son, Oswald Boyce, on the 7th Concession of Smith, Rev. G. Kelly of Lakefield United church officiating. Interment will be at Lakefield Cemetery.

Pine And Walters Agree On Course

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 8.—(AP).—Two visitors who have long overstayed their leaves to-day pointed graceful bows toward Boston, off which port they will resume Sunday a dispute over which is entitled to wear the crown of the North Atlantic fishing fleets.

They were the schooners Gertrude L. Thebaud, Captain Ben Pine's Gloucester challenger for the International fishermen's trophy, emblematic of sailing supremacy on the ocean's most turbulent waste, and Captain Angus Walters' Bluenose, the Canadian defender.

A last minute compromise ended a dispute over the course to be sailed and cleared the way for to-day's departure for Boston.

The compromise gave the schooners the 18-mile twice-round course for the opening race Sunday, a 36-mile once-around triangle on Tuesday, the double 18-mile triangle on Thursday and the single 36-mile circuit on Sunday, Oct. 16. If a fifth race is necessary, the rival skippers will toss a coin to decide which course to use.

Thebaud and Bluenose will be meeting for the third time. Thebaud won from Bluenose in 1930, and Bluenose carried away the honors the following year.

fantry from General Franco's armies, permitting aviation, artillery, and other specialists to be retained if Great Britain would regard this as an acceptable settlement.

40,000 Aiding Franco

Although some foreign observers estimated 80,000 Italian troops were fighting for Franco at one time, the Fascist government insisted 40,000 was the maximum. This figure was announced in an official bulletin Oct. 18, 1937, and communicated to the governments in London and Paris.

Great Britain complained to Italy Aug. 7, that, far from withdrawing troops from Spain, Italy was continuing to send reinforcements and supplies. It was understood the Italian reply to this declaration, while not admitting the accuracy of the charges, asserted if replacements and supplies were being sent it was because troops already in the field could not be abandoned to their fate.

Jews Flee Danzig

HOBOKEN, N.J., Oct. 8 (AP) — The 14 Jewish bankers of Danzig arrived in America today aboard the Holland-American steamship Noordam to begin a new life. Three brothers, their wives and eight children came here, they said, because they fear Chancellor Hitler is about to seize the free city of Danzig where they said they had hoidings valued at $1,000,000. They intend to buy a farm in California.

Mrs. Sarah Karp, president of the Norvelt local of the United Clothing Workers of America, said the strikers demanded recognition of the union as exclusive bargaining agent for the factory.

3 Million Words Sorted To Publish Hall Caine's Life Of Christ

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (AP).—One of the most unorthodox lives of the Christ in existence is to be published today, seven years after the death of its author, Sir Hall Caine, the English novelist. The book, of 1,310 pages, contains 650,000 words.

Sir Hall Caine's research, begun in the '80's, had piled up more than 3,000,000 words of text at his death in 1931. In addition, most of his best selling novels were based on Biblical material—"The Deemster" is the story of the Prodigal Son; "The Scapegoat" of David and Uriah; "The Eternal City" that of Samson and Delilah.

The Life of Christ was three years being put into typewritten form, after which Robert Leighton, English literary critic, spent two more years separating the novelist's final draft from a mass of notes and reference material.

"My conclusion is that," Sir Hall wrote, "the accounts of the virgin birth were separate documents put into the gospels after they were written. The gospels would be more conclusive without them."

He also rejects certain of the miracles, remarking that the only one common to all the gospels is the feeding of the five thousand.

Let's Keep this Record By Preventing Fires

With the co-operation of all citizens, the City of Peterborough last year gained the high honor of having the lowest fire loss among all Canadian cities.

As one result of Peterborough's steadily declining fire losses, fire insurance rates for the city have been reduced, which means a material financial saving to all property holders.

But more than the financial benefit has been the saving in our citizens' welfare. Last year in Peterborough no families were made homeless by fire, no men were rendered unemployed by fire in our industrial plants, no person lost his life by fire.

This splendid record was achieved only as the result of wise precautions. Fire hazards have been removed in our homes, schools, public buildings, stores, offices and factories. The Fire Department has led the way in informing citizens of the fire hazards which result from carelessness. Ctizens have taken heed of these warnings and thus prevented fires from happening.

However, we must continue to stand on guard against fires. For this reason, as Mayor, I am proclaiming the week from October 9th to October 15th, inclusive, Fire Prevention Week in our city.

I hope that during this week citizens will give special thought to fires and how to prevent them. Let parents this week talk of this matter with their children.

It is to be noted that last year in Canada there was a marked increase in the number of fires in homes, the worst kind of fires. We have in Peterborough a system of home inspection by our Fire Department. Kindly be guided by the suggestions of the fireman who calls at your home.

It is another fact that smokers' carelessness last year in Canada caused the greatest fire loss, 12,963 fires in which the loss was $2,670,445, and many persons were burned. I appeal to smokers to be particularly careful.

Let us all be careful in Peterborough in order that property and lives will not be destroyed by fires which we can prevent from starting by taking precautions now.

(Signed) JAMES HAMILTON,
Mayor.

Davidson—Grose

At a quiet ceremony performed in St. James' parsonage on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock, Rev. F. Craik officiating, Marion Alberta Grose, daughter of Mrs. Grose and the late J. J. Grose, 555 King Street, was united in marriage to Wallace A. Davidson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Davidson, 447 Rogers Street.

The bride was attractively gowned in a daytime frock of rural autumn cascade crepe with brown accessories and worse a corsage of Talisman roses. Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Weir were the wedding attendants, Mrs. Weir wearing a roll cord black silk frock with touches of gold, black accessories, and a corsage of Bettertimes roses.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride's mother, and later the bridal couple left for a wedding trip, and on their return will live at 236 Burnham Street.

Holdaway—Reed

The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. and Mrs. P. Clinton Reed, Lindsay, on Friday afternoon of Helen Margaret, who was united in marriage to Mr. Victor Henry Holdaway, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Holdaway of Croydon, Surrey, England. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, and the wedding music was played by Miss Jean Morgan of North Bay.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. C. B. Reed, of Queen's University, Kingston, the bride wore a gown of floor length ivory sheer redingote over her mother's wedding gown of silk. With this she wore a beaudeau and corsage of butterfly roses.

The bride's sister, Miss Emeline Colwell Reed, was bridesmaid, gowned in dusky pink taffeta, floor length, with bandeau and corsage of snapdragon Mr. Roger Reed, of Queen's University, Kingston, brother of the bride, attended the groom.

Immediately after the reception, at which the bride's mother received, wearing a gown of navy sheer over taffeta, with corsage of pink snapdragons, Mr. and Mrs. Holdaway left on a trip to Toronto and Western Ontario, the bride wearing for travelling a copper rust hand knit boucle suit, tweed coat and matching accessories.

Bride Wears White Taffeta

A charming Autumn wedding took place at eight o'clock Saturday morning, October 8, in Sacred Heart Church, when Genevieve Edna Courneya, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Courneya, 63 Olive avenue, became the bride of Bruce Frederick Brooks, eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Morris Brooks of Peterborough, Rev. J. J. O'Brien officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white acetate taffeta made with a bouffant skirt and puff sleeves. The bodice was gathered into soft folds, and white velvet ribbon fell from a three-cornered pleated neckline. A white net finger-tip veil was held in place by a halo of orange blossoms, her only jewelry was a heart-shaped gold locket which had been worn by the bride's mother on her wedding day, and she wore white lace mittens, and carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

Miss Alda Brioux, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing a gown of turquoise blue faille taffeta. Its full skirt fell softly from a fitted waist, and the sweetheart neckline was outlined in cerise velvet. Her shoulder-length veil of matching net was caught with tiny blue violets, and she wore blue lace mittens, and carried Bettertimes roses.

Mr. Herbert Brooks, brother of the groom, was best man.

After a wedding breakfast attended by the immediate family, Mr. and Mrs. Brooks left by motor for Toronto and Niagara. The bride chose for travelling a brown tailored suit with brown accessories, and a three-quarter length green swagger coat. On the return they will live at 265 Hunter street.

Next week's meeting will take the form of a paper chase so come prepared. There will be refreshments afterwards. Art Sayers and his group will be responsible for the program.

Branch Notes

LAKEFIELD BRANCH

The first meeting of the year of St. John's Young People's Association was held on Monday evening with fifteen members present. A few vacancies of offices were filled, namely: Vice-president, John Hampton; secretary, Elizabeth Twist; and publicity secretary, Donald Kennedy. Patricia Earnshaw as president and Grace Watson as treasurer are to hold office till the coming election.

It was decided that the hall would not be rented this year to other groups for social purposes; the use of the hall by the Boy Scouts will continue as formerly. Miss P. Earnshaw was elected the voting delegate for the Provincial Conference in Peterborough, also plans were discussed for sending Odell Watson and Alice Chappell to aid there. The next meeting will be a social evening to be held October 17th.

ST. GEORGE'S BRANCH

On Thursday evening the regular monthly business meeting was held with the president, T. Alcock, presiding.

The treasurer gave a good report. Four new members, Marjorie Lorne, Minnie Hodson, Connie Leggon and Jack Leggon, were initiated.

Copies of the A.Y.P.A. magazine were distributed among the new members. It was decided that a program or social be put on once a month to raise funds. Next Thursday will be literary night. The guest speaker will be Miss Young, superintendent of the Children's Shelter.

ST. JOHN'S BRANCH

Business, discussions and programs were the order of the evening Wednesday. The meeting opened with a short devotional service which was followed by the business meeting, with President Gordon Clegg in the chair.

Canon Robertson discussed the play which he will produce for the association. A tentative cast was chosen and practices start immediately. A campaign for subscriptions to the A.Y.P.A. monthly was launched with W. Howell in charge. The possibility of entering a girls' basketball team in the Y.W.C.A. league was discussed and referred to the ladies for their consideration. Several new members in attendance were warmly welcomed.

The following schedule of programs was presented by the executive and adopted: Oct. 12, dramatic; Oct. 19, educational; Oct. 26, variety; Nov. 2, Hallowe'en and Normal School party; Nov. 9, treasure hunt; Nov. 16, musical; No. 23, mock trial.

The club approved of forwarding an invitation for the annual district banquet which probably will be held in December. The system of teams to work out and present the programs was adopted. There are four teams of four members each. Each team will be responsible for one meeting each month.

ST. LUKE'S BRANCH

Ralph Mason's group was in charge of the regular meeting on Thursday night which was spent in games and contests. Arrangements were made for the picnic to be held on Thanksgiving Day at Mr. Bousfield's cottage. Any who were not at the meeting and would like to go on Monday are asked to get in touch with the president not later than Sunday night. All are to meet at the church at 9 a.m. where transportation will be provided. In the event of rain the picnic will be called off.

ALL SAINTS' BRANCH

The president announced this week the ministers that are to take the meetings, one night a month each Ken Gibson, minister of edification, gave a very interesting talk, which started off the schedule. The following are the officers: Minister work, Lewis Barry; minister worship, Leslie Cavalier; minister edification, Kenneth Gibson, and minister fellowship, Miss Phyllis Hill.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday evening as Monday is Thanksgiving Day. Will all members please remember this change of date?

ONTARIO PROVINCIAL CONFERENCE

A joint meeting of the executive of the Peterborough District Council, and the Peterborough Conference Committee was held at St. Luke's Parish Hall, with Miss Clemena Long as chairman, on Tuesday.

The billeting convenor, Miss Florence Hutchinson, reported that there were 128 billets from St. John's branch, 74 form All Saints', 45 from St. Luke's and 30 from St. George's, giving a total of 277 billets for the entire city. It is the convenor's wish that there should be at least another 125 billets available for the delegates. If there are any persons willing to take one or two delegates for three days, further particulars may be had from Miss Hutchinson, or from any one of the four branch convenors. Your co-operation is most earnestly asked for in this phase of the committee's work.

The transportation and reception committees made their report showing that they "have everything under control," and that they are well advanced with the work which had been alloted to them.

The catering convenor, Mrs. F. Dorrell, gave a fine report on the work which she and her committee have accomplished, having the final details of her work yet to be done cleared up.

Miss Queenie Hope, in charge of preparing a program for the Friday evening and Saturday banquet, gave a fine account of the work undertaken and completed by her and her committee.

The publicity convenor reported the difficulties encountered in the course of securing advertising for the publishing of the souvenir program booklet. He also presented a revised and reduced draft of the program booklet, much to the disappointment of many. However, another four pages were added to the draft dummy of the booklet, which will be welcome news to all of the committee members. This was made possible through another large amount of advertising being raised by two members of the A.Y.P.A.

Train Princesses Democratic Lines

The two daughters of the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Norway, Princess Ragnhild and Princess Astrid, are receiving their education on democratic lines. The Princesses are cousins of Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret.

Last autumn the Crown Princess arranged for them to begin classes at Skaugum, their home near Oslo. Their classmates are several other little girls of their own ages who have been chosen from the municipal public schools in Oslo. The curriculum follows that of the public schools.

There they led a free, informal life, playing in the park on the estate and visiting their friends in the neighborhood.

PLAY DARTS AFTER CHURCH

After evening service at St. Peter's Church in Walworth, England, men and women of the congregation will compete at darts in the vicarage.

to be strong."—E. B. Browning.

Dear Friends:

Were you ever weak as a child? Did you have to sit back while others played because you were not strong enough to take part in this rough play? And did you ever feel inferior because of this?

Well, that is how I was from my earliest remembrance. I must not do this, I could not do that, and in spite of all the care I took, still sickness came along and laid me low.

So I felt everyone was better than me. They could do what I could not do, and I felt resentful and distrustful towards God and man.

For, I thought, He could have made me as strong as the rest of my sisters. I remember one time when our family doctor lined us all up, my sisters and I, and said to my mother, "Cannot you see the difference? She is the least strong and will not live long."

And that did me no good, for I was conscious enough of it as it was, without his emphasizing it. I thought of God as an unfair Being, and if He had done that to me, I wanted none of Him.

But gradually, gradually, He showed me that it was not Him, but the fact that I was born too soon after my sister which caused this weakness I hated so much.

When sickness had me in its grip, an auntie or a cousin would come along and say, "Oh, is she sick again? It's too bad." Had they left out the "again" I might have borne it better, but that word made me feel an encumbrance and a nuisance.

So, in my misery, I reached out for comfort. I wanted to be something better than an invalid all my life, something better than having to lie in bed so much.

For I have had to lie there so often that I hate bed unless for a night's rest. And I hate the way illness can tie you and hold you back from so many things.

And after awhile I began to believe that God really cared, that He was sorry I did not have good health. I found that when I spoke to Him explaining how I felt, He always helped me and comforted me.

And He made me feel that I had my place in the world, that there was work for me to do, which no one else could do, and that was something. He helped me that eventually I earned the highest salary in the work I had to do.

He was an understanding Friend to me, not only when I was good, but often when I was not so good. He made my dreams come true, even although I have lost some of them now.

If you have an earthly friend who stands by you through all, through thick and thin, laughing with you when you are merry, cheering you when you are sad, helping you when funds are low, do you doubt him or her in any way?

Neither do I doubt God. And if I can, with my written words and spoken words, help another to get such a Friend, am I wrong in doing so? I leave it to you.

And I am not a namby-pamby sort of a person. Neither do I run around like a hen with its head cut off shouting religion at folk in season and out of season.

But I tell of what I have found, and that God is and can be the greatest Friend a one can have. Sympathetic, understanding our frailties and our lapses, not pushing His Godhead at us, but saying, "Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy-laden, and I will give you rest." Think you'll try it? That's good.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Teen-Age Girls Are Entertained

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 8.—The opening meeting of the Teen-Age Girls' Branch of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Church, Lakefield, which was held at the home of Miss Hazel Crawford, on Wednesday evening, October 5, took the form of an informal social gathering with the main part of the program devoted to games.

A short business session preceded the games, and was presided over by the hostess, who is president of the Girls' Branch. The business session was opened with a Thanksgiving hymn, "Come Ye Thankful People Come, followed by the Bible reading and prayers.

During the business period plans were made for the coming year, and it was decided that a candle-light service for the installing of the new officers, would be held at the home of Mrs. T. W. B. Marling on Wednesday, October 19, when the society will be guests of Mrs. Marling.

The remainder of the evening was enjoyably spent in group games, at the conclusion of which Miss Crawford served delicious refreshments.

Rev. and Mrs. H. R. Howden were guests at the meeting.

Mr. Ralph Moore of Lakefield, who is attending Ontario College of Pharmacy in Toronto, is spending Thanksgiving with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Moore. Mr. Moore was unfortunate enough to receive a black eye and two cracked ribs in a recent fracas on the campus, when a battle was waged between Pharmacy freshmen and their traditional enemies—the students at the School of Practical Science.

Hopes and Fears
Of People with Nervous Disorders

Life is made up of hopes and fears. When good health prevails we are hopeful and buoyant. In times of ill-health the fears dominate. Especially is this true of nervous disorders. Fears then make life miserable.

You fear or worry because you cannot sleep. You have a dread of crowds, and fear of being closed in or having things fall on you. But you also dread being left alone. You may even have fears of insanity. Fear and helplessness may so dominate you that you have spells of despair and discouragement, when you can do little else but cry. You must have something to restore hope, something to build upstrength and confidence.

Most people have found that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a most satisfactory restorative for the nerves. With nerve force restored to the system you soon regain the vigor and energy which are necessary to health and hope and confidence.

TWO YOUTHS PLEAD GUILTY TO TEN COUNTS OF CAR THEFTS

Market Loaded With Poultry For Holiday

That historic phrase of plenty, a chicken for every pot, was suggested by the abundance of poultry on the pre-Thanksgiving Day market this morning.

Farmers of the district came to town with an attractive display of turkeys, spring chickens, geese and ducks, in such quantities that it seemed doubtful whether the ten o'clock prices would hold up to the end of the session. The fowl was piled upon the benches with all the appearance of Christmas Saturday, and the quality of the birds stamped the market as one of the best in the province.

23 Pound for Chickens

Chickens opened at 25 cents a pound and eased off slightly to 23, but the women of the country who had specially fed stock were not inclined to sacrifice it. Ducks were 25 to 28 cents a pound turkeys 28 to 30 cents. and there were also a few geese on the boards.

Butter was a weak spot at 22 cents, but eggs were firm in wide spread prices from 27 and 28 cents for the pullet sizes to 40 cents for select firsts.

Potatoes were firm at 90 cents a bag. J. A. Moore of Campbellcroft had a truck load of them at that price, and according to his opinion of the market the price is going to move upward in the near future.

Fruit was the big feature of the outdoor market. N. Dolley of Dale quoted Spies at $1.50 to $1.75 a hamper; Talmans $1.40; Wealthies $1.00; McIntosh Reds $1.25 and $1.50.

A. W. Kemp of Oshawa presented basket lots at 25 cents a basket for hamper quanties and also six quart Talmans, Baxeters, Greenings and Wealthies. Another man asked 35 cents for St. Lawrences. Local orchardists encountered exceedingly strong competition from growers along the lake front.

Buyers' Market

The market today had everything, quantity, quality and a host of buyers. At that, however, it seemed to be a buyers' market.

Earlier rain dampened it somewhat, but not appreciably. Some one suggested that the management of the market hall might have had the electric lights turned on for the Thanksgiving Day crowd of buyers and sellers. The hall looked dark and dismal, in spite of the surge of produce that would have been enhanced in appearance if the big hall were illuminated.

YET ANOTHER DUCK!

CHOBHAM, England — (CP). — Ducks were plentiful when A. P. F. Chapman's cricket eleven played Chobham. G. Chalk was out for a "duck" in each innings and won the mystery prize—a fat duck.

Mystery Eggs

A farmer named Gardener who lives near Lakefield plowed up several eggs this week and brought them into the office of the Lakefield News for identification. They were immediately recognized as turtle eggs, and the farmer left them setting on the floor near the wood stove. When the staff arrived next morning there were four of the original six eggs setting on the floor and a little investigating revealed two healthy turtles parked under the stove. The newcomers and the balance of the eggs were given a lift through the back door.

W. C. Wedlock Elected Head County Teachers

W. C. Wedlock, of May's School teaching staff was elected president of the Peterborough County Public school Teacher's Association at the closing session of the two day convention held at the Normal School. The sessions concluded with an enjoyable banquet at Trinity United Church at 12.30 on Friday and more than 100 teachers from the Public, Continuation, Separate and High schools of Peterborough County and a part of Victoria attended.

The teacher's unanimously endorsed a proposal to continue rural school fairs as part of the year's program, and many spoke highly of the value of such affairs in school life. It was also decided that the teachers in the different districts form groups to meet at stated periods for discussion of common problems relative to school work.

Mr. A. Mowat, B.A. was guest speaker at the banquet and took as his topic, "Happiness". Miss Ruth Fisher, one of the delegates entertained the gathering with a violin solo, and Miss M. Rome accompanied her on the piano.

The complete slate of officers for the year is as follows: Honorary presidents, Dr. J. A. Bannister and R. Lees, M. A., President, W. C. Wedlock; Vice president, Miss Helen Porter; secretary treasurer, Miss Vera Squire; corresponding secretary, L. W. Copp, B. A., B. Paed. The general executive committee consists of, Misses E. Barrie, C. McNeeley, M. Walsh, W. Nelson, J. Wray. and Messrs. F. Hampton, L. Davidson, T. Chaplin and R. F. Downey.

Bobcaygeon Factory Burns In $4,000 Fire

LINDSAY, Ont., Oct. 8 (CP). — Arnbergs Factory, Bobcaygeon, was destroyed by fire yesterday at a loss estimated at more than $4,000.

According to Bert Arnberg, the fire started in an upstairs room. It might have been caused by some friction on the belt of the machinery, he said.

Deputy Grand Installs Lodge Officers

A large gathering of local Odd Fellows attended this week the joint installation of officers of Otonabee Lodge No. 13 and Peterborough Lodge No. 111. District Deputy Grand Master Bro. A. N. Sarge, assisted by H. Frost, J. W. Boorman, A. H. Mowry, F. Elson (Millbrook), E. J. Leeson (Havelock), C. Rusaw, R. J. Murduff of the district committee, conducted the ceremony, at the close of which refreshments were served.

The officers installed for the ensuing term were:

Grand Master's Visit

On Thursday night Grand Master Dr. G. E. R. Hall, Little Britain, paid his official visit to the district. He was accompanied by C. V. Sheep of Lindsay, Grand Guardian. The meeting was left entirely to the Grand Master who outlined his objectives for the year which bore out the principle outlined by Odd Fellowship.

His theme throughout an interesting address was an appeal to all Oddfellows to play the part of the "good neighbor" and strive at all times to help those with whom they come in contact, to alleviate distress and in general to go through life enjoying the satisfaction that comes from service well rendered. This according to the speaker is merely exemplifying the highest ideal of the Order. He remarked on the fact that the lodges of the district were all in a healthy condition and the majority of the members were doing a good share of the work expected of them.

Dedicated Two Flags

Prior to his address Dr. Hall dedicated two flags to the local lorges and presented on behalf of the district committee, a Past District Deputy Grand Master's Collar to William J. Constable, P.D.D.G.M. of Peterborough Lodge, who has completed recently a most successful term of office as District Deputy.

The evening's program was concluded with a banquet at which Alex. N. Sage, D.D.G.M., Otonabee Lodge, presided. Brief talks by Dr. Hall and C. V. Sleep of Lindsay followed the banquet, and the members enjoyed a sing song led by G. H. Cutmore, Peterborough Lodge. J. Sage sang a solo, which was well received. Members of Golden Link Rebekah Lodge catered for the occasion.

These Are The Dead Series Of Sermons

"These are the dead" is the theme of a series of Bible studies for the Sunday evening services at Park Street Baptist Church. Everywhere people are wondering about the dead. They are asking a thousand and one questions, such as: "Are the dead conscious? or Do they become non-existent at death? Does the real personality survive? If so, where is he? Under what conditions does he exist? Is any communication possible? Will separation from loved ones be for ever? Will the unrighteous be annihilated? What is the truth about purgatory? etc., etc. We are not left without answers to these great questions. Answers are to be found in the Bible. In a series of studies on these questions Rev. C. C. Boyter will seek to bring forward the true Bible teaching for those who are not satisfied to merely place the label "mysteries" upon these questions, and leave them go at that. The second study entitled "The Nature of Death" will be given this Sunday evening.

Peterborough's 1937 Fire Loss Lowest Among Canadian Cities

Peterboro's fire loss of 14 cents per capita in 1937 was the lowest among the larger cities in Canada, a record which Mayor Hamilton reported to the city council last night.

His Worship and other members of the council complimented Chief George Gimblett and the members of the Fire Department on the excellent record which they had accomplished. This city's loss per capita in 1936 was $1.23.

"It was a marvellously low rate of loss last year," Mayor Hamilton said, and members of the council endorsed his tribute to the Chief and his staff.

The following reference to the fire records for 1937 and Peterboroughs' leadership in the plus rather than in the minus column is quoted from this week's Financial Post:

Peterborough, Ont., takes the banner for the lowest fire loss record among the larger Canadian cities in 1937. Per capita loss was 14 cents, two cents under the figure establishd by Levis, Que., in 1936, and a very creditable showing.

Thetford Mines, Que., was a close second, with a loss figure of 15 cents. Kitchener came third, with 23 cents per capita, and Lachine fourth, with 26 cents.

Levis, which was in first place in 1936, did not do so well last year, with a per capita loss of 49 cents. This figure was well below the average, however.

While lower figures were shown in 1937 in the majority of the larger cities than in 1936, there were some heavy losses in individual cases. North Bay, for instance, evidently due to one large fire there, had a per capita loss of $10.31.

Patrick Heney Dies

SEATTLE, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Patrick A. Heney, 72, capitalist and high in Catholic Church circles, died yesterday. He came here from Canada 50 years ago.

Heney spent much time in Alaska where he had mining interests. He was a brother of the late Mike Heney, made famous in a book by Rex Beach.

Employment in Denmark is greater than a year ago, and is expected to continue its increase.

Schneider Brothers jewellers are keeping abreast of the times in store signs and have had a new circular Neon sign hung over the doorway to their store. The neon tubes form a lettered circle around a clock, and the new bit of brilliance is a worthy addition to the main stem.

PIGEON IS FOUND

Maurice Leonard, employed at the Quaker Oats plant found a pigeon yesterday wearing a metal band with the marking "W-40793-1936." Mr. Leonard is very anxious to find out how he can get into touch with the owner o fthe bird whose wing has been damaged so that he could not fly very well.

NO PAY-OUT

Pin games have returned but no more will the players hear the rattle of slugs or nickels falling into the pay out pan at the bottom of the machine. The new devices are for amusement only. One pays a nickel, has some fun then goes his way without any profit, which was the case usually with the other type of machine anyways, so there is little difference in this respect. Baseball games in which it is possible for the operator to get 15 runs is the type most common so far.

CUP PRESENTED.

Immaculate Conception Softball League wound up the season last night when all teams attended a social evening held in Ashburnham Community Hall, and the Cubs, managed by Joe Garvey received the J. J. Duffus silver trophy, emblematic of supremacy in the league. Very Rev. Dean O'Sullivan made the presentation and Rev. Father Walsh, curate, who organized the league last spring spoke briefly reviewing the season which was very successful and indicated the league would continue next year. Cards, lunch and music comprised the program.

The Rambling REPORTERS

ORANGE UNIFORMS

Peterborough Orfuns are waving a figurative red flag in front of the Montreal National when they play in that city on Monday. For in the heart of a Roman Catholic province and against a team that will probably be largely composed of Roman Catholics, the Peterborough players will be wearing uniforms that are practically all orange. And to make it worse, 15 out of ePterborough's 24 players are Roman Catholics themselves. The Peterborough squad's outfits are said to be the newest things on rugby gridirons this season, are orange with black lettering and stripes, made of tough, slippery material.—P.

Ralph Gordon Gladdens Hearts Of Many

Ralph Gordon, veteran Chautauqua entertainer of Toronto, and known throughout North America for his writing and entertainments, gladdened the hearts of a large audience at St. Andrew's United Church Friday evening.

It was the first visit of the distinguished and lovable character to this city, and in the afternoon, in company with Rev. Dr. E. W. Young, he paid visits to the Prince of Wales School and Queen Mary School, where the pupils had a fine time listening to him, and enjoying the interesting brief program which he put on.

The main body of St. Andrew's Church was filled and the variety and quality of the entertainment labelled it as the finest ever seen in the city. Following the program, the audience was invited into the Sunday School room, where refreshments were served under the capable direction of Mrs. V. Hamilton.

Gordon Harle, president of the Young People's Union, was chairman during the program, and Mr. Gordon was introduced by the Minister, the Rev. Dr. Young. At intervals during the main program two solos were sung by Miss Ruth McNeeley, and R. B. Harle, organist, played an organ solo.

Writer And Poet.

Ralph Gordon is described as an artist and a poet, because many of his poems are frequently accompanied with pen and ink sketches that show ability and originality. His friendly attitude won immediate response from the large audience, and many stopped to chat with him at the conclusion of the program. He recited several of his original poems with all the color and eloquence of a veteran, then switched to an entirely different line of entertainment and impersonated a great variety of characters. One of the most interesting was his impersonation of a farmer and the latter's attitude towards life.

Many heard ventriloquism for the first time as the gifted visitor brought peals of laughter from the audience, throwing his voice in perfect style. His rapid fire crayon sketching was perhaps a highlight of the program, and his finished drawings were undoubtedly the work of a skilled artist.

Series Of Thefts Are Believed To Be Cleaned Up Third Youth Is Being Sought

When Arthur Woodcock, 23, and Victor Caban, 16, pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley in police court this morning to ten counts of car thefts, breaking and entering and thefts, police felt that the series of such offences, culminating with the stealing of three cars during Wednesday night had been cleared up. A third youth, wanted for complicity in the offences to which the other two pleaded guilty is being sought.

Woodcock and Caban faced eleven charges today but both pleaded not guilty to entering the store house of James Juby on Charlotte street and committing theft there.

The two pleaded guilty to stealing the cars of Charles Westbrook and Jesse Airriess in Peterborough and Reeve Charles Tanner in Lakefield, to two charges of breaking and entering the Park Hill Service Station and McPherson's store at Park Hill Road and Water street, to breaking and entering the Public Library and committing theft there, to breaking and entering the garage of Dr. A. Moir, to stealing a transit level, a wool rug and a raincoat from Kenneth Sine, to the theft of two flashlights, two screwdrivers and two pairs of pliers from T. A. Bertois, to stealing 30 gallons of gasoline from Hopkins' service station at Lakefield and to breaking and entering Foster's garage in that village.

Sentence Reserved

Sentence was reserved until Saturday of next week on all ten charges and the two were remanded until the same date on the charge of breaking and entering the Juby warehouse. The two were arrested yesterday and a large amount of stolen property was recovered, including the adding machine taken from the Park Hill Service Station which was found in the Jackson Park creek where it had been hidden.

Police state that the story told by the youths shows that they visited Lakefield several times during Wednesday night. After breaking into a number of local places including the Public Library where a dollar in stamps and 25 cents in silver was taken and at Dr. Moir's garage where a quantity of drugs was stolen, the youths stole the car of Charles Westbrook from the laneway of his London street residence and drove to Lakefield where they broke into a service station. On returning to Peterborough the Westbrook car developed engine trouble and they abandoned it and stole the automobile belonging to Jesse Airriess on Reid street and returned to Lakefield. When it broke down they walked into Lakefield and stole Reeve Tanner's machine. Hopkin's service station was visited twice and gasoline taken on both occasions.

Tanner's car was used for a trip to Tweed and Marmora and after returning to Peterborough the youth made an attempt to drive it into the canal, above Lock 20.

All the offences with which the two were charged this morning took place during last Wednesday night, except the theft of a transit level and other articles from Kenneth Sine. These things were taken from Sine's car on the night of September 29.

Watch Your Pipe

Alex Eano of the Grand Central Apartments needs a new overcoat today because he thought his pipe was out when he put it in his pocket. Eano stuffed the pipe in the side pocket of his overcoat to carry two suitcases to his room on the third floor and hung the overcoat on a nail after he had closed the door. He had been sitting down for about fifteen minutes when he smelled smoke and glancing up, saw his coat was enveloped in a thick cloud. Before he got the coat to the sink, the room was filled with smoke and soon the upper halls of the building were also smoke laden. The coat was a complete loss.

Junior Sports Hour In Y.W.C.A. Pool

In the Public School shuttle relay races, Queen Alexandra won from Prince of Wales; St. Mary's Convent won from Central; King George won from Queen Mary.

In the diving competitions: St. Mary's Convent took first place with Jean DeCarlo and Angeline DeCarlo; King George School was second, represented by Iris Forbes and Louise Willshaw; Queen Alexandra, third, with Joan Foster and Irene Kendry; Prince of Wales was fifth with Loreen Bradley and Buelah Milburn; Queen Mary was sixth with Nancy Southeran and Keith Reid.

All swimmers were urged to practice for the babies, junior, intermediate champions and life saving trophies which will be competed for some time this month. The pool is open for swimmers afternoons and evenings. All gymnasium classes have commenced and a splendid season of health, sport and fun is promised.

New methods for reaching the nation's hitherto untapped oil resources are being tested in Japan.

Bible Class Of St. James Presents Play

Under the auspices of the Cheerful Workers' Bible Class of St. James' United Sunday School, a well-chosen cast presented to a capacity house Friday night the semi-rural play, "All in the Family."

With an appropriate setting of a well-to-do modern farm home the play was enacted with its wealth of comedy, pathos and near-tragedy, bringing gales of laughter and tears, which all eventually ended happily for every one.

The Dennison homestead leaves nothing to be desired in the way of modern appliances and conveniences. However, when Mrs. Dennison received word from a friend in London, promising a visit and recalling the "quaint old farm." She induced her family to adopt discarded rural customs. Upon their arrival, Mrs. Julia Lane Whitcomb-Pendleton and her daughter find the family countrified to a degree with the exception of Tobias Pockett and Viola Fitch, who provided local color without effort. In the midst of this play-acting, the host is forced to give serious consideration to a mortgage which is about due, while his son Dick is accused of fixing the bank's books to cover a shortage of funds. When things seem darkest, Peter Jarvis, a loyal friend, comes to the aid of Mr. Dennison, with proof of Dick's innocence, while Mrs. Pendleton presents him with a cheque of $15,000 in payment of a debt her father owed him.

This brings quite natural relief to the home. Dick and Eloise, Mrs. Pendleton's daughter, become engaged, and Mrs. Pendleton admits that she, too, had been putting on the "Ritz" quite as much as the Dennisons had gone rural.

Efficiently trained by Mrs. Henry Turner, each member of the cast did full justice to the role. While there was no outstanding hero or heroine, the characterization was splendidly equalized, each winning a due share of acclaim.

Henry Turner, in his usual good interpretation, acted the part of the gentleman farmer with a realistic touch. As his wife, Mrs. M. Drysdale, who plays naturally and effectively, was charming in her part. Ernie Davis, as the handsome son Dick, came through his troubles, love and financial, with flying colors, his easy attractive manner, his chief aide.

Mrs. Dennison's "dear friend," Ella Hathaway, impersonates the village gossip with real effect, and was cleverly taken by Mrs. W. M. Wood.

Two charming characters were Mrs. Pendleton and her daughter Eloise. The mother, handsome, stately and cultured, was played by Miss Frieda Pavey, while Eloise, the pretty, winsome daughter, is presented by Miss Dorothy Drysdale. Viola Fitch and Tobias Pockett provide most of the comedy. They represent the Dennison's "hired girl" and her sweetheart, and as played by Mrs. Henry Turner and M. Drysdale, brought down the house with both their acting and witty repartee.

Portraying the dignified lawyer, Peter Jurors, who proves a friend to the family indeed, Harold Pavey left nothing to be desired, while, as Alfred Henson, the Bank Inspector, Harold Fife clears up the bank trouble, which was "all in the family" anyway.

Lovely gowns and the pretty setting for the play enhanced the attractiveness of this the first production of "All in the Family." The beautiful furniture was loaned by Cherney Bros., Hunter Street.

A delightful between-act program included vocal solos in two groups: 1st, "I Love a Little Cottage" and "If No One Ever Marries Me"; 2nd, "Tommy Lad" and "You'd Better Ask Me," in lovely voice, by Mrs. L. Groombridge, with Mrs. Foster at the piano. Very greatly appreciated also were the piano solos contributed by Ashton Fife, as a prelude to the entertainment, which was introduced by Rev. F. W. Craik, the pastor.

Mrs. W. J. Swanger acted as treasurer, while Wm. Atkinson and W. A. Wood attended the lighting and curtain.

Mrs. Wm. Atkinson, the class president, and Mrs. R. B. English, the teacher, are to be congratulated upon the success of this production by the "Cheerful Workers."

Department Head

Fire Chief George Gimblett, genial head of the local Department who deserves great credit for the fact that Peterborough was named as the banner city in Canada for low fire losses in 1937. A daily and full time inspection service approved by the City Council and suggested by Chief Gimblett along with great co-operation from the public were the two main factors in establishing the fine record. The total fire loss for the year was slightly over $3,000.

Seventh Inning

Nats—McGillvray popped out to Murphy. Miskimmons flied to Calladine in right. Hannigan singled to left and went to second as Givens drew a free ticket. Hannigan stole third. Hanlon walked to load the bases. Baird fouled out to Cadd as the crowd roared. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Petes—Murphy was thrown out by McGillvray. Burton fouled out to first. Cadd flied to centre. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Eighth Inning

Nats—Craig popped out to Doll at third. Radiff grounded out, Murphy to Cadd. Kalmusky's short fly was taken by Kearns after a hard run. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Petes—McNally got to second as Baird dropped his fly in deep right. He took third as Kearns bunted a safe hit to third. Kearns pilfered second. McNally scored on Kingdon's fly to left. Starr grounded out to second and Kearns took third. Doll's hit to left scored Kearns, making it 3-0. He moved to second on a single to right by Calladine. Both advanced on a wild pitch. Murphy's single to centre scored both runners, and he took second on the throw-in. Burton beat out an infield hit and Murphy took third. Burton stole. Cadd struck out. Four runs, five hits, one error.

Nats—McGillvray singled to centre. Miskimmons hit to left, moving his teammate to second. Hannigan walked to load the bases. Given's popped to Doll. A run scored as Murphy dropped the ball on Kingdon's throw on Hanlon's roller. Another scored when Pinch-hitter Pawley grounded to Doll who threw to Kingdon to get Hanlon at second. Pinch-hitter Phillips fanned. Two runs, two hits, one error.

St. Clair Bridge Opening Draws 70,000

SARNIA, Ont., Oct. 8—(CP).—The international Blue Water bridge, linking Canada and the United States, was dedicated today to a continuation of the existing amity between the two countries. Speakers contrasted the prevailing Good Neighborliness with Europe's troubled political conditions.

The $3,250,000 span across the St. Clair River formally was declared open by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario and Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan before a crowd of 70,000. The 874-foot Steel and concrete structure connects Sarnia's Lake Erie Port, Point Edward, with Port Huron, Mich.

In place of the traditional ribbon-cutting, flags were raised at the entrances to the Canadian and United States approaches, simultaneously with the firing of two aerial bombs to mark the dedication. Provincial state, county and civic officials and thousands of district residents attended the opening ceremonies.

Terming it "an historic occasion," Premier Hepburn voiced a "genuine and sincere expression of goodwill" toward the citizens of the United States. "We Canadians are always happy to visit your country and meet in a personal way neighbors with whom we have so much in common," he said.

Governor Murphy contrasted the strained European situation to that of two democracies engaged in a work of peace and said the bridge was another bond "of respect and fraternity." The governor added: "Here, as others moulded concrete and steel into forts and bastions, we employed them to cement the unity of brothers under two flags."

System Of Fire Inspection Regarded As Greatest Single Factor In Record

Fire Chief George Gimblett voiced warm appreciation of the fine co-operation which has been given by the citizens of this city in assisting the department to set a Dominion record for 1937, showing the lowest per capita fire loss. He also lauded the members of the City Council who have supported every measure suggested by the Chief in the matter of Fire Prevention and Protection.

The system of inspecting buildings of all kinds and the immediate surroundings with rechecking where conditions warranted such a step is regarded by the Chief as the greatest single factor in the establishment of the record. A check of the records at the Fire Hall reveals that last year there were 1945 inspections of dwellings and 2126 of stores factories etc. for a grand total of 2071. Added to this the inspectors reinspected various places 706 times, with these being about equally divided between the factories and dwellings.

Fire Protection Week.

The week beginning October 9th and ending on the 15th has been set aside by proclamation as "Fire Prevention Week", a period when an intensive drive will be conducted to impress on everyone the great need for Fire Prevention work the year round. A trailer film will be shown in the local theatres, clubs will be addressed on the subject, all stores, factories, and dwellings will be inspected and there will be fire drills in all schools.

Chief Gimblett states that the educational work done in this city during the past few years is reaping real benefits, and he predicts that within a very short time the buildings in the city will be in a state when fire hazards will be reduced to a minimum. All of the most common defects and hazards which invite fire will be listed in Tuesday's Examiner and householders are invited to check them off and determine if any exist in their own homes.

Chief Gimblett is young in appearance but old in point of service, having started his career as a fire fighter in the Hamilton Department in 1906. Except for time out during the war in which he followed the colors, he has always been at fire fighting. He came to Peterborough in 1922, completing 16 years service on May 15th last. He is 2nd vice president of the Dominion Fire Chiefs Association, the foremost organization in the realm of fire prevention in Canada.

His one desire is an enlightened public in Prevention Work, and a city in which every home is a training school for the generation of tomorrow. He expects the fathers and mothers to explain and demonstrate the great danger that exists from playing with matches, starting fires, or the hundred and one other little fire hazards which exist in the home.

Key Rate Reduced.

He explained that because of the fine record for low fire losses which has been set up in the city in recent years, members of the City Council were able to approach the Underwriters last December and get a 10 cent reduction on the insurance key rate for the city, reducing it from 50 to 40 cents a hundred.

In 1937 the total fire loss for the year was 3,347.03 a remarkably low figure and this year for the first nine months the total is $7,544.55, which although twice as great is still low in comparison to years before prevention work was so extensive.

The numbers of alarms, fires and losses for the year 1937 and for the first nine months of 1938 are as follows:

1937:	Alarms	Fires	Losses
January	45	1	$ 27.00

Canadian Legion Notes

There is a great deal of activity around the hall these nights, cribbage, carpetball and billiards enthusiasts being present. That is one of the sure signs that summer has departed and the seats have disappeared from the parks.

The weekly euchre drives have gotten away to a good start and despite the dire prognostications of some of the Jonahs (where the wish was father to the thought) the drives have been successful. We have received congratulations from many players as to the comfort and beauty of the hall. Plans are under way for a banquet on the evening of Remembrance Day and we expect this year's celebration of the day to be the best and most successful in our history. We expect the cooperation of all our members and ex-service men generally.

The city carpetball league opened the season Friday night with a game in which two of the Legion teams were the opponents, No. 10, H. J. Rumary as skip and No. 11, W. Gracie skip. No. 12 has a game one night in the next week at the Sons of England hall. Will Art Thomas and his team please take notice.

The Legion concert party held a meeting on Wednesday evening and elected the executive, and decided to form a minstrel troupe with Homer Lundy as director and Fred Fell as stage manager. We understand Mr. Morley Plunkett of Dumbell fame, who is now residing in the city has kindly consented to give the party the benefit of his experience. The committee is in hope to be in a position to stage the first performance midway in November.

Arrest Is Made In Orpen Case

TORONTO, Oct. 8.—(CP)—Bernard McKinnon alias Fitzpatrick was arrested in five fraud charges, including one of obtaining money from Loretta Morrison, secretary to Fred Orpen, allegedly in rendezous for information concering a death-plot against the Toronto race-track owner.

Miss Morrison told police she gave the man $20 at a 'rendezvous" after he telephond Orpen's office and told of a plot to kill him.

The other charges against McKinnon involve $22.

Owen Sound, Ont., Oct. 8 (CP)

JOHN FISHER, 29-year-old Tobermory resident shot in the back during a hunting trip Thursday near Johnston's Harbor, still was in critical condition today though hospital attendants said he had a "fair" night.

All efforts to give blood transfusions have failed. More than 30 Tobermory men offered blood but tests were not satisfactory. Several Owen Sound men were tested but their blood was not of the right type, either.

Fisher was rushed to hospital here after a long trip from Tobermory by motor boat and automobile. He was carried in an improvised stretcher.

MORE ABOUT—

with the count at two and two sent a single over second base into centre field, Cavarretta going to third, and the crowd which appeared to be partisan to the Cubs, went wild with delight. Reynolds relieved some of the pressure on Pearson by striking out on a wide-breaking curve. Hartnett grounded out to Gordon who raced over near first base to take his grounder and throw him out on a nice play.

Yankees.—Jurges threw out Pearson from deep short. Crosetti walked on five pitches. Bryant's change of pace pitch, which had worked so well against National League batters during the regular season seemed out of his control today. Rolfe sent a long fly to Marty in deep right centre, Crosetti holding first. Crosetti was out stealing, Hartnett to Jurges, Gabby cutting the bag with a beautiful throw.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Fourth Inning:

Cubs.—The tempo seemed to have let down from the tenseness and action of the first two games. Selkirk raced into short left field to take Collins' fly. The crowd had quieted down considerably and it seemed just a matter of waiting for a break as both pitchers worked smoothly. Gordon leaped high in the air to spear Jurges' line smash that seemed headed for a sure base-hit. It was probably the finest fielding play of the series to date and the crowd came back to life to give him a long cheer. Bryant was called out on strikes, the seventh batter to go down in that fashion before Pearson.

No runs, no hits, no erorrs, none left.

Yankees.—Henrich grounded out to Collins unassisted, the first baseman taking the ball about six yards back of the bag and beating the runner to it. Jurges took DiMaggio's hot grounder and threw him out on a fine play. The fine fielding on both sides now had the crowd cheering again.

Herman took Gehrig's high pop back of second base and Bryant had completed pitching four innings of hitless ball against the vaunted Yankee batting power.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Fifth Inning:

Cubs.—There were wide blocks of empty seats at the outer reaches of the left and right field grandstand, and it seemed virutally certain that the hoped-for World Series attendance records would not be broken. Hack doubled to the left field corner, the ball bouncing around against the low wall before Selkirk got his hands on it, and the Cub cheering section whooped the action up. Herman was called out on strikes. It was the second time in a row that he had struck out. Cavarretta's bounder bounced off Gordon's shins for an error, Hack going to third and Cavarretta reaching first base safely. Marty grounded to Rolfe who threw to Gordon forcing Cavarretta, Hack scoring on the play. However, when Gordon made a wide throw to first trying for a double play, Marty went all the way to third. Marty, however, was sent back to first when it became known that Umpire Moran had been hit and injured by Gordon's attempted throw to Gehrig. Time was called as a result, and it was no error for Gordon on the attempted throw to Gehrig.

Before play was resumed both managers, Joe McCarthy of the Yankees, and Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs, went into a huddle with Commissioner K. M. Landis in front of the latter's box back of the plate. Play was finally resumed after a halt of several minutes and Reynolds fouled out to Dickey in front of the backstop.

Trainers of both clubs had run out the medical bags to help Umpire Moran in the Cub half of the fifth inning and he apparently was all right.

Gordon swung at a high pitch and drove it into the left stands for a home run to tie the score and a roar went up from all sides of the park. It was the first hit for the Yankees off Bryant. Pearson then made it two hits in a row with a line single to centre field. Crosetti walked and the Cub bullpen rushed into action. Rolfe's high fly fell safely in centre for a single, scoring Pearson and sending Crosetti to 3rd and Bryant seemed to have lost the stuff with which he had handcuffed the Yankees for four innings. Henrich fouled out to Hack off third bace.

Sixth Inning:

Cubs.—With the excitement over at least momentarily the stands quieted down again. Hartnett fouled to Gehrig just off the first base line. Collins' line drive was caught by Henrich just in front of the right field stands. It looked for a moment as though it might go in for a homer and a loud "Oh" was heard on all sides as Henrich grabbed it. Dickey took Jurges' high pop about three yards in front of the plate.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Yankees. — DiMaggio slashed a single through Hack's legs into left field for his first hit of the game. Gehrig drove another single into centre field sending DiMaggio to third, bringing the crowd to life again as the Yankee batting power seemed to be on its way. Dickey fouled to Hack in front of the Yankee dugout. The Cub bullpen by this time was working full blast.

Selkirk walked on four pitched balls, filling the bases, and Hartnett came from behind the plate half way down to the pitcher's box to confer with Bryant about his sudden los sof control. After Gordon sent a line foul into left field stands on the first pitch, Hartnett again went into a huddle with the big right-hander. Gordon slashed a single through both Hack and Jurges into left field, scoring DiMaggio and Gehrig and sending Selkirk to second, and that appeared to be all for Bryant.

Old Jack Russell, veteran right-hander of both the National and American League, came in to replace Bryant. The crowd gave Bryant a round of handclapping as he walked off the field. Pearson walked on six pitches, bringing Hartnett out in a hurry to talk it over with Russell. Again the bases were loaded. Jurges raced back and took Crosetti's foul off the left field line. He waved both Hack and Reynolds away. Rolfe popped to Jurges behind second base.

Seventh Inning:

Cubs. — Augie Galan, fleet little left fielder, who was injured in the last week of the season and could not start the series, batted for Russel to start the Cubs' seventh inning. He showed a slight limp as he came to the plate, indications that the leg he hurt still bothered him. Galan after fouling off three pitches, popped to Crosetti near second base. One of Hack's fouls bounced off the facade of the upper deck and back onto the playing field and a box seat holder leaned way out to claim the ball, drawing a laugh even from the bleacherites. Hack then was called out on strikes. Herman was thrown out by Gordon, making it seven men in a row to go down for the Cubs.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Yankees.—Larry French, a southpaw ,(went in to pitch fo rthe Cubs. His second pitch was hit into the upper deck of the right field stands but was foul by inches and Henrich, the batter, returned to the plate.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Eighth Inning:

Cubs.—Gehrig speared Cavarretta's bounding smash with his gloved-hand back of first base and threw to Pearson to retire him. It drew a momentary yell from the crowd which then lapsed into the silence that had marked most of the game. Marty hit the first pitch into the lower left field stands for a home run. Reynolds sent a long fly to Selkirk in left. Hartnett sent a 360-foot fly to Henrich in front of the Cub bullpen.

One run, one hit, no errors, none left.

Yankees.—Dickey smashed the first pitch into the lower right field stands, about 10 rows back, for a home run. Selkirk swung at an inside pitch and semed to wrench his back. Words passed between him and pitcher French and they started for each other, apparently with fighting intentions. Players rushed in from both benches and separated them. The umpire also walked in between the two and broke up the crowd.

The pitch at which Selkirk had swung had rolled weakly along the first baseline and French threw him out. That apparently precipitated the argument. After the field had been cleared more words passed between French and Earl Coombs, the Yankee first base coach.

After it was all over Gordon grounded to Collins who retired him unassisted. Herman fumbled Pearson's roller and the pitcher was safe at first on the error. French took Crosetti's bounder in the box, waited for a full second and then threw him out.

Ninth Inning:

Cubs.—Dickey took Collins' fould fly in front of the backstop. Tony Lazzeri, an ex-Yankee, batted for Jurges and the loudest cheer of the day greeted his arrival at the plate. He was released by the Yanks last year to sign up as a member of the Cubs' board of master minds. Gordon threw out Lazzeri on a bounder near the outfield grass. O'Dea a left-hand batter and the Cubs' second stright catcher, batter for French. Henrich came in to right centre for O'Dea's fly and the final out.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Let Prisoners Go

Sentenced to 60 days in jail for aiding prisoners to escape from her father's jail at Lexington, N.C., Lulu Kimel is appealing the jail sentence. She was convicted of giving the jail key and a revolver to James Godwin and Bill Wilson, who were awaiting trial. On gaining their freeedom the prisoners are alleged to have kidnapped a taxi driver, staged several holdups and killed a man. Lulu said she left sorry for Godwin being in jail because he was so young.

$10,000 Grant For Roads Into Two Mines

Alex L. Elliott, M.L.A., returned Friday night from Toronto reporting that the Hon. Paul Leduc, Minister of Mines, had appropriated an additional $5,000 for the construction of a road north of Havelock into the property of the Canadian Flint and Spar Company, and another $5,000 for further improvement of the road into the Canadian Nepheline Company's quarry.

These grants are to facilitate the nepheline syentie industry in Methuen township, and are subject only to the approval of the Hon. Mr. Crerar, Federal Minister of Mines. Grant of another $1,000 on the road leading north from Nogie's Creek has also been made by the government.

Although it is generally understood that work on road contracts will be suspended for the winter at the end of this month, that decision will not apply to the work in East Peterborough. According to a recent statement by the company the Canadian Flint and Spar Company is planning to spend $200,000 on the development of their property and also on storage space at Havelock.

A Woman Diplomat And Its Combination

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8—(AP).—Put an American woman in a Communist country as the wife of a Fascist ambassador and you have—a diplomat.

The former Frances Wilkinson of Evanston, Ill., now wife of Augusto Rosso, Italy's ambassador to Moscow is back home on a visit.

Fellow guests at parties, honoring her clamor to know what she thinks about Josef Stalin and Communism, Premier Mussolini and Fascism, democracies and dictatorships?

About Russia, she says: "Extremely stimulating...the most brilliant ballet in the world...I've never seen opera more perfectly done....such a beautiful coastline along the Black Sea."

About Italy: "I'm learning Italian, oh yes...the children were so excited about their trip to the Lido."

About America, Signora Rosso says: "How good to be back—we had a perfect time at a dude ranch in Wyoming."

Humming Birds Are Greatest Hitch-Hikers In The World

Do you know that humming birds are the greatest hitch-hikers in the world and that they sponge a ride all the way from the northern rim of British Columbia to the sunny southland near the Mexican border. It is true and has been proven that the tiny creatures ride free tucked safely among the downy feathers beneath the wings of the big Canadian Goose with only their tiny heads peeking out from among the feathers.

This rather strange tale was related by Rev. A. D. McKinnon, Ph.D., D.D., head of the United Church Missions in Caribou County, British Columbia, for the past eighteen years who spoke at the meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery in Trinity United Church this week.

Rev. Dr. McKinnon told a reporter that Canada Geese have been shot down and when they struck the ground as many as six humming birds would fly from the body. At other times the humming birds would be killed by the same charge of shot that killed the goose on which they were riding. The humming birds are so small that they can nestle along the side of the huge, powerful goose among the feathers without difficulty. It is believed that they climb aboard while the geese are in flight.

He also repeated a story which had come from one of the settlers in clear as crystal and skaters can interior of British Columbia more than 250 miles north of Vancouver. It described how a large fish hawk as big as an eagle dove into the clear waters of the lake and fastened its talons in the body of a large charr, which is a species of lake trout. The talons sank into the fish near the tail, and the trout was so large that the hawk had difficulty taking off from the water. Twice it rose in the air, the second time reaching a height of over a hundred feet before it fell back into the water, and finally after several attempts to rise, the large hawk disappeared beneath the surface of the lake, evidently carried down by the fish, attempting to free itself.

The following day the settler found the dead bird floating on the surface of the water, and when he recovered the body he discovered that the bird's claws were still firmly fastened in the back of the fish, fastened so firmly, in fact, that the bird could not extricate them, with the result that both the hawk and its prey perished.

On the same lake, according to Dr. McKinnon, there is a variety of fish which has been named the "Skate Fish." The ice on this lake is clear as crystal and skaters can see the fish swimming beneath the coating of ice. They skate until they discover a shoal of the fish, then skate behind them, around and across the lake, back and forth, until the fish are exhausted. The fish then head for the muddy shallows and bur ytheir heads in the soft mud. When this happens the skaters chop a hole in the ice near the shore and spear large numbers of the fish, as the mud shallows are covered with only a few feet of water.

Herd Of 800 Reindeer Will Be Given 4 Eskimo Families In Food Test

OTTAWA, Oct. 8 (CP)—Canada's efforts to place the 2,500 Eskimo of the western Arctic on a permanent basis as regards food and clothing, an effort which has already taken eight years and cost upwards of $250,000, reaches another milestone next month when a herd of 800 reindeer will be turned over to four Eskimo families. The outcome will be awaited with hope that the experiment will be a success.

Eight years ago a herd of reindeer was purchased in Alaska by the government and the long drive to the reserve selected for them on the Arctic coast east of the Mackenzie River delta began five years later, in the spring of 1935, the herd, slightly under 2,500 strong, arrived at its destination, travel-worn and after almost incredible hardships had been suffered by the deer and herders.

200 Given Missions

Dr. J. A. Urquhart, then medical officer in the Aklavik district, became the department of mines and resources administrator of the district and as such had supervision over herd. He arrived in Ottawa with Mrs. Urquhart this week and yesterday presented his first oral report of the progress of this national undertaking. Some of the high spots of his report are:

In addition to reindeer slaughtered for food to supply the herders and some 200 slaughtered each year to provide food for northern missions, the herd has increased to about 5,000 in three years.

The average weight of the reindeer in the herd today is at least 15 pounds greater than when they arrived and they are much improved in general fitness. The average weight of the steers ranges from 165 to 170 pounds and the does from 145 to 150 pounds.

Owing to the highly developed herd instinct of the deers, it would be impossible to divide off a herd of less than 800. Smaller herds would go frantic in efforts to get back to the main herd.

Eskimos have shown an aptitude as herders for the government and Dr. Urquhart erpects they will be successful herders on their own.

Pick Friendly Families

Especial care was exercised in picking families that are close friends of one another so that the danger of disputes over the ownership and care of the herd will be reduced to a minimum.

When the 800 reindeer are segregated from the main heard it will be driven to a new reserve on the south shore of Liverpoole Bay, on the eastern border of the reserve used by the main herd, and 160 miles east of Aklavik.

The Eskimos will be able to herd their deer and also carry on their usual occupation of fishing. The herd can never be left without someone watching it.

If the present experiment is successful another herd of 800 will be separated from the main body next year and handed over to four native families and in this way each year a new unit would be provided.

DIED

JOHNSTON, James Edmond. — Entered into rest at Havelock Hospital, Friday, October 7, James Edmond Johnston, in his 83rd year. The funeral service will be conducted at the home of his son, Percy L. Johnston, Trent River, Monday, October 10, at 1 .30 p.m. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery, Peterborough.

BOYCE, Frederick Arthur. — On Saturday, October 8, 1938, at Nichells Hospital, Frederick Arthur Boyce, 7th Concession of Smith Township, beloved husband of Elizabeth Heard, in his 63rd year. Funeral on Monday, October 10, 1938, from the residence of his son, Oswald Boyce, 7th Concession of Smith, at 2 p.m.; Rev. G. Kelly of Lakefield United Church officiating. Interment at Lakefield Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

ROSE.—In loving memory of Rachel Ann Rose, a dear wife and mother, who passed away one year ago today, October 8, 1937.

Weep not for me, nor wish me back,
I am now from pain and free,
And in my Jesus' arms I rest
Where I have longed to be.
You watched for me beside my bed;
Now I will watch for you;
And when you reach the Golden Gate
I will come and lead you through.
Calm and peaceful she is sleeping
The sweetest rest that follows pain;
I, who loved her, sadly miss her
And trust in God to meet again.
The world may change from year to year
And friends from day to day,
But never will the one I loved
From memory pass away.

Ever remembered by her sorrowful husband, Henry Rose; daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Collins, and little Ronnie.

HILL.—In loving memory of Mrs. Ervin Hill, formerly Hazel Collins, who passed away October 10, 1935.

Deep in the heart lies a picture
Of a loved one laid to rest,
In memory's frame we shall keep it,
Because she was one of the best.
Taken from earth so swiftly,
Plucked like a flower in bloom,
So young, so fair, so loving,
Yet called away so soon.
We think of you in silence
And your name we oft recall,
But there's nothing left to answer
But your picture on the wall.

—Ever remembered by Mother, Father, Brothers and Sister, and Teddy.

ROSE.—In loving memory of a dear mother, Rachael Ann Rose, who passed away one year ago to-day, October 8, 1937.

We loved her, yes; no tongue can tell
How much we loved her, and how well.
God loved her, too, and He thought best
To take her home with Him to rest.

—Ever remembered by her son, Carroll Rose.

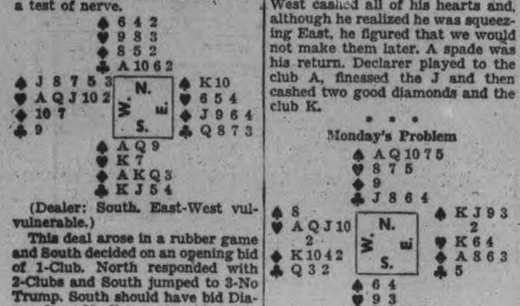
A TEST OF NERVE

FEW NO TRUMP declarers would even think about a plan of play which called upon them to present the defenders with four successive early tricks as the best means of developing the next nine. With skilled cardsmen such maneuvers come under the heading of foresight, but with those less experienced the mere consideration of them involves a test of nerve.



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

This deal arose in a rubber game and South decided on an opening bid of 1-Club. North responded with 2-Clubs and South jumped to 3-No Trump. South should have bid Diamonds or No Trump, but his selection of a club was lucky, for North remarked later that unless he was forced he would have allowed either of those bids to stand, although he felt called upon to raise clubs.

The heart Q was West's opening lead and South was obliged to win with the K. He tried out two rounds of diamonds but decided then to discontinue that suit for fear it might not break. The club or spade finesse looked dangerous in view of the set up heart suit against him. If West held five hearts originally, four tricks in that suit, plus any other losers, would mean the loss of the contract, so he led a heart. West cashed all of his hearts and, although he realized he was squeezing East, he figured that we would not make them later. A spade was his return. Declarer played to the club A, finessed the J and then cashed two good diamonds and the club K.

How should West play to make 4-Hearts, the club 4 being North's original lead?

Dr. Aubrey Lippincott Passes In France

HALIFAX, Oct. 8—(CP).—Relatives in Halifax have received word of the death in Nice, France, of Dr. Aubrey Lippincott, Dalhousie University's second oldest graduate and at one time physician attached to General George Custer's famed 7th United States cavalry. Dr. Lippincott, who was 91 and had been living in retirement since 1935, died Sept. 23.

A native of Pictou county—he was born in New Glasgow, N.S.—he became principal of Pictou academy, a by-word in Canadian educational circles, when he was only 20. He had graduated from Dalhousie University the same year.

MIXING THEM UP

AMONG THE MOST interesting declarer's jobs are those which require the use of several different kinds of moves to eliminate losers. Adroitness is needed frequently when some losers can best be ruffed and others parked on cards which can be set up.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable)

After a pass by South, West bid 1-Heart on this deal. North overcalled with 1-Spade. East called 2-Hearts. South 3-Clubs. West 3-Hearts, North 4-Clubs and East 4-Hearts. South feared the sacrifice would be too costly, so passed.

North led the club 4, which South took with the K. He returned the heart 9, which West won with the 10. The spade 8 was then led and North went in with his A to return the heart 7. After winning with the J, West ruffed the club 3 with the heart K. He then ruffed a spade and drew North's last trump. Next came a diamond to the A and on the spade K, the club Q was tossed. The diamond 10 was then finessed and followed by the diamond K and heart Q. A diamond trick was then given up.

At trick three, West can ruff a club and regain the lead with the diamond K to ruff his second club, but if the diamonds are 4-1 he may be set. It all would depend on how he played the suit. If he played the K first, he would have had two diamond losers. With the spade A being placed in the North hand it was safer to establish the K for a club sluff, so that only one club had to be ruffed. This play enabled West to regain an entry with a spade ruff to take out the remaining trump.

FICTION AND FEATURES

AFRAID TO MARRY

HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Judy Rogers, New York heiress, is looking for a job because her father has been wiped out in a financial crash. When her father goes west with her step-mother, her own mother being abroad and remarried, Judy moves to a small hotel. Heart-broken because Craig Denby, the man she loved, married another girl, she finds solace in the company of Ronald Birrell, brilliant young attorney from Tennessee, who recently joined the firm of her father's lawyers. Afraid of marriage, Judy realizes that is why she lost Craig.

When she learns from her best friend, Marjorie, that Craig and Mary, his bride of a few weeks, have separated, Judy calls on Mary and phones Craig in an effort to bring them back together. A second call on Mary is necessary to bring about a reconciliation. Judy cannot find work and one evening she returns to the hotel to find herself locked out because her rent is overdue. On the day she lands a job at Danceland as a hostess, Ronald tells her of an opening as social secretary to the wealthy and ambitious Abbey Boland, engaged to marry a count. Judy declines it.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 17

JUDY WAS reluctant to tell Ronald Birrell what her new job was going to be. She wondered at her own hesitation. He was not her guardian. He was just a red-headed young man, with friendly eyes, a good natured grin, a tongue that could be more than sarcastic in variance with that grin, and a disturbing way of making her adhere to his suggestions.

"Why shouldn't I tell him?" she admonished herself. Alone in the shadowy rooming house hall she threw her head high, tossed her auburn curls back with a flash of spirit, and said:

"I'm joining the Danceland crew."

"Say it again."

"Danceland—you know, the place where a man pays a dollar, encircles a girl's waist with a manly arm, and makes three trips round the floor while a swing band goes original."

"You are serious?"

"No—just afraid I might grow hungry waiting for a better job. I needn't talk to the rhymic-footed gentlemen. I can take steps with them and then forget them."

"Judy, you're not taking that job!"

"Why not?"

"It will be on every front page tomorrow morning. Your picture, too. I thought you didn't want publicity."

"I don't, but no one I know comes to that place. I gave a fictitious name, so I'm safe as though I were in a row boat off a South Sea island."

"I'll call for you. I had an appointment but I'll try to break it—"

"You'll do nothing of the sort. I'm keeping this engagement alone. Run along and eat dinner with Abbey Boland or Marjorie or Mr. Heaton, and entertain them with the story of a girl who is dancing holes in her golden sandals. They'll love it."

"I'm meeting a financier to go over a case with him. He wouldn't be interested, Judy. But I'll drop by later in the evening."

By twelve o'clock it seemed to Judy that in all her life she never had been so tired. The pursuit of a job, from one agency to another, was a pleasant stroll compared to this endless rhymic beat to which she must keep step. Some of the girls strolled away from the floor with their partners and sat out numbers. This she would not do. She was an automaton, hired to dance, and dance she would. Once she went into the dressing room, powdered her tilted nose, noted that the summer's freckles had drifted away and her eyes were shadowed with weariness. She lifted her foot and looked at the fragile sole. It was smooth. She would have sworn it held a hole.

She had chosen the green frock and she noted the envious glances of a girl in a cheap flowered print. It was a pretty pattern, made with flounces, and a rose-velvet ribbon was knotted around the slender high waist. On an impulse Judy spoke.

"I've been wanting a flowered dress. We're about the same size. You don't by any chance want a green cloud chiffon, do you?"

"You want to trade?" The girl's voice was breathless. Her eyes shone as though a forbidden city had swung out of dark clouds. "You can't meant it? That's so beautiful! My dress was $7.89."

The girl said it tremendously, bravely. She would not cheat, not pretend to make an exchange which she knew was not fair.

"Have you worked here long?" asked Judy, unzipping her frock, pulling it over her slim, soft shoulders.

"One month. It's better than anything else I could get." She fumbled with the cheap fasteners on her gown. "Why do you want to trade?"

"I like your frock," Judy answered carelessly. She couldn't say: "Because your eyes looked like those of a little girl who didn't get a doll for Christmas; because you never have known the soft glory of real silk next to your skin; because I've always had dresses, too many dresses to wear, and you have to slave for just one; because I've been learning to save and share these last few weeks."

Later she was to realize the whole course of the next six months, maybe her life, would have been different if she had not made that gift.

She had not observed that a young man was watching her keenly before she entered the dressing room. Thus, she returned to the wall where the hostesses gathered when not on the floor.

The young man meantime was calling the paper that he represented.

"Bill? Say, Judy Rogers or her twin sister is acting as a hostess down at the Danceland gallery. Registered under a phoney name, of course. Might slip down a cameraman. She's wearing a lot of green stuff that wraps around her—he can't miss her . . ."

The reporter was not around when the photographer arrived. He had hurried to his paper's library to look up data on Judy Rogers. The cameraman, young and inexperienced, read the hastily scribbled discription of Judy which the night city editor had given him. He spied the dress. He focussed his camera and shot.

As he did so, Ronald Birrell entered the hall. Judy saw him coming, and started to meet him. She had not noticed what the photographer was doing. For all she knew he was making pictures for advertising material.

"What's the racket?" she heard Ronald say.

"Taking a picture, that's all." He ignored the lawyer, focused the camera, shot again. Judy followed the line of vision. She saw the girl in her green dress smiling inpleasure at this sudden notoriety. Still she did not guess at the camera's mission.

Then Ronald saw her. He looked puzzled, as though something was wrong but her could not place it. It was her dress, of course. Being a man who dealt with legal briefs, football and fishing rods, instead of the intricacies of the cut of a skirt or the width of a belt, he wouldn't know, Judy reflected.

"You're different," he said. "Not so—so right."

"Listen," she said. "I want to hear what the cameraman is telling the child in green. I traded dresses with her for fun—"

"You did! Oh, good grief, Judy." He dragged her by one hand to the spot where the girl was being questioned.

"Blue eyes, brown hair, green dress," the reporter-photographer was writing down. "I guess you're the dame whose picture we want."

"It will be in the paper?" the girl asked breathlessly. "Which one?"

"Run! Wait for me in the downstairs foyer," Ronald said to Judy in a terse whisper. She turned away, but she did not leave. She heard him say:

"Who do you think this girl is, sir?"

"Where?" Pete asked. Then his eyes widened. "Holy smoke, Jeff, you've got the wrong girl! She isn't Judy Rogers any more than I'm Robert Taylor—"

Judy did not wait. She picked up the evening wrap she had worn and left. She reached the lower foyer to find Ronald ahead of her, searching for her.

"Like it?" he asked laconically.

"Goodness no!"

"You're out a dress."

"That was a gift. I wanted her to have it."

"Someone gave me my first pair of trousers when I was 12. I didn't know, until then, you could buy them without patches, made from clean goods, I'll never forget." He chuckled at the memory.

Judy glanced at him curiously. It was difficult to remember that his link went back to a cabin on a tennessee hillside, just a few miles removed from the comfortable houses in the valleys and the lower hills. Again she was impressed with the integrity, the honesty, the fearlessness of this man who seemed to be forever rescuing her. He would not let her down. Suddenly she knew that she did not want him to go out of her life. She did not love him. Marriage and romance were ended. There was a great waste within her, that was all.

But it would be good to have him as a friend where she might talk to him.

"If Abbey Boland would still like someone to help her with her count maybe I know a few of the tricks," she said presently.

Should You Ignore Your Bad Dreams?

Dreams Reveal Hidden Wishes

"Wake up, Jack, and forget that bad dream," Helen's saying.

But should Jack forget it when it troubles him so often? He's caught in a rainstorm with two enormous wedding cakes in his arms. He feels he must keep them both dry, but he can get only one under his coat at a time.

A psychologist would say this dream represented a conflict of loyalties. In Jack's case, one of the wedding cakes represents Helen, his fiancee; the other, his job. Though he's deeply in love, he's unconsciously afraid that marriage now will prove an obstacle to business success. But if he and Helen understood dream language, they might work out a happy solution together.

Many dreams contain clues to personal problems. To struggle with a bolted door means you secretly feel unequal to life. To dream you can't speak suggests you depend too much on others.

Every Husband Should Be Provident Enough To See That His Family Will Be Cared For In The Event His Life Is Suddenly Snuffed Out

DEAR MISS DIX—We are a young couple with one baby; very happy except for one thing about which we cannot agree and that is his taking out some insurance. He earns a good living, but we have no money saved and he says he can't afford a policy, but I know better. If anything should happen to him, the baby and I would have absolutely nothing as a means of support. When I tell my husband this and urge him to take out some insurance he gets angry and says I just want his money. What shall I do? Shall I just quit nagging him about the insurance and be thankful for his otherwise generous loving ways?

MELVA.

ANSWER:

The memory of your husband's "generous loving ways" wouldn't feed you and the baby very long if he should die, and that is something that is liable to happen to any man at any minute, no matter how young and healthy he is, in these days when we not only have to evade sickness, but also dodge automobiles. We literally take our lives in our hands every time we go outside of our own doors.

I cannot think that any man who has intelligence enough to hold down a good job, as your husband does, could fail to see not only the advantage, but also the necessity of taking out insurance in order to protect his wife and baby. But there are plenty of men who cannot bear for their wives to be more provident and forward-looking than they are, and so perhaps your husband's objection is not the insurance itself, but to your insistence upon it. Evidently he has got his back up over your urging him about it, so drop the subject yourself and set some high-pressure insurance salesman onto the job.

Certainly no man who loves his wife and children can take pleasure in the thought that if he were to die they would be thrown out penniless on the world, with not even a few dollars to stand between them and starvation, while the grief-stricken wife and mother sought some job whereby she might make a living.

Such a thought would add the final torture to the death agony of any husband and father, and many a man has been saved from it by the knowledge that his insurance policy would protect his family from want.

As for your husband accusing you of wanting to get hold of his money when you urge him to take out an insurance policy, that is too unjust and absurd to discuss, but if he has any such apprehensions he can take out a policy on which he can get the benefit himself and which will protect him while he is alive and you and the child if he is dead. There is no better way of saving money nor safer way, for during all the depressions the good insurance companies stood up better than any other financial institution.

* * * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a young man trying to decide between two careers, one as a lawyer, the other as a musician. My parents are very anxious for me to become a lawyer, but music is part of me and I do not feel that I could ever be happy following anything else. Of course, law has its advantages in that I am sure of a good living after I have graduated. Music has not that assurance, but it would bring me happiness. Should personal happiness be sacrificed for my family and I be dissatisfied for the remainder of my life?

UNDECIDED.

ANSWER:

That is a question that no one can decide but yourself. Generally speaking, a man should follow the line of work which he finds most congenial—the thing for which Nature designed him—because in that he not only finds happiness, but makes a success. Very few people ever do well at any labor that is distasteful to them. To achieve anything worthwhile we have to put not only our backs, but our hearts into it and have it fill our thoughts by day and our dreams by night and be the one thing of greatest interest to us.

Nothing is truer than the famous saying of Stevenson that "he who finds work to do, which he follows without any regard for the reward, but for his love of it and the pleasure he has in doing it, is called of God."

But before you make your decision between law and music you must see your parents' point of view and that is, that if you do not go about some money-making occupation the chances are that they will have to support you for many years—perhaps for always—and you have no right to lay that burden upon them.

It is a pity that before you devote yourself to music you cannot find out whether your talents for it are as great as your love for it. There are so many near-geniuses who waste their whole lives in attempting to do things for which they have no gift, who work and strive to reach heights they have not the ability to attain and die embittered and disappointed.

Try to take a dispassionate inventory of yourself and find out whether you have a God-given genius or not, and whether you have the courage and the self-denial and the patience to follow the long and hard road that the musician must tread before he reaches success. But which ever decision you make here's wishing you luck.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I have a wonderful neighbor whose husband is running around with a young woman. She thinks he goes to his lodge at night, but I meet him out with the girl. Shall I tell my friend that her husband is unfaithful to her?

ANXIOUS.

ANSWER:

No. Why should you bring sorrow to her before its time? She is bound to find out about it soon enough. Let her enjoy her happiness as long as she can.

And, perhaps, she knows and is saving her face by keeping up a brave pretense of ignorance. No woman is so stupid that she does not know when her husband has ceased to care for her and is interested in some other woman.

But plenty of women, because they love their husbands, because they want to keep their homes together for the sake of their children, or because they know that their husbands are just vain and silly, pretend not to suspect what they know all too well in their secret hearts, and they never forgive the meddling friends who sweep away the camouflage of a happy marriage behind which they are hiding.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

"Now," said Mother Goose to Knarf and Hanid as they all walked out of the candlestick-maker's shop, "we'll go to the butcher's and the baker's and finish our shopping. I'm very glad you've come along to help me carry my bundles."

"Oh, we want to help you as much as we can," Hanid said.

"Mother Goose—what's the name of this street, please?" Knarf asked the next minute. It was a curious kind of street. The sidewalk, instead of living straight as a sidewalk should, went dipping up and down and curving round and round until it finally disappeared up one of the trees. The trees were strange, too. Their leaves were shaped like numbers and all the birds in the branches were adding them up.

"Is this where the three wise men of Gotham live?" Hanid asked.

"Yes — and that's their house. Shall we stop in for a moment and say good-morning?"

Find Them Eating.

The two shadow-children thought that would be a very nice thing to do. So Mother Goose rang the doorbell. They heard three vices shout: "Come in!" They walked in, and found the three wise men of Gotham sitting about their table on three little stools eating.

"Having your dinner so early?" Mother Goose said in surprise.

"I'm the only one having dinner," the first wise man answered.

"And I'm having lunch," said the third wise man.

"You see," the first wise man explained, "we've found a very wise way of doing away with the trouble of eating three times a day. Each one of us only has to eat once a day, but still we all have breakfast, lunch and dinner. If there anything special you'd like to know?"

Mother Goose turned to Knarf and Hanid. "Yes, why don't you ask them a question? I'm sure they're wise enough to answer it."

Looking Back
On This Date

By FRED WILLIAMS

It will be just a century tomorrow since the Earl of Durham, on Oct. 8, 1838, at Quebec issued his farewell proclamation to the people of Canada. He had to announce the disallowance by the British government of the two acts which were the bases of his policy, that relating to the freeing of certain political prisoners and that banishing certain of the leaders to Bermuda.

In doing so he too kadvantage of the great opportunity to express his regret that he was not to be permitted to finish his work, deplored the veil of secrecy concering government which had in the past veiled public affairs in Canada, and thanked Canadians of both races for their kindly co-operation and in most cases sympathy. It is a state document of the highest importance, quite long, but perhaps its spirit can be represented by a reproduction of its two large paragraphs:

"I shall be prepared at the proper period to suggest the constitution of a form of government for Her Majesty's dominions on this continent which may restore to the people of Lower Canada all the advantages of a representative system, unaccompanied by the evils that have hitherto proceeded from the unnatural conflicts of parties; which may safely supply any deficiencies existing in the governments of the other provinces; and which may produce throughout British America a state of contented allegiance founded, as colonial allegiance ever must be, on a sense of obligation to the parent state.

"I fervently hope that my usefulness to you will not cease with my official connection. When I shall have laid at Her Majesty's feet the various high and important commissions with which her royal favor invested in me, I shall still be enabled, as a peer of parliament, to render you efficient and constant service in that place where the decisions that affect your welfare are in reality made. It must be, I humbly trust, that for the advantage of these provinces if I can carry into the imperial parliament a knowledge, derived from personal inspection and experience of those interests upon which some persons there are too apt to legislate in ignorance or indifference and can aid in laying the foundation of a system of general government, which, while strengthening your permanent connection with Great Britain, shall save you from the evils to which you are now subjected by every change in the fluctuating policy of a distant and successive administration."

Thus did the father of our constitutional government say farewell to Canada. He laid the foundations thereof in his report; but he did not live to see the structure, the building of which fell to his son-in-law, the equally great Earl of Elgin.

Daladier Asks Quiet To Solve Dilemma

PARIS, Oct. 8—(AP).—Premier Edouard Daladier worked to-day on plans to rebuild the French economic and financial structure under parliament-given decree powers.

So insistent was Daladier that he be allowed to work "in calm and silence" that he threatened "necessary punishment" if newspapers refused to halt discussion of possible measures dealing with the country's economic life.

The entire Paris press published the statement, read by Daladier personally to assembled newspaper representatives, but many papers continued to analyze various measures they though open to the Premier.

Some few papers commended the statement. The Conservative Figare suggested France needed a special Board of Censors to control news and editorial discussion in "periods of international tension."

Daladier indicated it would be some time before his financial decrees would be ready for publication. Some observers placed the probable date as late as November 1.

PETERBOROUGH ORFUNS

SEASON 1938

TODAY WE hail the return of Peterborough to the field of senior rugby after a gap of twenty-nine years. The entrance of the Orfuns into the major division of the O.R.F.U. in which Peterborough teams conducted themselves gallantly almost three decades ago is an event of great importance and so in this special football edition The Examiner joins with local organizations, business men and citizens generally in paying tribute to the Orfuns as they prepare to do battle in senior ranks.

It is fitting, in such an edition, that in wishing the senior team of 1938 a most successful season, we should recall the players and teams of bygone years who won fame for Peterborough on the gridiron. The fight and spirit and drive displayed on many a rugby battlefield, we like to think, will come down out of the past and serve to spur the Orfuns into action against the formidable opposition they will encounter.

FREE

40 Reserved Seats

Would you like two reserved seats FREE for next Saturday's game between Balmy Beach and the Orfuns at the Peterborough Exhibition Grounds?

Here's How:

Visit one or all of the stores advertising in this section. In 20 of them you will find as a guest one of the Orfun players who will be glad to meet you. To each purchaser he will present a coupon and at 9 p.m. he will make a draw. Two reserved seats will be mailed to the name on the lucky coupon.

The bargains tonight are really extra special, so be sure to come down town tonight and meet the boys who are going to put Peterborough on the football map.

SENIOR FOOTBALL HERE OUTGROWTH OF TALK AT CORN ROAST

Orfuns Revive Grid Game Just Four Seasons Ago And Grow Into Big Sport

Out of a corn roast one autumn evening four years ago grew the Orfuns' Rugby Club, now entered with Toronto, Montreal and Sarnia in the O.R.F.U. senior grouping.

Several fellows, after this corn roast, were discussing sports. Fellows like Mick Magee, Archie Weir, Jack Gardner, Charlie Carson and a few more. With summer sports over and hockey a long way off, these boys—belonging to a semi-athletic club known as the Kadunks—began talking of football. They wondered if an intermediate O.R.F.U. team couldn't be organized in Peterborough, as was the case of 30 and 35 years ago.

Charlie Carson took it upon himself to organize such a club. He interviewed Lou Brooks and the latter agreed to back such a club in the matter of sweaters and aid in any way possible. This pair then got busy, buzzing up to Lindsay, Oshawa, Belleville and Toronto, and finally entered a team in the O.R.F.U. There were plenty of ex-P.C.I. players and good rugby material, and a fair squad was lined up. With Gord Young as coach.

Called Orfuns.

The Peterborough intermediate team—nicknamed the Orfuns by the Examiner sports writer, and the name stuck—beat Belleville that first year to enter playdowns. Followed a series with Toronto, and then Orfuns were drawn against St. Thomas in Ontario finals, losing to the Saints. A four-team group was organized the next year in Central Ontario, Oshawa winning out. The following season saw Lindsay take group laurels. Last year, with Cobourg replacing Oshawa in the group, the Orfuns won the group championship.

Drawn against Trenton Fliers, the Orfuns looked bad in their first game but eliminated the Fliers by a big score in the return game here. They then rubbed out Toronto City Club in easy style. They tangled with the Dundas Bombers in provincial finals but absorbed a beating at the hands of that powerful club, made up of a number of senior players. Coach Bill Turnbull, aided by Gil Putnam, handled the Orfuns in their bid for an intermediate "A" championship. One record the Orfuns hold and that is of playing football later in the season than any other Peterborough grid squad—their last game being December 11th.

The Lineup:

Among the players on last year's good Orfuns' lineup were': Don Crowe, Al Winslow, Archie Weir, Ford Loucks, Harry Marsh, Joe Begley, B. Smith, Maurice Giardino, Fred Williams, Mick Magee, Bill Gerow, George Broadley, Lloyd Grose, Jack Mitchell, Ross Pulkinghorn, Don Hendren, Ed Ascott, Chuck Kearns, Frank Spencely, Bill Harle, Gord McIntyre, Ken Bartle, Ossie Sloane, Earl Spencely, Jack Archibald and Grant Cameron. Lou Brooks was club president.

Right from the start, this O.R.F.U. revival of recent years caught on with players and football fans. Big turnouts each fall for practises enabled the coaches to select strong squads, and the teams provided fine fixtures in Riverside Park for big followings during the autumn months. The teams played orthodox rugby and occasionally worked in some fancy forward passing and trick plays, always being dangerous—and becoming noted as an outfit that battled hardest when behind.

The Orfuns started out with little or nothing and developed into a first-rate football club, though still without any real backing. They sold raffle tickets and depended on their gate receipts to carry them along. They ran into unfortunate opposition, due to an O.R.F.U. error, in their final game here last December when P.C.I. were also playing off here that day, and the huge rugby crowd was divided in two, but the Orfuns ended the season out of the red.

Go Senior.

Following their good showing last year, the Orfuns were invited to go senior this season by the O.R.F.U. officials. The latter wanted a compact four-team grouping of Montreal, Peterborough, Toronto and Sarnia—dropping Hamilton Cubs. Local manufacturers, sportsmen and civic heads conferred and decided it would be a good thing for Peterborough, and the team was entered in the higher competition. It was decided to bring in half a dozen stars and build the team around these, using the best of the local intermediates. Club officers stated they did not expect to field a winning team the first year, but would build for the future and provide fans meantime with good football fixtures. Home games were to be held on the Exhibition Grounds.

The Orfuns open their senior schedule in Montreal next Monday. They have a good team lined up, under Coach Bill Irwin, former Balmy Beach star. Curly Krug, former Queen's and Argos' player, is here, too. And Herb Hendrie, ace lineman of the Beaches. With Joe McNulty of Toronto and Johnny Shields of Hamilton, as well as Bill Flack of Montreal. With Leo Deadey of Argos. And a few other newcomers. The Orfuns will stick in senior company and the small gathering of fellows, who were at the corn roast that night, must often smile with satisfaction when they think of what they started!

Rugby Dates Back Hundreds Of Years

Football was the oldest of outdoor sports, said Lawrence White, of Claremont, Calif., a Pomona college student of 1926 who had conducted an exhaustive search into the origins of the pastime.

"He will toss thee like a ball," indicating that some form of the game existed as early as 750 B.C.

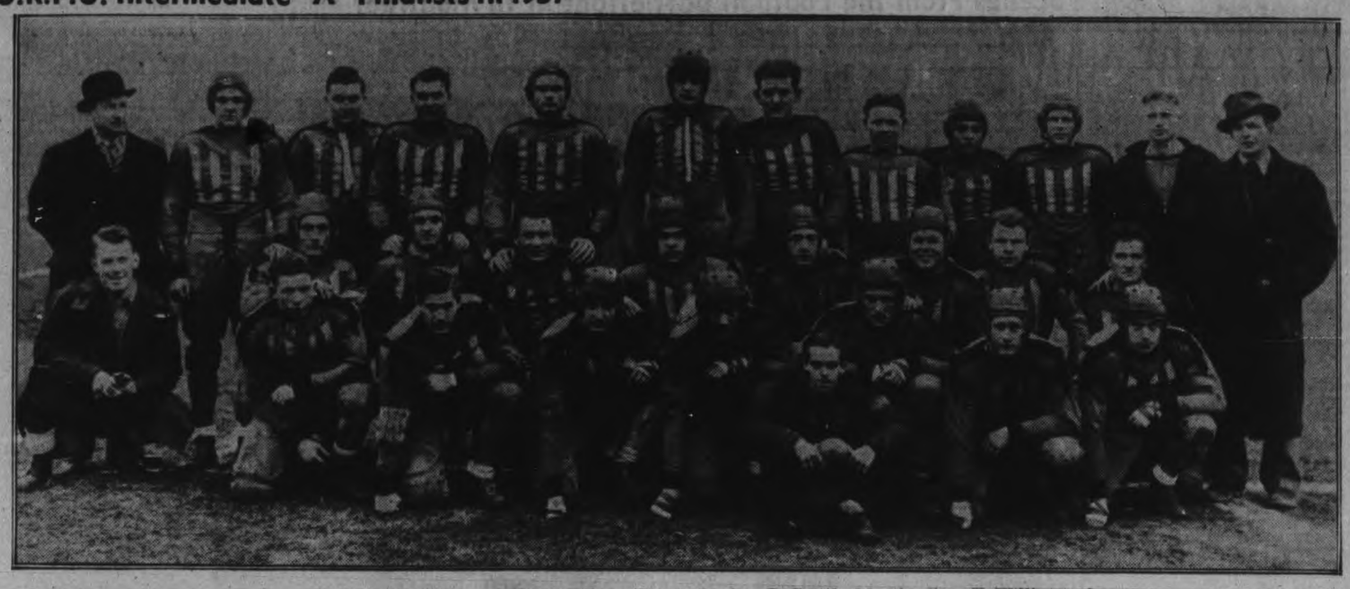
Leaping ahead a few centuries, the student found one of the first official acts of Caesar Augustus was to demand a revision of the rules of a football game the Romans had learned from the Greeks, Augustus contended the game was too effeminate for men accustomed to slaughter their foes with the short sword.

By 1650 football was regarded as a national institution in England. It was played in American colleges as early as 1800. The first intercollegiate game was played in 1869 between Princeton and Rutgers.

School Monuments

ORANGEVILLE, Ont., Oct. 8.—(CP).—Surrounded by one fence and all in one line stand three school houses, monuments to the memory of the settlers of School Section No. 4, Amaranth township who struggled to obtain education. All of a different period, the buildings have served rural residents of that district since 1875.

O.R.F.U. Intermediate "A" Finalists In 1937



In their fourth year of operation, the local Orfuns went to the O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" finals last autumn before bowing out to the Dundas Bombers. Some Players Neglect Pads

Every year Canadian rugby has had cause for regret in many players injured, some severely, and an occasional death.

While football is by its very nature strenuous, not a few of these accidents are due to carelessness of the victims themselves. Not a club but equips its players with every known safeguard and some of them go even to extremes in this respect.

Despite this, every game sees players throwing away headgear, parading without shoulder or other pads and generally taking every chance that their clubs have been so careful to provide against.

Headgear Important

The headgear, the most important safety device used in the game, is supplied to every player. It safeguards from serious head and neck injuries, provides against concussions and the most dangerous threats to life in a game noted for personal contact. Not a player but knows from experience the value and necessity of this protection against the most dangerous of all football accidents.

Toss Them Around.

Too large a percentage of players go about without any headgear at all or a cap, which is just that.

A serious accident teaches the lesson for a time, but that is quickly forgotten. Year after year the rugby unions devise ways and means of giving the players rules for the gaining of a few yards or the prevention thereof. It would certainly be much more to the point to look first to the wellbeing of the boys in their charge and lay down the hard and fast regulation that no player be allowed takepart in any game without a protecting helmet on his head.

NEW USE FOR LOCKER

MOOSE JAW—(CP).—A new use for parcel lockers in railway stations was revealed here when a crowd in a waiting room saw a man open a locker and let out a five-year-old boy. He explained he put the lad in the locker for a few minutes while he ran across the street.

Sarnia Won Two Dominion Titles

Sarnia has accomplished greater things in eight years of senior football than in all its previous gridiron history, statistics show.

Previous to 1923 the only Lambton County football teams to make the Canadian Rugby Union honor roll were the Petrolia juniors of 1911 and the Petrolia intermediates ten years later. The juniors won the dominion title but the intermediates were eliminated by Hamilton.

In 1923 the powerful Imperial advance that has practically dominated the O.R.F.U. since was born when the locals won the intermediate title but fell by the wayside to the Royal Military College in Toronto in the C.R.U. final by a 27-3 count. In 1924 Queens downed them 25-2 and in 1925 the club, closest to a dominion title in its history, bowed to Montreal C.N.R. 15-9 in overtime when the reserves of the locals staged a sit-down strike.

Fall Four Times

Canadian Rugby Union records show the Imperials in three intermediate dominion finals and the Wanderers in one, not one of them successful. The intermediate series was abandoned by the Canadian Union after 1933 and Sarnia Wanderers, twice O.R.F.U. winners since that time, have been unable to match their strength against the other unions.

Sarnias senior record is shorter and more impressive. They missed the playdowns in 1928, their first year in senior football in 1930 when Balmy Beach made its last appearance in the charmed circle and in 1935 the year they took their fatal trip out west.

Hamilton Tigers defeated the locals in 1929 and again in 1932 15-11 University of Western Ontario provided one of football's greatest upsets in 1931 with a 7-1 victory.

In 1934 Sarnia killed two birds with one stone when they finally turned back Hamilton Tigers 11-4 in the Eastern final and went on to defeat Regina 20-12 for the dominion crown. Toronto Argonauts nosed them out 4-3 in 1933. Recovered from their 1935 Western trip the Imperials won their seventh O.R.F.U. title and second dominion last fall.

DISLIKE FISH DIET

LUNDAR, Man.—(CP) — Relief applicants of this district were refused assistance because they rejected an offer of a loan of fishnets with which to catch fish for themselves from Lake Manitoba. They said they did not like fish.

Played In Swing Time

MONTREAL, Oct. 8—(CP).—Paul Whiteman turned to Canadian folk songs for swing material last night, and before an audience in French Canada his orchestra "gave out" with "Alouette," "Vive La Canadienne" and "A La Claire Fontaine."

Audience reception was mild for the conventional swing numbers, but devotees liked the stepped-up versions of the old habitant songs.

HONEY PRODUCTION UP

WINNIPEG—(CP). — Manitoba Department of Agriculture has announced overseas purchases of Manitoba honey this year include four carloads for England and two for Germany. This season's yield of 8,000,000 pounds was nearly 1,000,000 pounds better than a year ago.

Bren Case Adjourned Until Tuesday

OTTAWA, Oct. 8 — (CP). — Mr. Justice H. H. Davis today adjourned his investigation into the Bren Gun inquiry until Tuesday. He concurred in a suggestion from Hon. J. L. Ralston, government counsel, that all counsel before the commission spend the day examining a file of letters and documents brought to Ottawa from the high commissioner's office in London.

Mr. Ralston said no word had been received from the British war office on the Canadian government's request for release of documents to which the war office is a party.

Orfuns Line-up For Most Part Are Local Boys

While there are a number of newcomers to Peterborough on the Orfuns' senior grid lineup this autumn, the majority of players are strictly home-brews, boys who learned the game of football in this city. Most of them got their first rugby tutoring at P.C.I., while several picked it up in scrub matches around town or with the Orfuns' intermediates within the last few years.

Coach Bill Irwin, of course, comes here from Balmy Beach. Mick Magee is an ex-P.C.I. star. Al Winslow learned rugby a year ago with the Orfuns, his size partly offsetting his green grid tactics when he started. Don Crowe is a Tech graduate from Toronto in junior company but was with Orfuns in recent seasons. Lloyd Grose and Gord. McIntyre played for the Collegiate here, and Earl Spencely learned the game locally not so long ago. Bill Flack is a Montreal product, while Eddie Murphy did his stuff with St. Mike's in Toronto. Chuck Kearns was a junior with Argos but has lived here for four or five years now.

Local Players.

Ross Pulkinghorn, Pup Curtin, Jerry Creighton, Harry Marsh, Haig Kelly, Don Hendren, Maurice Giardino and several other good prospects played on various P.C.I. senior squads. Ford Loucks was a Lindsay star till he moved here a year ago. Curly Krug shone with Queen's before playing with Argos ere he headed for Peterborough this fall. Herb Hendrie was a noted snap for Balmy Beaches, and Johnny Shields, a Hamilton football produce. Bob Doll played high school football in the States, and moved here for baseball a year ago. Leo Deadey was end for Argos, and his brother Jack played some around Toronto. Eddie Prete is a local player, while Jim Lambert learned his rugby on Toronto gridirons.

PETERBORO PROUD OF CONTRIBUTION OF STARS TO FOOTBALL

Craig, Campbell, Simpson McPherson, Sheehy Names Down In History

(By Fred Craig)

This seems a proper time and place to point out that Peterborough has contributed to the history of football in Canada some of the brightest stars that have flashed across the sporting firmament in this country since organized rugby got under way here.

When for example has there been a more powerful and effective line plunger than Ross Craig? Or a more accurate and reliable punter than Ben Simpson, kicking ace of the old time Tigers? Or a faster and more skilful quarter than Pete Campbell who sparked one of the greatest of Varsity teams? Or a dodging half back with a more elusive shift than Dr. A. W. McPherson who managed the famous Varsity team that captured the Dominion championship? Or a better outside wing than Dick Sheehy, noted end for Ottawa College and afterward for Varsity? These and other notable players were all Peterborough products.

Ross Craig learned the game in the City League here and after several successful seasons with Peterborough O.R.F.U. teams was lured west by the Hamilton Tigers. And what a sensation he turned out to be with the Tigers and afterward with the Hamilton Alerts!

There was no interference in the game in his day but Ross did not need it. He hit the line like a runaway locomotive and usually tore through for big gains, sometimes carrying a couple of tacklers with him. Old timers who remember the crashing style of the big boy from Ashburnham state that the game has produced nobody since who carried so much dynamite in his plunges. Ross who refereed for years after retiring from the game is living in Dundas and his son is the kicking star for the Dundas intermediate champions.

A Schoolmaster Star

Ben Simpson, graduated from soccer to rugby. In his earlier days he was a star in the former game here and learned his rugger at Queen's University, afterward graduating to the Tigers. What an uncanny kicker he was! Left-footed, he could lay his punts upon a dime. When the Tigers were hard-pressed and confronted with a shifty crowd of backfielders, Simpson could hoof that ball down the side line for 50 yards and then gently ooze it into touch so that the fast-moving enemy halves had no chance to run the play back. With the wind he could get plenty of distance and against it he had a powerful low kick that laterally ate its way into the breeze. There have been greater punters than the former Peterboroughian, long a Hamilton school principal, but there has been nobody since who could kick with greater precision.

A Star of Stars.

Pete Campbell was a star on a Varsity team that was full of stars, the team of the famous Jack Maynard Hughie Gall-Newton backfield. Pete whose father was manager of the Bank of Toronto here for many years learned rugby at Trinity College School, Port Hope and then graduated to Varsity where his playing was sensational. The Varsity team of that day specialized in razzle dazzle football, featuring an extension run that got under way like greased lightning and was about as hard to stop, and Campbell deserved a big share of the credit for the consistent success of this play. He was unbelievably fast in the way he broke for the end of the line with the ball and in the manner in which he shook his halves free with swift accurate passes.

"Fighting Mac"

Dr. McPherson, long a rugby hero, like Ben Simpson, started first in soccer and was one of the best known football players in the province before he ever learned to catch a ball and run with it. When he did break into the rugby brand he became a star overnight. "Fighting Mac" as he was known proved one of the most elusive runners in the game, swerving down field with a twisting, pivoting style that was heart-breaking to some of the best tacklers of his day. He played on the half life and managed the great Varsity team of 1905 which included such great stars as "Casey" Baldwin, Gordon Southam and "Bull" Ritchie and which won the Dominion championship in sensational style. Dr. McPherson also played great rugby for Peterborough teams and has been a valuable assistance to the game here for many years, coaching Collegiate teams when the school first started to play football and also coaching O.R.F.U. teams here.

A Great End

Dr. Dick Sheehy was once picked by Mike Rodden for an All-Star Canadian football team and he earned such distinction by the dashing, fearless manner in which he played outside wing on a couple of great teams, first with Ottawa College and later with the University of Toronto. He was with Varsity when they scored that amazing last moment victory over McGill in the game in which three touch-downs were scored in the last five minutes and Varsity got the last and winning one on the last play of the game.

Sheehy was fast, a fine tackler and a great battler and deserves a place among the great ends of Canadian football.

These were not the only stars that Peterborough turned out to help other teams win championships. There was Frank Burnham who played in the scrimmage of the champion Varsity team of 1905, "Gamey" Stratton who succeeded Pete Campbell as quarterback at Varsity and proved another field general of the same type. Ross Laing who played fine football at outside wing for McGill, Ross Dobbin, Harry Rogers, and other players who gave a good account of themselves in fast company.

Ontario Title Won In 1905 By Peterboro'

(By Fred Craig).

The last time Peterborough won an intermediate Ontario rugby championship was in 1905, and that was a most interesting season, marked by the largest crowd up to that time that had ever seen a football game in this city.

The Petes returned to the intermediate wars that season after a trial flight in senior company the previous year, and they managed to win their group without any trouble. Brockville had won the Eastern Ontario title and the Petes were matched with the Easterners in home and home games, winning in hollow fashion. The first game was played here and the home talent scored 37 points while the visitors were blanked. They also won the second game at Brockville by 17 to 11.

There is an entertaining story about that game concerning that great hockey player, the late Fred Whitcroft, undoubtedly the finest exponent of Canada's national winter pastime Peterborough ever turned out. Whitcroft accompanied the team to Brockville and was on the sidelines during the game. The Brockville reporter had never seen the Petes in action before and knew nothing about the players, so every time any of the Peterborough players pulled off anything particularly good on the field the scribe would turn to the hockey star and say "Who's that?" And just as regularly the answer would be, "That's Whitcroft." The result was that when the Brockville story of the game got into print practically all of Peterborough's best plays were credited to a man who wasn't in the ball game at all.

Beat Dundas.

After disposing of Brockville the Petes found themselves drawn against Dundas in the Ontario finals and the Westerners were touted as one of the strongest intermediate teams that section of the province had ever turned out. They were just about that, too, and gave the Peterborough squad plenty of opposition, especially in the first game at Dundas, which wound up in a 4-4 tie.

When the Westerners came down to Peterborough for the second game rugby interest in Peterborough was at its peak and the result was that the largest crowd in the history of local football up to that time assembled at Riverside Park for the battle. It was tight enough for a while, but the superiority of the Petes gradually asserted itself and the final score was Peterborough 16, Dundas 2, and Peterborough were intermediate champions of Ontario for the fourth time.

Ottawa Rough Riders were the Quebec winners, and the Petes were ordered to play them a sudden death game in Ottawa for the Dominion title but the battle never materialized. The teams could not agree on officials, and after a lot of long-distance argument over the affair Peterborough declined to make the trip and disbanded, leaving the Rough Riders Dominion champs by default.

Scenes From the Football Battlefront in In Montreal

There's football action a-plenty in Montreal these days as the three senior grid squads in the Quebec metropolis prepare for the opening of the eastern season. To the old standbys, McGill and the Cubs (last year's Indians), has been added the O.R.F.U. entry, the Nationals and optimism runs high in all three camps. Big reason for the university's bright outlook is seen at the RIGHT. It's Herbie Westman, formerly one of the college union's ace hoofers, who returns to the game this year to handle the kicking chores, the one weak spot in last year's otherwise powerful McGill team. At the LEFT is Danny Daniels, formerly with Toronto Balmy Beach in the O.R.F.U., who is expected to take good care of one of the outside wing berths in the Cubs' Big Four line-up. Ernie Hempey is the party in the CENTRE. Ernie will captain the new Nationals in the O.R.F.U. . . . in addition to looking after the flying wing job in the best possible manner.

Teddy Reeves Goes Poetic

In 1932 the influx of American players was causing consternation among Canada's more patriotic football people. It inspired Ted Reeve to peck the following from his mill:

'Twas at a southern college
On their graduation day,
And the dean, so full of knowledge,
Stood before the building grey;

And he hollered loud and freely
As he gave diplomas forth:
"Make a switch on Horace Greeley
And go north, young man, go north.

"For in the broad dominion
Up above our northern states
It is my firm opinion
Opportunity awaits.

"Their mines will need our engineers,
Our chemists and assayers.
And in their cities, it appears,
They need our football players.

"Yea, in that land of open space
And large untapped resources
Our graduates should find a place
From almost all our courses.

"They need you in their plants and woods
But mostly in their classes.
If you have really got the goods
To throw their forward passes."

Sleighs Were Out, Rinks Open When Petes And Montreal Last Met Senior Rugby Game

(By FRED CRAIG)

When the Orfuns trot out on the field against the Canadian National team in Montreal on Monday afternoon it will be the first time in almost 31 years that a Peterborough team has played in the metropolis.

It was in November, 1907, that the Peterborough squad which had won the Ontario senior championship that season encountered one of the greatest Montreal teams in history at the M.A.A.A. grounds on a Saturday when the thermometer was getting down close to the zero mark. The result was the worst trimming a Peterborough squad ever received, Montreal winning 72 to 9 but the one-sided score was not quite so bad as it sounds. Or put it this way, the Petes were a much better team than the figures would indicate and they were beaten not only by the admitted superiority of the Winged Wheelers but also by the conditions under which the game was played.

It was cold, terribly cold. When the Peterborough team arrived in Montreal that wintry November morning the sleighs were out, the open air rinks were doing a thriving business and everything in sight suggested it was the hockey and not the football season. The M.A.A.A. field had been scraped and the snow was in piles on the sidelines while the gridiron itself was more like a hockey rink than a football cushion. The Montrealers were prepared for the conditions with special cleats and a woollen covering for their boots that enabled them to get around on the slippery going without much trouble. On the other hand the Petes skidded and slipped all over the place and the wings found it almost impossible to get any footing when they went to make a tackle. The result was the speedy Montrealers who included in their lineup such track stars as Molson and Savage, Canadian Olympic men, ran wild all afternoon and the score piled up rapidly.

Some Funny Angles.

There were some funny angles to the game at that. Among the fans who accompanied the Peterborough team to Montreal was a former Peterborough player, the late Dr. Victor McWilliams who was then practising at Keene. He was in the grandstand waiting for the game to start and almost caused a riot when he offered to wager $50 that Peterborough would score the first touchdown. There was a rush of Montreal fans to cover his money and no wonder for the Montrealers had not only not been beaten during the whole season but their goal line had not been crossed for a single touchdown all year. The wager was quickly taken up, the kickoff followed immediately afterward and on the second play of the game Peterborough had a touchdown, the first scored against the Winged Wheelers all season and Dr. McWilliams had won his best. The break came when Hamilton on the Montreal backfield muffed one of Tom Colledge's long punts and the loose ball was dribbled over the Montreal line and dropped on for a touchdown and Peterborough promptly converted, giving themselves a 6 to 0 lead inside the first minute.

Then Montreal started rolling and if memory serves rightly they ripped through for a couple of major scores in the next five minutes and won as they pleased.

Incidentally and as a matter of belated justice the score of that long-ago game has for many years been wrong in the officials records, Not that it matters a great deal now or at any time for that matter but the Petes did actually score 9 points against Montreal that day, instead of the 6 with which they were credited. They managed to score a field goal on a penalty kick late in the game and then a rouge, and somehow or other those three points have got lost in the shuffle.

Admiral Sees Premier Fettered By Weakness

LONDON, Oct. 8—(CP-Havas).—Admiral of the fleet Sir Roger Keyes, one of the Conservative members of parliament who abstained from voting confidence in the government yesterday, today urged greater efforts to overcome weaknesses in national defence.

"There is no indication," he told interviewers, "that the government, constituted as it is, has the ability, or even the will, to make the tremendous effort to rearm and reorganize our national defence on the scale necessary to enable the prime minister to meet on equal terms with the dictators who have aspired to dominate the world by force of arms."

Grandmothers Are Guests of Honor

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Oct. 8.—Thursday was grandmothers' day at the regular meeting of the Women's Institute. Grandmothers played the piano and sang, two grandmothers presented two of their number with gifts, one grandmother arranged a contest where quickness of movement and steadiness of hand were required and all measured up, and one grandmother gave a resume of current events during the past month. All in all it was a successful program.

The program opened with Mrs. J. W. Pacey, convenor, presiding. Mrs. L. Turner played the opening number and all sang "When You and I Were Young Maggie." Mrs. Fred Sherwin donated a lucky chair prize.

P.C.I. RUGBY COLORS KNOWN ON ALL PROVINCIAL GRIDIRONS

Collegiate Wins Honors In Senior Competition During '37 Fall Season

The Garnet and Gray is a rugby color combination feared and respected on every high school gridiron in Ontario. And has been for many years. No secondary school senior football club in the province has a better all-around record in the fall pastime, and few have as good a name in the grid game as the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocation School.

Year after year, the P.C.I. team—as it is known everywhere—has been marching into the rugby wars, with gallant grid gladiators, battling fiercely but fairly against all opponents to the tumultuous acclaim of hundreds of schoolmates bedecked with colors and thousands of city fans. Most of those years have seen P.C.I. teams winning everything in this part of the province, and often cleaning up in other sections. But in victory or defeat, the player have thrilled their followers with their clean, clever tactics on the field of play.

And last year, the local Collegians marched right through to the Ontario interscholastic championship to bring Peterborough its first Ontario football title in 30 years. It was a fitting climax to the long years of campaigning and marks a notable highlight in the history of local sports. A huge crowd witnessed P.C.I. win the title here at the Oval on December 4th with an 11-3 victory over Runneymede Collegiate, winners of the Toronto district senior schools. Despite a rival attraction, an O.R.F.U. playoff game here that same day at Riverside, the Collegians drew their biggest crowd of the year, and the fans were not disappointed.

Are Honored.

A fitting token of honor followed this championship when a civic banquet was tendered the champion club in the Empress Hotel. It was a noteworthy gathering of old and young athletes, with O.R.F.U. officers on hand. The school principal, H. R. H. Kenner, and the coach, H. L. Bamforth, spoke simply and modestly of the fine showing of their team, but others praised highly the P.C.I. victors.

Members of the provincial champions included: A. Clark, G. Clark, Creighton, Thornton, Leether, Johnston, Ascott, W. Turner, Kelly, Curtin, Csumrik, Craig, Diplock, Ward, Northcott, Parnell, P. Turner, Scriver, Dwyer and Elliott. This was the lineup that defeated Runneymede Dec. 4th.

Most of the regulars of the 1937 team graduated or left school at the end of the term, and Coach Bamforth is facing a herculean task in rebuilding his shattered machine. However, his 1938 squad started off the season last Saturday with a 14-13 victory in Lindsay and may round into another powerful outfit as the season advances. P.C.I. teams, under the eye of this experienced coach, have a habit of upsetting the dope. Most of the Garnet and Gray teams have been comparatively light, but fast and tricky.

Always Good.

It is nothing new for Peterborough school rugby teams to go into provincial playdowns. Repeatedly have they mopped up handily on all opposition in Central Ontario, and made good showings in playdowns. On more than one occasion they have been in Ontario semi-finals and finals, and they have given finalists some torrid battles before bowing out. Some of the playoff series between St. Mikes of Toronto and P. C.I. have been memorable football fights, with St. Mike's usually edging out a close win.

Three senior school coaches at P.C.I. have won undying fame in the school's history of rugby. C. S. Browne was for years the popular and efficient mentor of Collegiate teams and had considerable success. Former students and players under him still swear by the former coach. Ernest (Red) Legon followed in his footsteps and this former fiery P. C.I. player also had much success in coaching the Garnet and Gray teams. Many of his players are now members of the senior Orfuns, and these players will recall vividly the great series under Coach Legon when P.C.I. defeated St. Mike's here but lost by a point or two later in Toronto. Coach Bamforth has taken over the task in recent years and has met with great success.

Juniors Too

Fine junior squads have been the order at the Peterborough Collegiate, too, for possibly two decades now. Husky young boys have been encouraged to take up this manly sport for the sake of health and character building, and they have loved the game. The boys receive the best of coaching in the game's fundamentals by their teacher-coaches, and most of them later graduated to the senior squads. The various teachers have had a hand in the rugby picture at the Collegiate, not only the senior coaches.

Many stalwart and prominent citizens of Peterborough and other centres look back fondly on their rugby days at P.C.I., giving credit to the worth of this hard, clean sport as encouraged and taught here. The student body today is as strong behind P.C.I. teams as ever in support—and the Garnet and Gray rugby color combination remains one to be feared and respected on every high school gridiron in Ontario.

France Will Build Normandie's Sister To Hit 34 Knots

Norwood Baptists Hold Chicken Dinner

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Oct. 8. — Following the 52nd anniversary of the Baptist Church in Norwood, which was held on Sunday, the ladies of the congregation served a chicken dinner on Monday night. A large gathering from the village and district responded, and after ample justice had been done to the many good things a brief program was opened with a sing-song. Scripture reading and prayer was offered by the Rev. Mr. Walker of Lakefield. Musical numbers were given by a ladies' quartette from Park Street Baptist Church, Peterborough; Wesley Wildman and Russell Stevens of Norwood, and a solo, "In the Merry Month of May" by Mrs. A. R. T. Hill. Rev. C. C. Boyter of Park Street Baptist Church brought greetings to the sister church. The program was concluded by showing of films by Dr. Carlton, who has been in Norwood and vicinity for the last week, taking films of many interesting spots in and around Norwood. The picture showing the launching of the Queen Mary was also shown.

Sun Spots Highest In Past 68 Years

PASADENA, Calif., October 8.—(AP).—Whatever disturbing effects sun spots may have on the earth, the sun is just passing its greatest maximum of spot activity in modern times.

Records at the Carnegie Institution's Mount Wilson observatory showed to-day there have been more spots on the sun for the past two years than for any similar period since 1870.

"We were inclined to believe the maximum of the normally 11-year cycle had been reached in July, 1937", sdid Dr. Frederick Seares, assistant observatory director, "until last July and August came along. Now it apears that cycle curve will show a double maximum."

Some persons have attributed the world's unrest, including war and threats of war, and fluctuations in the stock market, to the spots.

Astronomers here, however, are content to charge disruption to telephone, telegraph and short wave radio broadcasts to the solar disturbances, and add a possible minor influence on the weather.

Four Senior Teams Swing Into Action On Monday; Orfuns Are Light Speedy Team

Four senior O.R.F.U. teams swing into action next Monday, Thanksgiving Day with the opening of the schedule. Peterborough Orfuns play the Nationals in Montreal, while Sarnia meets Balmy Beach in Toronto. It is a single schedule, each club playing one game in each of the other three towns. Top two teams then playoff in home and home games for the senior group championship. The schedule ends November 12th.

The champion Sarnia Imperials, despite the loss of Orm Beach — who was killed recently in an accident—will still be hard to beat. Coach Massucci has a heavy, powerful squad, with that great kicker and passer, Bummer Stirling, still sparking the team. Tony Golab is taking Beach's place and will be used at flying wing. Halves are Mike Hedgewick, Bernie Moros and Stirling. Arnie McWatters and Alex Hayes are quarterbacks. Ralph Burr is snap with Trepanier and Butler insides. Middle wings may be Fat Parsons and Mike Clawson; with Stevenson and Norris on the ends. Subs include: Geary, France, Schultz, Wickware, Woodcock, Living Kent, Eveland, Withers, VanHorne, Shanks, Hungerford, Ewener, Andrews and Mattingley.

Beaches Strong.

Coach Ponton has built up a fine squad in Balmy Beach this year and the Beaches and Imps are favored to playoff. There will be great rivalry between Balmy Beach and Peterborough as the latter club took a couple of players from the Ponton pack without asking permission, and feelings are strained between the clubs. Probable Beach lineup is: Flying wing, Sward; halves, Thompson, Lush and Manorek; quarter, Ab Box; snap, Taylor; insides, Barron and Harris; middles, Farley and Casson; outsides, Reynolds and Salter; alternates, Haigh, Hogan, Frizzelle, McCulloch, C. Box, Holden, Seymour, Hyslop, Shields, Hooper, Downward, McDonald, McGarry, Mumphries, Reid, Worman and Turner.

Coach Foster of the Montreal Nationals should field a strong club, too, having obtained the pick of last year's Montreal Indians and adding players from McGill and Queen's. It is a new club and not much will be known of it till the game Thanksgiving Day. Ferraro, 220-pound starry backfielder, and Hempey, Burns and Barnabe are all aces in the grid game. The lineup may be: Flying wing, Hempey; halves, Atchison, Mullins, Ferraro; quarter, Barnabe; snap, Ryan; insides, Fleming, Galley; middles, McLean, Burns; outsides, Hutton, Burton; alternates, Small, Riddell, Ferry, Davies, Bowden, Brockelhurst, M. Coughlin, Farha, Pilkington, Renaud, Rettie, Smith, Walker, Porter, Gillis and E. Coughlin.

Fast Squad.

Coach Bill Irwin of the Orfuns expects to trot out a light, speedy team with a good defence and an open attack. In its first start in senior company, the Orfuns' squad is an unknown with good possibilities. The possible lineup of the Orfuns may be: Flying wing, Harry Marsh; halves, Curly Krug, Mike Loucks and Johnny Shields; quarter, Eddie Murphy; snap, Herb Hendrie; insides Bill Irwin and Jim Lambert; middles, Al Winslow and Bill Flack; outsides, Leo Deadey and Don Hendren; alternates, Mick Magee, Don Crowe, Lloyd Grose, Gord McIntyre, Earl Spencely, Ross Plukinghorn, Pup Curtain, Chuck Kearns, Jerry Creighton, Bob Doll, Joe McNulty, Eddie Prete, Jack Deadey, Maurice Giardino.

TWO DOMINION RUGBY TITLES CAPTURED BY PETERBORO TEAMS

Five Ontario Pennants Have Also Been Won By Teams In Peterborough's Rugby History

There will be a new crop of rugby fans this season, many of them attracted to the game for the first time because of the glamor that goes with entry into senior grouping. It might be well for the benefit of these football novices to remind them that Peterborough has had quite a history in O.R.F.U. competition and that teams from this city have had their share of rugby honors.

It may be a surprise to those folk who seem to be looking upon the gridiron game as a new thing to learn that Peterborough has captured four Ontario intermediate titles, one senior Ontario championship and two Dominion intermediate pennants.

In 1899 the Peterborough intermediates won the Ontario championship and captured the Dominion honors by defeating Westmounts of Montreal, the Quebec winners, 4 to 1. Two years later the Petes repeated this feat by coming through the O.R.F.U. race on top and then beating Quebec in a sudden death game at Montreal 17 to 9.

Three Wins in Four Years

In 1902 Peterborough won the Ontario intermediate honors for the third time in four years but on this occasion the Dominion title slipped out of their hands when they were beaten 8 to 0 by Quebec in a game played in three inches of soft snow at Montreal. 1903 was an unsuccessful year and in 1904 the Petes moved up to senior company for the first time and made a very good showing against the Toronto Argonauts. They returned to the intermediate ranks in 1905 and once more captured the O.R.F.U. title but did not compete for the Dominion championship with Ottawa Rough Rider II, the Quebec winners, owing to a dispute over officials.

1906 found the Petes back in senior company again and they had a fairly good season that was bettered in the following year when they brought their home city the first and only senior O.R.F.U. title. Two more years of senior football followed with little success, owing to the retirement or the absence of the stars that had carried on so brilliantly and then in 1910 there was no organized rugby at all. However in the decade the Peterborough teams had captured seven championships and been a prominent factor in the early history of the O.R.F.U.

(By Fred Craig)

Peterborough won her first rugby title of any kind in 1899 when the intermediate squad of that year not only captured the O.R.F.U. championship but went on to win Dominion honors by defeating the Quebec winners, the Montreal Westmounts, in a thrilling game and it is indicative of the march of time that of the whole squad which put this city on the football map at the close of the last century, only one player is now living in Peterborough.

He is Arthur J. McClellan of 599 King Street, and, by the same token, he was the hero of the game that brought Peterborough its first senior championship for the Petes were trailing 1 to 0 in a desperate battle at the Oval with a strong Westmount team when McClellan, about the smallest man on the Petes' lineup, picked up a loose ball near midfield and ran 50 yards for the touchdown that meant victory. Tries counted 4 points in those days, with two more added for converting and McClellan's dash was enough to win for the Petes.

On the Peterborough team of 1899 Al White played full back part of the time, and in several games J. J. McLeod, who was a physical director at the Y.M.C.A., played in that position. The half line was composed of Victor McWilliams, that great kicker Hal Burnham and Garnie Bell. At quarter back was Norm. Bell, with McClellan, who otherwise played on the wing line, also taking a whirl at the job occasionally.

The scrimmage game was in vogue then, and Peterborough had a notable trio in Rev. John Bushell, Archie Stethem and Frank Burnham, the latter destined to fill a similar position on the Varsity team some years later. The wings included Collier, who had played with Queen's; Bill Crowley, one of the greatest all-round athletes Peterborough ever produced; Bruce Rickey, A. A. Hollingshead, also famed as a hockey defence man in the days when the rearguard lifted the rubber the length of the ice, and Rollie McWilliams, afterwards mayor of Peterborough, and now a well-known citizen of Winnipeg.

Rugby was a somewhat different affair in those days. The games were played at the Oval, where no gate could be collected, the only way of getting any money being to sell tags to the spectators who were willing to buy them. The result was the club's funds were generally low and when travelling had to be done the players paid their own fares, or the better-off members of the club paid the expenses of other players not so well fixed.

No Armour Then.

There was none of the armour the 1938 footballers regard as standard equipment, no leather helmets, jointed shoulder pads, kidney pads or any of the rest of the protection the modern football gladiator carries around with him. No sir, the 1899 rugbyists wore a canvas suit more or less sketchily padded and let it go at that.

As for practice, about all that could be done at night was to try to run through plays on the wooden block pavement of the old wooden drill hall on Murray Street and keep in condition by roadwork.

Yet the boys managed to have a lot of fun and play quite a bit of thrilling football. The calibre of that Dominion intermediate champion team of 1899 is shown by the fact that they played an exhibition game at the Oval with the All-Star Irish rugger team that toured Canada and the United States that season, and in holding the tourists to a 16 to 3 score, made about the best showing a Canadian team made against the Irish. The game was played under British rules, and it was thanks to a wonderful field goal from the 40-yard line and at a most difficult angle by Hal Burnham that the Petes were enabled to score against the powerful visitors.

The Season's Games.

In their scheduled games that season the Peterborough team started off by beating the Ottawa Rough Rider intermediates in two straight games, 9 to 4 in Ottawa and 14 to 1 here, and then after a long wait were tossed in against the Hamilton Tiger Intermediates, the Western Ontario winners, defeating them in a gruelling sudden death game played at the Oval by 4 points to 2. Then Westmount, winners in Quebec, were ordered to play the Petes here for the Dominion title, and once again the homesters came through, largely due to the sensational run of Arthur McClellan, the only member of the winning team who now receives his mail in Peterborough.

Captain of the Orfuns

One of the best of the homebrew players on the Peterborough Orfuns' senior O.R.F.U. lineup this fall is Harry Marsh, 195-pound flying wing. Marsh, captain of the team, learned his football at P.C.I. and has been a big factor with the Orfuns the last several years. He is expected to make a good showing in senior company, his passing, tackling and secondary defence work being of senior calibre. (Examiner Staff Photo)

STUDENTS COUNCIL ELECTION

Here is the 1938-39 Students Council: Let's salute them. President—Alex Young; Vice-President—Catherine White, Secretary—Marg. Westbye, Treasurer—Jim Sands.

Yes, indeed after all the speechmaking, the gala publicity stunts, the brain waves extraordinary, the victorious candidates face us—the winners with nothing left to be done. Nothing that is but carry out the pleasing planks they have presented in their platforms. Each of the eight candidates has been before us, starting with the presidents (potential) and going down the list to conclude finally with the presidents (still potential) making their final pleas. The Iskies climaxed the big show with a chorus singing a take-off on 'Alexander's Rangtime Band' and handing out book marks at the Assembly Hall exits. The group included Bob Graham on the clarinet, and singers—Jim Harvey, Olga Westbye, Elfie Saunders and Marg. Westbye. Well now 'tis over and may this column wish the now governing body all the luck and support that they certainly have earned.

FIELD DAY

One of the big sporting events of the school year, and certainly the one into which more students enter than any other, took place on Thursday afternoon at Exhibition Park. The program was originally scheduled for Wednesday but a rainy day (incidentally the only rainy day in two weeks) forced proceedings to be postponed until the first nice day. Fortunately Thursday dawned bright and clear. The list of events was large, the track fast, a large crowd present and everything was run off in quick time. Eliminations have been run after school all week in the jumping events in the pits beside the school. Orchids to all those teachers and others responsible for the fine success, and congratulations to the new champions Eleanor Craig, senior girls, Jean Carter, intermediate girls, Eleanor Pue, junior girls, Stroyan Leith, intermediate boys' Bill Hall, junior boy champion and Don Duncan leader in the senior class.

HERE WE GO AGAIN

The past week has been studded with the various re-organizations of P. C. I.'s assorted clubs. The bugle band which further on in the year will be a big help to our cadet corps called a meeting. A big crowd of prospective 'Clyde McCoys' turned out and it was decided to begin practices right away. It is hoped that the bugle band will be organized in time to play at our rugby games leading snake dances, etc. Also they could lead the parades of Collegiate fans over to Riverside Park from the School prior to games as one of the parties mentioned in their election speeches. The meeting Monday was under the direction of Wes. Graham who played the Bass drum in last year's band. Probably Noel Barr will take over the active direction of the band later on. The Camera club also got away to a fine start at their meeting Tuesday. This meeting, originally scheduled for Wednesday was put ahead to Tuesday due to the Field Day. A fine turnout of enthusiastic camera fans turned out. The officers elected at this meeting were: President—Warren Gamble; Vice-President—Mary Pierce; Secretary — Dave Rogers; Treasurer—Hugh Kenner; Committee—Barb. Richardson, Gord. Diplock, Bob Crocker, Mary Richardson, Doug. Quirt, H. Amys, L. Stewart. Mr. V. R. Henry presented the first moving pictures of the year on the school's newly acquired projector on Monday at 3.30 before a large crowd in the Assembly Hall.

The admission fee was 5c for those that could and gratis for those that could not. Gratis for us. The feature attraction was a film, recently released, centering around the great Croydon Airport in England. Extra attractions were an amusing film about the inner feelings of a dial telephone and a travelogue of South Africa rivers. May we move that these splendid and reasonably priced entertainments be continued throughout the year.

ONE AND ONE

P. C. I.'s two rugby teams got away to a good start last Saturday splitting two one-point decisions with Lindsay C. I. in the Scugog City. Our seniors pulled a close one out of the hat in the last two minutes of the game after having trailed almost from the start. The juniors under coach David and Jim Hall dropped a tough one to Lindsay juniors 13-12. They came out from behind twice but a Lindsay field goal near the last wound it up. The seniors showed a lot of power and plenty of potentiality despite their narrow 14-13 win.

Coach Bamforth, noted for developing fast travelling, hard running back-fields has one of the fastest this year and after they get over their nervousness they really will go. We can't find it in our hearts to agree with the Lindsay writer who says in part—"Lindsay's initiation into senior company was a bright one because they lost to a team which they will probably defeat next time out."

In our humble opinion The Garnet and Grey should have won handily with a little better luck. They had most of the play, made more ground through the line and had the best of the kicking. You can look for a lot of them in the very near future. Last Saturday the Lindsay squads gave P. C. I.'s two teams a good supper and it wouldn't be a bad idea to equal it with visiting squads when they come to old P. C. I.

FIDDLE FADDLE

Athough the news is perhaps a little in arrears at this late date, the girls of the school elected their Girls Athletic Association executive last Friday from among the list of candidates nominated last week. This executive to be in charge of all girls athletic activities for the coming year. Also the G. A. A. representatives—one for each form—were chosen. The list of executive follows: President — Jean Ottewell, Vice-President — Iris Whalen, Secretary—Barbara Richardson, Treasurer—Alice Gallagher.

What Students Council in the last ten years (Yes ten years—we ought to know) hasn't promised us the mosta and the besta in new songs. . . . According to that, Shine on Harvest Moon is still knocking 'em dead on Broadway. . . . The gym floor has been newly painted. . . . What popular coach chews his gum faster whe nthe opposition has the ball on our ten yard line than when it is resting comfortably at midfield. . . . In the election campaign we've been promised everything from ties in school colors to a date bureau. . . . Little Bill Hacle looks like a comer in P. C. I.'s backfield.

TORONTO ARGOS STILL HAVE EDGE IN KICKING DEPARTMENT

Stiffer Opposition Expected With Ottawa Roughriders The Largest Stumbling Block

By GEORGE GRACE
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

TORONTO, Oct. 8 — As another rugby season rolls around in the east the natural question that arises is "who will win?" And more pertinently: "Can the champions, in the form of Toronto Argonauts in the Interprovincial Union, hang on-defend their Dominion crown they captured last December?

Before they even get a chance to defenh their Dominion crown they have to come out on top in their own loop and that in itself should prove quite a feat. Not that the champs don't look as if they'll make it, but they had all they could do to get past Ottawa's Roughriders last year and the same task stands in their way this season.

In addition to the Roughriders, of course, are Montreal Cubs, the team with the ever-changing name, and Hamilton's always tough Tigers. However, with the Montreal squad weakened by the loss of most of its stalwarts to the rival O.R.F.U. team in that city and facing the necessity of rebuilding, and the Tigers also in a re-organization state, replacing their old standbys with young blood, it appears, from this distance, at least, as if the Big Four should be a case of Argonauts vs. Roughriders.

Band of Opportunists.

Well, what have Lew Hayman's champs got? In the first place they still have Mr. Hayman, which means a thoroughly drilled squad who may lose a lot of games, but at least they'll be lost on their merits. Lew's lads don't throw games away. But if the other side gets careless it takes them less than fractions of seconds to get in their and take advantage of favorable breaks. But even opportunists need plenty of good football to come down in front and the Scullers still have large quantities of that around.

The backbone of a championship team is still a good kicking offence. And there's no team in the Big Four that looks as if it will be able to match Argonauts in that respect. As regular hoofer they will again have Bob Isbister, and for relief Johnny Munro and Earl Selkirk. The latter two don't come under the heading of superlative kickers, but master Robert ranks with the best in the land. The difference a strong kicker makes was never illustrated better than in the exhibition Toronto city series game in which Argonauts were defeated by the Balmy Beach O.R.F.U. team. The score was 7-2 and the difference would probably have been made up if Isbister, out with a leg injury, had been in there to reply to the mammoth 60 and 70-yard hoists of the Beaches' Ab Box.

Isbister, of course, can do other things with a football besides kick it, and assisting him behind the line will be last year's stalwarts, Red Storey, Doug MacPherson, Art West, Teddy Morris, the Stukus brothers, Annis and Bill, as well as Munro and Selkirk. Morris will look after the flying wing position and his secondary defence chores and critics from the salmon-stocked Fraser to the equally salmon-stocked Restigouche, will agree that nothing more need be said of that job.

Those Brothers Are In Again!

The Stugus boys will gain alternate at quarterback, calling the signals and heaving those bullet-like forward passes that meant more than one big gain for the Scullers last year. Storey, MacPherson and Isbister are being counted on for big gains in line smashes and those Argonaut extensions, probably the team's most potent method of attack last year.

Hayman had counted on Jack Taylor, who had such sensational seasons with Argos four and five years ago, teaming with Art West to give him a couple of lads he could count on to pull off those surprise dashes of 25 yards and up, that usually spell touchdown. But the former Argo and Hamilton Tiger ace will be busy at McMaster university, where he has been appointed coach.

If the champions go places again this year they will have to credit some kind of an assist to Queen's. Johnny Munro, as mentioned, will be toiling in the backfield, where in addition to kicking and running he is expected to hurl forward passes in his best Queen's style. A dangerous style for the opposition, it might be added. With Munro on the double blue team will be Bernie Thornton, 60-minute outside wing player, whose accomplishments last exam. time bring a tear to the eye of Coach Ted Reeve at Queen's. Bernie is considerably better than fair on secondary defence and, with Annis Stukus, gives the champions two dependable placement kickers.

Problem At Snap.

Most of Coach Hayman's worries are about the centre of the line. Bud Lewis was expected to take care of the snapping chores but a knee that says "uncle" every few minutes will keep him on the sidelines until the middle of October at least. Taking his place will be Red Vail and George Hees, the latter a nifty at the job in the college loop a few years ago. Hayman is still trying out some of the younger players at the job however, and just who will look after the snapping for the season remains to be seen.

The line on either side still shapes up as a strong one, better on the offence than the defence. Jim Palmer, Len Staughton, Clary Burt, Art Evans and most of last year's reliables are back and the addition of new blood should give them plenty of strength up in front. The youth movement should have the added effect of stirring the regulars out of the lethargy some of them seem to have lapsed into since the crown was placed on their heads. Hayman has had his hands full getting some of his men to buckle down to work and the result was evident in their game with Balmy Beach.

The material is still there and preseason views are generally a trifle out of line with what happens when the checks are down, but it looks as if the main problem is for Coach Hayman to get that excellent material to function at its best.

Quartet Of Backfielders With Champion Argonauts

When the curtain goes up on the Eastern Canada football season today, this quartet of gridiron warriors will be fighting to keep Argonauts, Dominion champions, on top of the Big Four heap. LEFT is Bob Isbister, who throws a nifty pass, but more important, is the Big Four's No. 1 kicker. Next, in the inset, is flying wing Teddy Morris, whose knifing plunges and work on the secondary defence have stood out for many years. Of the bruising backfield type is Red Storey, next, who appears to be in for his best season with the champs. At the RIGHT, the fleet Art West, shifty ball-carrier, whose work in the open field last year played a big part in the Toronto team's march.

Shot Banded Duck

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 8.—When hunting yesterday, Harry Noon, Percy township shot a banded duck in the lake near his farm. The band instructed the finder to communicate with an address in Washington, D.C. Mr. Noonan has complied with the request.

Vest His Downfall

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8 (AP)—A coat and pants which J. G. Boardman, state secretary of revenue, sent to a tailor were stolen. Boardman promptly forwarded the vest, reasoning that the thief might reveal himself by taking the vest, too. He was right. The vest disappeared and police charged an employee with the theft.

Toronto Argos and Varsity With Sarnia Imperials Called To Win Group Titles

By William Tyndall
In Star Weekly.

Football's in the air! For six weeks, eastern Canadian football coaches have been putting husky squads of young men through drills—moulding football teams to fight for gridiron supremacy in three groups. And today, the shrill cry of the referee's whistle officially opens the season.

All summer, the coaches have been planning their teams and studying others. They know who they must beat . . . who will have the weakest team . . . what new players have been added to the various clubs . . . and who the group winners will likely be.

Will Toronto Argonauts win the Big Four title again this year? Will Sarnia Imps continue to dominate the O.R.F.U.? And will Queen's University win the Intercollegiate championship?

To find answers to those questions, I talked to every major football coach in eastern Canada—three in Montreal, a trio in Toronto and one each in Ottawa, Hamilton, London, Sarnia, Peterborough, and Kingston. Each expert, many of them former football stars, predicted the final standing in the Big Four, the O.R.F.U. and the Intercollegiate.

What Experts Say.

Hang on to your bleacher seat, folks! Here's how the experts lined up the titles: Toronto Argonauts to win the Big Four championship; Sarnia Imps to take the O.R.F.U. title! Toronto Varsity to win the college crown! Argos to be eastern Canada champs again!

A few of the coaches declined to have their complete predictions indicated—a psychological reason, they pointed out—but in huddles they told me how they expected each team to finish, so that The Star Weekly football box might be tabulated.

First to take the stand was smiling Warren Stevens, coach of Toronto's Varsity squad. Sitting on a bench in the empty stadium, while footballs spiralled into the air, he tabbed Argos for the Big Four championship. "Sarnia shouldn't have much trouble winning their group," he continued, "and in our league I think Western is the team to beat."

Looking In the Crystal.

In the shadow of Western University at London, Ont., we chatted with husky "Bill" Storen, 29-year-old former U. of D. football star, who starts his third season as coach of the Mustangs. "I think Argos will win again," he drawled, "but they're gonna have a close call from Ottawa."

Sarnia was Storen's selection for the O.R.F.U. title, but he predicted a "photo finish" with Montreal Nationals and Balmy Beach giving the champions "plenty of trouble."

In his own group, the Western University coach picked his own squad last "because I've lost so many players it isn't even funny."

"Varsity should win the title," he concluded. With those words he went into a huddle on the back campus to figure out some new forward passing plays. "We love 'em," he confessed.

Deep in despondency was Ted "Moaner" Reeve, Queen's elongated football professor, "It's going to be awful this season," he cried, casting pleading eyes on the limestone buildings at Kingston, "S'help me, I've lost 10 of my best men."

Looking into his portable crystal, he discovered that Balmy Beach would win the O.R.F.U. title, Argos will nose out Ottawa Rough Riders in the Big Four and that "a high school kid by the name of Sward, playing for Beaches, will be one of the outstanding football stars of the season."

Varsity Probably Win.

Groaning, he returned to the intercollegiate problem. "Varsity will probably win the title," he sighed. "I'll be lucky to finish third."

Quiet optimism came out of McGill University where I talked to Doug ("Pop") Kerr, who is beginning his third season as coach of the Redmen. "Seems to me that Ottawa Rough Riders are the best bet in the Big Four," he said.

Completely confident, Alex. Ponton, husky-voiced master mind of Toronto's Balmy Beach eleven, showed that he has given careful study to the eastern Canadian football panorama to be presented this season. Quickly he ran off his selections, at the same time keeping one critical eye on the scrimmage taking place at Riverdale Park. "Ottawa to win the Big Four," he said. "They're more powerful this season. . . . Varsity, Western, Queen's and McGill, in that order, in the college group . . . and Sarnia's the team to beat in the O.R.F.U."

With a team voted solidly for last place in the O.R.F.U., Coach "Bill" Irwin, of Peterborough Orfuns, new entry in the loop, promises a well-balanced team.

The only playing coach in the east, aided by Gil Putnam, former Beaches and Sarnia grid star, picked the Big Four as Argos, Ottawa, Tigers and Montreal. "Argos have the best coach," was the cryptic remark.

Back to Montreal we went to talk to Hoddy Foster, coach of Montreal Nationals, new team in the O.R.F.U.

Take Big Four.

"Argos will take the Big Four title," he confided, "although Ottawa will make it tough for them. I like Varsity in the intercollegiate, followed by Queen's. Kingston teams always have a lot of the old college spirit and that helps win football games."

With new and bolder opposition like that staring him in the face, Art Massucci, former star on the University of Detroit backfield, has his Sarnia Imps tuned to perfection. This is Massucci's fifth year as master-mind of the Imperials. "It looks like a tough season," he told me as he watched 29 gridiron warriors go through their paces. "The longer you're in the coaching game, the tougher it gets."

Squinting at the men on the field in the late afternoon sunshine, Massucci admitted he had strengthened his team for this season. Selecting group winners for The Star Weekly, he picked Argos to win the Big Four, after Ottawa has "made it tough" for them and Tigers pulled a few surprises."

What the Coaches Think.

From Sarnia, I turned to Big Four coaches—a silent, taciturn group. Montreal enters the Cubs in the Big Four title hunt this season, with Johnny Macdonald, 31-year-old "sandlot" footballer, as pilot. He thinks Argonauts will take the Big Four crown again. He also feels that the "dark horse" will be Hamilton Tigers.

Hamilton Tigers might be dark horses, huh? I asked Jerry Brock, their new coach — he played for Cornell and Tigers — what he thought about that. "Argos will win our league," he said. "Although I figure we should finish in second place." In the intercollegiate, he expects Queen's to finish on top, followed by Western. Brock's O.R.F.U. selection was Montreal, Balmy Beach, Sarnia and Peterborough, in that order.

And what of the two coaches whose names have been selected to fight it out for Big Four honors? Ross Trimble, of the Ottawa Rough Riders, said it quickly, "Rough Riders! We're a lot stronger this year." In the college group, he ran off these names: Western, Varsity, Queen's and McGill. What about the O.R.F.U.? "Balmy Beach," he said, "are good this season. They should win the title."

At Varsity stadium, home of Argonauts and Varsity, Coach Lou Hayman, who has tucked two Canadian titles under his belt, was putting his dominion champions—Toronto Argos—through their paces. "I'll pick the O.R.F.U. and college games first," he smiled. "Sarnia Imps in the O.R.F.U., on their sound logical football, and Western University because they've reached the point where they should win the title.

Teams to Beat.

"The Big Four? Well, Ottawa and ourselves look like the teams to beat. The Rough Riders will be strong this season, but I think we can take them—though we'll have to give a little bit more than last year."

There you are, Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public . . . the opinions of the 12 top football experts in eastern Canada. Perhaps you don't agree with them, or perhaps you do. The end of the season may prove how good the opinions were—or were not.

However, when you glance over their uncensored opinions, you discover many strange pre-season predictions. Like the fact that Sarnia was picked by seven experts to win, while one coach placed them third . . . and that half of the coaches picked Balmy Beach to finish third.

In the intercollegiate, there was more varied opinion, with each team being picked anywhere from first to last—except Toronto Varsity. And in the Big Four, three coaches picked Ottawa to finish first, while seven put them in third slot. Argos received nine votes to finish first, three to finish second. The "dark horse" was Hamilton Tigers.

Anyway, it was a lot of fun—and football's in the air. It's opening day, after weeks of practice and exhibition games. Will Tigers be a surprise? Will Argos repeat? Maybe Sarnia won't win again. What do you think?

ORFUNS AND NATIONALS NEW TEAMS IN POWERFUL CIRCUIT

Men Behind the Orfuns

ALD. R. M. GLOVER — HUGH CAMPBELL
H. A. CRANFIELD — WALTER JACKSON

A large and powerful executive is handling the affairs of the new senior rugby team, the Orfuns, here this autumn. Officers represent local civic heads, manufacturers, business men and sportsmen of Peterborough. Among the active executive members are the four shown above: Hugh Campbell, Ald. R. M. Glover, H. A. Cranfield, club president, and Walter Jackson, business manager.

FORGOT THE BALL

BORDERTOWN, Australia. — Semi-final game of the Tatiara Football Association was delayed 15 minutes when it was discovered there was no ball on the ground. A hasty call to a nearby town produced one.

Edmonton Is Also New In Rugby Game

Like many a road show that tours the country, Canada's grid picture this year mixes the old and the young and in that way expects to retain the interest of Mr. and Mrs. Fan. "All the old faces and some new ones added," is an off-used bromide that usually brings in the customers, and while there's not much doubt that they'll turn up anyway for this year's grid feasts, much centres on the newcomers.

Three teams two in the east and one in the west, face the barrier for the first time this year. On the plains, Edmonton Eskimos made a four-team affair out of the Western Conference and the results have been satisfactory all round. The Esks have yet to win a game, but using the old assumption that "Rome wasn't built in a day," they are confident the team will give all comers a battle next year. They are even getting tougher this year as the season progresses, but like all new teams they didn't click right off the bat.

Takes Time

Somewhat the same as the case of Edmonton is expected to be that of Peterborough Orfuns, newcomers to the Ontario Rugby Football union. Not a great deal has been heard about this squad except the old "they'll be in there fighting," but it is not expected that, this year at least, they will furnish much opposition.

The O.R.F.U. lays claim to both newcomers in the east, the other one being Montreal Nationals, rounding out a four team loop that should cause many a furrow in Big Four brows as they get their share of public interest....and gate receipts.

Nationals' case differs from the others. Where they had to start from scratch and build up a team, with even the most ardent supporter realizing it takes a lot of time, the Montreal outfit had plenty of material to start with, and Sarnia Imperials and Toronto Balmy Beach, O.R.F.U. favorites, are in for a struggle when they meet the Nats.

Back on Aug. 15, when you were lying on some beach absorbing your vitamins, Nationals called their first practice, and on the roll were 15 players, who, the previous year had been the mainstays of Montreal Indians in the Big Four. Ten of those are still on the roster and with the addition of some of the stars from Westmounts, 1937 Quebec intermediate champs, they have a great line-up to start the season with. Instead of the new team, the Nationals, being the question mark, the old team, the Cubs (as last year's Indians will be known this year) are the unknown quantity in Montreal grid circles.

Mullins Shines

The new O.R.F.U. entry has played two exhibition games this fall, losing to Ottawa Rough Riders, 13-5, and scoring a 5-0 win over Queen's University. Brightest spot of the exhibition tilts probably has been the hoofing of Ray Mullins, who registered all the points in the game with Queen's. In a loop that contains Ab Box of Balmy Beach and Bummer Stirling of Sarnia you're under a handicap from the start without a reliable kicker, and Coach Hoddy Foster looks as if he has a better than average one to take care of the chores.

Also in the backfield and possessing ability to send the ball for a ride, are Ed Barnabe, Queen's alumnus, and Jimmy Riddell, a Westmount grad. They are expected to split the duties at quarterback, with Barnabe figuring in the passing and carrying the ball in line plays.

Buddy Atcheson, Doug Smaill, Britt Bowden and last, but by no means least, Johnny Ferraro, big chief in the Indians' camp last year, round out a capable backfield. At flying wing is the team captain, Ernie Hempey, another ex-Indian, and no stranger to O.R.F.U. company, in which he played for a couple of years with Balmy Beach.

Up in front Dave Ryan will throw around a lot of beef, a lot of chatter and a lot of ball as he looks after the snapping end of the business. There's no better anchor to build a line around in the Union than Dave. And quite a line has been constructed alongside him.

Varied Representatives

Alex Fleming, Stan Ferry and Charley MacLean will do regular duty at the inside posts. Fleming is one of the Big Four jumpers, while MacLean was rated one of the best inside wings in the college loop last year when playing for Ted Reeve's Queen's team.

Reading out from the middle of the line we come across the names of Tommy Burns, Bill Davies, Eddie Burton, Lenny Hutton, George Pigeon, Norm Rettie, and others that spell trouble in capital letters for the three other teams. Hutton, one of the country's outside wing aces, may be out of the first game with an arm injury he suffered against Queen's. Burns and Davies will bear the brunt of the line pluging duties, aided and abetted by some of the promising recruits, and if the recruits can show anything like Messrs. Burns and Davies, even Sarnia's renowned line will have its hands full.

Like Balmy Beach in Toronto, Nationals will not be favored with the best park in the city in which to stage their games. The Cubs and McGill will share Molson Stadium, while the Nats strut their stuff at Alexandra park. But the lack of a pretentious plant isn't worrying Mr. Foster's charges and with interest and enthusiasm in the O.R.F.U. seemingly headed for new heights this year, they expect to pull in more than their share of fans.

Trio Of Powerful Linemen

New faces will be the order of the day in the Ontario Rugby Football Union this year as Montreal Nationals and Peterborough Orfuns join Balmy Beach and Sarnia Imperials to make a four-team circuit. Most of the Montreal faces will be new to the O.R.F.U. clients, but not to the senior gridiron. Ten stalwarts were in the 1937 line-up of the rival Big Four Cubs (nee Indians). Here is a trio of linemen who figure to make the Toronto and Sarnia paths no bed of roses. TOP is George Pigeon and BELOW, Tommy Burns, LEFT, and Lenny Hutton.

How Coaches Size Up Eastern Teams

Here's the final analysis of the predictions of the 12 major football coaches in Eastern Canada on the standing at conclusion of the football season this year. Positions were ascertained by awarding four points for first, three for second, two for third, and one for fourth:

BIG FOUR
1. Toronto Argonuats
2. Ottawa Rough Riders
3. Hamilton Tigers
4. Montreal Cubs

SENIOR O.R.F.U.
1. Sarnia Imperials
2. Montreal Nationals
3. Balmy Beach
4. Peterborough Orfuns

INTERCOLLEGIATE
1. University of Toronto
2. Western University
3. Queen's University
4. McGill University

For Eastern Canada title: 1. Toronto Argonauts, 2. Ottawa Rough Riders, 3. Sarnia Imperials.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, October 9.

Sunday's horoscope holds auguries of a conflicting nature, with much prospect of mental activity, progressive ideas and proposals, but with certain frustrating or delaying influences to be taken into account. This might possibly be attributable to a bereavement or some other loss. But there are also promises or gain through property, sound investments or perhaps legal adjustments or agreements.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of conflicting experiences, with much gain, increased or stabilized fortunes through investment or favorable litigation.

A child born on this day may have a sound and progressive mentality. At the same time it should be profound and analytical.

For Monday, October 10.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of mental pressure involving problems or perplexities that demand quick action. A rather devastating influence is shown, but it actually will be in the direction of progress and constructive achievements, and perhaps in unusual channels. Dramatic events or drastic moves seem imminent.

Those whose birthday it is may not complain of a year of monotony or lack of adventure. Astrological forces and faculties indicate adventures into many lines of progress and unorthodox experience or adventure.

A child born on this day may be brilliant and versatile, original and creative, but its tempestuous, reckless or passionate nature may lead it into strange adventures.

Coaching Peterboro Orfuns

Doing double duty as coach and inside wing with the Orfuns this autumn, Bill Irwin, former star lineman with Balmy Beach, has a heavy load on his shoulders with the new Peterborough entry into senior company. Irwin is generally recognized throughout Ontario grid circles as a first-rate player and a clever rugby general — being righthand man to Coach Ponton of the Beaches for several years.

GRIFFIN AND ROCANO EXPECTED TO BRING TITLE TO OTTAWA

Ottawa Rough Riders Boast Powerful Line, Speed In Backfield On 1938 Team

By GORDON HEADLEY
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

OTTAWA, Oct. 8.—Undoubtedly a team of tremendous possibilities, Ottawa Rough Riders are looked upon as a distinct threat to Canadian football supremacy this year and a glance at their powerhouse line-up bears out this contention. The red machine won their last Big Four championship in 1936—after a lapse of 10 years—and this season experts predict they will have a lot to say about the eastern crown and the right to contest the Dominion title.

To begin with there's an entirely different atmosphere prevailing in the Riders' camp, and Coach Ross Trimble believes the team, once it gets underway, will prove one of the biggest obstacles and surprise packages of the year for Toronto, Hamilton, Montreal, et al. The team still boasts the heaviest tank corps in the country but Trimble has concentrated on developing a stream - lined backfield and has some of the finest material in eastern Canada to go about his task with.

Griffin the Ace.

Tommy Daley, a product of the city's high school gridirons, Stan O'Neill, Orville Burke, Andy Tommy, Jack Leore, Eddie Rocano, Wilf. Trembley and last, but not least, Murray Griffin, an outstanding ball-carrier and passer, comprise the list. Griffin, a star with Queen's university, is probably the pick of the lot at this writing but the back division is one that is certain to demand attention this season.

Two years ago Rough Riders lost out in that memorable battle with Sarnia Imperials for the eastern Canada championship and the red team has not forgotten it. Consequently it is fired with ambition to avenge that defeat and if it lives up to the form shown so far, has a great chance of doing so.

Griffin will balance the backfield while Arnie Morrison and Orville Burke have shown themselves capable of directing the team from the quarterback position. Morrison was the spark in Rough Riders' 1936 drive and his young understudy has proven himself under fire with his brilliant passing and running.

At secondary, Rough Riders have Cal Moore, Harry McCauley and Joe Zelicovitz to spill enemy ball-carriers, and Trimble couldn't have chosen a more capable trio. All are 60-minute men. McCauley and Zelicovitz have been with the club for several seasons while Moore came here this year from Sarnia Intermediates. All three are deadly tacklers and of the type that rarely cracks under pressure.

Powerful Line.

The capital squad is not worrying about the front trenches. There's power and more power in that front line with big Dave Sprague, Bunny Wadsworth, Colin Ross, George Fraser, "Tiny" Herman, Wank Ussher, Rick Perley, Tony McCarthy and Curly Moynahan facing the enemy. There isn't a line in the country that appears to have the power that's loaded into this collection of stars, and the secret of the team's success in the last four or five years lies in this starting line-up. Practically every team in the east has felt the sting of their smashing ground attack.

The one big question mark surrounding the chances of Rough Riders this season is their kicking department. They haven't a "Bummer" Stirling in their caste, but Eddie Rocano, Jack Leore and the ponderous "Tiny" Herman are out to make this season the best in their careers. Herman is the best placement-kicker in the Big Four but whether Rocano and Leore can match the tall, ground-gaining punts of other booters is a question that has yet to be answered. Rocano will be remembered as the boy who proved the kicking sensation of the east in 1936 and Ottawa fans are pulling for him to regain his old form and put the finishing touches to a powerful machine.

Great Plunging By Jack Baker

Jackie Baker, one of the best natured of mortals, put on his greatest plunging show, and one of the standouts in Big Four history back in 1927 when he scored two touchdowns against Toronto Argonauts in a line driving attack in which he accounted for two hundred yards himself.

Paper Tells It

"It is indeed seldom that any team, no matter what the opposition may be, uncovers a line offensive of the power shown by Jackie Baker, Brian Timmis, Glen Small, Eddie Wright and Frank McKelvey. All were outstanding but Jackie Baker, cyclonic in his charges, gave one of the greatest exhibitions of plunging this city has been privileged to witness.

"No actual count was made of the number of yards he progressed with his battering-ram charges but an estimate of close to two hundred yards would not be much off. It was almost impossible for Argos to stop the doughty Yellow and Black star, for he crashed repeatedly for yards and crowned his efforts with two touchdowns that were well earned. His was a remarkable demonstration of line-smashing, and he added to his glory by stone-walling his section of the line."

Coaches Great Rugby Machine

Coach Art Massucci of Sarnia Imperials has had great success in piloting his senior O.R.F.U. team, since coming to Canada from Michigan. Stressing a heavy squad with an ace kicker, his teams have rolled regularly through all opposition, and their loss to Argos in Eastern Canada playoffs last autumn came as a big surprise to many. He has lost Ormond Beach, a 250-pound star, this season, but will again field a powerful grid machine.

Four Aces In Ottawa Rough Riders' Hand

When Ottawa Rough Riders take the field against Montreal Cubs in the opening game of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union season they will trot out confident of starting off on a trail that will lead to group and Dominion honors. And here are four of the outstanding reasons for their optimism. At the LEFT is Murry Griffin, former St. Michael's College and Queen's University player, who has been playing across the line for the past couple of years. Griffin is expected to pass the team to many a touchdown and has been sensational in exhibition games. Next to him is Harry McCauley, flying wing and secondary defence ace, powerful, effective and good for 60 minutes of play. Getting away a lengthy punt is Eddie Rocano, the man Coach Trimble is counting on to regain his form of two years ago and give the Riders a dependable hoofer, something they lacked last year. At the RIGHT, a veteran of the line, Dave Sprague, he of the high knee action, who is expected to, and probably will, go through opposing lines for his customary gains of 10 yards and up.

Buck Asselstine Toss Football Like A Baseball

(By Fred Craig)

Capturing the intermediate O.R.F.U. championship for the third time in four years in 1902, the Petes of that year led by Dr. A. W. McPherson as captain failed to go on and win the Dominion title, which had previously been captured by Peterborough in 1899 and 1901.

It was a fine team in 1902, too, one of the strongest that represented this city in intermediate company for it had a fast and clever blackfield and a sturdy wingline that backed up from nobody. A new recruit that season was "Buck" Asselstine, formerly with the Kingston Granites. Asselstine had one specialty that would have made him a star of the first magnitude if the forward pass had been in use in his day. He could toss that football around as if it were a baseball.

The Petes opened up the season by an easy victory over the Ottawa Rough Riders at Nicholls Oval, winning 28 to 0, much to the disgust of Hal McGiverin, well known Ottawa sportsman and afterwards a member of parliament who accompanied the Rough Riders to Peterborough. The Ottawa crowd did much better in the return game, holding the Petes to a 4-4 tie, thus winning the round by 32 to 4.

Win Over London

The final for the Ontario title that season was with the London the team with whom the Peterborough crowd had been battling on the field and in the committee room for several seasons and there was great excitement here when London were finally ordered to come to Peterborough for a sudden death game. It was their first appearance here, although the ePtes had made several trips to London and the local fans were anxious to get a look at the Londoners and more anxious to see them beaten.

They had their wish for Peterborough proved too strong for the visitors defeating them 12 to 0 in a game that drew a big crowd to Nicholl's Oval. That win gave the Petes the Ontario title and once more they were called on to meet the Quebec team for the Dominion championship, in a sudden death fixture at Montreal. It was late in the season and when the teams trotted out on the M.A.A.A. field they found three inches of wet snow blanketing the gridiron The conditions, however, did not seem to cramp the style of the Quebec champions who had a big heavy team and were right at home in the heavy going, winning 8 points to 0 over the Ontario representatives.

Big Halfback

The local Orfuns in their grid opening in Montreal on Monday will be faced with the task of stopping big Johnny Ferraro, the Nats' 220-pound halfback. He hails from Cornell University, and has starred with Hamilton and Montreal in Canadian senior football ranks.

Buenos Aires, Argentina, will extend its subway to cover about 30 miles.

Trepanier Lightest Lineman In Senior

Sarnia Imperials are credited with having one of the heaviest lines in Canadian football.

The facts and credits do not coincide.

As a matter of fact, Coach Art Massucci points out, the Imperials boast (and they expect to be able to brag about it before long) of having probably the lightest inside wing playing senior football today.

And he is one of the newcomers the coach expects to make good in senior company.

Trepanier, fighting for a position where brawn is one of the main essentials, is not only hanging on, but he appears to be in line for a regular post within a year or two.

The answer to it is:
FIGHT!

Toronto's Milk Shed Suggested 75-Mile

TORONTO, Oct. 8 (CP).—Reduction of the area from which Toronto draws its milk was advocated today by Controller Fred Conboy as a means to reduce the price charged the consumer for milk. The smaller area would lower haulage and inspection costs thus resulting in a smaller milk price.

He said the board of control would recommend reduction of the area if the Ontario government will not take over the work of inspecting the herds from which Toronto receives its milk supply.

He said some of the milk delivered in Toronto was hauled 175 miles. He said a milk shed extending 75 miles from the city would be large enough. Five veterinaries were also employed by the city to inspect the herds.

Japan is warring on profiteers.

Britain is pegging milk prices.

Petes Won First Senior Game By Defeating Argos 19 to 2

(By Fred Craig)

The first senior game ever played by a Peterborough rugby team ended in a victory for the home squad. That was back in 1904, when after winning the intermediate title three times in the previous four years at was decided that it was time to go up into faster company.

So up they went and the schedule tossed them in against the Toronto Argonauts, the first game scheduled for the Exhibition Grounds here. And the new-comers from the intermediate ranks proceeded to climb all over the Oarsmen and win 19 points to 2 which it must be admitted was a nice start.

The lineup of the Peterborough team in that first senior victory was Back, Ernie Ford; halves, Morgan, Bill Crowley and Doc Shaw, the latter doing the kicking; quarter, Alex. Gillespie; snap, Frank Burnham; inside wings, Gene Hurtubise and Ed Dillon; middles, Bill Meagher and Ross Craig; outsides, Bruce Rickey and Bert Cameron.

Unfortunately that flying start soon lost its impetus, for the Petes journeyed to Toronto soon after and were beaten 27 to 6 by the Toronto Rugby Club. Later in the season they made up for that reverse by beating the Torontos here 29 to 17, but threw their advantage away by losing to the Argonauts in Toronto 11 to 7. That left the three teams tied up in a knot and playoffs were necessary. Torontos defeated Argonauts handily and then disposed of the Petes in a sudden death game in Toronto by 21 to 8 and thus ended the first senior O.R.F.U. season in which a Peterborough rugby club was ever engaged.

THE Findlay "CONDOR"
A NEW STREAMLINED
COAL & WOOD RANGE

Obtainable also without reservoir; and with either high shelf or closet.

IT takes just one glance to see that the Findlay "Condor" is much more than just a new coal and wood stove—that it represents a new perfection in household comfort and convenience. The wonderful improvement in appearance, supplied by modern streamlining, is matched by an equal improvement in cooking precision and ease of operation.

A few outstanding features are:—
Brackets of high closet and shelf are behind leaving whole cooking top clear and available as working space.
Extra roomy firebox with large grate surface for better heating and quick baking—choice of deep or standard coal firepot—large wood firebox takes 24" wood.
All steel exterior with rounded corners—no projections, easy to clean as a china dish.
Quick heating reservoir (capacity 6½ gals.) with swinging spout faucet.
Tubular chrome handles that remain cool even with the hottest fire.
Choice of beautiful white or ivory porcelain enamel finish.
Roomy warming oven drawer—handy and useful.
Can be supplied with electric attachment of two 1000-watt elements in place of reservoir when latter is not required.

TOM COLLEDGE ONE OF GREATEST KICKERS TO DON UNIFORM

Gene Hurtubise Captained Senior Champs

(By Fred Craig)

With a Peterborough team just about to launch out into a campaign for the senior O.R.F.U. honors this is a good time to devote a little attention to the fact that a local squad of long ago succeeded in winning the coveted senior title. That was in 1907 and some of the features of that interesting season are still fresh in the minds of oldtime fans, particularly the gruelling battles the Petes had with the Toronto Victorias and that roughhouse affair at old Jesse Ketchum Park in Toronto when the late Lou Marsh was chased right out of the grounds by an infuriated Peterborough team after he had assaulted Bill Crowley, Peterborough backfielder.

Gene Hurtubise was captain of the Petes that season and a star kicker with the team was Tom Colledge, formerly of Trinity College School, a gentleman with a highly educated toe who did some of the finest drop-kicking that has ever been seen on a local gridiron. A sample of Colledge's skill in that department of the game was his feat in one match at Riverside of dropping three goals from the field, one from the forty-yard line.

Some Rough Battles

The Petes first O.R.F.U. game that season was against the Toronto Victorias who had Lou Marsh at quarterback, and the Petes won handily by 40 points to 6 in a game in which they played some very effective rugby and also found time to exchange punches with the pugnacious Vics. No quarter was asked or given along the wing lines that afternoon. The warfare was renewed soon after in Toronto when the second game was staged and that battle made the first one look like a peace conference. Victorias finally won by 26 to 21 after a struggle in which no holds were barred and the climax came when Lou Marsh who had been ruled off for rough play sneaked on to the field and as Peterborough were scrimmaging the ball stole up behind Bill Crowley and struck him in the face, badly injuring his jaw. Marsh then dashed into the crowd with half the Petes after him, jumped the fence at the Jesse Ketchum school grounds and disappeared.

Win At Lindsay

The Victoria victory made a third game necessary and it was scheduled for Lindsay on Thanksgiving Day and that day which saw Ernie Wilson and Peter Wallace win The Examiner senior and junior road races and Dave Hartley set up a new record in walking from Toronto also witnessed the defeat of the Victorias by 15 to 6. Lou Marsh was not in attendance and the expected fireworks failed to develop. Peterborough sent a big crowd of fans to Lindsay by special train and Joe Hay, then secretary of the O.R.F.U., who was in charge at the gate, told the writer afterward that the Peterborough supporters just asked two questions "How much are the tickets?" and "Is Lou Marsh here?"

Westmount of Montreal were in the Ontario circuit that season and they won the eastern group by defeating Kingston. They were the Petes next opponents and came here with the reputation of being a sturdy and clever bunch of footballers. However they failed to measure up to their advance notices and Peterborough won without a great deal of trouble by 25 points to 4 and thus became Ontario senior champs. The game was refereed by that very fine sportsman, Phil. Mackenzie of Montreal who came all the way here to officiate and refused to accept any pay for his services—a refusal that by the way nearly caused a couple of sudden deaths among local football executives who had never run across an official before who did not expect to be paid for his work.

The Montreal Trip

After winning the Ontario title the Petes went on for the Dominion honors and the story of their Montreal game is told elsewhere. However, it may be interesting to recall that Ottawa College, the intercollegiate winners, defaulted to Peterborough and the Petes in turn contemplated dropping out themselves which would have meant that the Montreal team, the Interprovincial titleholders, would have won the Dominion championship without playing a game. The Winged Wheelers did not want a title by default so they offered Peterborough $500 to make the trip. The ante was too tempting and accordingly the Petes decided to make the journey to Montreal. The rest is history.

Plan Field Day

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 8. — The interscholastic track and field meet to be held in Norwood will be on the afternoon of October 19, it was learned yesterday. Havelock, Campbellford, and Norwood High School champions will contest for the Rork Ferguson Shield, won by Norwood the past two meets.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

TONIGHT, we toss out a football edition—and when we say "we", we mean the guys in the advertising, composing and editorial departments who worked on it. Lot of work to it and there ought to be a good amount of interesting rugby chatter dotting the pages. It is appropriate now as the grid season comences, and our Orfuns step up into senior company. We know the boys will, like the gee in the holdup, give everything they have—and we want to start 'em off with a bang. Some of the scribes say the best the locals can look for is the worst of it, but we dunno. A team that is unanimously picked for the cellar might—even in its first year—fool a lot of experts. And there is no one in the world who looks as natural as a fooled expert, is there? So we give you this rugby edition, and we hope you like it a lot.

* * * * * *

ORFUNS TREK to Montreal this week-end to open their senior O.R.F.U. schedule against the new Nationals. It is hinted abroad in German, Spanish and Greek languages that the Nats are tougher than two boarding-house steaks in a flop house. But fortunately we don't understand these languages. Just pig Latin and pigskin. Montreal is quite a town for French femmes, frogs' legs, peasoup, French femmes, night spots, cheap beer, swell scenery, French femmes, and lots of things. But especially French femmes. And our gridders are in training, too. So we hope the local huskies will keep their minds on football not femmes and such-like. Yeah, it's quite a town—and it ought to be quite a rugby game. Naturally, we will be on hand for the fray.

As The Years Roll On

A GUY brought us a couple of clippings on oldtime football—well, not too old. One was from Toronto and said: "Argos' search for a drop kicker may be ended if Emmett Sheehy, who joined the team tonight, keeps up the performance of his initial appearance. Sheehy is a brother of Dick Sheehy, former University of Toronto, Argonaut and Ottawa player. He made an impression with both his catching and kicking, and the former St. Michael player may land a regular position on the Double Blue backfield. He is a good ball handler, fast on his feet and is a valuable addition to the Scullers' squad." Hi, Emmett, how about a free law defence sometime? The other clipping told of a local junior O.R.F.U. game, and this was our lineup: Ward, Sheehy, Mulholland, Browne, Turner, Johnston, Griffin, Ashmore, Currie, Clancy, McPherson, McClellan, Mahood, McIntosh, and Patterson.

* * * * * *

LOTS ON TAP TODAY, as the barkeep grinned. The paper may be held up to carry the local ball playoff final between Stratford and the Petes, and also to catch the World Series game. It's a big week-end, so folks can't complain of the paper going to press too early on Saturday. Two grid games here also, junior P.C.I.-ers playing Oshawa this morn and the senior Oshawa-Peterborough struggle slated for this aft. Pity the poor sports scribe who gets about two of the public holidays a year—the rest of the time having to toil while others loaf. Oh, well, let's not get into an argument over it! But this Thanksgiving Day is the busiest in sports we've seen here since back in '16 when we had to do 20 'rithmetic problems for skipping school and Uncle Theodore got the jug for skipping his conscription call!

The Fans Felt Sorry

LACROSSE FANS in general around town last night were sorry there was no game for several reasons. They were sorry they missed a good scrap, they felt bad about the Wallaceburg club's tough luck in having to default, and they thought the Petes' win would have been sweeter had the club been forced to play. But it couldn't be helped—and everyone was both tickled at the title brought here, and convinced the Petes deserved it.

* * * * * *

BY THE LOOK of the weather this morning, it seems like a rotten break for the ballsters this aft. Wet underfoot and overcast above, we heard this a.m. that the Stratford squad were on the way here and the game would be played if at all possible. At this late date, you can't go on postponing baseball games on account of winter may set in or rugby club officials—who had turned to prayer to hurry along the ball series—might be stricken with high blood pressure. Or a vocabulary stroke that might prove fatal! The poor Petes had to await weeks on ice in frapped indolence as the O.B.A. remained faithful to its plighted —to the T.A.B.A.—indifference, so now climatic perversity sets in and where are we? (Who said "sitting atop a dictionary," who said that?) Alas, woe and woe.

North Winds Do Blow

WITH A WAN WAVE, we turn to hockey for a breath of fresh air. The O.H.A. announces that playing certificates are now available for clubs who have paid their fees for the 1938-39 season. Series are: Senior "A" and "B", intermediate "A" and "B", and Junior "A", "B" and "C". Fees are $6 per team, but $5 extras for a new club. Send to Sec. W. A. Hewitt of O.H.A. at Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens. Gym workouts for various amateur clubs are starting now throughout Ontario, and more will be by the end of this month. No less than 270 junior candidates turned out at Toronto Ravina Gardens the other eve at the first Marlboro Hockey Club practice session. Junior clubs with artificial ice will be skating about two months ahead of our Colts.

ALL CHURCHES should be represented at seven next Tuesday eve in the "Y" when the re-organization meeting of the Church Basketball League is called. Age limits have it junior under 20, juvenile under 17 and bantam under 15 by Jan. 1st, 1939. Should be at least three entries in each section, the loop falling down last fall after five good years. Just seven squads in instead of a dozen or more. Entry fee may be reduced this semester. St. John's juvenile winners of '37 may go into provincial O.C.B.A. playdowns, with all of last year's gang. Two of th rule changes in the O.C.B.A. came about indirectly from the intermediate "B" playdowns of '37, which St. Paul's won. The Assoc. secretary has power to appoint officials, and the home team now has only to give the visiting team three days notice of a game. First rule should save local teams expenses on referees, but second one may mean local cage crews would be forced to play midweek games away.

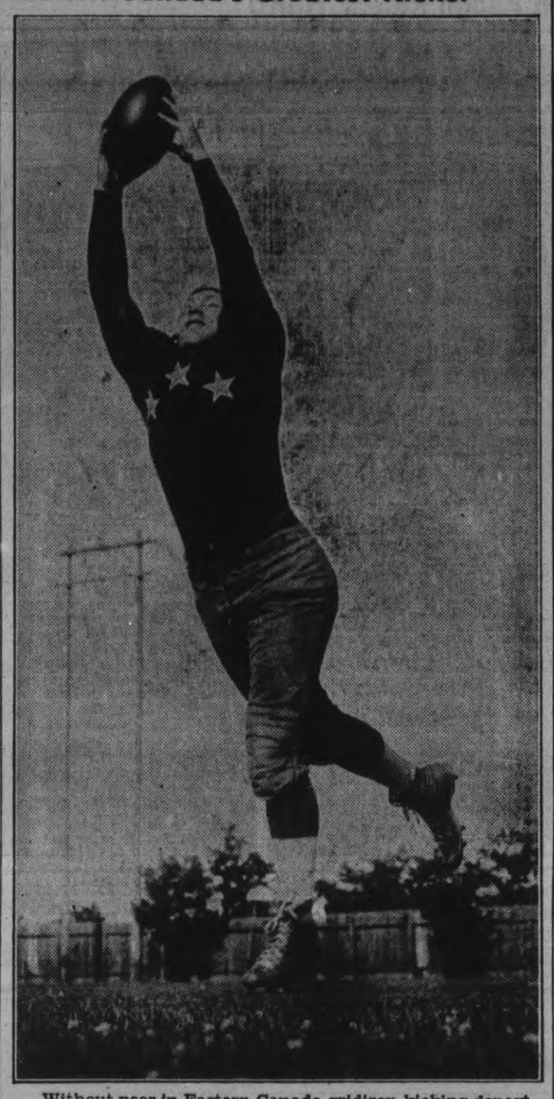
DESE, DEM AND DOSE: We expect to have all the World Series game, if it's played, in today's paper—but not all the Petes' game, which starts so much later....Stratford gang arrived in town about eight this morn....The P.C.I. grid results today should be in this sheet....St. Kitts won the first of the Mann Cup finals handily and are favored to become Dominion lacrosse champs....Port Hope high school field day saw 26 school records broken day before yesterday; who says the modern degeneration?....Coach Bill Irwin of the Orfuns informed Canadian Press the other day: "We are just building this season and we're hoping for the best"....Coach Hoddy Foster of Montreal Nats had Ferraro and Barnabe tossing forward passes in Thursday's drill....P.C.I. rugby teams are idle now till the 22nd, when they play in Oshawa....Tony Graboski of HersheyB'ars—an ex-Oshawa puckist—is tying up with a Hershey sweetie this week-end....Jake Biddle and Tip Miller of Oshawa GM-men played with the good Stratford team of '34....War scare interferred with C.G.E. boxing workouts recently at the Armouries....POME: Our teams oft knocked upon the door, but couldn't crash Fame's Hall; this year the boys are making it, without a knock at all!

Eastern Canada's Greatest Kicker



Without peer in Eastern Canada gridiron kicking department, Hugh (Bummer) Stirling year after year kicks rival clubs into submission with his educated toe. A St. Thomas boy, Stirling is not only the game's greatest hoofer but one of the best passers in senior ranks. He will again spark the Sarnia squad this season, his duties being heavier with the recent loss of a starry teammate, Ormond Beach.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well Mac, the 1st thing today should oughta be to congratulate the lacrosse fellows upon cleaning up the Ontario honors, although its tough all around that the final serious was wiped out by tragedy. However the Petes has earned all the applause the home folk kin hand out for the way they come through the toughest kind of schedule to grab the group honors and playoffs. Since way back about the 24th of May the boys has been in there swinging about every second nite or so and if they ever get to where they can't smell arnica and where they can look at themselves in the mirror and find they aint no more adhesive in sight on their maps they will begin to think something is wrong. Some of them people who is good at figures can dope out how many miles the boys has run during the 30 or more games they has played this summer.

A Tough Passage.

Anyway they come through 2 tough groups and trimmed a lot of strong opposition in convincing manner and they're real champs and entitled to all the nice things the neighbors can say about.

The lads oughta be glad the lacrosse wars is over. As for Mister Magee, Mister Loucks, Mister Crowe and Mister Creighton who now exchange the lacrosse jerseys for them flaming yellow uniforms the Orfuns is going to wear this season, they oughta find football just setting-up exercises after the lacrosse battles of the last 4 or 5 months.

The Orfuns Is Off

Our rugby team by the way Mac goes into action at Montreal Mond. which same is Thanksgiving Day. They clash with the Nationals which is led by Mister Johnny Ferraro and includes such celebrities as Mister Hempey and Mister Burns and a lotta other tough bimboes what has been battling in senior company for years and know all the answers. I aint going to call our lads to beat such a aggregation.

They don't rate to do so and they shouldn't but the Petes has been practicing faithfully, they got a lotta pep and fight and they're going out there Mon. to give every ounce they got. Here's hoping they let the Nats know they been in a football game.

Beaches Coming

Next Sat. we get a chance to look them over on the home lot when Mister Alex Ponton brings his Balmy Beachers to town. The B. B's claim to have 1 of the strongest teams that has represented them and in Mister Ab Box they have a 4 star performer what in himself should pack in the customers. Mister Box can hoof that pigskin a mile and in addition he is about the best forward passer that has been developed in Canada. We expect to see a record football crowd out there next Sat.

It Won't Be Long

Just a word about the baseball classick—the world serious. Right now it looks like the whole thing may be over before dark Sun. if it don't rain in New York for the Yanks has already walloped Mister Lee and Mister Dizzy Dean and it don't look like this young Mister Bryant has the kinda stuff to save the day for Chicago. At that the Cubs has been far from outclassed in either game. A few breaks in either contest might have reversed the result, but they wasn't forthcoming and it now looks like the McCarthyites is going to be the 1st club in history to win 3 world's serious in a row.

As to the local baseball affair, Mac, they aint much to be said this week. The lads was due to tangle with Stratford today and again on Monday and here's hoping they start in on Schoolmaster Craig where they left off on Schoolboy Mussel.

And now wishing all the customers a safe and sane Thanksgiving.

Sportfully Yours,
A. Wise Cracker,

City Carpetball

The City Carpet Ball Lague started off this week with only two games played owing to the desire of a new club to participate in this season's activities.

The list of teams are as follows: St. George's No. 1, Skip J. Douglas; St. John's No. 2, Skip W. Davies; St. Luke's No. 3, Skip J. S. Mason; St. Luke's No. 4, Skip C. Joyes; Trinity No. 5, Skip A. Parker; Trinity No. 6, Skip H. Gray; S.O.E. No. 7, Skip F. J. Parsons; S.O.E. No. 8, Skip B. J. Lemon; L.O.L. No. 9, Skip O. Lundy; B. E. S L. No. 10, Skip B. J. Rumary; B.E.S.L. No. 11, Skip W. Gracie; B E S L. No. 12, Skip A. Thomas; Fire Hall No. 13, Skip G. Gimblett, Sr.; Fire Hall No. 14, Skip A. Mason; Fire Hall No. 14, Skip W. Osborne; C.O.F. No. 16, Skip O. E. Grose.

It is anticipated that the league will get fully under way next week and that the schedule will be published as regularly as possible in this column every Saturday night with the results and standing appearing in the Wednesday's issue.

Should any dates be conflicting according to club rules you are requested to phone the secretary at 3067 that new dates can be arranged. It must be remembered that all games must be played within one week of scheduled date or forfeited to opponent.

Also all games this year will consist of twelve ends instead of 10 as heretofor. The following is the schedule for next week:

Tuesday, Oct. 11th—St. John's No. 2 vs L.O.L. No. 9; St. Luke's No. 3 vs St. Luke's No. 4; S.O.E. No. 8 vs B.E.S.L. No. 11; B.E.S.L. No. 12 vs B.E.S.L. No. 10.

Wednesday, Oct 12th—St. George's No. 1 vs S.O.E. No. 7; Fire Hall No. 15 vs Fire Hall No. 14.

Friday, Oct. 14th—Fire Hall No. 14 vs St. Lukes' No. 3; Trinity No. 5 vs C.O.F. No. 16; Trinity No. 6 vs Fire Hall No. 13.

First name teams at home.

Hastings Defeats Norwood Bowlers

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 8. — Hastings ousted Norwood from the Trent Valley bowling loop playoffs for the second place at Norwood Friday afternoon to win the Tip Top Tailors Trophy and wind up the bowling in this area for the season.

Each town crew to a two-all tie after the first four games had been played. It was then decided that each team play one six-end game, with total scores to count, with the result Hastings came out on top.

Mussing Up the Maples

Three leagues started their bowling schedules at the Duffus' Alleys on Wednesday, six Westclox teams, 16 Quaker Oats crews and 12 Auto League squads, going into action.

Orville Martin of Westclox got the first 300 or better game when he hit 358 for high single. Ken Shadgett of the Auto Loop bumped off the best three-game total with a neat 756. In the latter league, Chrysler, Nash and Auto No. 1 whitewashed Graham, Dodge and Auto No. 2. The Ford gang turned in an 1,100 game to cop six points from Chevrolet, while Buick and Hudson tied with four each. Pontiac and Olds also tied with four each. Among the good individual scores were:

Ken Shadgett 756, Alex. Watson 726, Orville Martin 722, H. McKillop 716, Ken Jackson 700, W. Inch 683, A. Wilson 659, W. Pinn 649, M. J. Duffus 649, W. Naish 640, J. Detcher 629, F. Stanley 628, M. O'Neill 627, F. Wemp 617, J. Woods 607, W. Menzies 643 R. Evans 636, H. Webb 630, D. Walker 624.

FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

How To Throw A Forward Pass

By LEW HAYMAN

The forward pass is used as a combination threat and ground-gainer. Even if fewer attempted forwards were successful than is now the case it would still be good strategy to try them. The threat of a pass keeps the defence guessing and contributes to your running game.

There are variations in the way passers hold the ball, but the two commonest ways are:

1. By layin gthe ball in the palm of the hand with the fingertips over the laces. The nose of the ball is up and the throw may be from the shoulder or back of the ear, following through across the body.

2. Some passers lay the ball in the palm of the hand, fingers on the lace, with the index finger behind the point of the ball, acting as a sort of guide for its direction. The hand is whipped from behind the ear, above and behind the shoulder.

Watch Footwork

The footwork of a passer is very important, for it gives him his sense of balance and helps in his follow through. For right-handed passers the throw is made off the right foot with the weight of the body on the same foot. As he throws he should step forward with the left foot in the direction the pass is to be made. Just as the ball leaves the hand the right foot should go forward, following through with the arm.

In today's picture the passer is just about to let the ball go. Note how he is carrying out the basic rules I have just mentioned. Go over each point while looking at the picture. Also note that his head and eyes are up so that he can see any possible receivers and at the same time the opponents who may be rushing at him.

There are two types of forward passes, the spot pass and the optional, or choice pass. The spot pass is thrown to a predetermined spot and the onus is on the receiver to be there and snare the ball.

The optional, or choice pass, is thrown to any receiver who is uncovered. Spot passes are usually quite short, while the optional type is usually long.

Short and Fast

Short passes are usually thrown fast and not very far ahead of the runner, that is, with what we call, very little lead. The long passes are arched and should give the receiver plenty of lead. The passer should know just about how fast his various receivers can travel and judge the lead he gives them accordingly.

The pass that gives the receiver a long lead must be thrown as the receiver makes his break for open territory, NOT WHEN HE GETS THERE. Most passers have a tendency to hold the ball too long.

In scanning the field for receivers throw to the first man you see uncovered. Try and keep all possible receivers in sight. Don't give the play away by continually looking at the man you intend to throw to.

That takes care of the throwing end of it. On TUESDAY we'll discuss the receiving end of passing.

Oshawa Wins Over P.C.I.

Oshawa gridders took an 18-7 C.O.S.S.A. victory over the P. C. I. second squad in a drizzle of rain this morning at the Exhibition Grounds before about a hundred fans. The classy visitors were trailing 2-0 in the first quarter but went ahead 5-2 at half-time and took a 10-7 lead into the fourth frame. They earned the victory on good all-around play, the P.C.I. boys being short on relief players and weakening in the last half. Hamilton turned in a good game for the losers and Ackford got off some neat kicks. Walker, Daniels and McLaughlin looked good for Oshawa.

Kicks by Ackford netted P.C.I. two points in the first. Oshawa blocked a kick in the second and McLaughlin skirted end for an unconverted try. A P.C.I. fumble on a kick put Oshawa in scoring position in the third and Walker went over for a touchdown, which was not converted. Later in the heat, P.C.I. pulled a long forward pass, McPherson to Taylor, with the latter crossing the line for a major. It was not converted. Daniels kicked two singles for Oshawa in the fourth, and Dionne plunged over for a try, which Daniels converted. The teams:

Officials — J. Kirkwood and L. Thomas.

Balloons Get Away

LONDON, Oct. 8 (AP)—Two balloons, raised in a demonstration of London's air raid defence barrage, broke away from their moorings today and sailed across country, trailing their long steel cables.

Several score other silver-sided gas bags dotted London's sky to show the people how the defence forces proposed to keep enemy aircraft at a distance.

Several other ballons slipped their cables but they were captured promptly. One was captured after an army truck chased its dragging cable several miles.

YANKEES CONFIDENT THEY WILL END SERIES IN FOUR GAMES

Hatnett's Best Pitching Bets Failed To Stop Yankees Now Has To Gamble On Bryant

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (AP)—The shell-shocked Chicago Cubs, beaten in the first two games in their home park, limped into huge Yankee Stadium today to renew the unequal struggle against Joe McCarthy's wonder team in the third battle of the World Series.

But New York was not visibly excited about the annual blue-ribbon baseball classic. The prospect was the stadium's 70,000 capacity would not be strained because the average New York baseball nut is convinced now that the Yankees will make it four straight, winding up with their third consecutive world championship Sunday night.

Gabby Hartnett, the locals point out, threw his two best bets, Bill Lee and Dizzy Dean, at the slugging American Leaguers in Chicago, and Bill and Dizzy got it in the neck. Today Gabby had to gamble on Clay Bryant, a nervous young newcomer to the big series, while his rival, McCarthy, could blast loose with Monte Pearson, a series veteran and a magnificent pitcher.

Shaken Badly By Sluggers

The Cubs were badly shaken by those home runs that Frank Crosetti and Joe DiMaggio hit to beat the courageous Dizzy in the second game, but they still were talking a lot of fight and contending in loud tones that the Yanks had been lucky stiffs. They felt yesterday's rest would do them some good, and they were confident that if Bryant could win today they would come back behind Lee to square the count tomorrow.

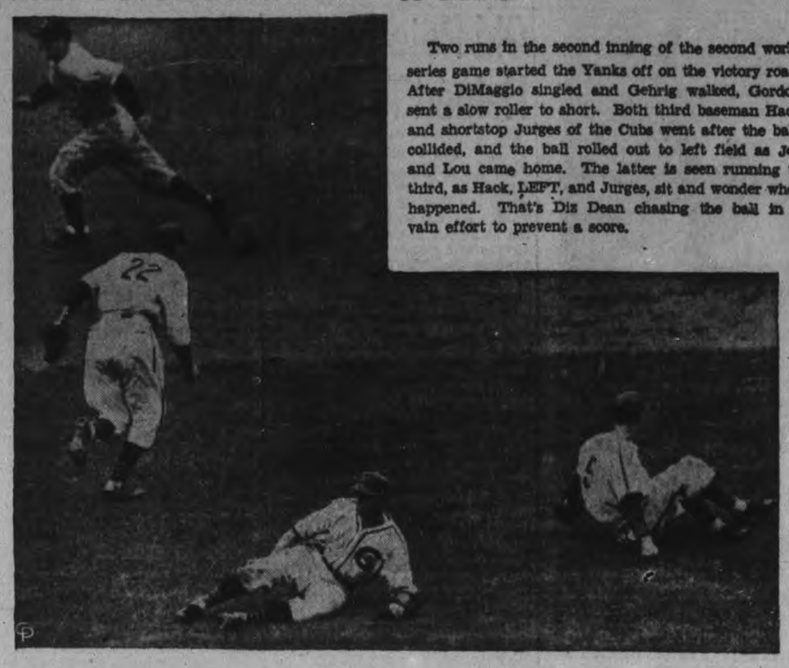
Impressed by the way Joe Marty slugged the ball in the second game, Hartnett announced he would keep him in centre field for today's game, at least. Marty, who replaced Phil Cavaretta, collected three solid hits and drove in all three Chicago runs.

Despite the Crosetti-DiMaggio outburst Thursday, the Chicagos went into today's contest with a slightly better series batting average than their vaunted rivals—.303 to 279. All except two of their 20 blows, however, had been singles.

Outstanding feature of the series to date, though, has been the Yankee fielding, particularly by Crosetti and Joe Gordon. Between them, they handled 31 chances in the first two games and put together four double plays to spike Chicago rallies.

Chicago fielding on the other hand, has been a big disappointment. Bill Herman's error in the first game enabled the Yankees to beat Lee 3-1 and the tumbling act put on by Bill Jurges and Stanley Hack, while they tried to grab a roller, provided the Yanks with two more runs in the second game, to win 6-3.

Features Of Second World Series Game



Two runs in the second inning of the second world series game started the Yanks off on the victory road. After DiMaggio singled and Gehrig walked, Gordon sent a slow roller to short. Both third baseman Hack and shortstop Jurges of the Cubs went after the ball, collided, and the ball rolled out to left field as Joe and Lou came home. The latter is seen running to third, as Hack, LEFT, and Jurges, sit and wonder what happened. That's Diz Dean chasing the ball in a vain effort to prevent a score.

Bryant Scheduled To Pitch For Cubs

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (AP)—Subject of much of the hot stove oratory that agitates this town as the World Series moves in is Claiborne Bryant—Clay to you and you—who is slated for Chicago Cubs' mound job today.

Most National League rooters think he is a whiz but won't guarantee him against the Yanks. Bryant was better than fair at the Polo Grounds this year against the Giants. He chucked two shutouts, a three-hitter and two-hitter.

He is fast and contrary to rumor can throw a pretty fair curve. Ask the Dodgers. He twisted them into knots a couple of times.

O.R.F.U. Opens On Monday With Two Games

TORONTO, Oct. 8 (CP)—Remodelled in best 1938 style, the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior series stood aside today while the Intercollegiate and Interprovincial circuits paraded for the official season opening. The O.R.F.U. will have the stage to itself Monday.

No longer the lop-sided orphan of the east's football union, the Ontario conference will present for the first time a four-team league without Hamilton Cubs, its drawback in past years, and with Montreal Nationals and Peterborough Orfuns in their place. Sarnia Imperials and Toronto Balmy Beach complete the union.

The Big Four teams will more than break the stillness around the O.R.F.U. stadia as Hamilton Tigers against Toronto Argonauts, Montreal Cubs against Ottawa Rough Riders open the Interprovincial and Toronto against Queen's, Western against McGill the Intercollegiate. On Monday, Thanksgiving Day, the birth of a new, stronger, O.R.F.U. will be given official recognition with games at Toronto and Montreal.

Sarnia Still Big Team

The union's ruling force still is Sarnia Imperials, champions seven successive years, but the chance for an upset appears stronger than ever with Balmy Beach and Nationals fielding powerful, experienced lineups. Only Peterborough's new entry, debuting in senior company, is not conceded a chance.

Struck the hardest blow of any eastern team when giant Ormond Beach, star backfielder, was killed in an explosion at Sarnia last month. Imperials nevertheless rank as favorites to win an eighth straight title. They have offensive power, a capable line, swift backs and an outstanding punter—Hugh (Bummer) Stirling.

Imperials, who clash in Toronto Monday against the Beaches, will support Stirling with such stars as Mike Hedgewick and Tony Golab on the backfield, Fat Parsons, Mike Clawson, Trip Trepanier, Red France and Pat Butler on the line. For the end positions they have Ike Norris and Mike Stevenson.

Coach Art Massucci has placed the burden of directing the team squarely on his quarterbacks, Arnie McWatters and veteran Alex Hayes, by doing away with the huddle. No other coach has followed that move.

Strongest In Years

As conservative a coach as Alex Ponton admits the Beach club is the "strongest in several years' and that may be the tipoff that Balmy finally is primed for a successful attack on the Sarnia dynasty. Ponton will have three additions to last season's squad and he expects them to provide the necessary spark.

Teddy Manorek from Hamilton Tigers and Sammy Sward, injured before a game was played in 1937, give Balmy a degree of plunging power unequalled in Ponton's time. In Shelley Lush, up from high school, he has a fleet-footed youngster who may reach stardom this year.

Otherwise the team is much the same as has carried Balmy's blue and gold for some years. The veterans are headed by Ab Box, passing and punting star, and linemen Jack (Pooch) Taylor, Bob Reid, Paul McGarry, Bruce Barron and Gord Downward. Barry Gray, former University of Toronto quarterback, will call signals.

SPORT SPICE

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP)—World Series Situation: The baseball mob hit New York yesterday like a hurricane...It blew in from the west by plane and special train to be in on the "kill" which everyone takes for granted will start at the Yankee Stadium today...Two down, the Cubs have their backs to the wall...The were a glum lot rolling east on their special...Unless the Yanks get too cocky, it looks as though they'll be the first team in history to win three world's championships in a row...Yanks figure they'll murder Clay Byrant's fast ball today, but some of them fear Bill Lee may be a bit tough in tomorrow's return engagement.

Even Chicago writers have quit on Cubs...Most of them predict the Yanks will do it in four straight...The Cubs haven't quit but they are mighty low...Gabby Hartnett was around his hotel booming that it'll only take one win to put Chicago back in the series, but nobody so much as looked up...Most tragic figure of the series so far is Dizzy Dean, who pitched himself one whale of a ball game (with nothing on the ball except cunning) for seven innings until those homers began to fall...Of course, there is only one nomination for hero—Frankie Crosetti.

World's Series Scene: Plenty of gossip around the hotel lobbies...Latest on the Brooklyn situation is that Burleigh Grimes is out, rain or shine, and that the only candidates to succeed him are Charlie Dressen of Nashville, Leo Durocher and Jimmy Wilson, the ex-Philly...Another story has Grimes going to manage a Dodger farm in the International League and still another sends him to Milwaukee to repace Alan Sothoron...Most of the talk on the Yankee special coming east had to do with Lou Gehrig actually shaking Joe DiMaggio's hand after Joe hit that homer in the second game...Insiders say it hasn't happened before this season...

Ford Frick, president of the National League, looks and acts jittery ...On the other hand, Will Harridge, head of the American League, looks plump and sassy...He's getting used to these American League victories...Paul Shannon, veteran baseball expert of the Boston Post, is the new president of the Baseball Writers' Association...

Women's Golf Enters Finals

OTTAWA, Oct. 8.—(CP).—A Toronto veteran of big-time golf whose heart is set on winning the Canadian women's golf championship and a 22-year-old Irish girl with one of the longest drives in the game meet here to day in the 36-hole titular match.

Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen from the Ontario capital qualified for the finals in a stirring semi-finals contest here yesterday against Mrs. J. B. Walker of Ayrshire, Scotland, and after being three down at the end of the 12th staged a sparkling comeback to win the match one up on the 18th green.

Her opponent in the 36-hole event which winds up the open tournament is Clarrie Tiernan of Dublin who ousted Jessie Anderson of Perth, Scotland, 3 and 2 in the semi-finals.

The games of the two finalists are as different as their appearances and personalities. Mrs. Mulqueen is a little woman with a quiet smile who poles out consistent tee shots, plays a steady but not spectacular short game, and is deadly on the greens.

The Toronto star has been Ontario women's champion but has never won the Canadian open.

Athletics Win First Game Of Mann Cup

TORONTO, Oct. 8 (CP). — St. Catharines Athletics need only two more victories to take the Canadian senior lacrosse championship over New Westminster Adanacs, but even if the Athletics get into deep water in the best-of-five series their supporters won't give up the ghost.

The Athletics have a breath-taking habit of finishing like young hurricanes, as they demonstrated last night in defeating Adanacs 18-11 in the first game of the Mann Cup series. Down 3-4 at the end of the first quarter, they tied the British Columbia team 6-6 by half-time and 9-9 at the three-quarter mark. Then Art Brown's great young machine stormed for nine fourth-quarter goals.

It's been that way right along with the A's who like nothing better than to tramp all over a defence when it counts. Orillia Terriers, who lost in Dominion finals to New Westminster Salmonbellies last year, thought they had St. Catharines on the run by taking the first game of Ontario Lacrosse Association finals. The Athletics got hot to win the round in three straight games—and got hotter every time out.

So there wasn't a whole lot of worry among the St. Catharines supporters in the crowd of 5,000 last night while the Adanacs stayed level. When Roy (Punk) Morton and Joe Cheevers got the Ontario club's attack going they knew New Westminster had to crumble.

George Urquhart put St. Catharines ahead 35 seconds after the start of the last period. Within a minute Morton had rattled in two more goals and after a single Adanac reply the Athletics went back to their wrecking. Billy Wilson banged in the 13th counter and Cheevers, Urquhart and Harry Green, big Indian star, followed him in quick order.

Morton scored seven times, Cheevers six and Lee was easily the best of the invaders' forwards, tallying four times. The rest of the scoring was spread over the two lineups.

RUGBY TEAM OF 1901 CAPTURED SECOND TITLE

Petes Captured Second Title Beating Quebec

(By Fred Craig)

Peterborough's second Dominion title was captured in 1901 and it came strangely enough after the Petes had been beaten 27 to 6 by London in the Ontario finals. That seeming paradox is explained by the fact that the London team had the nerve to play a professionalized hockey player named Peel against the Petes and when the O.R.F.U. executive heard the news they promptly gave the Cockneys the air and named Peterborough Ontario champions.

That was a queer season all around. The Petes started out by taking the round from the Ottawa Rough Riders seconds, losing by a point in Ottawa and cleaning up in the second game here. They were to have met the Toronto intermediates in the second round but the Toronto crowd defaulted, leaving the local crowd in the finals against London, the Western Ontario winners. As stated London won the battle on the field but were tossed for a total loss in the committee room and the Petes were ordered to play Quebec, winners of the Quebec intermediate title, in a sudden death game at the M.A.A.A. grounds in Montreal.

Come From Behind.

It was a tidy battle, with Quebec leading 9 to 8 at half-time, but with the Petes coming strong in the latter stages to win 17 to 9, George Revell, Peterborough scrimmage man, starring by blocking two kicks and scoring two touchdowns.

Among the Peterborough fans who saw that glorious victory were R. B. Rogers, Harry LeBrun, Dr. Bradd, H. R. H. Kenner, J. A. Corry, E. A. Laverdure and A. P. Pousette.

The Peterborough lineup in the opening game of that season was as follows:

Other players who figured in later games were Vic McWilliams, Norman Bell and Harold Armstrong.

Air services between Hong Kong, China, and Europe are being increased.

Night Football Held In Sarnia

(SARNIA)

Minor football, the growing grounds of future greats, received its greatest forward push in 1931 when the Athletic Park was opened for night football.

The greensward that had been closed to gridders when darkness fell, was now available at all times.

It was the greatest thing that ever happened to city league, intermediate and junior rugby in Sarnia's history.

Filled Big Need.

The Imperial seniors did their drilling in the afternoon and the Collegiate team raced through their paces after school. The city leaguers and the lower O.R.F.U. teams, with boys who were unable to get out during the afternoon, were forced to jump through hurried practices of short duration in unsatisfactory light.

Night Football.

Today Sarnia has a football field second to none in the country with lighting equipment that enables the juniors and intermediates to practice nightly and gives the city league an opportunity of playing out full games.

When the lights were officially turned on for the first time on the evening of September 18, 1931, fifteen hundred persons packed the park and saw the Wanderers defeat the Alerts 16-6 and the Cediems blank Point Edward 8-0.

Last Senior Game Was Played 29 Years Ago

(By Fred Craig).

The last senior rugby game seen in Peterborough was staged at Riverside Park on Saturday, November 6, 1909, almost twenty-nine years ago, when the Petes were defeated 10 to 5 after a hard battle with the strong T.A.A.C. team of Toronto, scoring a touchdown in the last quarter and almost pulling the game out of the fire.

During that season and in the previous year the Peterborough team had a considerable sprinkling of juniors in the lineup, due to the retirement of many of the veterans who had won the Ontario championship in 1907. The result was that although the team battled hard and came close on a number of occasions their winning column during the two seasons was decidedly meagre. They were facing strong opposition, particularly from the Toronto Parkdales, who were sparked by Jimmy and Art Dissette and George Barber, Olympic star, and T.A.A.C., who had Hal DeGruchy doing the kicking for them behind an exceptionally strong forward wall that included the well-known Babe Buckhart and "Minnie" McGiffin, afterwards to become famous as the "bad man" of professional hockey.

A Veteran Star.

A feature of those two last seasons of senior football here was the playing of the veteran Dr. McPherson, who started out as coach of the outfit and in both years was finally persuaded to don his uniform once more and get out on the half line. He made a valiant comeback and in several games almost grabbed the verdict single-handed.

In the last game of all, mentioned at the beginning of this article, he turned in a wonderful card against the strong Toronto outfit, who, aided by a lucky try early in the game, led by 10 to 0 going into the last period, and then were almost caught at the wire. It was a great effort by a great player who had performed wonders on earlier Peterborough teams and in the blue of Varsity.

Full back, Fred Craig; halves, Dr. McPherson, Will O'Brien, now a lawyer in Toronto, and Vincent Corkery (now Rev. Father Corkery); quarter, Allan Campbell; scrimmage, Stan. Ecclestone, Giroux and Thornton; inside wings, F. Hickey and F. Turner; middle wings, Frank (now Senator) O'Connor and Clarence Dickson; outside wings, George Lundy, captain, and Harvey Staunton.

Of these fourteen players only Dr. McPherson, Rev. Father Corkery and Craig, Turner, Hickey and Thornton are now residing in Peterborough.

Great Kicking Of Ben Simpson Old Peterborough Boy Helped To Wreck 1906 Season

(By Fred Craig)

An old Peterborough boy, none other than Ben Simpson, helped to wreck the 1906 senior season for the Petes. He was one of the stars of the Hamilton Tigers, and his great kicking and steady playing aided in handing the Peterborough team two of the worst trimmings a local rugby aggregation ever experienced.

The Petes had won the intermediate O.R.F.U. honors the year before and in 1906 they moved up to senior company, full of enthusiasm and encouraged by the fact that Art Poe, one of the immortals of Princeton legends, whose uncanny skill in drop kicking had enabled Princeton to defeat their Yale rivals, was an executive with the Quaker Oats Company here and was available to coach the team.

There was a rooters' club organized that season and among the songs they learned to sing was a parody on the then-popular John Dough number from the comic opera "The Gingerbread Man," part of the chorus of which ran something like this:

"In Nineteen—Six
They'll learn some tricks
From the original Art Poe."

Start On High.

The season started most auspiciously for the Petes travelled to Toronto for the first game and succeeded in defeating the Victorias of that city 16 to 7. The news of the victory aroused the town to a high pitch of enthusiasm which lasted only until the famed Hamilton Tigers blew in and a big crowd of fans gathered at Riverside Park, hopeful of seeing the Petes battle the invaders on even terms. It was not to be, however, for the Tigers, who included in their galaxy of stars such football celebrities as Sep Du-Moulin, Art Moore, one of the shiftiest halves who ever put on a cleated boot; Davie Tope, a great forward wall in which such giants as Wally Barron and Isbister, father of the Argos' great kicking half were prominent; two of the finest ends, Lyon and Marriott, the game has ever produced, and a brainy field general in George Ballard at quarter, knew and played too much football for the Petes. They won as they pleased by 37 points to 0, with Ben Simpson always in the limelight. In the return game at Hamilton history almost repeated itself, for the Tigers won by 42 points to 1.

Against the Toronto Argonauts the Petes made a much better showing against the Oarsmen whose lineup included such well-known players as Banty Russell, Flett and Sale. In the game here the Argos eked out a 13 to 7 win, while the fixture in Toronto was won by the Scullers 12 to 4.

Lose Last One.

The final game of the season brought the Victorias to Peterborough and this time the Toronto gang turned the tables on the home crowd, winning 23 to 14 in a game in which they came strong in the final period.

Back, Mulhern; halves, McWilliams, Gillespie and Ford; snap, Hurtubise; inside wings, Craig, Regan; middles, Meagher and Crowley; outsides, Gilbert and Crough.

Later in the season "Chubby" O'Connor, now Senator O'Connor of Toronto, Lou Leclaire, George Macdonald and Ed Dillon saw action with the Petes.

Only four of that gallant band of battlers are now resident here; Eugene Hurtubise, Detective-Sergt. Bill Meagher, George Macdonald and Lou Leclaire.

He's Back Again

When eastern Canada's college teams go into action the linemen of Queen's, Western and McGill will have one of last year's problems still on their hands—how to stop Don Mumford, ABOVE, plunging back with University of Toronto, and rated one of the country's best gainers last year.

Trade Walls To Fall In New Pact

Anglo-U.S. Treaty Is Expected To Influence World

By Andrue Berding
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP) — World trade barriers will take another tumble soon when the United States concludes with the United Kingdom an agreement to reduce tariffs on hundreds of products.

Although the of the accord have not yet been disclosed, authorities said today it would have vast ramifications and considerable influence on the commerce not only of the countries involved but also of the world in general. They characterize it as a substantial agreement.

What it means to the world is that the two greatest foreign trade nations are agreeing to increase the commerce between them by means of tariff reductions.

The United Kingdom accounts for about 10.8 per cent of the whole world's exports and 18.2 per cent of imports; the United States for 11.7 per cent of the exports and 11.2 per cent of the imports.

What it means may be seen in the fact that the United Kingdom is the best customer of the United States. In 1937 she bought from America practically as much as the republic sold to Germany, France, the Netherlands, Belgium and Sweden combined.

Total British purchases of American goods in 1937 were $535,000,000, which is $200,000,000 more than the country sold to all of south America.

May Influence Dominions.

Officials believe the agreement will lead to similar arrangements with all of the British Dominions. A pact revising the one concluded in 1936 will be signed with Canada shortly, possibly by the end of the month. Exploratory discussions have been held with Australia, New Zealand and the Union of South Africa.

British traders at first were inclined to argue that since the United Kingdom bought from the United States more than 2½ times what this country bought from her, the United States should make the major concessions. American negotiators, however, had at hand a balance sheet showing that inclusion of the colonies and dominions and so-called invisible items, such as shipping and freight rates, tourist expenditures, immigrant remittances, insurance, interest and dividends, resulted in a practically even balance and that, if United States imports of gold from South Africa were included, the balance was some $414,000,000 in favor of the British Commonwealth.

Enterprise, Ont., Oct. 11 (CP)

MUD LAKE—that's the place to bag migrating ducks.

Slowly and carefully he made his way to the shore. He was astonished at the number of ducks at a nearby rice bed. They were so thick the water was completely hidden. He raised his gun, aimed and fired. The ducks rose in the air. Not a single bird remained behind.

However, when the ducks began to spread 11 dead birds fell into the water—the flock had been too thick to allow them to fall before.

Seven Are Hurt When Cars Meet Head On

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 11.—Seven people are in the hospital as the result of one of the worst automobile accidents ever reported from this district. A head on collision about four miles from Campbellford on No. 30 highway at about seven o'clock on Saturday evening left only one of the eight occupants in the two cars able to return to his home unhurt.

Mrs. William Baker who was sitting in the front seat of her husband's car was most seriously injured, suffering from concussion and facial lacerations. Her condition was regarded so serious that after preliminary first aid at the Campbellford Hospital she was rushed to Belleville where it was learned her condition is critical.

Mr. Baker who was said to be driving the car going towards Camp-

Tests Tampered With

TORONTO, Oct. 11.—(CP)—Formal inquiry into "suggestions" that blood and urological samples taken from Dr. Warren Snyder, suspended coroner for Mimico, after an accident a week ago had been tampered with opened here today. Dr. Smirle Lawson, chief Coroner, presided. The inquiry is being held in camera.

Dr. Snyder, former University of Toronto football player, was charged with manslaughter after a car struck a bicycle and killed Reginald Clements, 50. Dr. Snyder submitted to tests made by Coroner Dr. J. P. F. Williams at police station.

Recruit Call Sent Out By Britain

Territorial Force To Be Fully Reorganized

LONDON, Oct. 11 (AP)—A British Government decision to put its volunteer home defence force on a regular army footing met widespread and enthusiastic response today.

The territorial force of about 200,000 men is to undergo complete reorganization, a consequence of deficiencies noted during mobilization of anti-aircraft and coastal units during the Czechoslovak crisis.

New anti-tank, anti-aircraft and motorcycle units will be added. Gun equipment will be increased.

Leslie Hore-Belisha, War Secretary, announced the changes in a speech before an officers' dinner last night, and the announcement inspired lengthy discussions in the British press.

Most papers published along with full reports of the War Secretary's speech pictures of the territorial army's activities. Special articles urged the need of recruits.

An Up-to-Date Army.

Mr. Hore-Belisha said the reorganization would "produce an up-to-date army capable of reinforcing the regular army by units or formations."

This indicated the force would be trained for continental use as well as for home defence, its present definite field.

The brunt of the organization will fall upon Sir Walter Kirke, 61-year-old director-General of the territorial army. The first objective is to increase volunteer recruiting, which dropped sharply immediately after the crisis.

The prospect of advanced military training with an opportunity to study at the war colleges was expected to attract many. Hore-Belisha promised the reorganization would include a new scheme for training territorial officers.

"The new scheme," said the Times (Independent), "makes the territorial army technically a replica of the regular army. It reflects the fact that we cannot afford in these days to depend upon improvisation. The only possible criticism which can be levelled against the scheme is that, like many other reforms in our system of national defence, it ought to have been carried out long ago.

Hitler's Motto

"Herr Hitler said, 'I am of the opinion that it is cheaper to arm before events than to be unarmed at the mercy of events.' Mr. Chamberlain expressed exactly the same thought last Thursday.

"Mr. Chamberlain said in March, in a notable speech in the House of Commons, that 'the sight of this enormous, almost terrifying power which Britain is building up has a sobering effect, a steadying effect on the opinion of the world.' Unhappily, even since he spoke, the connotation of the words 'enormous' and 'terrifying' has changed.

"Finally, the review of our armed forces is only part of the task of organizing the whole nation which is now more than ever incumbent on the Government. Indeed, it is difficult to see how the armed forces can be made adequate until the civilian front has been made sound."

The Daily Mail (Independent) wrote on the theme of conscription, emphasizing that unemployment is undiminished in Great Britain while "in Germany rearmament has abolished unemployment." The paper mentioned the many letters it has received from its readers favoring a more or less definite form of "conscription without the name."

The Daily Express (Independent) demanded that Great Britain be prevented from lulling itself to sleep again. It featured a cartoon showing the British lion asleep before the recent crisis, half awaking during the crisis, and preparing now to settle back to sleep.

A Mystery Car

BOWMANVILLE, Ont., Oct. 11.—(CP).—Police continued investigation today into the finding September 25 of a car owned by Maurice St. Pierre, 26, Sherbrooke, Que., beside a side-road between Newcastle and Newtonville, east of here. St. Pierre has been absent from his Sherbrooke home for 17 days.

According to word received here from Sherbrooke police, St. Pierre left home September 24 and was to return shortly to accompany his wife to dinner. He was believed to have carried about $12 or $14 when he left.

C.N.R. STATION BURNED.

DUNNVILLE, Ont.—The Canadian National Railways station here was reduced to ruins by fire Saturday night. The loss was estimated at $7,000. E. Allison, assisting the fire-fighters, was in jured by falling glass and 12 stitches were required to close a gash in his leg.

Broke, Son's Plea For 5 Cents Starts Raid That Gets Father of Seven 3 Months

London, Ont., Oct. 11 (CP)

HAROLD J. GRAYSON, whose solitary venture into crime was partly prompted by a child's plea for five cents he couldn't give, was sent to the Ontario Reformatory for three to six months today, for a raid on the safe of the Coca Cola Company plant last June.

Appearing before County Judge Joseph Wearing, Grayson pleaded guilty to the charge of breaking and entering. Strong representations for leniency were made for him. He is the father of seven children.

Only 3 Road Fatalities Mar Holiday As Balmy Weather Lures Thousands To Roads, Bush

TORONTO, Oct. 11.—(CP).—Ontario highway were jammed with traffic at the Thanksgiving Day holiday as motorists took advantage of balmy weather—but accidents were scarce. Only three persons were killed in auto mishaps.

The springlike conditions which attracted record crowds to football games and horse race tracks, also lured hunters and numerous shooting accidents were reported. One ended in the death of a 17-year-old Toronto youth. In Northern Ontario at Watabeg Lake it was feared two men may have drowned as a search continued after an upturned canoe was discovered.

When two cars collided on a highway six miles from Guelph, Mrs. T. Smith McCutcheon, 60-year-old Bright woman was killed and four others injured. In Brantford, 14-year-old Louise May Monkman was killed almost instantly as she walked into the path of a passing vehicle.

At Lindsay, Albert Michael Doyle 18-year-old farmhand met instant death Sunday afternoon when the bicycle he was riding collided with a car driven by Wesley Lowes of Cannington. The accident occurred on Highway 7, near Sunderland as the youth emerged from a lane way.

Hunter Is Shot

The Toronto hunter, whose name was believed to be Hugh Carter, died at Powassan yesterday as he was being brought into the office of Dr. R. H. Dillane for treatment after being accidentally shot by a companion. It was believed the pair were hunting partridge in the district near here.

Train Hits Oil Truck Blast Follows Killing Three Men

Columbus, Kas., Oct. 11 (AP)

CONVERTED into human torches by flaming gasoline, three men burned to death and a fourth was injured critically after a Frisco passenger train and a gasoline truck collided at a crossing near here late last night.

Explosion of 400 gallons of gasoline in the truck blew the trainmen out of the engine cab and the truckers from their car.

Killed were Tom Tucker of Monett, locomotive fireman and Floyd Dugger and William Barber, both of Weir, Kas.

Son Bags His Father On Patridge Hunt

LINDSAY, Ont., Oct. 11—(CP)—Berger Leon, Toronto, was in Ross Memorial Hospital here today with a bullet wound in his right leg suffered while hunting partridge with his son in the Irondale district, Haliburton county, information received from Dr. H. B. Johnston, Fenelon Falls, who treated the wound indicates that Leon was shot accidentally by his son. He lay for four hours in the bush while his son went for help.

The son contacted D. W. Russell, P. Lambert, Arthur Day and I Smith all of Hamilton, and George Wilson, Irondale. With their assistance Leon was taken to Irondale on a Canadian National Railway jigger and from there to Fenelon Falls.

Four Injured Car Ditched Lakefield Road

A party of six young people narrowly escaped with their lives shortly after 12 on Sunday night when their car was wrecked in a freak accident on the Lakefield Road one mile south of the Maples, and one of the six, Mary Boyle, 23, of 531 Park Street, North, a front seat passenger, received fearful injuries and with three others is still in St. Joseph's Hospital.

The party set out for the midnight frolic at Lakefield Pavilion with two in the front seat and four in the rear. As they neared a small creek on a straight stretch of road south of Lakefield, the car gradually veered to the left, travelled along the shoulder for 70 feet, then hurtled a rail fence, and smashed head on into a stone pile on the north bank of the creek, the car then settling into a few feet of mud and water.

Girl Is Scalped

Percy Shackleton, 23, of 102 Hilsdale Avenue, Toronto, believed to be the driver of the car, received internal injuries and facial cuts. The steering column was bent into a U and smashed through the windshield. Miss Boyle had her scalp torn from her head and her face was deeply cut. She has a fractured right wrist and many body bruises. Miss Earla Patterson, 833 Water street, suffered facial cuts and body bruises, and Fred Walker, 142 Arundel Avenue, Toronto, had a broken nose and lacerations of the face. Albert Vinette, and Elizabeth O'Leary, both of this city, escaped with a few bruises.

Dr. J. M. O'Brien attended the four injured persons as they were brought to St. Joseph's Hospital and reported that the exact nature of Miss Boyle's injuries was not known as she had not been X-rayed. This morning all four were making steady improvement.

E. Miles of Lakefield was walking along the Lakefield Road and saw the Shackleton car go into the creek and disappear below the level of the road. He sent for aid but Traffic Officer Gordon Broughton on night patrol drove along within five minutes of the crash. He stopped Bruce McNaughton, a southbound driver and placed the injured persons in the car. They were rushed to the hospital.

Last Minute News Flashes

LONDON. — The Czechoslovak Legation said to-night it had received word from former President Eduard Benes that he had not accepted and had not yet considered an invitation to be the Scottish Nationalist candidate for Rector of Glasgow University.

LINDSAY. — J. A. McLaughlin, president of the Central Ontario Liberal Progressive Association announced to-day the Government will spend approximately $100,000 on roads in the Counties of Victoria and Haliburton. The program, which will be worked out this year according to Mr. McLaughlin, includes operations on roads from Lindsay to Newcastle, Lindsay to Cameron, Kinmount to oGoderham, Carnarvon to Victoria Boundary, and others.

Victims Perish In Flight As Flames Envelop Lonely Settlers' Cabins

Valuable Timber Stands And Cut Pulpwood Left In Blackened Ruins; Blaze Creeps Within Mile Of Ft. Frances

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 11 (AP).—Three thousand men and an airplane patrol were mustered today to combat forest fires which had taken two lives in Northern Minnesota and 11 in adjacent Canada.

FORT FRANCES, Ont., Oct. 11 (CP).—Two mothers and nine young children died in a blazing inferno which struck Dance Township yesterday as south winds drove a forest fire through fine timber stands and cut pulpwood.

Eating slowly through the timber country 50 miles northwest of Fort Frances for the last two weeks, the flames crackled into roaring fires yesterday as the winds increased, razzed valuable timber and piles of cut pulpwood and turned settlers' homes into blackened ruins.

Victims of the fire were reported to be families of Noah and his brother Bill Labelle, living in sparsely settled Dance Township. Bodies of the mothers and the nine children were brought to Fort Frances today by Ontario Provincial Police, who sped through the countryside to ascertain if any others fell before the flames which danced along a front of 50 miles, creeping to within a mile of Fort Frances at one period yesterday.

Constable David Hamilton, who described the situation in the fire zone at present as "slightly topsy turvy," told how searchers stumbled upon the charred bodies of the mothers and their children. The mothers had died with their bodies stretched across their two small infants in a vein attempt to save the little ones from the searing flames.

First Eleven Victims.

"We found nine children and two grown ups," the constable related over one of the few telephone lines left standing in the area. "We believed them the wives and children of Noah Iabelle and his brother Bill who homestead in that country.

"The bodies were brought to Fort Frances and the other members of the families will be here to-day to definitely identify them after which Coroner W. D. Boyle will likely make arrangements for an inquest."

"The fire has been burning for the last two weeks or so," the constable continued. "Yesterday it was fanned by a south wind and reached its height about one or two o'clock in the afternoon.

"Many homes of families of settlers were burned but we don't now if there were any other victims and probably won't have any definite information until later to-day when our men return."

Bluenose Leads By Minute At First Turn

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 11 (A. P.). — The schooner Bluenose, Angus Walters' Canadian defender of the International Fishermen's Trophy, turned the first 12-mile mark to-day more than one minute ahead of Captain Ben Pine's United States challenger, Gertrude L. Thebaud, as the two deep-sea craft fought to make the most of a light wind.

The two vessels faced a 12-mile beat to windward for the second leg and then a 12-mile reach. There seeemd little likelihood, however, that they could finish the second race for the prized trophy within the allotted six hours, as it took them nearly four hours to reach the first mark.

The wind was so light the two trim boats began the race as a drifting match.

The start was marked by confusion on the part of the Race Committee which sounded the warning signal five minutes ahead of schedule and the starting signal two minutes prematurely, at 9.03 a.m. instead of 9.05 a.m. EST.

The wind, a south-west zephyr, was very light.

The committee boat gave the velocity of the breeze as four miles an hour. Captain Pine called across the glossy surface of the sea at the start:

"Hey, Angus, you haven't got a cantoe aboard, have you?"

Legal Currency

BERLIN, Oct. 11—(AP). — The German Government decreed to-day that the Reichsmark henceforth would be the legal currency of the Sudeten territory.

Lindbergh Rap At Soviet Air Force Red Press Yarn Says Lady Astor

LONDON, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Viscountess Astor, Conservative member of Parliament last night declared the London Communist newspaper, the Daily Worker, was responsible for the story that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh criticized the Soviet air force at a dinner at her home.

"This emanates from the same source—the Daily Worker — which said we gave a dinner to Lindbergh and invented the story of the Cliveden set," Lady Astor said. "There is no truth in it."

For months some opposition newspapers have charged an aristocratic pro-German group centering about Lady Astor's home and known as the "Cliveden set" influenced Prime Minister Chamberlain in his foreign policy. Lord and Lady Astor both have denied such a group exists.

Earlier today the Labor paper, Daily Herald, quoted Lady Astor as declaring the Lindbergh story a "complete lie."

"Col. Lindbergh has not dined with us since he returned from Russia and in fact I have never given a dinner party for him," the newspaper quoted her.

"It is a complete lie, too, that Col.

Cargo Of $51,000,000 In European Gold Swells U.S. Hoard

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)

THE S.S. President Roosevelt steamed into New York Harbor from Europe yesterday with what was believed to be the biggest cargo of gold ever brought here in a single ship. The vessel carried 914 boxes of gold bars in her hold, the value of which was unofficially estimated at around $51,000,000.

Spiritualism Flops

RALEIGH, N.C., Oct. 11—(AP).—Mrs. Harry Houdini, widow of the magician, said today that after 10 years of trying to contact the spirit of her husband she felt that she had proved there was nothing to spiritualism. The magician and his wife agreed to try to contact the spirit of the other when one of them died. "After the last seance almost two years ago I stopped trying," Mrs. Houdini said.

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)

"BOY, I hit him with everything I had!"

Pretty, hazel-eyed Elinore Troy, 22-year-old former Hollywood movie actress and one-time "buble dancer' thus described how she biffed Jack Doyle, prize-fighting songster, sometimes called "The Irish Thrush," in the Midnight Sun night Club early today.

Miss Troy said she walked into the club after Doyle had broken a date with her—"and here we'd only been engaged for two days,"—to find him sitting with Michi Taka, a Japanese dancer in the club's floor show.

"I probably hurt that pretty face of his but he had it coming," she said. "I asked him if he remembered our date and he started to stammer and said, 'Yes, darling, but....' And then I let him have it, smack on the nose."

Miss Troy said she put every ounce of her five feet 11½ inches behind the punch that decrimsoned Doyle's nose and sent him reeling.

"I've known Jack two years, and some day I'll probably marry him—if my temper holds out," she said.

"He's worth fighting for."

Arabs Fail To 'Get' Commissioner As 4 Bombs Miss British Cars

JERUSALEM, Oct. 11 —(AP)— Four bombs were thrown from the old city ramparts of Jerusalem today at a convoy of official motorcars in what was believed to be an unsuccessful attempt to assassinate Edward Keith-Roach, British district commissioner for Jerusalem.

Two of the bombs exploded on the Jericho road, but none of the four cars was hit. Mr. Keith-Roach's car was accompanied by two military escort automobiles and a police armored car.

Mr. Keith-Roach 53, has been commissioner for the Jerusalem district since 1931.

Violence continued through the Holy Land today in the face of a British military campaign to quell Jewish-Arab disorders over rival claims to Palestine as a homeland.

Big concentrations of Arab zealots inflicted widespread damage and loss of life in the Southern district In the northern district troops seized 52 Arabs on suspicion they were connected with trouble-making bands.

At Ramleh, midway between Jerusalem and Jaffa, armed men stole $350 of government money. Authorities imposed a $1,500 collective fine on the village and impounded all Arab public vehicles.

Hungarian Troopers March Into Czech Border Town

Hungarian border, Oct. 11 (AP)

HUNGARIAN troops occupied this Czechoslovak border town at 1:20 p.m. (7:20 a.m. EST) today in the first actual transfer of territory in Hungary's drive to regain part of the land she lost to Czechoslovakia after the Great War.

More than 4,000 residents of Ipolysag, 50 miles north of Budapest, sang, danced and kissed the incoming Hungarian soldiers, whom they welcomed in the name of the approximately 1,000,000 Hungarians in territory Budapest is demanding from the dismembered Czechoslovak state.

Lewis Offers To Resign If Green Will To Create Peace Betwen Unions

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)

JOHN L. LEWIS offered today to resign as chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization if William Green would resign as president of the American Federation of Labor to pave the way for peace between the two organizations.

Lewis told newsmen the suggestion from the Federation's Houston convention that Lewis withdraw from the C.I.O. was "manifestly not a un-lateral problem."

"Obviously its bi-lateral and the same suggestion would apply to Mr. Green whose recent ferocity seems to know no bounds," Lewis said.

In a reply from Houston, Texas, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said the delegates to the federation's annual convention would "answer" John L. Lewis.

"I have no comment to make on that," he said. "The delegates will answer it before the convention adjourns."

Strangle Hold On Czechs German Aim

Further Army Moves Threatened If Alliances Not Cut

PRAGUE, Oct. 11.—(AP)—The Czechoslovak Republic apparently faced today a new and desperate struggle to preserve the independence of what is left of its territory.

As territorial negotiations with Hungary went on, Germany and Poland already having won their demands, Prague was beset by increasing indications of a German wish to erduce the Republic to bondage.

Informed circles here declared Germany had hinted it would forgo a further military advance only on condition Prague end its alliances with Soviet Russia and France.

Other points said to comprise a Nazo program were outlawing of the communist party by Czechoslovakia, an agreement that German troops could pass through Czechoslovak territory in war, an anti-semitic policy and a customs union between the two countries.

The Czechoslovak government, with all its minorities disputes not yet settled, proceeded with plans to elect a new president to succeed the rsigned Eduard Benes.

The cabinet approved the first of new economic measures, prohibiting transfer of real estate without special permission to prevent panic sales and prohibiting new establishments for one year in some businesses and crafts, to protect existing merchants.

Fast Mobilizing Of Fleet Proves Surprise

LONDON, Oct. 11 (CP-Havas)—The speed with which mobilization of the Royal Navy was carried out surpassed all expectations, The Press Association reported today on the basis of information from authoritative naval sources.

Mobilization operations were divided into two brackets—one involving effectives on active duty, the other covering reservists.

Training was suspended and men were quickly transferred from their garrison posts to combat stations or auxiliary service bases, both at home and overseas. The entire operation was carried out without the least difficulty, it was said.

Speed with which reservists of all categories answered the mobilization order drew particular praise. A total of 29,000 men presented themselves for service. Of these, 13,000 were former naval officers and sailors with a record from seven to 12 years' service in the Royal Navy. The balance included volunteer and merchant marine reservists.

A great many of these 16,000 presented themselves at their scheduled depots the morning after the midnight announcement of mobilization, even before the proclamation had been posted.

Cheesemakers Will Hear Mayberry

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 11.—R. H. Mayberry, vice president Cheese Producers' Association of Ontario will address the annual cheesemakers banquet here on Nov. 5th it was decided at the meeting of the Board held here on Saturday. The address of Mr. Mayberry who was a delegate to the Empire Conference at Sydney, Australia is being looked forward to with considerable anticipation by members of the local board who decided that this year's banquet should be held in the parish hall where up to two hundred could be accommodated. A committee to complete arrangements for the affair was appointed and consisted of Mr. George Van Volkenburg, S. A. Maguire, J. A. Meyers and J. Murray.

Victims Perish

Then the constable told of finding the blackened bodies of the mothers and their children, strewn along the road from their homes.

"Apparently the Labelle women, carrying their babies, ran from their homes with the other children following them, but the thick smoke must have overcome them before they got far. We found their bodies a few feet apart with the mothers' bodies resting over the small babies as if they had tried to hide them from the flames."

Tremendous Loss

Tremendous property damage will be suffered before the fire is brought under control. Besides their homes settlers lost cattle and other livestock. Lumber firms lost pulpwood already cut besides fine timber stands.

Thick smoke made it impossible to use planes in ascertaining fate of settlers and the battle depended on the ground crews.

While telephoning his report to Port Arthur headquarters, constable Hamilton said the wire was cut, apparently by the fire. It was impossible, however, to reach Fort Frances from Winnipeg by telephone and train service to the area had not been interrupted so far.

Every available man was called on to fight the conflagration. Crown Attorney Croome of Fort Frances visited the fire zone and suffered slight burns to face and hands.

Fort Frances, on the international border in the northwestern corner of Ontario, was not seriously threatened by the fire today.

Two Negro Visitors Truck For Doctor To Tune Of $100

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)

THE NEIGHBORS of Gregory Nurse, negro physician, almost complained to the police today when they heard the rhythmic thumps of the shag coming from his office.

Nurse wishes they had called the police, for the shag dancers were two negro bandits rifling the place. A maid admitted them. They said they had to deliver the package personally to the doctor. When the physician entered, they unwrapped it, disclosing two revolvers which they waved threateningly. They found $100 in cash in the room.

They danced around the room, shaking their forefingers in the air. Then they trucked down the stairs. They trucked out the front door. And then they really shagged, disappearing on the run an hour after they had appeared.

Spanish Armies Begin Weeding Out Foreigners

HENDAYE, France, Oct. 11 (AP)—Spanish government dispatches reported today their militiamen were attacking successfully in three sectors of the Ebro River front in eastern Spain.

The government offensive apparently was intended to cover withdrawal of foreign volunteers, which reports from Barcelona said might be finished this week. The actual withdrawal of international fighters from the Ebro front began yesterday. At almost the same time the government forces increased the intensity of their attack.

First to be ordered out were troops that had been fighting since the beginning of the civil war July 18, 1936.

Border reports from insurgent territory indicated large numbers of Italian legionnaires were being massed near the southern Spanish ports to be sent home.

One report from insurgent sources said 18,000 Italians would leave Seville Wednesday.

(A dispatch from Gibraltar said the first group of Italian legionnaires, 500 in all, left Cadiz Sunday for Naples aboard an Italian steamer. They had fought with the insurgents 18 months. Further transports of Fascist soldiers were expected to leave Cadiz Oct. 20 on steamers which left Naples yesterday.)

Spanish government reports indicated no more than 2,500 foreign troops were fighting on the Ebro front.

As the foreign troops withdrew to concentration points their places were taken by Spanish soldiers from rest billets.

Lindbergh Rap

Lindbergh has ever made any sort of pronouncement about the Russian air force or about anything else during a dinner party at my house or in my house at all."

Scored by Russian Fliers.

Col. Lindbergh was denounced by 11 Soviet airmen in a letter published in Moscow yesterday. They asserted he was a guest in Lady Astor's home when he made statements derogatory of Soviet aviation and may have encouraged influencial Conservative circles to urge Prime Minister Chamberlain to go ahead with his agreement to permit Chancellor Hitler to dismember Czechoslovakia.

Colonel Lindbergh refused comment today when he landed in Rotterdam en route from Paris to Berlin. With Mrs. Lindbergh he left Le Bourget airport, New Paris, and landed at Waalhaven Airport, Rotterdam.

His Reported Views.

Havas News Agency in a London ditpatch quoted unnamed United States circles as stating Colonel Lindberg's investigation of air strength could be summed up as follows:

Soviet Russian air equipment is excellent and comprises expert copies of United States models. But the flying personnel was insufficient in number and the ground crews, especially the mechanics, have not enough training to handle ships and motors properly.

In Germany where he piloted several newer machines, this account went on, he concluded they were the best of all he had seen in Europe. He also found production capacity of German aviation plants higher than that of any other country.

As for British aviation, Col. Lindbergh was declared to have thought the planes were fairly adequate but slow, the number of pilots insufficient and production incapable of matching German output.

Hearst Sells WINS

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP).—Liquidation of the radio interests of William Randolph Hearst was furthered today with the sale of station WINS, New York, to Milton H. Blow, operator of station WAAM, Newark, N.Y. E. N. Stoer, representing Hearst, said the sale was "in line with Mr. Hearst's plan to reorganize his holdings in order to perpetuate his publishing enterprises. When the reorganization is completed, Mr. Hearst proposes to confine himself to the publishing industry."

Thebaud Snatches Opening Race, Chairman Discovers Both Craft Overstep Rules

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 11—(AP). — Captain Angus Walters' Bluenose, the big Canadian defender of the International Fishermen's Trophy, and Captain Ben Pine's challenger, the Gertrude L. Thebaud, set out to-day for their second clash for the sailing championship of the North Atlantic.

Thebaud has the opening race tucked away in her locker, and she needs but two more of the three-out-of-five series to take the throne occupied by the queen of the most turbulent waste of water on the globe.

As the vessels made ready to up anchor, Captain Charles Lyons, chairman of the race committee and United States Steamboat Inspector at Boston, said he would present today to the full committee, measurements showing Bluenose had an excessive water line length and that the Thebaud was carrying about 50 square feet more sail than she was entitited by the deed of gift, which controls the race.

Captain Lyons said he hoped the rival skippers would be willing to regard the discrepancies as even.

The North Atlantic championship has been Bluenose's since she defeated the Gloucester schooner Elsie in 1931. Elsie had been sent to defend the big silver cup originally won by the Gloucester schooner Esperanto, which was lost at sea befor she could contest a second series.

Jinx On Racers?

There is a superstition ill-luck dogs racing fishermen and it appears to be borne out by facts. Elsie, herself, followed Esperanto. A partial list of other "jinxed" racers includes the Henry Ford, Progress, Puritan, Arthur D. Story, with all hands, and the Columbia, of hallowed memory, because she took all hands, too, and was thought to have

Night Classes Ready To Open

Night classes at the Peterborough Vocational School will be in full swing this evening. The enrollment in several classes in the Industrial Arts Department, has reached its limit, while some students may yet be enrolled in the following classes: Auto Mechanics, Building construction, Drafting, Electrochemistry, Industrial Electricity, Machine Design, Woodworking.

A class in textiles will be opened this year for those employed in the trade. This class will be held one night per week from 7.30 to 9.30. Three night per month will be used to give instruction in elementary work in textiles while one night per month will be set aside for an expert in textiles to give a lecture on some phase of the textile industry. The textile classes have been very popular in other textile centres such as Galt, Hamilton, Toronto and Cornwall, and should prove to be an asset to textile workers in Peterborough. Those wishing to enroll in the class should do so at once. The school is open from 7.30 to 9.30 Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Class for Homemakers

In the Household Science Department there is a class for girls who want to be housekeepers of a superior type. There is now offered a course in training forgservie. This includes a good deal of cooking, door and telephone service, table settings, and service and other such duties, the knowledge of which is essential to any girl who is really competent in this profession. It is an opportunity for the ambitious girl to improve her standing and earning ability.

In the Sewing Department mothers are urged to join the Wednesday evening sewing classes and learn how to make children's clothes. The course includes instruction in smocking.

This is a final appeal to all those wishing to enroll in Night Classes at P.V.S., since the classes are now being conducted in the various courses.

When Not To Stand

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP).—Col. James A. Moss, retired President General of the United States Flag Association, ruled to-day, in answer to a Brooklyn woman's inquiry made originally of Mayor LaGuardia, that it is all right not to stand during a rendition of the United States National Anthem if you are in bed, eating, telephoning, playing cards or taking a bath.

Loyalists Face Winter Of Suffering

BARCELONA, Oct. 11.—(AP). — The coming winter, the third civil war, probably will be the hardest yet for government Spain.

Public campaigns have begun to provide winter clothing for the army. Newspapers publish appeals for donations.

"Mother, wife, sweetheart of the rearguard; you can aid so that their pain will not be so great. Help in the winter campaign by bringing donations."

Food for the overcrowded cities, packed with refugees, will be a greater problem than ever. Even this summer, in the midst of fruit and vegetable harvests, food was scarce.

Government authorities say Barcelona will see genuine suffering this winter unless food is imported in greater quantities than it has been.

Rice Crop Good.

Some help will come from the rice crop which is reported good. Farmers, aided by prison battalions, work battalions and soldiers are harvesting it.

But more serious even than food for Barcelona's 1,500,000 will be food for Madrid's 900,000. Recent visitors to the besieged former capital say the ration has dropped to sub-normal standards.

Madrid lacks any kind of heat to resist wintry blasts from the Guadarrama mountains.

Yet, despite the hardships in store, foreign observers believe government Spain will stick it out. Government officials and the newspapers take it for granted the war will continue.

Czechs Move To Face Hungarians

Troops Aim To Fight Any Further Foreign Invasion

By Larren Allen
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

KOMORON, Czechoslovak-Hungarian Frontier, Oct. 11.—(AP). — The Czechoslovak government moved fresh troops into areas near the Hungarian border to-day while the homeward movement of soldiers in other sections of the country jammed highways and railroads.

New units of soldiers with bayonets and small field cases took up positions at Komoron and other frontier towns ready to meet any possible military action by Hungary to take the territory she wants from Slovakia.

Acros sthe Danube river Hungarian soldiers prepared to spring into action immediately should any order for occupation be given.

Red-white-green Hungarian flags decorated homes and business places along the Danube in Slovakia as a welcome for what citizens expected to be an invasion from the Hungarian side.

Soldiers carrying rifles with fixed bayonets kept watch at all bridges, railway stations and other communication centres.

A Czech officer commanding several soldiers stationed at a border town near Komoron declared the Czechs wanted to fight to prevent any further dismemberment of the territory by Hungarians, and that officers were having an extremely difficult task to precent open hostilities.

Leaves Occupied Areas.

Great mass military movements were under way, particularly from frontier sectors now occupied by German and Polish troops.

Thousands of soldiers crowded into railway box cars, passenger trains, motor transports and old covered wagons. Some rode bicycles. Ambulances, army supply trucks, tents and other military equipment and carloads of livestock were being moved along with the soldi ers.

Every railway town in Czechoslovakia was thronged with soldiers. Thousands of men, women and children fled regions occupied by German soldiers. Railway schedules were disruted.

Penetration of German troops into the Breclav area severed the main railway line communications between Prague and Bratislava and forced a change to a substitute route.

Army field kitchens were established on railway flat cars and meals were served soldiers while trains wanted for clear tracks.

Bank employees of Cuba are to benefit from a retirement and pension fund just established in accordance with a new law.

FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

Forward Passing

By LEW HAYMAN

In receiving a forward pass THE EYES MUST NEVER BE TAKEN OFF THE BALL UNTIL THE CATCH IS MADE. I start right off with that because it's about the most important point and the one on which too many receivers fall down. Too many have a tendency to take a look up the field, thus momentarily losing sight of the ball.

The catch is made with the hands, not the body or arms. The hands have more "give" and flexibility than either the arms or the body. The fingers should be well spread, the arms extended and the wrists loose and relaxed. Don't fight the ball. Take it in easily, letting your hands give as the ball strikes.

KEEP YOUR BODY BETWEEN THE BALL OND THE DEFENSIVE MAN. Catch long passes over the shoulder without losing speed. Speed is usually lost as you turn your body to make the catch. Don't turn too far sideways and you won't lose speed, and at the same time you will give the passer a good target, something he hasn't got when you turn too far.

Note all these points in today's picture. The pass was a trifle high but is caught over the shoulder, and the receiver has not checked his speed. The passer of course, is at the right of the picture.

Receivers, naturally must get free of defensive men. Here are most of the accepted methods of shaking off opponents trying to keep you covered:

1. USE OF DECOYS—This is one of the commonest methods. It is simply a matter of sending a man down the field expressly to draw the defenders to him and out of their positions. The man who is to receive the pass then rushes to the territory left unguarded. In using this system it is important that ALL DECOYS BE TREATED AS POSSIBLE RECEIVERS. Then, if the defenders do not move to cover them, they should be passed to.

2. CRISS-CROSS — This is used mostly when your opponents are playing a man-to-man defence. Two men from opposite sides of your formation cross each other's paths, as they run to opposite sides of the field.

3. DELAYED MEN — This is used mostly when making a short pass. The outside back (or wing-back) bumps the defensive middle momentarily and then breaks for the clear. Proper timing is necessary to make this manoeuvre and it is usually a spot pass which we talked about the other day.

4. QUICK BREAK — This requires little description. Run right at a defensive man, fake a motion to move one way and then go another.

5. QUICK STEP—Run right at an Opponent, stop, then come back towards the line. This is used for a short pass or for one off which a lateral pass will be made.

6. DOUBLE CO-ORDINATION RUN—Have two men run at one defensive man, then as they reach him, each one breaks in a different direction.

All eligible receivers must run at top speed on every pass. As you break for the open look for the pass. Run loose and relaxed. If you are stiff or tightened up while running, your motions will be jerky and your receiving unsteady.

TOMMORROW we'll jump over to the other side again and discuss the pass defence, or how to prevent what we've talked about today.

(Copyright, 1938, Central Press Canadian)

RECEIVING THE PASS

The runner takes it over his shoulder without slackening speed. Eyes remain on the ball until it is caught.

Marjorie Lawrence To Sing In Peterborough This Month

This city will have an opportunity to hear Marjorie Lawrence, prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, when she comes here for a recital on October 26.

Marjorie Lawrence, who is an Australian, is one of the youngest singers ever assigned the leading soprano roles of the Wagnerian operas at the Metropolitan. Still in her twenties she has aroused New York opera-goers to enthusiasm by her finished and powerful interpretations of these difficult roles.

It is only six years since Marjorie Lawrence made her debut at Monte Carlo. A few weeks later she made her first appearance at the Paris Opera, where she continued singing through the subsequent three seasons.

Started At Age Of Five

Marjorie Lawrence began her vocal career in the hamlet of Deans Marsh near Geelong, in Australia at the age of five. She soon became a favorite singer at socials and church. Her first formal instruction, however, did not begin until she was nineteen. For this she went to Melbourne, and her teacher was Ivar Bourstead.

Within the next two years Miss Lawrence won the prize offered by the Melbourne Sun for the most promising young singer in Australia, and she was heard by John Brownlee, Australian baritone, member of the Covent Garden and the Paris Opera who was home for a visit. He advised her to go to Paris. She did so and began studying with Mme. Cecile Gilly, wife of Dinh Gilly, former Metropolitan Opera baritone. Mme. Gilly decided that the voice was a true dramatic soprano. The next three years were devoted to learning operatic roles and to perfecting vocal techinque.

In 1932 Miss Lawrence made her debut at the Monte Carlo Opera, singing Elizabeth in "Tannhaeuser." A few weeks later she made her first appearance at the Paris Opera in "Lohengrin." She continued singing at the Paris Opera during the subsequent three seasons.

Her Metropolitan Opera debut took place December 18, 1935, when she sang Bruennhilde in "Die Walkuere." She was hailed as one of the season's most valuable additions to the Metropolitan.

With The Boy Scouts

On Saturday next every Boy Scout and Wolf Cub wil be exepected to turn out in full uniform or as much of the uniform as he possesses to help with the Scout Apple Day. But chief of all the uniform will be that cheerful smile and pleasant voice when ever yeitizen is accosted by: "Buy an apple, please."

Every purchaser of an apple will be given a tag bearing the picture of a smiling scout and the words, "Boy Scout Apple Day." This is the only time of the year that the Scouts ask the support of the people to help in the Scout work throughout the city. The apples are No. 1 MacIntosh Reds, and will sell at five cents each or more if anyone wants to give more.

Please do not ask the boys for change, as they have orders not to carry any.

On Friday night at 8.30 p.m., all troops will meet in St. John's Parish Hall to have the final get together and instruction. The boys must come in troops under leadership and not as individuals.

And all officers, please note, you are requested not to be at Parish Hall earlier than 8.20, as the St. John's troop will be meeting and it will not be fair to break up the meeting before its time is completed. St. John's have agreed to dismiss at 8.20, and after that the balance of their time will be given over to the Apple Day Committee.

During the preparation of the meal most of the boys went on a seven-mile hike through the night. On entering Chemong Park again someone bumped into a 10-lb. Jack rabbit, and it is reported that the Jack made a good stew next day.

At St. Andrew's Cubs, Reymond Wall was invested into the world-wide brotherhood of Scouts in a ceremony he will long remember. Billy Johnston and Douglas Morrison were raised to the rank of sixers.

Akela, arriving a little late at the All Saints' pack meeting found everything going full swing under Bagherra, who had taken the opening ceremonies. Rann then led the pack through a test of the National Anthem. During the evening two new chums were admitted to the pack. New games were illustrated by Bagherra. Billy Panter and his Brown six won the monthly competion from the Yellow six.

A church parade was held on Sunday; Commissioner J. T. Hornsby being present; the speaker for the occasion was Rev. Captain Robertson.

At St. John's Cub meeting last Friday, the gang was kept alive with the games of "hot potato" and "grab bag."

The month of September had been spent in badge review work, and now the packs are getting down to passing the various tests reviewed during the evening. Cub Donald Barringer left the pack in a "going up" ceremony and made his second step in scouting by entering the troop.

All cubs are requested to attend next Friday, when an official visit of the District Commission and District Cubmaster is expected and full particulars regarding Apple Day will be given.

The St. Andrew's group have chosen their group committee in Rev. Dr. E. W. Young, James Johnston, F. H. Dearborn and D. Crawford.

The troops is divided in two patrols—the Beavers with Jack Dinsdale as P.L. and Bill Crowe as second; the Bulldogs, with Allan Johnston as P.L. and Max Florence as second.

It is expected that the group will be fully registered by November 1, the Beavers gave a short act showing the fifth scout law, and the Bulldogs the third law, at the camp fire. The Bulldogs will be duty patrol at the next meeting.

We are glad to welcome Mr. Bill Bigley as the new assistant to the St. Andrew's troop and trust his stay will be long and happy with us.

All troops please note October 31 is the closing date for the group registration.

You are requested to have your reports and returns in to the secretary, accompanied by 50 cents for each scout and rover registered at Peterborough. Be among the first.

On Monday, Thanksgiving Day, some 15 boys under Scouter Fred Ford went for an all-day hike, covering the Chemong-Nassau district.

Prima Donna Coming To City

Marjorie Lawrence, Metropolitan Opera star, who is scheduled to sing in Peterborough on October 26. Miss Lawrence will give the first concert of the season for the Peterborough Concert Association.

Shooting Match Held By Legion

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 11.—Considerday able interest was created in this district on Friday night by an indoor shooting match sponsored by the Lakefield branch of the Canadian Legion.

The match was held in the Lakefield rink, at 8.00 p.m., and live geese and chickens were the rewards handed out to the winners of the high scores in each event.

At least sixty marksmen participated in the twelve events, and a number of spectators were on hand.

The target was a two by six inch card and shooting was done from a distance of thirty-five yards. Shotguns were used exclusively and the contestant whose card held the most pellets was adjudged the winner.

Theodore Nichols won two birds, the shooting in both cases being done by Wilfred Nichols of Smith. By an amusing quirk of luck, Mr. Wilfred Nichols, when shooting for himself, did not get into the prizes at all.

The winners: 1 T. Sullivan, 2 G. Miller, 3 J. Kendall, 4 T. Nichols, 5 T. Nichols, 6 J. Kendall, 7 G. Scriver, 8 C. S. Tanner, 9 G. Scriver, 10 C. F. Webster, 11 G. Scriver, 12 J. Kendall.

John Carter Has Johnson Worried Over His Future In Opera Roles

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 — (CP). — "Singing is not all with the voice," said Edward Johnson, Canadian-around the buffet lounge on the first tan Opera Company.

Johnson indicated with gestures the head and the heart are heavily involved.

Sleek and pink-cheeked, his hair turned almost snowy white, Johnson had read a statement of the opera company's plans for the coming season. Then, discarding his bank president manner, he stood music ritics and reporters.

floor of the Met and talked with heard of him, Leonard Warren. He's

The Carter Problem.

"Have you found a role for John Carter?" a woman reporter had asked.

"No," said Johnson. "That's a problem."

"You see, John Carter is only a boy. But he has won himself a position of—prestige." Johnson made a Gallic gesture with one hand, and pronounced the "g" in prestige soft.

"They heard him sing on our radio auditions, and he hadn't even been announced as a winner before some coffee compay offered him a job on their program.

"The salary was big. I couldn't, in all conscience advise him against taking the job. He had a great success on the radio. The boy's voice has a golden quality.

"But—he hasn't had time to prepare for grand opera," said Johnson.

Warren All Set

"Now that other boy—no one has heard of him. Leonard Warren. He's a baritone. Everybody says Carter won the auditions, but Carter came second. It was Warren who won. Warren accepted a few radio offers and then hurried away to Italy—away from everything. He studied the roles I gave him. He studied so hard he almost had a breakdown and they had to make him go away for two weeks rest. But he has memorized the operas. I won't have any trouble at all finding a role for Warren.

"But with Carter it's different. He's only a baby. You can't take children out of grammar school and give them the Greek classics. They have to be prepared. I'm worried about Carter."

Lauds Massue

Johnson, a graduate of the church choirs of Guelph, Ont., spoke approvingly of the lone Canadian singer with the Metropolitan Company this year, 28-year-old Nicholas Massue, native of Varennes, Que., whose tenor voice will be heard from Toronto next Thursday night (Oct. 13.) in a broadcast with the Promenade Symphony concert. Massue will sing "Cassio in "Othello" on the Met's opening bill.

Treats for 5 Cities

The ballet Russe De Monte Carlo, with nine new items in its repertoire, will perform in five Canadian cities this season as the Dominion's road continues to liven up. The dancin' gals and boys will be in Hamilton, London, Toronto and Montreal during December; and Vancouver in February.

Massey as Abe Lincoln

Raymond Massey, of the Toronto Masseys, will be a hero in the flesh and a villain in technicolor around Manhattan tonight. He opens as the great emancipator in the Robert Sherwood play "Abe Lincoln in Illinois.", while on a local screen his likeness in the British color film "drums," is that of a hissable scoundrel.

Water His Downfall

DANVILLE, Pa., Oct. 11.—(AP).—If Elmer Delsite's pet parrot, "Peppy," ever escapes again, Delsite knows how to catch him; put water on his tail feathers. "Peppy" eluded capture for days until he encountered a hard rain. Soggy and forlorne, he fluttered to the ground and was picked up by a passerby.

RE-BUYS OWN DOOR MAT

Police of Brisbane, Australia, are looking for a peddler who called at a backdoor and sold a woman a doormat which she later found was her own front door mat.

THREE SETS OF TRIPLETS

A fund is being raised in South Africa for Mrs. M. Groenewald of Frankfort, who recently gave birth of her third set of triplets, making a total of 14 children in 12 years.

Perhaps We Overlooked It

We fear there has been one point missed by too many people who discuss what they call the betrayal of the Czechs. The feeling that a small nation has been let down by the larger ones is uppermost in their minds and that is something the normal individual does not appreciate.

Speeches in the British House of Commons contained several references as to what would happen to the civilian population of Europe on the outbreak of war, and the people in Britain and in Europe realized it to a far keener extent than we would in this country.

Before an army could have been placed in the field the bombers of the contending armies would have been turned loose. They are always ready and they are always loaded and they would be off the moment war started. It is not an exaggeration to say that within a few hours of the beginning of hostilities there would have been thousands of bombs dropped upon the large and small centres of population in the countries involved. And these bombs would have been rained on the homes where live women and children and old people as well as adult male population. The civilization population would have been in the slaughter list long before an army of any sort could have been despatched to the scene.

There have been a number of pictures published showing people digging great lines of zig-zag trenches in London's Hyde Park, and others have shown people at work digging up their lawns and flower beds for the purpose of providing shelter when the expected air raids would have come. Living as we do far separated from the scene we have probably missed or entirely overlooked that one great cause for seeking to escape modern warfare—the destruction of non-combatant civilian population before an army ever reached the field.

A Poor Selection

The Sarnia Chamber of Commerce held a luncheon immediately following the opening of the Blue Water international bridge and Premier Hepburn was one of the speakers. His text for that occasion was that he had foolishly gone into the campaign of 1935 to elect Mackenzie King and that was something he would never be able to live down.

At the gathering there were some 200 people, many of them visitors from United States. Another guest was Ross W. Gray, K.C., M.P., chief Liberal Whip at Ottawa, whose embarrassment must have been of the major variety.

We believe Mr. Hepburn could very easily have selected something better as the subject for an address, particularly in view of the nature of the occasion and also on account of the fact that so many guests were present from another country. If he has a grudge against Prime Minister King—and he has—it was something which could well have been placed on the back of the political range and left there to simmer for an occasion when he was addressing those of his own household of faith.

The Business Outlook

In one sense there is a legally-fixed boundary line between Canada and United States, and what takes place on one side of the line may be quite different to that which happens on the other side. In another way that which takes place in the larger nation to the South has its effect here and that is particularly true with business. There are many Canadian industries which are closely connected with the home plants in United States, and when things slip there they are not apt to be any too brisk here.

Right now business conditions are better in United States and Canada is interested in the improvement. The building of residences was at a low mark of 42 per cent. in 1929-30, while today it is but a fraction from 80 per cent. The manufacture of commercial airplanes is well ahead of 1937. For the first time on record there was a gain in electric refrigeration compared to the previous month. Manufacture of cotton was greater in August of this year than at any time in the boom years. Consumption of electric power is now greater than 1929. There is a record amount in bank deposits available for loans at favorable rates and economists see in this plentiful supply of money a factor which is going to aid business.

There is no hard and fast rule saying that because business improves in United States it must do the same here, but history and experience have taught us that conditions South of the boundary exerts a real influence on business here. The U. S. barometer indicates we should find coming months rather satisfactory.

In a Few Words

When the international bridge was opened across the St. Clair river making yet another method of going from Ontario to Michigan there were opening ceremonies of an elaborate nature. We have a number of ways of getting from one country to the other, but the addition of another always calls for more ceremony.

At these ceremonies public men give utterance to their thoughts and it must be increasingly difficult for them to say something which has not been said before. Premier Hepburn of Ontario said this:

"Our slogan should be bridges, not batteries, and the United States and Canada write welcome on the mat while the bristling armaments of Europe are ready to bark forth 'They shall not pass'."

In those few words he covered a deal of territory, and drew sharp enough contrast between conditions in Europe and on the North American continent.

Governor Frank Murphy put his ideas into the following words and they were few in number:

It would seem to us that Governor Murphy had achieved something in those few words. If the nations of Europe decide to build bridges the same utterance could be used there. It fell not at all short of being an epic utterance, and in its free-running style brings to mind something which the Psalmist of old might have prepared. "Happy are the nations that build bridges instead of forts."

The "Combine" Charge

City Council of Oshawa desired to buy 500 tons of coal, and asked the dealers for tenders. In due season along came the tenders but it was found the price in each case was the same. So the charge is made that there is a combine; the coal dealers had gathered together and agreed upon the price, and so on. Probably the coal dealers in Oshawa do gather to see what they are going to do about prices, and it also a fact that others, including at times professional and business men, do the same thing.

It would take a good deal of proving to show that arriving at a similar price for the same kind of coal would come under the Combines Act where it is generally regarded that restraint of trade must be in existence before conviction can be registered. We believe that a given kind or grade of coal would cost one coal merchant just the same as another would have to pay for it. The railway companies would charge the same amount to deliver it. In turn the trucking costs would be just about the same for all the companies operating in the same community. The only thing which might vary would be the amount of profit which the coal dealers might claim as their due.

We suppose the other way to sell coal would be for each dealer to work out his own problems and seek to place the price a little below that of his competitors in order to attract as much business as possible. That in turn would result in the people who work for the coal company being asked or forced to accept a little less in the pay envelope. We realize well enough that there is something in that word "combine" which people do not like. It indicates a condition where the general public are being asked to pay on the line. And yet it is a word and a charge which ought not to be made unless one is fortified by facts which clearly indicate that something is wrong. If the price in Oshawa is considered a fair one and allows the dealers a fair profit on the transaction then it is difficult to see where any injury has been done by the coal dealers naming the same price.

'Twas So 25 Years Ago

It seems that the distress and protest of the pedestrian is not a new thing. Today he finds the automobile new and shiny or old and dull bearing down upon him. He must be adept at taking great leaps if he wishes to remain with us yet a little longer. But the condition though aggravated is not new. The Ottawa Journal records in its 25-years-ago section:

T. W. Alexander wrote The Journal that in walking across Lansdowne Park from Bank street "to what should be the Elgin street outlet" he found the roads overrun with motor cars, with pedestrians forced into the ditches.

Perhaps there has been some slight improvement in Ottawa particularly about the ditches. If we remember aright there was an election contest in this province a few years ago when prior to voting day there was a great movement of men equipped with shovels and their mission was filling in the ditches. Whether the wave penetrated as far as Elgin street in our national capital we know not. And of course there is always the possibility that the indignant letter writer of 25 years ago is now a car driver who is bent upon causing others to jump for the ditches—if they still exist.

So They Went On Strike

A report from Detroit tells of 15,000 people being idle in the automobile industry and at a time when there is work waiting to be done. The United Automobile Workers made a demand for a 32-hour week. Then it was events followed quickly one after the other.

The main plant of the Plymouth Corporation closed when over 3,000 refused to report for the day shift.

A short time after the Briggs Manufacturing plant closed. It supplies the bodies for the Plymouth car and one plan does not run without the other. And there are over 9,000 men at the Briggs place.

The claim is made that the 32-hour week is something which the companies find impossible for successful operation. Nor is there a unanimous feeling among the workers themselves. The local union of the Briggs plant has forwarded its protest to the international headquarters against the strike having been called. And while that point is being discussed there are thousands of men not working at a time when there is work waiting to be done. Nor are the men on strike receiving any wages.

Surely a firm which has made a large expenditure in plant and equipment has something to say regarding the number of hours which should make up a week's work. The entire responsibility for financing the undertaking is on the company's doorstep and when it is found a 32-hour week is not acceptable or possible the company has a right to say so. The readiness with which the workers strike is not at all encouraging and is entirely contrary to the desire of the average sensible man who desires to work and earn a day's pay.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A man in Moose Jaw left $110,000 in his estate, and believed there were few relatives. Possibly he'd be surprised to find the number who have turned up since.

A pitcher named Dizzy Dean pitched what he called a "nothing" ball against the New York team, but when they started making home runs off it they counted them just the same.

A Kitchener woman who was arrested says a policeman shoved her in a cell and then put his foot on her neck. If he were a gentleman he would at least have drawn off his boot before doing that.

The plan now is to partition Palestine into zones for the Jews and the Arabs and the British. If the British get in between a block of Jews and Arabs what a pleasant time they are going to have!

In British Columbia they intend to test the eyes of those who drive cars and when they are at it they might also check up on the extent of the grey matter which is believed to exist some place back of the eyes.

Premier Hepburn is much in favor of Canada and United States becoming an economic entity. A start might be made by having United States cease from taking such a bite out of our Canadian dollar before accepting it.

St. Thomas reports it has one man who had been on relief for 64 consecutive months but the report does not say whether or not there is any kind of long service decoration awarded for such performance.

One hundred men described as distinguished have been named to study the best way to handle the liquor situation in United States, and perhaps their finding will be that the best method is not to.

Statistics from United States show a gain in church membership for the year of 754,138, and 60 per cent. of the residents are now members of a church. In the South church going is a habit; in the North it is an occasional custom.

The Peterborough Examiner editor writes about things as they used to be on the tenth concession. But a mere tenth concession seems a minor matter nowadays, with Adolf demanding and securing — let's see — it must be the twentieth or thirtieth by this time.—Toronto Star.

A Cleveland man caught a 19-pound lunge in Sturgeon Lake, and when cleaning the fish found a two-pound carp inside. We did not know a lunge would take a carp of that size but the information is interesting. The lunge is thus helping matters as we do not want the carp but we do want the lunge.

DISCOVERY

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When Ezra Stinger was a lad, he was demure and rather sad, piano was his lot; his folks picked his career for him, the future might be rather dim, but he was schooled and taught.

¶ He was a soulful little gent, who found it hard to pay the rent, for he played soft and low; he never struck the keys with force, nor with a kick that marked a horse, nor would he let her go.

¶ He played of moonbeams and the shade, or stronger stuff he seemed afraid, his pupils were too few; he wondered if it was his fault, because he could not earn his salt, he pondered what to do.

¶ Then Ezra Stinger changed his ways, he stepped from out the land of haze, put feet on higher ground; he humped and ruffled up his back, and hit the keys a mighty crack, and made enormous sound.

¶ And folks acclaimed him as a find, the real untainted master mind, the teacher they had sought; then little lads and lassies came, to study with this man of fame, they pleaded to be taught.

¶ And Ezra Stinger's famous now, a mop of hair upon his brow, of culture he's the font; if folks want bluff and vigor too, then Ezra says the thing to do —is give them what they want.

Nations Did Not Welcome A War

MUNICH REPRESENTED the climax of panic. The decisions taken in the extraordinary nine-hour session in the Fuehrerhaus were not taken in a normal state of mind. It is impossible to understand today's events and reactions without remembering that the mind of Europe, tired on one side, twisted on the other, has known no peace for twenty-four years. That mind, incoherent, violent, fumbling, fatalistic, is the most valid argument against war. It is the ultimate proof of President Roosevelt's reminder that victory and defeat are both "sterile." They are worse than sterile; both are exhausting; both are demoralizing. In a world as interrelated as this, both are actually impossible. In the end, as we see, the losses of the vanquished are borne by the victors. The winners are weakened and divided, while the loser is strengthened and united by punishment and the passion for revenge.

In this abnormal atmosphere, keyed up to an abnormal tension, the abnormal mind of Europe met and acted at Munich. The dictator at that conference was fear, and this fear, significantly enough, influenced the totalitarians as much as the democrats. It was not only England and France that dreaded war, but Germany and Italy as well.

Otherwise Hitler would never have summoned that last-minute council to impose conditions on his entry into the Sudetenland. According to the New York Times, Mussolini would not have jumped at the chance to serve as mediator. It is clear now that nobody in the world wanted war, not even Hitler.

The decisions made in Munich were made in a panic, a four-power panic, yet they were bound to change the future of Europe. The price of peace has not been paid by Germany; but if Great Britain stands by her guarantee of the new frontiers of Czechoslovakia, Hitler has not got this conquest scot-free. Unless another "consultation" once more revises the rules, he is theoretically stopped from marching farther east along that route.

Even so, nobody can doubt that the three powers have practically turned over Central Europe to the "peaceful penetration" of Germany; she can move with the full consent of the other governors provided she does not employ force. France has abdicated her power in Eastern Europe; after the joint declaration of Chamberlain and Hitler she may well wonder if hereafter the control of the continent will be exercised by London and Berlin instead of London and Paris.

Munich has altered the face and the atmosphere of Europe. Now it is the morning after; and France and England must count the cost of peace. It is heavy, but no one who has watched the transmutation of victory into defeat in the past twenty years can ever again be sure who triumphs in any battle. Peace is contagious, too; and who knows what a breathing spell might do to the Germans under Hitler's Germany?

✧ ✧ ✧

IT OUGHT TO WORK

HOW MUCH DOES the Hitler-Chamberlain agreement mean? asks the Christian Science Monitor. In some quarters it is being read as an Anglo-German alliance; in others as a mere gesture designed to make the partition of Czechoslovakia more palatable to Englishmen.

It is neither. It unquestionably expresses a sincere aspiration on the part of both signers. Herr Hitler has for fifteen years made friendship with Britain the key to his foreign policy. Mr. Chamberlain has sacrificed much to his conviction that by consultation a way can and must be found for Germany and Britain to live together peaceably. Their hasty and informal agreement states a basic fact—British-German relations are of first importance for Europe. There can hardly be another world war in the visible future if their differences can be ironed out. Instinctive understanding of that fact causes the peoples of both countries to give eager support to the hopes of their leaders.

PICKED WRONG MAN.

(New York World-Telegram)

A LOS ANGELES MAN named Fletcher Bowron had an experience the other day that will make him envied by every motorist who has ever been bawled out by a traffic cop.

Mr. Bowron, driving down town in the morning, got into a traffic jam. A truck driver banged into the rear end of another automobile, and that one hit Mr. Bowron's car, whereupon he got out to inspect the damage.

Policeman: "Hey, you! Get back into your car and drive on! I'll attend to this."

Bowron: "I want to get the name of the man who hit me."

Policeman (producing a book): "Oh, a wise guy, eh? So you want a ticket, do you? Well—"

Bowron: "Hold on, there! This business of policemen insulting citizens has got to stop, and it's going to stop today."

Policeman: "Oh, yeah? Who says so?"

Bowron: "I say so."

Policeman: "And who are you?"

Bowron: "Oh, I'm only the man who is to be inaugurated Mayor of Los Angeles this afternoon."

THOSE TAXES.

(Neil O'Hara, in New York Post)

THE OWNER of an Evansville, Ind., lubricant factory, also controlling four filling stations, has offered to give away his entire business to anyone who'll pay him for the next five years as much as he now pays in taxes. His total tax cost for 1938 will be around $30,000, or 20 per cent of his gross—and if you think the offer is a bargain, he advised that the tax slug includes social security, personal property, gas tax, Indiana gross income tax, corporation tax, capital stock tax, net income tax, chain store tax, truck wheel tax and encumbrance tax.

• How Alf Solved His Problem

EDITOR EXAMINER: Sir: I had occasion to spend a couple of days with an old friend from England last week. We had known each other a good many years before we came to this country and we have both had our ups and downs as the saying goes. When I knew my friend Alf in Yorkshire he was working at the shoe trade which he had learned as a young fellow, but when he came to this country he found a job in a factory and took it because he did not have the money to put in a shop fitting of his own. The factory job lasted all right and he worked at it for 16 years, during which time he married and finally secured and paid for a little cottage on one of the main streets of his town.

Then there was a big change made in some of the methods at the factory by bringing in newer machinery to do the very thing which Alf had been doing for those 16 years. He was shifted to another part of the plant after that for a while but the pay was not as good and Alf saw it was one thing or the other—stay there at a poor wage or get out and look for something else. There was no other factory in the town which would take him in as things then were a bit slack.

Alf and his wife had managed pretty close and they had a little savings account. They talked the matter over a good many times and did a lot of figuring between them, and finally came to the conclusion that the best way out was for Alf to quit his job. They decided to take the living room of their house and have the front window enlarged and then go ahead and secure what was needed to start a little repair shop for shoes. Alf had seen an advertisement in a city paper of a shop which was closing out and the equipment was for sale. By the time he bought what he needed and had the window enlarged where he could display his work he had exactly $47 left. But they had a good garden back of the place and they didn't owe any bills.

That was a little better than four years ago and Alf worked awhile at nights on any old shoes he could get just to get his hand in again. He was telling me he is making now a little more than he ever made when he thought he had a fairly good job at the factory and they are getting on all right. He admitted he did not know for sure how his little business would turn out when he started and there were times when he was afraid to take the chance.

A year ago he added some better equipment and says it has paid him to do so. So Alf took the chance and went in to get something for himself and it has turned out all right. Otherwise I suppose he would have been lined up at the relief office a good time ago because the last job he had at the factory ceased to exist about three months after he quit. I know I am not telling you anything about big business, but all the same Alf risked pretty near all that he had to try and work his own way out. I was a bit proud of my old Yorkshire friend when I listened to his story and saw for myself what he had done and how he was getting along.

Peterborough, Oct. 10.

• They Can't Both Be Right

SPEAKING TO A SERVICE club in Oshawa, F. W. Wegenast, K.C., of Toronto, is reported as saying: "Germany is not ruled by Adolf Hitler but by the business and professional men of the country."

Everyone has heard rumors that Hitler is a tool of the armament interests, that he is merely a mouthpiece for the army caste, or that he is the representative of something else, but this seems to be the first time that German business has been accused of being responsible for the Chancellor's administration.

In Oshawa Times' report of Mr. Wegenast's address, one finds these passages:

"Everyone dependent upon the public for his livelihood uses the greeting, 'Heil, Hitler.' Any German who did not say it would likely be shunned and ignored by his own people."

"The German people have no conception of liberties. If a man is arrested and taken to jail, no one seems to worry or care when or if he is brought to trial."

"If war had broken out, Adolf Hitler would have lost his position and even his life almost immediately."

"The Germans are a good people, industrious and anxious to do things for each other, but they have no conception of the meaning of the word 'gentleman'."

So if business is in control of affairs in Germany, it there must be an entirely different thing from what we understand by the term here.

Skepticism of Mr. Wegenast's theory say the Woodstock Sentinel-Review, is fortified by certain statements in an article by F. S. Chalmers, editor of Financial Post, who has been in Germany recently. If business is in the saddle, it seems strange that an administration should do certain things that Mr. Chalmers sets forth. He writes that costs, wages and prices generally are controlled, and so is investment.

"There is, for all practical purposes, no such thing as a new issue of industrial securities in Germany. The state has commandeered the savings of the people. The money market is reserved for its own loans. Rarely a private issue of securities is permitted if it fits into the scheme of national defence or control of employment. No industrial firm or rental shop is permitted to expand its capacity without special permission. No new firm may be organized to go into any line of business without similar permission."

• Crossed Pacific In A Junk

(From the New York Times.)

SOME ARCHAEOLOGISTS, confronted by the strangely reminiscent civilization of the Mayas, suggest that the ancestors of these people may have crossed the vast stretch of the Pacific in junks. That it can be done is confirmed by the 85-day voyage of an American osteopath, his Japanese wife and a crew of two Russian youths who have just brought themselves in a 36-foot Chinese junk from the Orient safely to Los Angeles.

Eighty-five days is almost three months. It is half a month longer than Columbus took to cross the Atlantic. But the distance is nearly three times as great, and Dr. Petersen's equipment seems to have been much inferior to that supplied by the somewhat canny munificence of Isabella. The Hummel-Hummel draws only two and a half feet of water and has the sea-riding qualities of a cork, with a sinkability equal to that of any other craft of her size.

If a school of 80-foot whales, including several divers which enjoyed frolicking under the ship, had turned up to accompany the Santa Maria on her way, the Great Discoverer, being an obstinate man, might have shouted "Sail on! Sail on! Sail on and on!" as the poet credits him with doing in every emergency. But his brave crew might readily have mutinied and scuttled back to Palos. Dr. Petersen took whales and waves, fog, cold and a leaping cookstove not exactly in his stride, but as long as Tana, his wife, managed to get her hot rice distributed.

The Hummel-Hummel looks like a shabby Autumn leaf rising from a dried pea pod. But this battered queen of junks knows no terror. She may not be quite so elegant or fast as the American clippers which fly over the Pacific fogs, but she puts a sure foot forward. Now she bobs proudly in San Pedro harbor to prove that men and women, too, can still ride out in a cockleshell against the gods of the sea and conquer.

CHARGING TOO MUCH

A PROTEST WORTHY of the closest attention of every Canadian and especially of every Canadian business man, even though they are not offenders personally, was voiced in a letter to the editor of The Whig-Standard on Saturday by Dr. William T. Ellis, an American who for years has spent his summers on Canadian soil. Dr. Ellis complains that he was overcharged on a plumbing job. He expresses fear lest a "skin the American" idea has seized some Canadian dealers and confesses that he has had a jolt.

This sort of treatment certainly will not establish friendship between Canadians and tourists visiting the country or people from other lands summering in the Dominion. One single act of this nature will have an adverse influence that will nullify largely the benefits of the tourist publicity the governments and business concerns are doing.

Courtesy should be shown our guests, whether they are touring or summering among us. This applies to our business men as well as to private citizens. Canada's tourist industry is too valuable to be jeopardized by greed, incompetence or unfair practices.

HAIR-RAISING.

(W.L.Y.D. in Los Angeles Times)

WOMEN'S HAIR is to be higher.

Already stacks of curls are beginning to pile up on top of feminine heads. Pertinent questions arise.

Is the boyish bob doomed? If not, how can even deft feminine fingers train short hair where the style places it?

The strange creations called hats of the gay nineties are already blossoming out. . . . little dabs of chiffon with bunches of flowers roosting on them. How to anchor them? Is the hatpin pointing this way again?

And if all this ancient history repeats itself, where will it stop? Are balloons and sixteen widths in the offing? Is the free, athletic figure about to revert to the wasp-waist and fainting as of yore?

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

HEAR MY PRAYER, O Lord, and let my cry come unto thee. Hide not thy face from me in the day when I am in trouble; incline thine ear unto me; in the day when I call answer me speedily. For my days are consumed like smoke, and my bones are burned as an hearth. . . . My days are like a shadow that declineth; and I am withered like grass.

But thou, O Lord, shall endure for ever; and thy remembrance unto all generations.—Psalms cii, 1-3, 11, 12.

✧ ✧ ✧

What? know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's.—I Cor. vi, 19, 20.

✧ ✧ ✧

Be silent, O all flesh, before the Lord: for he is raised up out of his holy habitation.—Zech. ii, 13.

GERMANS GO TO AFRICA.

(Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph)

GERMANS ARE settling in Africa, and the number of such new arrivals in South Africa and South-west Africa is causing comment in official circles. Delegations from various parts of Southwest Africa have reported the influx to officials in Windhoek, the capital, and some are asking the Union of South Africa to take their country under its wing. The Purified Nationalist Party urged in the recent general election that Southwest Africa be returned to Germany. Southwest Africa is a mandate from the League of Nations. Less than 10 per cent. of the Germans settling there have expressed a desire to be naturalized. In South Africa a self-contained German community is being established in practically every town.

KITCHENITIS

When you have a kind of feeling
That you have too much to do,
And you mumble 'round the kitchen
That your work is never through;
When you're sore at all the dishes
And the kettles and the range,
Then your trouble's "Kitchenitis,"
And you need a little change.

If your feet seem awful heavy,
And they're hard to drag around,
If you're peevish and you're fretful,
At each tiny little sound;
If you do not seem to please yourself,
When you have done your best,
Then your trouble's "Kitchenitis,"
And you need a little rest.

If you do not feel like dolling up
And getting a marcel,
And little things annoy you
'Till you want to stand and yell;
If you do not feel like working,
Neither do you want to play,
Then your trouble's "Kitchenitis,"
And you need a holiday.

But you do not need a doctor,
Medicine, nor pesky pills,
What you need's a new environment,
New faces and new thrills;
Go 'way for 'bout a month or two,
By car or bus or train,
'Twill knock your "Kitchenitis
So 'twill never come again.

A Bit of Nonsense

SHEPHERD OF THE FLOCK

"What's Dick doing now?"
"Well, Dick is a stock salesman."
"And William?"
"He's a minister."
"And Tom?"
"Well, Tom is engaged in politics."
"And you?"
"I'm farming—and feeding Dick and William and Tom."

HE WOULDN'T HAVE TO GO FAR

"Where are you going?" a friend asked.

"Well," replied the broker, "I'm going to get into my car, paste a picture of the New York Stock Exchange on the radiator, and drive until somebody says, 'What's that?'"

Madoc Minister Guest Speaker At Trent River

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 11.—Ideal weather favored the anniversary and Thanksgiving services held afternoon and evening at the United church Sunday, conducted by Rev. Ivan Kennedy of Madoc. The choir under the direction of Mr. A. Hazel, of Campbellford, rendered appropriate numbers. Beautiful potted plants and cut flowers adorned the pulpit desk and Altar rail and church windows. The pastor, Rev. A. MacLachlan, assisted at the opening service and offered a special prayer of Thanksgiving, with the congregation responding. Rev. Mr. Kennedy chose as his afternoon text "Human need and an opportunity to serve," opening his address by saying God has abundantly blessed us in this fair land we ought to conceive of our lives as a partnership with God. It is God who giveth the increase. God has a great Eternal purpose for us else He would not have placed us here. We are laborers together with God. If we get that conception, life would mean so much more to us.

At the afternoon service Mr. Lucy of Campbellford rendered a baritone solo "Greatful O Lord am I" by Caro Roma, in an efficient manner. The choir numbers were "A Song of Thanks" and "The Glory of Harvest."

The evening service was also largely attended, the Rev. Mr. Kennedy choosing his text from John 17:3, "How can I come to know God and Jesus Christ whom He sent." It's all important—knowing God. What is religion, but our relationship to God. We can come to know Him through his gift, by reading his Book.

The choir sang two numbers, "The earth is the Lord's," with Mr. Lucy of Campbellford taking the solo part, also "Light at Eventide." A vocal duet "Hold Thou My Hand," was sung by Mrs. C. J. Vesey of Campbellford and Mr. Lucy. The total ofering for the afternoon and evening services amounted to about $75.

LAKEFIELD

Purse Is Presented To Rev. W. Pluard

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 11.—The officers and a number of the members of the Catholic Women's League of St. Paul's church, Lakefield, assembled on Sunday afternoon and presented a purse of gold to Rev. W. Pluard of Lakefield who is leaving this week for London, where he will resume his studies at the Seminary there.

Mrs. G. Elmsley read a short address, asking Rev. Pluard to accept the gifts as a token of the ladies' appreciation of his faithful services during the years he has been asscciated with Rev. J. J. Garvey at St. Paul's church, Lakefield.

Rev. Pluard replied, thanking the women of the League for their generosity and stating that he had always enjoyed his work with them.

Mrs. J. J. McFadden made the presentation.

Leads "Invaders"

General Ritter von Leeb had the honor of leading the "legalized" invasion of Sudetenland when German troops under his command crossed the former German-Czech border to begin the occupation of the section of the former Czech territory provided for in the agreement signed by the four great powers at Munich.

Estate Dwindles

When Norma Shearer appeared in court to ask permission to pay $754,234.13 from the funds of the estate of her late husband, Irving Thalberg, it was revealed the original estate of $5,000,000 had been slashed $3,000,000 by inheritance taxes. Miss Shearer was requesting the money to pay a compromise tax to the federal government.

CAMPBELLFORD

Offer To Purchase Town Property

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 11. — A proposal to purchase from the town for the sum of $3,000.00 the property they now occupy was made by members of the Water and Light Commission at their regular meeting held in the Board Room. It was Chairman J. O. Benor who brought the proposition before the board and recommended that the balance of the property on Market street be leased from the town under the terms of a 99 years lease and at a nominal rental of $1 per year.

On motion of Commissioner G. H. Davidson and Chairman Benor, the treasurer was authorized to transfer to the town treasury officials the sum of $1,000, being the balance of the commission's $18,000 grant to be made during the current year.

A deputation from Seymour township waited on the Commission to discuss the renewal of the power lease for a further term of ten years. The problem of making more suitable arrangements for new customers to use the line which were erected by the farmers themselves some years ago was discussed and the matter was left in the hands of the manager, P. C. Denyes for investigation.

OBITUARY

THOMAS FARROW.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 11. — Millbrook lost one of it oldest and most highly respected citizens last week in the death of Thomas Farrow in his seventy-seventh year, following a short illness. The deceased was the youngest child of the late John Kitchener Farrow and Mary Jane Gray, pioneer settlers from England and strangely enough the last member of the family to depart from this life.

He was born in the township of Manvers near Pontypool and spent his entire life on the Farrow homestead.

On October 18, fifty-seven years ago, he was united in marriage to Mary Ellen Taylor of Milbrook, who predeceased him several months. A little over a year ago the couple left the homestead where they had spent so many happy years and came to Millbrook to reside.

Left to mourn the loss of their father are Mrs. Alice Graham, Mrs. Emma Tysick of Perth, Mrs. A. Little of Millbrook, Mr. Harry Farrow of Millbrook and Mr. Harvey Farrow of Oshawa; a son, Charles, passed on six years ago.

Being a Knight of the Royal Black Preceptory 1063 of Pontypool, the funeral service was held under their direction from the residence of his son, Main street, Millbrook, assisted by the Pontypool L.O.L. No. 82.

Rev. A. L. Sisco conducted the service, assisted by Rev. H. R. Williams with the interment taking place in the family plot at Pontypool.

The pallbearers were all Black Knights from the Pontypool Lodge and were Messrs. Harry Richardson, Jack Payne, James Malley, Jack Fiske, Clifford Bowen and George Wilder.

Among those present from a distance were Messrs. William and Cecil Malley of Newcastle, Mr. John Malley of Pontypool, also Mr. and Mrs. James Malley, Mrs. Isaac Winters, Orono, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Farrow, Ballyduff, Mrs. C. Graham, Toronto and Mrs. Sarah Malley of Newcastle.

Outstanding floral tributes were from the Royal Black Lodge and the L.O.L. of Pontypool, Mr. and Mrs. H. Farrow and Mrs. A. Graham, Mrs. E. Forsythe and family, Mr and Mrs. John Guthrie and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Farrow, Mrs. E. Tysick and Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Farrow.

Rebate Asked On License Slot-Machine

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 11.—A. B. Smith, local merchant, asked the town council on Friday night to refund a portion of a $100 slot machine license. He said that the fee was paid the latter part of March and his machine was run till Sept. 1, when the Dominion Government ruled them illegal. Due to an error contrary to the by-law here which governed the operating of such machines, the license was made out from March 31, 1938 to March 31, 1939, and should have been issued for the current year, he said.

Reeve Lewis E. Kelly said as he recalled the bargain, Mr. Smith had stated he would take out the license at his own risk. "I intend to stand by that understanding," the reeve declared, "If we rebate one we must rebate others."

"I think I am entitled to a rebate," Mr. Smith said. "I took my own chances on getting pinched and I think a fair share should be rebated." He seemed to feel that the council had promised to rebate a portion of the tax in the event he had to close it up. On a motion of E. Lynch and I. Bond, the matter was laid over for further discussion later in the meeting. It is expected the matter will be dealt with at the next regular session.

Correspondence was read from Department of Municipal Affairs, notifying council of a one mill subsidy being granted. Owens University, Kingston, regarding municipal officers (if any) wishing to take a one months course. Department of Health, notifying of a 25 per cent increase in grants in the case of certain diseases. National Housing Act regarding, town lots if any for sale.

Permission Needed

Fred Dodd, fire chief was instructed to speak to the reeve or chairman of the property committee in future when he intended taking the engine out for practice Reeve Kelly said this was for the purpose of using it to the best advantage in case any drains needing cleaning or such work.

It was revealed that the company insuring the town hall against fire had inserted a clause permitting the showing of motion pictures without extra charge.

The council set Wednesday evening next as the date for a special session to appoint jurors and to accept the village tax roll from R. N. Montgomery. A list of uncollected taxes were presented the council and each case was dealt with. The amount of uncollected taxes will be greater than the previous year and Reeve Kelly said he believed a quantity of land would fall back on the town.

On a motion of S. Stevenson and I. Bond, Walter Turner and Fred Richardson will receive rebates on 1937 taxes.

By-law No. 789 governing the levying and collection of 1938 taxes received its several readings.

On motion of C. Lynch and I. Bond, the bond for the tax collector will be renewed with G. Marryatt. The premium is $12.00. On a motion of I. Bond and W. McEachnie, the pay sheet was passed and S. Stevenson and W. McEachnie moved the relief accounts be paid.

In a communication from Louis Breithaupt, Kitchener, he offered to erect free of charge, a number of "Welcome" sings at points of vantage on the outskirts of the village. The sign would read similar to "Welcome to Hastings, Home of Trent Vally Oak Leather."

Council gladly accepted the offer and will urge him to have the signs erected soon as possible.

Council discussed the noise and possible damage being done to the hall due to the Badminton Club playing every second night. W. Boyle, caretaker, was appointed special representative of the council, on a motion of I. Bond and W. McEachnie, to instruct president of the Club to keep the noise down to a minimum and report any damage done.

Surrender For Five Dollars "Mex"

Two dramatic pictures, showing the surrender of a group of Chinese soldiers near Lushan. TOP photo a Japanese trooper, bayonet and rifle ready, cautiously awaits the approach of the Chinese as hands raised, they come out of the underbrush. LOWER, holding aloft a dirty towel on a stick to serve as a white flag, the leader of the surrendering group stares at the bayonet point, while his comrades are searched. The surrender took place after Japanese airplanes had dropped leaflets behind Chinese lines offering $5 Mexican ($2.50), food and the opportunity to return to their homes to all deserters from the Chinese army.

Tea And Sale Held By Millbrook W.A.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 11.—A charming event attended by a large number of Millbrook ladies took place at the home of the president, Mrs. C. Westmacott, on Friday afternoon, when a tea and baking sale was held under the auspices of the W.A. of St. Thomas' Anglican Church.

Mrs. T. A. Campbell greeted the steady stream of guests at the door, assisted by their charming hostess.

Autumn flowers were beautifully arranged in the spacious living-room where the ladies enjoyed a tete a tete and a series of solos rendered at various intervals by Miss June Shields of Mount Pleasant, accompanied by Mrs. L. H. Winslow, and piano solos by Miss M. Collins made up the pleasing program.

For dainty refreshments, the guests were invited to the dining-room by their hostess. At either end of the long table set in silver and lace, Mrs. W. Simpson poured coffee, and Mrs. H. Attwooll, tea from the lovely services. A low bowl of yellow helinium carried out the color scheme of navy and gold and graced the centre of the table; tall blue tapers in silver holders added an unusual effect to the scene.

Tea assistants were Mesdames J. Sheppard, J. Hilton and Miss B. McCorry.

ORFUNS DEFEATED BY A 26-6 SCORE IN MONTREAL GRID GAME

Husky Nationals Get Jump In Big First Half Drive As Orfuns Make Their Debut

A heavy C.N.R. freight rolled through Peterborough on Monday as the Senior O.R.F.U. season opened with the Nationals taking a 26-6 victory over the Orfuns in Montreal. Over 4,000 fans at Alexandria Park witnessed the senior grid baptism of these two teams, and it was a wide-open lively struggle throughout.

Far from disgraced by their reverse, the scrappy Orfuns drew considerable applause from the crowd for their gallant comeback in the second half. They spotted the bruising Nats a 12-0 lead in the first quarter and it was 19 to 6 at half-time. The Orfuns took a new lease on life, forgot their nervousness, and held their powerful rivals to seven points in the last half.

Montreal used a variety of plays to roll up their count, with long forward passes and lengthy booting figuring in the total. The lighter local line made a gallant effort all afternoon and held we against the smashing plunges by 230-pound Johnny Ferraro and his buddies. Ferraro, Mullins, Barnabe, and Atcheson stood out in the all-around effectiveness of the Nationals, the whole squad showing strength, speed and experience.

Crowe and Loucks.

Don Crowe, who scored the Petes' major in the second quarter, and Mike Loucks, who danced his way through Montreal for several big gains, were individual stars for the Peterborough squad. Both got hands from the fans often for their fine work. Though outweighed and outkicked, the Orfuns' linemen made a good showing in their initial appearance in senior ranks. Earl Spencely and Ed. Prete, Jerry Creighton, McIntyre, Pulkinghorn, Magee — and the experienced senior newcomers to the club — all looked good, and the score definitely did not indicate the play. The C.N.R. crew reeled off more yards but had only one more first down than the Peterborough youngsters. A jittery start and inexperience proved costly to the visiting gridders in this first game.

Montreal kicked off and there was an early Orfuns fumble but Hendren recovered on the next play, a Montreal fumble. They kicked and C.N.R. club pulled two short forwards and an end run by Hempey to move the sticks twice to Peterborough's 35-yard line. Ferraro plunged for 10. A 20-yard forward pass was completed from Ferraro to Barnabe and Ferraro plunged over for a try which Mullins converted. Loucks fumbled a kick when given no yards and the crowd razzed the referee. A short kick gave Peterborough possession on their 40 Loucks tore around the end for 30 yards. Crowe bucked for eight. Irwin plunged to move the sticks. Ferraro intercepted a forward pass and an extension by Barnabe to Atcheson took the pigskin to the Petes' 35-yard line. Atcheson took a lateral from Mullins to cross the line on a wide sweep around the end. Mullins converted it. On the kick-off, Ferraro rant it back 20 to the C.N.R. 40. An Orfuns' forward was incomplete and Loucks skirted end for 20 to C.N.R. 25 and Crowe bucked for yards as the quarter ended.

Get a Try.

Crowe bucked through centre to 2-yard line and then he went around end for a touchdown which Loucks converted. After the kick-off Magee plunged for five to Montreal's 35. Crowe kicked and Riddle ran it 15 to midfield. Mullins hoofed it to the visitors' 15-yard mark. Loucks bucked for eight and Magee made it yards on a centre drive. Irwin went for five and Crowe moved the sticks on a plunge. Two bucks were stopped and they kicked to midfield. Bowden was penalized for going on twice in the quarter. Marsh intercepted a forward, and a local forward by Irwin was incomplete. Crowe bucked for five. Loucks booted it and Nats kicked it back to Orfuns' 20. Riddle ran back a kick 15 yards to Peterborough 25. Ferraro threw a 15-yard forward to Porter to the 10 and Ferraro plunged nine yards with Burns carrying it across. Burns converted it. They exchanged kicks, the wind aiding Montreal. A local forward was incomplete. Riddle took Crowe's kick at the 50-yard chalk. A Nationals' forward was incomplete. Ferraro bucked for four. McIntyre ran out Mullins' kick. Two bucks did no damage and it was booted to Orfuns' 40. Riddle booted it and Hempey rouged Crowe. Crowe skirted end for 15 as the half ended.

Tougher Going.

McNulty was rouged on Mullins' kick, Burns tackling. It was a return kick from midfield. Orfuns lost the ball on downs on their 30. A forward was incomplete and then Ferraro threw a forward to Rettie for 25 yards. Barnabe bucked four and then a Barnabe-to-Atcheson extension failed and a kick was called back for a penalty. On a return kick by Mullins, Curtin got it on Orfuns' five-yard line. A short kick gave it to Ferraro on Orfuns' 40. A forward was not compelted. Mullins booted a placement from the 40-yard strip. Pulkinghorn bucked for four and Loucks kicked to the C.N.R. 40. Burns bucked for eight. Barnabe took Ferraro's 35-yard forward heave. Giardino fell on a Montreal fumble and the C.N.R. gang were penalized for piling on Loucks on an end run. A forward failed at midfield and Loucks hoofed the home 35. Creighton ran back the Nationals' kick 10, but a fumble gave C.N.R. the ball on Orfuns' 45. Ferraro skirted end for 12. A forward was incomplete. Riddle kicked to deadline to make it 24-6. Crowe got three around end and Loucks kicked it to Orfuns' 50. A forward was incomplete by Montreal as the frame finished.

Hendren stopped Barnabe after a 5-yard buck. Riddle got yards on an end run, but fumbled and Orfuns got it. A forward was incomplete and Crowe's kick was run back 15 yards by Bowden to Montreal's 50. Burns bucked through centre for six. Orfuns were penalized 15 for roughing kicker. Barnabe got three on a plunge and Riddle's kick was short. Hempey drove Crowe back for a safety touch from Orfuns' 5-yard line. Magee plunged for three. Mullins ran back Crowe's boot 10 to Orfuns' 40. Loucks took Mullins' kick on own 20 and then pulled a 35-yard end run. Crowe got 10 around end. He got five more on a buck and Loucks raced through centre for 12 to C.N.R. 35. Ferraro blocked a forward and Orfuns lost on downs. Mullins got eight around end. Mullins kicked and Crowe got it at midfield. Orfuns were penalized for interference and a Creighton-Loucks lateral netted 10. Loucks kicked to Mullins on the C.N.R. 10-yard mark. Mullins kicked to midfield. An Orfuns' forward was incomplete as the game finished.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

NOW, LET'S SEE, where were we? Oh, yes, this is the end of the Thanksgiving Holiday—for which thanks be given!—and we are now all set to start out again in an orderly fashion with our sports comments. So much going on over Turkey Day that we even fanned on the drumstick and saw Cousin Cornelius beat us by two inches, the big stiff! However, we'd better start of fand give an account of doings in their more or less proper order. We will take Saturday, for instance. We would really prefer to take Friday—any Friday—for instance or for any other reason on account of it is pay day, but we are now dealing with the paper's business, not our own. So we will take Saturday.

* * * * * *

THERE WERE two rugby games here on Saturday, both C.O.S.S.A. games—which means high school—both at the Exhibition Grounds and both between Oshawa and P.C.I. teams. In the morning fray, the junior Motor City footballers copped an 18-7 victory over the locals in a drizzle of rain which hampered the short-of-subs P.C.I. gang and shrunk our pants clean over the ankles. It was awful. In the afternoon, Coach Bamforth's senior P.C.I. gridders—looking 75⅝ per cent better than they did in Lindsay—walloped the Oshawa team handily, by a 20-0 score. They looked okay doing it, too.

* * * * * *

Yep, It Was a Lulu

AS FOR THE BALL GAME here Saturday, well, more than a thousand fans will agree with us that it was a swell scrap to watch—despite cloudy skies overhead. The Petes earned the 5-2 win (though the earned runs gave 'em two and Stratford nothing) in a fine fray. Lefty McNally pitchd five-hit ball in a dandy performance and hit a timely double to knock in the first run. He had good fielding support and the boys really began to hit their true hitting stride late in the tussle, belting the great Schoolmaster Craig for five hits and four runs in the eighth. At that, the Schoolmaster gave the Petes some lessons for seven stanzas. Yep, he pitched a good game but bunched hits and an error in the eighth finished him. The Nats made a threat in the ninth, but couldn't come within three runs of the Murphyites.

* * * * * *

NONE of the locals got more than one hit in the Saturday struggle but most of the boys got one safety. McNally's hard double that bounced off the wall deep in left to score the first run—Cadd from first—was the best clout of the day. He reached second again on a hard drive to right, but it was an error when the fielder juggled it. Lefty was the home hero, all right, but he got good support, too. The Nats didn't like it a bit and battled hard for every point—but they were not playing a Toronto team.

* * * * *

Ball Is Still Rolling

REPORTS from Stratford on the holiday have it that the Nats and Petes performed in rather weird style with Stratford evening the series with an 8-7 nod. None of the three twirlers used, Kitchen, Jakafby and Craig, hurled championship ball, and errors were frequent. Doll, Calladine and Murphy swung potent clubs and the Petes deserved a win in the ninth the way they massaged the melon—the outs being screaming drives deep in the outfield. We didn't see the fray, but somehow can't see Stratford taking the senior title this season from the locals. When and where the deciding tilt will be staged is a most contentious point at this writing—the Petes wanting Wednesday and the Nats hoping Craig will be ready to twirl again Saturday. The local grid gang is also insisting that the ball series be cleaned up before the end of the week. It is in the hands of the O.B.A. now, and we may hear today.

* * * * * *

ORFUNS opened their senior O.R.F.U. schedule in Montreal on Monday with the skinny side of a 26-6 score. The powerful Nationals unloosed an effective aerial attack to pave the way for two tries after long forward passes, and Mullins' kicking was a thing of beauty—to the home fans. Burly Jawn Ferraro flipped forwards and banged into the local line in stellar style, while Atcheson and Barnabe were also stars in the Nats' neat victory. Over 4,000 fans were treated to a wide-open, speedy struggle that had about everything as these new senior squads met for the first time on the gridiron. After the first quarter, the game was a smart scrap with the Nats finding the visitors no setups.

* * * * * *

They Had The Jitters

THE WAY WE SAW IT, Montreal's C.N.R. collection of grid greats deserved the win by possibly 10 points— no more. A jittery start by the nervous Orfuns let the home huskies have a 12-0 edge in the first quarter. Then it was a battle. Montreal certainly got all the breaks that were going, and the Orfuns were minus their ball-playing rugbyists, too. So on the whole, it was a good start for our new senior squad. The lads are light, young and a lot of 'em lack senior experience, but this pack will be very much in the thick of it during this schedule. No kidding, the Orfuns looked pretty fair to us. Their kicking was below par Monday but they were faster than the big Nationals, and should come mighty close to taking that team when they clash here.

* * * * *

DON CROWE AND MIKE LOUCKS were brilliant for Coach Bill Irwin's bunch. Crowe got the Petes' major with Loucks converting. They both ripped off several long gains, with Loucks' flashing feet carrying him into the affections of the fans. Yep, the crowd gave both players a big hand when they came off the field for a breather. All the Orfuns went okay, working their heads off once they shook off their early-game shakiness. The local lads as well as the imported stars clicked well. We really believe fans here will be impressed with the Petes' possibilities when they clash with Balmy Beach on Saturday at the Exhibition Grounds. Prexy Porter of the C.N.R. Club said after Monday's tilt: "You've got a good football team there, and they'll be tough to beat before the season is over. They would have given us a real fight today if they'd had about two good exhibition games before the schedule opened, like we did with Ottawa and the Cubs." Montreal writers agreed that the Orfuns would be in there ere the end of this season.

Hartnett Ready To Trade Any Cub But Hack, Lee, Byrant And Dean

CHICAGO, Oct. 11—(AP).—New faces, plenty of them, will be around when the Chicago Cubs take the field next year, says manager Gabby Hartnett.

There is little doubt the Cubs would like to have Joe (Ducky) Medwick, a power in the St. Louis Cardinal attack and rumors already were out that the Cubs would make a serious bid for the slugging outfielder. And if trades or money will not bring Medwick, reports had the Cubs ready to shift Johnny Mize, another Card power unit.

"Winning a pennant doesn't mean anything unless you ça put a powerful club agaist the Yanks," says Hartnett as he returned from world series wars in which the Yanks riddled the Cubs in four straight games, winning the last game Sunday 8-3.

"It's bad enough when a team doesn't get base hits with men on bases," he declared. "It's worse when you can't get even a fly ball with a man on third waiting to score. We hit into too many double plays. What we have to have is somebody who at least can hit a ball beyond the infield."

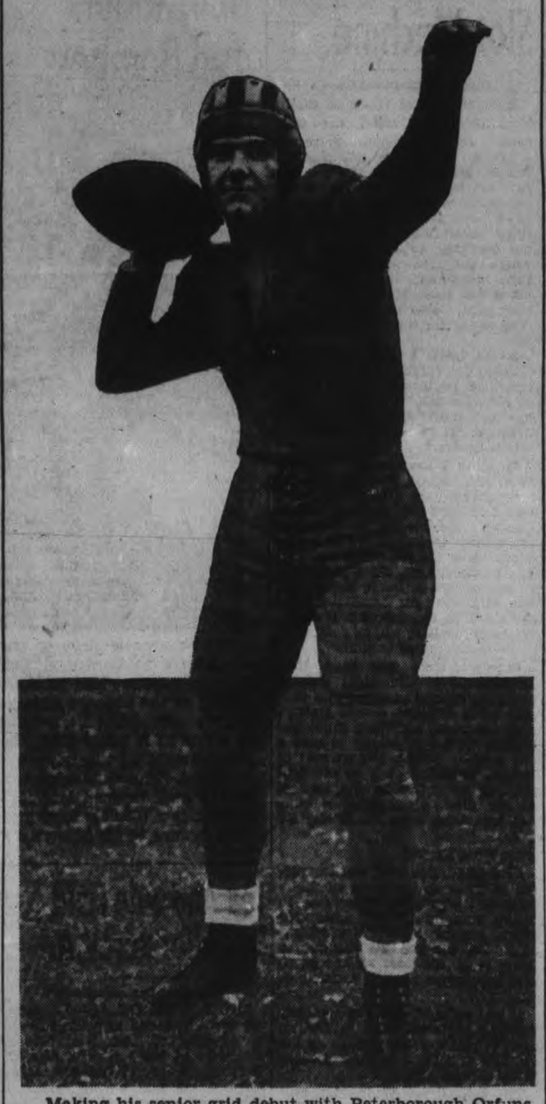
Hartnett wasn't sure of how or where he would get that power, but he was desperate enough after the Cubs' world series showing to cry "I'll trade anybody except Hack, Bill Lee, Clay Bryant and Dizzy Dean."

"I'm keeping Dean," Hartnett said, "because I believe the big fellow can come back."

Too Full of Pranks

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—(AP). —Antine Larose, a cab driver, complained to police that he objected to taking part in pre-Halloween pranks —such as ringing door bells—demanded, he said, by his fare, Miss Fape Meyers. When Larose refused to ring any door bells, he told police, Miss Meyers drew a revolver and began shooting out of the windows of the cab. Police arrested the fare.

Scored Orfuns' Touchdown



Making his senior grid debut with Peterborough Orfuns in Montreal on Thanksgiving Day, Don Crowe turned in a steller performance — he and Loucks leading the Orfuns' attack—and scored the locals' lone touchdown. The shifty halfback—wearing No. 1 sweater—drew frequent applause from the Montreal fans for his fine work. The Nationals won the opening game by a 26-6 score. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

Warm At Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Oct. 11 (CP).—Winnipeg residents found Thanksgiving Day summer-like as the temperature rose to 78 degrees and citizens flocked to the parks to enjoy the holiday. A half-hour downpour of rain in the late afternoon sent them hustling to shelter.

Durocher Likely Dodger's Pilot

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (AP).—While Larry Macphail wouldn't give any hints as to his choice of a successor for Burleigh Grimes when he finally made the formal announcement that "Boiling Boily" wouldn't be retained as manager of Brooklyn Dodgers, the odds favor Leo Durocher.

Macphail listed the names of five candidates: Durocher, Jimmy Wilson, Charley Dressen, Frankie Frisch and Bill Killefer, then as the argument among newspapermen waxed hot, he began accepting wagers from them—with a 25-cent limit.

Durocher started at 9 to 5 in Macphail's "book"—he used a tablecloth to record the bets—and wound up at 4 to 5. Dressen and Wilson opened at 8 to 5, Killefer at 5 to 1 and Frisch at 10 to 1.

Keene Softballers Win O.S.A. Intermediate "C" Title For This Season

KEENE, Oct. 11.—Keene won the third and deciding game of the O.S.A. finals by the score of four runs to two, before a big crowd at Kew Gardens, Toronto, to take the Ontario championship.

They played sparkling ball throughout and deserved the win over the strong Port Colborne team.

Don McCarthy pitched great ball to keep the Ports' sluggers from getting distance and limited them to six hits, one of them scratchy. He received gilt edged support throughout.

Deline started for the Ports but was blasted from the box in the fifth when Hahn's liner injured his pitching hand. He was hit hard from the start. Poole, who relieved him, finished up in great style.

Port Colborne threatened in the first when they loaded the bases, but Brown struck out and Walker flied to Hahn to retire the side.

Get Three

Keene scored three in their half when Wood singled, Gall bunted safely, Renwick came through with a line drive to centre to send Wood and Gall in. He scored later when a low ball got away from the catcher. Keene added one more in the fifth when D. McCarthy singled and scored when Wood slammed a triple to centre.

Port Colborne went down in order in the second, third and fourth, but they pushed over two in the fifth on three hits and a walk and threatened to tie the score, but Brown's great throw to the plate from centre field cut Moore off at the plate and retired the side.

There was no further scoring, though Keene threatened in the seventh when Whalen and Renwick singled and Hahn's smashing liner to deep centre was pulled down by Hewitt on a beautiful catch to retire the side. Catches by Wood and D. McCarthy featured for Keene while Hewitt's catch from Hahn was the outstanding play by Port Colborne.

Whalen with three hits, led the Keene batters while Woods and Renwick came through with two hits each to drive in all Keene's runs. Roy Brown, with two hits, led the Port Colborne batters.

STRATFORD WINS THE SECOND GAME TO TIE UP FINAL SERIES

Weak Pitching By The Petes Accounts For Nationals Tieing Up The O.B.A. Series

(By Fred Craig)

Peterborough and Stratford Nationals are all tied up for the senior O.B.A. championship with one win each. Monday before over 3,000 excited Stratford and Western Ontario fans the Nationals managed to eke out an 8 to 7 victory in the second game of the series played on the fine Canadian National diamond in Stratford.

The game hardly measured up to the crowd for the quality of ball on the day's play did not suggest a senior Ontario final. There were errors of omission as well as commission and some sloppy baseball and the only redeeming feature from a Peterborough standpoint was that that the Petes fought it out to the bitter end, scored three runs in the final frame and had the tying run on second when the third out was registered.

Peterborough lost the chance to take the senior title in two straight games because for the first time since the Murphyites' victorious march through the playoffs started the club did not get good pitching. Stratford gambled the works by sending Schoolmaster Craig back to the mound again and the experiment might have been costly for the right - hander barely staggered through. He yielded eleven hits, issued two passes and hit a batter and with the usual brand of twirling in there for the Central Ontario champs, the Stratford right-hander would have dropped his second game in a row to the Petes.

Couldn't Get Going

Russ Kitchen was Manager Murphy's pitching selection and the big fellow could not get going, lacking his usual control and he was finally yanked in the fourth after the first two batters had hit safely. Joe Jakafby who succeeded him in the fourth had not the mastery over his curve ball that he had against Niagara Falls and ran into a lot of trouble, not all his own fault, but he weathered the storm fairly well.

Bob Doll, Bill Calladine and Manager Eddie Murphy tried hard to make up for the Petes' defensive lapse by turning on the power. The triple threat banged out three hits each, and each of them drove in two runs. Doll had the longest hit of the day, a tremendous drive to deep left for a triple and his string also included a two-base hit.

Bob Carrick, southpaw pitcher, who played right field yesterday was the batting hero for the Nationals. Carrick had three hits out of four times up and one of them was a homer with a teammate on the sacks and another a single with the bases loaded so that his potent bat drove in four runs, not a bad day's work for a pitcher-outfielder—or for anybody else, come to think of it.

Get Great Start

The Petes got away to a great start when they got three runs in the first. With Kearns and Kingdon out of the way on rollers to Kalmusky, Starr was safe when Hanlon droped his fly to left and things began to happen. Doll singled to left and Calladine followed with a safe sock to right scoring Starr. Doll went to third on the play and Calladine took second on the throw-in. Murphy singled between short and second to score Doll and Calladine and sped around to third when the ball got away from Given. Burton rolled out to Zalmusky.

Radiff walked to start Stratford's half. McGillivray hit safely and Radiff was out at third, Burton to Doll when he tried to go two bases on the drive. Miskimmons rolled to Murphy but Carrick with two and nothing on him drove one over the right field fence for a homer, scoring McGillivray ahead of him. Hannigan drew a pass and Kalmusky got a life when Starr's throw hit him after the catcher had fielded his tap, Hannigan going to third and the hitter to second but Given struck out.

Without a Hit

Stratford tied it up in the second without a hit. Hanlon was passed and went to second on a wild pitch. Craig popped to Kingdon, Radiff hit to Doll who threw badly to first and Hanlon scored while Radiff went to second. McGillivray and Miskimmons rolled out.

In the fourth the Nationals went out in front and Kitchen went out of the game. Given opened with a single to left and Hanlon's single to right sent him to third. Jakafby went to the mound for the Petes. Hanlon stole second. Craig struck out. On a squeeze play Given ran home when Radiff bunted safely but Hanlon who tried to score from second on the play was an easy out. McGillivray singled between short and third and Miskimmons was hit, filling the bases. Carrick dropped a Texas League single into right centre scoreing Radiff and McGillivray. Carrick tried to go to second on Kearns' throw to third but Doll threw him out.

Jakafby ran into more trouble in the fifth. With one out Kalmusky singled over first and Given dropped a single into left. Hanlon's walk filled the bases and Kalmusky scored on Craig's slow roller to Kingdon on which the batter was out. Radiff walked to fill the bases again but was forced at second on McGillivray's rap to short.

Doll's Long Hit

Doll opened the Petes' sixth with a triple to the left field corner of the park and trotted home when Calladine singled to right. The next three went out in order.

There was no more scoring until the eighth when a pass to Carrick, his theft of second and Kalmusky's single through short gave Stratford their last counter.

The Petes made it close in the ninth. Cadd was hit to start with and McNally, batting for Jakafby, drew a pass. Kearns lined to Carrick in right and Kingdon's long smash to right centre that would have been a homer if it had been closer to the foul line was taken in front of the score board by Given. Starr came through with a single to centre to score Cadd and send McNally round to third and Doll scored the pair with a long double to right centre. That made the score 8 to 7 and left the tying run on second but Calladine who had already hit safely three times smashed solidly to Hanlon in left for the final out.

Lefty won all three games for his team, one a 12-inning affair, and struck out 31 while allowing but 22 hits in the 30 innings.

Broncs Defeat Both Riders And Bombers

WINNIPEG, Oct. 11.—(CP). — Calgary Bronks created a three-way tie for leadership in the Western Interprovincial Football Union during a week-end of heavy firing on two Alberta battle fronts and to-day are red-hot favorites to hold that spot alone when scheduled firing ceases Oct. 22.

Bronks bucked alongside Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Regina Roughriders the hard way, for they added a 5-3 victory over Roughriders yesterday to Saturday's 14-0 conquest of Bombers. Both games were at Calgary.

Despite the setbacks, Winnipeg and Regina stayed even with Bronks, each with four wins and two losses, by trouncing Eskimos at Edmonton. Bombers' 25-12 win yesterday followed Regina's 17-0 triumph Saturday. Eskimos were eliminated and the leading three teams will play off.

Each Western Union club has two games to play before completing the 1938 schedule and Calgary holds a margin over its first-place rivals in that their games are against the winless Edmonton Eskimos, while Winnipeg and Regina play host to each other once more.

Carl Cronin's Bronks were masters over Winnipeg offensively and defensively Saturday and followed Johnny Mike Sullivan and Jimmy Gilkes to a merited win. Gilkes swept around the end for eight yards to score the game's opening touchdown after Sullivan had sped for a 56-yard gain in the first quarter. Half-time score was 5-0.

Hanson Out.

Fritzie Hanson, playing his first game of the season in a Bomber uniform, was roughed in the third quarter and then dropped behind the goal-line for a safety touch in the fourth. Gilkes followed with a sparkling 36-yard run to set up Sullivan's short touchdown gallop, converted by Paul Rowe.

In their second home game, Calgary switched from a free-wheeling offensive to hard, bruising play to stop Regina yesterday. Johnny Rosano, husky little flying wing, supplied the scoring spark, falling on a loose ball over the Regina goal-line near the close of the first half. It was the game's only touchdown and followed a second-qaurter field gaol by Regina's Bert Nelson.

Edmonton fared better against Winnipeg than Regina on their home lot, but costly fumbles prevented them from scoring their initial victory.

LONDON—(CP).—Charged with theft of a motor-car a 17-year-old amateur boxer appeared in court and now may be heard of in the ring. Ted Broadribb, former manager of Tommy Farr, has taken him under his wing.

Western U. Star

It was Balmy Beach's loss and Western University's gain when Clem Faust, ABOVE, decided he could do with a little more education. The Toronto O.R.F.U. outfit had hoped to have him in its lineup, but Clem journeyed to London, where he has shown great form in exhibition games for Western.

Petes Victors In First Fray

Over a thousand fans braved threatening rain Saturday in Riverside Park to see the Petes take a 5-2 win over Stratford Nationals in the first game of the O.B.A. senior final series. It was a good ball game, with fine flinging, nice fielding and some timely hitting by the homesters. The Petes rallied for four runs in the eighth inning to break up a tight twirlers' duel between Schoolmaster Craig of Stratford and Lefty McNally. The latter was in fine form with a five-hit performance, but was threatened in the late innings. The running story of the game, play by play, appeared in The Examiner on Saturday.

St. Kitts Down Adanacs In 2nd Game

TORONTO, Oct. 11—(CP).—The strength of a big, hard-driving team, well-stocked with substitutes, seemed to be telling today in the Canadian senior lacrosse finals as St. Catharines Athletics reached out to take the Mann Cup from New Westminster.

When the Ontario club won its second straight victory of the best-of-five series last night, 22-11, the impression grew that the coast city's Adanacs didn't have the resources to match the Athletics' all-around power, which seems to exert itself most when the going gets hardest. The young Adanacs, seeking to retain the trophy New Westminster Salmonbellies won last year, faced a unit without a weak point.

Bill Fitzgerald, a substitute, led the winners in scoring with five goals and Bill Wilson, Carl Madsen and Punk Morton got four each. That showing indicated the way ability is spread through the A's lineup.

As in the opening game Mopday night, when the score was 18-11, St. Catharines pulled away after half-time. The Athletics led by only 4-3 at quarter time and 7-6 at the midway mark.

Now they have only to win Wednesday's contest here to sweep the series in three straight games.

Argos Wallop Tigers In 21-8 Win; Riders Wash Cubs 37-0; 16,000 See Sarnia Take Beaches

By Sydney Gruson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Coming out of the season's opening football scramble without a single upset, the East took stock today of a half-dozen results that left it little the wiser of where to look for the section's 1938 champion. First returns showed only three of the 12 teams beyond serious consideration.

National champions of 1937, Toronto Argonauts, escaped unscathed in their first Interprovincial Union brush against Hamilton Tigers, while their strongest rivals, Ottawa Rough Riders, stampered Montreal Cubs 37-0. Argos licked Tigers 21-8 on a last-quarter rally.

These results left fans two weeks to wait until they get a definite line on the strength of both victors. They will meet in Toronto October 22 and in Ottawa the following Saturday.

Opening Saturday with the Big Four, the Intercollegiate Union found University of Toronto pounding out a 13-6 victory over Queen's at Kington, and McGill, with Herbie Westman kicking all the points, defeating University of Western Ontario 4-1 at Montreal. About all this proved was that the college circuit had four evenly - matched teams.

16,000 Attend.

Topping all others, Sarnia Imperials and Toronto Balmy Beach drew 16,000 to Varsity Stadium in Toronto yesterday, while they opened the Ontario Union Senior series with a hard-fought, well-played game, won 8-6 by Imperials. In Montreal the newly-formed Nationals swamped Peterborough Orfuns 26-6 before 4,500 fans.

Warren Stevens' Toronto Collegians suffered the toughest blow when they lost Jim MacDonald, swift backfielder, for the season. MacDonald fractured an ankle in the third quarter, just before the blue machine started rolling to wipe out a five-point, half-time deficit with touchdowns by Ken Shuken and Bee Rowland.

Queen's, vastly underrated in early-season figuring, set Toronto back swiftly as Jack Brown kicked a single and Joe Turner picked up a fumble for a 15-yard run and a touchdown. Once Toronto started, however, with Cam Gray and Rowland picking up power as the game lengthened, they couldn't be held in check.

McGill got the one thing they lacked last season—good kicking—and they made the most of Westman's advantage over Lyn Thompson and Jack Kennedy. When Western threatened, Westman got the Redmen out of the hole with his kicking, aided by strong plunging by Bob Keefer and Andy Anton.

The Tigers Fold

For three quarters, Tigers appeared equal to the Canadian champions, then they folded as Art West raced 35 yards for one touchdown and 45 on an extension play to the Tigers five from where Teddy Morris scooted over for another. Tigers led 6-1 at the end of the first quarter, were even at the half, 6-6, and were only two points behind as Argos led 9-7 at the end of the third.

Tigers outpassed and outplunged the champions, gaining 229 yards from scrimmage to 122 for Argos. Leading the Hamilton assault was young Denny Whitaker, the outstanding player of the game, who handled the team perfectly from quarterback, caught faultlessly and plunged and passed well. He fired a touchdown pass to Ivan Edwards after Argos gave them the ball on a fumble seven yards out.

Cubs, made over from the remnants of last season's Montreal Indians, were no match for the Ottawa tanks. Marching down the field almost at will, Riders scored six touchdowns with Stan O'Neil gathering two on passes. Dave Sprague, Binny Wadsworth, Orville Burke and Andy Tommy shared the others.

Syd Reynolds picked up a fumble by Hugh Stirling to run 78 yards for a touchdown in the second minute of the Beach-Imperial game, then Stirling proceeded to make up for the bobble by kicking and passing Imperials to victory. A perfect flicker-pass play on which five men handled the ball gave Imperials their winning touchdown in the second quarter.

Tony Golab, replacing the late Orm Beach on the Imperial backfield, finally carried it over.

Though defeated and outplayed most of the way, Beaches showed they would be in the thick of the fight with Imperials and Montreal Nationals, who scored in every quarter over the youthful Orfuns, making their first start in senior company.

Two 25-yard passes by Johnny Ferraro paved the way for two touchdowns, both by Tommy Burns, while Buddy Atcheson got the other on a 35-yard sweep around the end. Norm Louckes was Peterborough's best, setting up their touchdown with a 35-yard sprint to the Nats' five. Don Crowe plunged over.

Pioneer Citizen Of Asphodel Is Laid To Rest

The funeral of Henry Humphries down the Villiers Road from Keene to Hastings Saturday afternoon was his final passing through the countryside which he had known for almost one hundred years. His next birthday March 4, 1939, would have been his ninety-ninth, for he was born in 1840 in the old Humphries neighborhood along the side of Asphodel township. In his boyhood he knew many of the earliest pioneers, he had shared their hardships and also the toil of clearing the land of its virgin timber and preparing the farms virtually as they appear today and are used by another generation.

In that boyhood so long ago he had lived further along to Hastings than the old hamlet of Villiers. In fact he had grown up with the village on Crooks Rapids, as Hastings was first known, because it was the nearest collective community his farm home. But, in conversations with the Examiner about conditions of the people in those pedestrian times he used to speak of the Villiers-Keene Road, as some men do the Dover Road and the Boston turnpike, because it was the main highway of interest to himself and his neighbors. It was almost the only one, and beyond Keene the road to Peterborough. Places like Villiers were postal centres; nowadays there is hardly any distinguishing feature to set them apart from the rest of the concession line. And so Villiers loses the significance it once held out to Henry Humphries and his contemporaries.

Reeve Stewart Ferguson of Keene who conducted the service in the United Church, avoided a personal eulogy or reference, but spoke of the pioneers of this county and country, of whom Henry Humphries was a worthy representative. Those men who were the first to till the soil they had wrested from nature, and who literally hewed homes for themselves in the woods were notably men of strength, and tenacity and determination, men of rugged characters who overcame the difficulties that beset them, and carried through to success the purposes to which they had set their hands. They handed on their faith and industry to those who followed them, but Rev. Mr. Ferguson wondered whether those qualities were being maintained today as they were by the pioneers, by the men like Henry Humphries.

The funeral service was largely attended. The pall bearers were John Drummond and Ralph Drummond, George D. Humphries and George L. Humphries, Ralph Humphries and Howard Fife, all nephews of the deceased. Interment was in the Trent Valley cemetery at Hastings where the committal prayers were recited by Rev. D. K. Perry of St. Andrew's Church.

A few days prior to his death, which was rather sudden, Mr. Humphries had discussed with Rev. Mr. Ferguson the likelihood of numerous traffic accidents during the approaching week-end, and had wondered why twenty miles an hour would not satisfy the modern world's demand for speed. He had recently followed the main course of the Sudeten crisis, and had retained his faculties to the end. His death removes a vital link between the swift moving present and the first years of Victoria, another memory of the life and times in this county when the Henry Humphries, that are now gone, were all boys of promise in a generation that has passed back to the dust.

OBITUARY

MRS. STEPHEN SMOKE.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Oct. 11.—The death occurred in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, on October 9 of Mrs. Stephen Smoke, of Alderville, following a lingering illness. Mrs. Smoke is survived by her husband and five young children, of Alderville; one sister, Mrs. Allan Taylor of Curve Lake, and two brothers, Oliver Crowe of Port Hope, and Walter Crowe of Grimsby.

MRS. BIRDSALL RADLEY.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Oct. 11.—The death occurred on Saturday at Hamilton of Mrs. Birdsall Radley of Roseneath. Mrs. Radley, who was in her fifty-first year, had suffered ill-health for many months. About July 1 she was removed to Hamilton. She was a quiet, devoted wife and mother. Before her marriage she was Mary Fleming, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Fleming of Alnwick Township. Surviving are her husband; one daughter, Verna; two sons, Earl and Eric of Roseneath; one brother, Uriah Fleming of Port Hope; one half-brother, John Douglas of Western Canada, and one sister, Mrs. Wilbert Sandercock of Port Hope.

The funeral service was held in the United Church, Roseneath, on Monday at 2.30 p.m., conducted by Rev. L. W. Scott. Interment was in Merrill's Cemetery.

MRS. NORA WALSH.

DOWNEYVILLE, Oct. 11. — The funeral of the late Mrs. Nora Walsh was held from the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Vincent Perdue, to St. Luke's Church, Downeyville, where requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Father McFadden, who also said the prayers at the cemetery. The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Joseph Guiry, John Perdue, Thomas Sullivan, Peter Perdue, Patrick Perdue and Bill Murtha.

The late Mrs. Walsh had been ill only a few days and her condition was not considered serious until the last, when she passed peacefully away at the home of her daughter, with whom she has resided for the past two years.

She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Vincent Perdue, and two sons, Raymond and Cecil Ryan of Newark, N.Y. The funeral was largely attended by friends from the surrounding districts, showing the high esteem in which she was held by all who knew her.

JAMES EDMOND JOHNSTON.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 11. — The death of James Edmond Johnston occurred on Friday morning at Havelock Hospital following an illness of three years, being stricken with a seizure a few days before his passing, in his 83rd year.

Born at Stanwood, son of James Johnston, he was married to Margaret McMaster of South Dummer, who predeceased him in 1930, while living at Campbellford, where he was manager at the H. M. Fowlds coal, wood, and grain dealers. He afterwards moved to Peterborough, where he remained for nine years, and latterly made his home with his son Percy at Cedar Lodge, Trent River. In religion he was a Methodist, of a quiet and unassuming nature, and made many friends.

Surviving are two sons, Thomas M. of Peterborough, Percy of Trent River, one daughter, Mrs. James Milne (Jennie) of Campbellford, and one granddaughter, Margaret Johnston of Peterborough. He was the last of a family of eight.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon at 1.30 p.m., service at the home being conducted by Rev. H. B. Neale of Campbellford, pastor of the United Church. Interment was made at Little Lake Cemetery, Peterborough.

MRS. JOHN CROSS.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Oct. 11. — Residents of Deloro and Marmora were shocked on Monday morning to hear of the sudden passing of Mrs. John Cross, while sitting in her chair engaged in the making of a mat. Taking suddenly ill, she called for a drink of water and expired in a few minutes.

The late Mrs. Cross was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Emigh and was born fifty-four years ago in Sidney Township. Since her marriage, she had resided on the east side of Moira River at Deloro.

Besides her sorrowing husband, she is survived by eleven children—John Edward, Port Colborne, James and William at home, Mrs. Fred Matthews, Deloro, Mrs. F. Vincent at home, Mrs. Harry Pack, Madoc Townshipw, Alice of Belleville, and Gladys, Eva, Stella, and Pearl at home. Three half-brothers and two half-sisters also survive, Charles, Wesley, and Thomas Emigh, Mrs. G. Crawford, and Mrs. G. Gifford, all of Madoc.

She is further survived by two brothers, George of Trenton, and Asa, of Madison, Ohio, and three sisters, Mrs. B. Gifford, Marmora; Mrs. E. Comey, California, and Edna of Toronto.

The late Mrs. Cross was a member of the Anglican Church, and although funeral arrangements are not complete, it is expected to take place on Thursday.

Peace Hopes High As Re-armament Continues

Despite the high hopes of Prime Minister Chamberlain for continued peace in Europe, England has no intention of weakening her defences according to reports emanating from British governmental circles. Construction of bomb-proof shelters is continuing in Hyde Park and other sections of London as well as throughout other parts of England. One of the anti-aircraft guns which was placed in position to meet raiding airplanes during the recent crisis is shown ABOVE. These guns will continue to stand in position to defend England, it was reported, as the British armament program continues.

Fine Talk On Children's Aid Work Is Given Lakefield W.I.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 11.—An outing of the work being done by the Children's Aid Society was given by Miss Young, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, Peterborough county, when she addressed the October meeting of the Women's Institute of Lakefield in the Memorial Hall here on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Stanley Higgins, Lakefield, conducted the business session.

Amongst the correspondence was a letter from the department in Toronto asking the Institute for their opinion on whether or not it would be advisable to put out a national magazine to be published monthly to replace the present provincial magazine entitled "Home and Country," which appears every three months. The new magazine would be sold at a fixed rate, in contrast to 'Home and Country,' which is distributed free of charge.

A letter was received asking for a renewal of subscription to the "Health" magazine. Anyone interested in obtaining this magazine at the club rate is requested to communicate with Mrs. Art Montgomery, Lakefield.

Mrs. White presented the treasurer's report showing a balance on hand of $22.63.

Acknowledgments were received from several persons who had received fruit and flowers from the Institute.

In response to the roll call each member exhibited a piece of her own handiwork. Among the articles exhibited were a pair of hand-knit gloves, a knitting bag, a knitted purse, a lace doyley, a piece of needle-point, and a bit of raffia and reed work.

It was decided that the Senior Institute will cater for the Junior Institute dance which is to be held on October 21. A cafeteria supper will be served. Mrs. E. Hopkins, Mrs. Howard Bullock, Mrs. A. Montgomery and Mrs. Stanley Higgins were appointed as a committee to take charge of the refreshments. It was decided that a wreat be placed on the Cenotaph by the Institute on Remembrance Day.

Plans were made for the District Officers' Rally which is to be held in the Memorial Hall on Oct. 25. Mrs. W. E. Gillman, who was in charge of the program, was then called on to take the chair. She called first on Miss Cora Charlton, who rendered two solos. Mrs. H. E. Moore accompanied her.

Children's Aid Work.

Mrs. Gillman then introduced Miss Young, who is superintendent of the Children's Aid for Peterborough county.

Miss Young, attempting to describe the work accomplished by the Children's Aid sad that the children's shelter is ony one part of the work. She explained how the work started years ago by giving food and shelter to homeless children and showed how the work progressed to the modern stage, where it has been found that each individual child must be studied in order to find the proper needs of that individual. Out of this grew a greater interest in the health and habits of the child. "Now we attempt to get each child into a suitable home environment." Miss Young spoke of the free homes where children are placed till they can be put into a foster home. The Shelter has dwindled in importance until now it is a place where the children may be stationed for a short period while they are being observed, preparatory to being placed in foster homes suitable to them.

She spoke of their work under the Unmarried Parents' Act mentioning that the society attempts to determine the cause for the child's action, and wherein possible to arrange for the father to bear the financial burden.

It was decided that the Institute would hold their annual tag day of the Children's Aid Society on October 22, this year, and a committee was appointed to ask for two representatives from each church in the community to assist with the tagging.

Arrangementswere made for the executive to meet and plan the program for the grandmothers' meeting which is to be held in November.

Trouble in the Holyland

The long smouldering Arab revolt against the British control, under a league mandate, in Palestine is feared to have broken out in a general uprising of Arabs in the Holy Land. Equipped with machine guns, rifles, hand grenades and thousands of rounds of ammunition, Arab forces are becoming bolder and conducting mass attacks on Jewish communities. Fresh infantry and cavalry regiments have been dispatched from England to reinforce British forces in Palestine. Machine guns set up in city streets, ABOVE, are now common, as the British move to put down the uprisings, while Arab agitators, Inset, exhort their countrymen to rise against British rule

It's No Surprise That You're Constipated!

If constipation has you bogged down so you feel tired, sunk, all played out—it's time you asked yourself some questions!

What have you had to eat lately? Just meat, bread, eggs, potatoes? It's no surprise you're constipated! The chances are you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is what you lack, your ticket is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and take a new lease on life! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ontario. Sold by every grocer.

CAVAN, Oct. 11.—Cavan W.M.S. and W.A. held their joint monthly meeting in the church on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. J. R. Trumpour conducted the devotional period.

The president of the W.M.S., Mrs. J. C. Swain, conducted the business session during which there was discussion concerning the quilting of some quilts as a means of raising funds.

A sectional rally was announced to be held at Frazerville, Friday afternoon, October 21st. Mrs. Kenneday, the secretary, was appointed to give the W.M.S. report.

The Autumn Thankoffering will be taken at the regular meeting in November.

Mrs. Trumpour gave a splendid talk on the champter of the Study Book, "The Channel of Rural Reconstruction in China." Mrs. J. G. Matchett read an article on India. Mrs. R. Syer read a clipping on "Christian Brotherhood" in Japan and a prayer for China and Japan. Extracts from a letter written by Miss Ruth Sharpe in Japan, describing some of the work of the re-construction plan for helping children in the devastated area of China, carried on by the College women was read. Anyone who cared to, could contribute to this much-needed work.

W.A. Session.

Prayer closed the missionary meeting, after which the W.A. held their business session. The treasurer reported a balance on hand of $13.10. It was announced that the bazaar would be held early in December.

The committee, who had been appointed at the September meeting to canvas the congregation to learn their opinion as to whether the annual fowl dinner should be held on Armistic Day, or if a contribution should be made was heard. The result showed that the majority were in favor of not having a fowl dinner. The sum of $129 was subscribed, with several yet to hear from.

Thebaud and Bluenose have felt the chill breath of the reputed jinx more than once. Bluenose, early in her career, went aground on a sabre-toothed Newfoundland shore and broke her back. It was thought she would be a total loss, but crepe hangers reckoned without her stout skipper.

She was taken off and mended, and never since relinquished the title. Thebaud beat her in 1930 off Gloucester but the trophy was not at stake. "Next year, in a title contest, Bluenose sailed away with the honors at Halifax.

One of Thebaud's narrowest escapes occurred when she was caught on a lee Cape Cod shore in a howling gale and raging sea. She clawed off, but two of her crew were swept from her deck and perished in the surf.

Flood For a Change

DISNEY, Okla., Oct. 11.—(AP). — It was tough when Disney was without water. It was just as tough when water came. Short of supply since mid-July, residents left their faucets open constanly to catch every drop that entered the mains. City engineers found a good flow, hooked it on without notice. The new water supply boomed into the mains, the faucets, the homes. Disney suffered a flood.

Four Charges Facing Captured Man

LONDON, Ont., Oct 11—(CP).—Charges today began to multiply against Gordon Barrett, 28-year-old escaped convict from Collins Bay penitentiary, in the wake of a police investigation of his brief three weeks liberty.

When he appeared before county Magistrate C. W. Hawkshaw yesterday to be remanded again until Friday of next week, there were four charges facing Barrett instead of the one preferred when he was captured in London last week.

The three new ones were forwarded from Kingston. In addition, other charges, the exact number not yet known, will be forwarded to London from Owen Sound within the next few days.

Barrett will be tried here on the charges of escaping from the penitentiary, it was indicated as one of the three informations forwarded from Kingston contained the escaping custody accusation.

The other two are of theft of an automobile from George McQuay and breaking into the home of William Garrison. The car theft charge is dated Sept. 20, and the burglary Sept. 19. Both are alleged to have taken place in Portland township near Kingston.

The alleged escape took place on Sept. 8, so authorities evidently believe Barrett did not leave the Kingston district for nearly two weeks after he gained his liberty.

Thanksgiving Service Held At All Saints

The public service of Thanksgiving for the citizens of Peterborough arranged by the Ministerial Association was held on Thanksgiving morning at All Saints' Church.

After the hymn, "Praise to our God, whose bounteous hand," the congregation of over 200 joined in the General Confession, the Lord's Prayer and Versicles, and responsive reading of Psalm 103. The lesson was read from the eighth chapter of Deuteronomy. All then joined in the Apostles' Creed and the General Thanksgiving. Prayers for peace, for the Dominion, and thanksgiving for the harvest were also offered.

The very thoughtful address was given by the Rev. M. C. Parr of George Street United Church, President of the Ministerial Association.

Farmer Is Greater

The farmer is "greater than any ruler or potentate or king or president or general that ever lived," Rev. Mr. Parr declared.

Paying glowing tribute to the farmer and his value to the community, he pointed out that "the farmer gives us our wardrobe, our cupboards, our meat chest." The farmer alone "makes it possible for the great business of national housekeeping to go on," he said. "Let the Canadian farmer die and there would be a nation-wide funeral."

Thanksgiving is the only festival day of the calendar which commemorates not an event but an emotion, Mr. Parr told his audience. There is a difference between gratitude and thanksgiving, he said. "Gratitude is the emotion only. Thankfulness is the emotion plus its expression. Gratitude is the bud and thankfulness is the bud bursting into bloom, expressing in beauty and pouring out its soul in sweetest fragrance. Gratitude is the keynote of the Christian life."

Much To Be Thankful For

Canadians have much to be thankful for, said Mr. Parr, and enumerated the bounties of life in this country. "We have the Christian church to be thankful for," he said. "This truth which the church stands for is as sure as gravity itself. We must stop apologizing sincerity. Our need today is not for expert apologetics, but we need original, first-hand-practitioners, experienters of the unspeakable things of God in Christ."

He thanked God for the "unhonored and unsung," the millions of obscure workers, "especially the homemakers, those who are placing mortgages upon tomorrow, the Christian mothers who stake the future for God and humanity by keeping their children's lives pointed to high ideals."

The Doxology, National Anthem, and Benediction closed the service. "From ocean unto ocean" was sung as a recessional.

In the absence of Canon Paterson who is conducting services in Northern Ontario the prayers were taken by the Rev. C. Cooper Robinson and T. H. Boddy, Lay Reader at All Saints'.

OBITUARY

MRS. J. W. HANBIDGE,

The funeral of the late Mrs. W. Hanbidge took place at 2.30 Monday afternoon from the family residence, 507 Aylmer street, to Gardiner's cemetery in Cavan.

The late Mrs. Hanbidge was a native of Cavan township and a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Argue. For the past twenty-five years she has lived in Peterborough and was an active member of George Street United Church.

She is survived by her husband, two sons, Kenneth and Robert, by one brother and five sisters. Rev. M. C. Parr of George Street United Church officiated at the funeral service.

Police Raided Gaming House, Six Arrested

Following a police raid early Sunday morning, Joseph Fontaine, 18, pleaded guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court today to operating a gaming house at 405 George street and Orville Fallis pleaded guilty to allowing his premises to be used as a gaming house.

Four youths pleaded guilty to being found-in and a fifth facing a similar charge pleaded not guilty and received a week's adjournment.

"The fine can be $200," said Magistrate Langley as he dealt with the Fontaine case.

"I think about a tenth of that would meet the circumstances," remarked Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

Magistrate imposed a fine of $25 and $3.25 costs upon Fontaine and $20 and $3.25 costs upon Fallis.

The found-ins escaped with fines of $10.

Mission Concluded At St. Peter's Cathedral

Concluding a two-weeks' mission to the people of St. Peter's Parish which one of them described as being "eminently successful," three priests of the Order of Mary Immaculate left Peterborough on Sunday, en route to distant points where they will continue their work. The three missionaries are seen here with three of Peterborough's Catholic clergy. From LEFT to RIGHT, the group includes Rev. Dr. J. V. Masterson of St. Peter's Cathedral; Rev. J. Ryder, O.M.I.; Rev. P. J. Phelan, O.M.I.; Rev. A. B. McLean, O.M.I.; Rev. P. J. Kelly, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral; Rev. F. E. Grant of St. Peter's Cathedral.

Case Revolves Around Mystery Beer

The mystery of how a case of beer managed to get itself near a car parked on Waterford street occupied the attention of Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning for an hour and a half and was still unsolved when court adjourned for luncheon.

The mysterious development bobbed up during the hearing of a charge against Arnold Nussey, 82 McDonnel street of having illegally sold liquor. Nussey who was defended by H. R. Rose of Toronto while Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. prosecuted, pleaded not guilty.

The crown evidence included the testimony of Roy Courneya, Gordon Freeman, Wm. Clark, Mrs. Edith Redmond and Dorothy Dindsale, all five of whom were together in a car on the night of the 24th of September but all five of whom failed to get together as to what actually happened. Roy Courneya testified that he went into a taxi stand and asked Nussey if they could get some beer. Nussey, he said, replied in the affirmative, got into the car with them and told Courneya where to go.

The Carton Appears

Eventually the car stopped on Waterford street north of McDonnel and Nussey got out. Courneya said he himself went into a laneway and when he came back there was a carton of beer near the car. He did not see Nussey after the latter had got out of the car but had given Freeman $2 with which to pay for the beer.

Mrs. Redmond testified to a stranger getting into the car on Charlotte street but said she did not know who he was. As for the beer that was found near the automobile when they stoped on Waterford street she knew nothing about how it got there. She saw the stranger get out of the car there.

Dorothy Linsdale did not know very much about the affair either; in fact she did not know where the car had stopped, and Gordon Freeman could remember very little about the movements of the party on the night in question.

William Clark was much more explicit about some of the details but threw no light upon how the beer got near their car on Waterford street. He identified Nussey as the man who had got out there.

Police Constable Leo. Murphy testified to arriving on the scene in the police car with Officer McGillen and of seeing a case of beer propped up against the running board of the car which was parked on the east side of Waterford street. Freeman and Courneya, he said, were arrested. Eighty-two McDonnel street, where Nussey lived was round the corner, he said.

Officer McGillen threw some fresh light upon the case in his evidence, declaring that he saw Courneya carrying a carton of beer down the laneway as the police car approached.

Before any evidence was taken Mr. Rose objected to the form of the information, on the ground that it involved a multiplicity of charges but the objection was over-ruled.

The crown's case was not through when the luncheon adjournment came.

Plan Innoculations Of School Children

MEETING AT LAKEFIELD

The directors of the Lakefield Fair are holding a meeting Thursday evening in the Lakefield Memorial Hall.

HOLY NAME RALLY

The diocesan Holy Name rally at Downeyville Sunday afternoon was largely attended by men representing the branches of the society in the city and district parishes. The special sermon for the annual Catholic event was preached by Rev. J. J. McCarthy of Douro.

NORWOOD FAIR WEDNESDAY

Norwood Fair opened today with the placing of many of the exhibits. Wednesday is the main day of the Fair. Frank C. Paterson, representative of the Department of Agriculture, is in charge of the Boys' Foal Club, junior farmer feature promoted by the Board.

GAVE DEER A BREAK

To avoid running down a deer on the road four miles north of Rockcroft Monday, Bruce Marsden of Lakefield and B. W. Pearson of Peterborough swung so far out to the right that their car slipped over the shoulder into the ditch. They report partridge plentiful in the northern section of the county.

ALL MILK PASTEURIZED

Since the first of the month all milk in the city has been pasteurized. Several producer-vendors are occupying their own plants, and the others are having their milk pasteurized at established plants until their own new premises are equipped for production.

PLAY PEN WANTED.

For a small child who needs plenty of fresh air, a play pen and baby's walker is urgently needed. If anyone having one to give away if they will phone 35 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. they will be called for.

EXPECT TO WIN.

Several Peterborough young men who have acquired the championship complex this year were telling the other night around the lunch counter in Bert McLeod's store that they were going to Montreal with the rugby team, and were pooling the odd change to lay on the Petes at the longest odds they could get. May be that isn't loyalty.

PARK STREET SERVICES

Thanksgiving services at Park Street Church on Sunday were given an objective background by an attractive arrangement of fruits of the harvest and foliage of the fall. Special music was sung by the choir and Rev. C. C. Boyter's appropriate subject for the occasion was "Count Your Blessings" at the morning service.

FINED $10 AND COSTS

Pleading guilty to driving an automobile while his permit to drive was suspended, Joseph O'Toole was fined $10 and $2.50 costs in police court this morning. He told Magistrate Langley that he thought his period of suspension had expired and that he had driven because he had to earn a living. The Magistrate pointing out that a $500 fine was possible under the section under which the charge was laid, warned O'Toole that he would not escape so lightly if he were found guilty of a second offence of the same kind.

NO EVIDENCE OFFERED

The Crown offered no evidence in police court today in the charge against Enos Meyette of permitting drunkenness on his premises and the case was dismissed. Chief Constable Newhall told the court the accused had promised to turn over a new leaf.

CARTER CHARGED.

Harry Carter was charged in police court today with illegally keeping liquor for sale and pleaded not guilty. His counsel W. J. A. Fair, asked for an adjournment and the case went over until Monday next, Carter being remanded on $500 bail. So did a charge against Mary Hayton of having liquor in a place other than her home.

HARVEST TOUCH.

Girls on the refreshment counter at Kresge's on Saturday were dresssed in overalls, red bandannas around their necks and wore straw hats with long feathers, the motion picture garb of the farmerette to mark Thanksgiving Day, and the Harvest time. The scheme of decorations with wheat, pumpkins and fruit formed a background for the girls.

LITTLE LAKE'S BEAUTY.

Southend citizens didn't need to go up the Dorset Road or to Loon Lake or anywhere else in Central Ontario for beauty this morning. Their own Little Lake with the background of the cemetery trees in autumnal coloring, amplified by the Ashburnham shore, and a light mist over the blue water had all the charm and attractions of the famous scenic spots. It lacked only rugged outline.

THERMOMETER UP TO 85

October revelled in golden weather today. The thermometer rose at noon to 85 degrees, the first time since August 29th the mercury soared to that level. Bright sunshine reflected everywhere from the many colored leaves filled the air with glowing light, and incidentally forced the shivery brethern to cast aside the winter underwear they had put on during the chilly two weeks in September.

ONGUS DORAIS' TEAM.

Peterborough friends of the family have been following with a great deal of interest this fall the progress of Jack Halpin, half back on the University of Detroit football team whose name has been recurring in the sport pages of the Detroit press. He is only 18 years, is 5 feet 11 inches, and weighs 167 pounds. In his sophomore year he has earned a place on the varsity. Gus Dorais, one of the greatest football players produced at Notre Dame under Knute Rockne, is the head coach of the U. of D. Jack Halpin is a son of Grover Halpin of this city, and is an undergraduate in the department of commerce and finance.

ARE SIN, DISEASE, AND DEATH REAL?

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon for First Church of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday. The Golden Text was, "I will restore health unto thee, and I will heal thee of thy wounds, saith the Lord." (Jeremiah 30:17). Selections from the Bible included the following: Isaiah 33:22. 24, "For the Lord is our judge; the Lord is our law-giver, the Lord is our king; he will save us. And the inhabitant shall not say, I am sick; the people that dwell therein shall be forgiven their iniquity.'" Correlative citations from th Christian Science textbook, included the following: "God does not cause man to sin, to be sick, or to die. Sin, sickness, and death must be deemed as devoid of reality, as they are of good, God."

IS REMANDED

A charge against John Yates of illegal possession of liquor was called in police court this morning. The accused pleaded not guilty and the Crown asked for a remand until Thursday.

THOMAS CLEARY AGAIN

"Make it as few days as you can, Your Worship," begged Thomas Cleary in police court this morning, as he pleaded guilty to a drunk charge. The fine was $10 and the alternative which was all the veteran Thomas was concerned with was made seven days in jail.

WHEN LONDON "BLACKED OUT"

Enroute to Oxford University, Tom Allen, M.A., of this city, learned vividly the tragic nearness of war to Great Britain. On his first night in London, during the anxious days of the past fortnight, the entire city was "blacked out," as the defence chiefs prepared for any eventuality. "It was an eerie, ghost-like city," he wrote.

Little Britain's Grand Old Man Swims, Cuts Wood At 92

LINDSAY, Ont., Oct. 11—(CP)—Robert Ferguson Whiteside is the grand old "young" man of Little Britain. He is in his 92nd year and a few days ago stripped and went for a swim in a pond located on his farm.

Mr. Whiteside boasts of his younger days when he was the leading honey producer of the district. He has written articles on bees which have been published in Canada, New Zealand and Australia.

Right now Mr. Whiteside is writing an article on "Marriage Ceremonies," and claims he is going to show up the preachers of today.

This hardy little old man, with the white beard, jolly voice, and happy disposition, also cuts his own wood, handling even big logs. He already has his winter supply out, sawed and in the shed.

Sportsman Has His Partridge Fly in the Window of His Car

TO HAVE a partridge dinner fly at you from the bushes as you drove along the highway, a day before the five-day season opened, and just in time for Thanksgiving dinner would be something to test your respect for the law.

Such a thing happened to a Peterborough sportsman on Sunday afternoon as he was driving home from Curve Lake and he is shamefacedly—albeit a little gluttonously—admitting that he fell on before the tempter after the tempter had fallen before him. The partridge flew in front of his car, was instantly killed. The sportsman looked about to see that no game warden was lurking among the trees, then hurriedly threw the bird into his car, cooked it for his Thanksgiving dinner.

Guns boomed on all fronts on Monday as hunters opened the five-day season with a vengeance. On upper Stoney Lake, holidayers reported that scarcely a minute passed all day without the report of a gun.

Band Tatto Is Being Planned Lindsay Arena

A monster band tatto and brass band variety show is to be held at the Lindsay Arena Wednesday, October 12th. This is the first time in many years that a band tatto of this size has been attempted in Lindsay. The object of this production is to assist the Lindsay band financially with a view to purchasing new uniforms. There will be five bands in all take part, the Lindsay Citizen's Band, the Lindsay boys' band, the Peterborough regimental band, Whitby citizens' band and Cannington town band. Preceding the show will be a street parade led by the Lindsay Boys' Band from the armouries to the arena. As added attractions, Betty and Jean, tap dancers extraordinary will be featured, also Tom Brown the new band master at Lnidsay will render several selections played on the oldest saxaphone in the world. Mr. Brown was one of the original famous six Brown brothers, who travelled all over the world in theatrical engagements. Mr. Brown was presented with this saxaphone by Adolph Sax of Belgium, the first man to ever manufacture an instrument of this kind. The sight of a hundred and fifty musicians all playing at the one time should be a thrilling sight to see and hear and a bumper crowd is expected for this event. These five bands taking part are all outstanding musical organizations and a real evening's entertainment is promised for all lovers of music. Our own local regimental band led by Band Master Peryer will take part and with their new uniforms should present a brilliant sight. Popular prices will be in effect for this event and the show is scheduled to start promptly at 8.30 p.m.

Danforth Business Men Here Wednesday

Business men of the city are reminded of Wednesday night's meeting in the Chamber of Commerce at 7.45 o'clock at which five members of the Danforth Business Men's Association, Toronto, will be guest speakers. The Toronto visitors have a wealth of experience behind their successful organization, and their talks are likely to be more in the nature of answering questions than in making set addresses. The local association is now entering its second year, and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance of business men to lend their presence and interest to the association. Chief Gimblett will give a short talk on fire prevention and its benefits.

Too Many Strutters

KITCHENER, Ont., Oct. 11—(CP)—Photographing turkeys isn't an easy assignment. A Photographer visited the farm of Chas. A. Schaifer, Breslau, to obtain a Thanksgiving Day "shot." When he went to photograph one of the fowl the others gathered and blocked the view. For more than an hour the photographer, clucked, hissed and shooded the turkeys without result. As he prepared to leave a turkey in the front ranks puffed and huffed and spread his tail. The cameraman got his picture.

Driver Receives Scalp Wound

Walter Hanley of Galt received a three inch scalp wound Monday afternoon on Highway 28, a mile south of Springville when a front tire on his car blew out hurling the car into the ditch. His wife was badly shaken up by the mishap, and injured her elbow.

Hanley was on his way home to Galt after visiting friends in this city. He and Mrs. Hanley were brought to the Clinic for treatment.

Monday night as the Hanley car was being towed from the ditch another vehicle being driven south on Highway 28 by Frank Nelson of Toronto had to take the ditch to avoid striking a car coming in the opposite direction where the red lights marked the scene of the first accident. Mr. Nelson with his wife were also on the road home after visiting friends in Havelock. Mrs. Nelson was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital and is suffering from shock and body bruises.

Mission Concluded In St. Peter's Parish

Three priests of the Order of Mary Immaculate, who range oil Canada and the United States in their missionary work, on Sunday completed a two-weeks' mission to the people of St. Peter's Parish. The men are Rev. J. Ryder, Rev. P. J. Phelan, and Rev. A. B. McLean.

"An eminently successful mission," was the way Rev. Father McLean described the work in this city. He and Father Ryder will go to Moncton, New Brunswick, to conduct similar missions, while Father Phelan is en route to Noranda.

Father McLean is physical instructor to the St. Pats' football team, "and confidentially, they're the next Dominion champions," he revealed.

The work of these men carries them from Alaska to Hollywood, from the Arctic circle to the Mexican border. Father McLean has one ambition taht he will attain some day. His grandfather, John Cameron McLean, was a member of the Hudson's Bay company and discovered of a waterfalls on Labrador that now bears his name. He was the first white man to penetrate the Ungava district. Now his grandson hopes some day to make that same trip, this time carrying a camera, to experience the same hardships his grandfather did.

T.M. McWilliams Died On Sunday In His 67th Year

One of Peterborough's veteran business men, Theodore Maxwell McWilliams, manager of the Peterborough Hardware Company for 30 years died Sunday at St. Joseph's Hospital in his 67th year.

The late Mr. McWilliams was born in this city, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McWilliams. He was educated at the public school and collegiate here and after serving his apprenticeship as a hardware clerk with the firm of McKee and Davidson went to Collingwood where he worked in the hardware business for several years. In 1907, McWilliams and Dr. Henry Wightman acquired the capital stock of the Peterborough Hardware Company which had been formed in 1893 and the business was handled by McWilliams until it closed its doors about two years ago.

The late Mr. McWilliams' father, J. B. McWilliams was Ontario Crown Lands Agent at Peterborough for many years.

Theodore McWilliams was a keen businessman but very retiring in his manner and habits. He was a great man for his home and would go from his work at six o'clock in the evening and never leave the house until time to return to work the next day. He was kindhearted and genial but because of his retiring nature was not so well known as other men in business the same length of time. He had no fraternal connections.

He is survived by two sons, R. B. McWilliams and J. B. McWilliams both of this city, one brother, R. F. McWilliams, a barrister at Winnipeg and one sister Mrs. W. H. Miller of Peterborough. Another brother Dr. Victor McWilliams died in Toronto a few years ago.

The funeral was held this afternoon from the residence of his son R. B. McWilliams, 506 Weller street at 2 o'clock to Little Lake cemetery. Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's Church conducted the funeral service.

Woman Is Charged With Selling Liquor

Mrs. Max Vincent pleaded not guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court today to illegally selling liquor on October 10th.

"Are you ready to go on with your case?" asked Magistrate Langley.

Mrs. Vincent replied in the negative, stating that she wanted a chance to consult her lawyer.

The Crown offered no objection to an adjournment and the case was set for Tuesday next, October 18.

AFRAID TO MARRY

By HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Judy Rogers, New York heiress, is looking for a job because her father has been wiped out in a financial crash. When her father goes west with her step-mother, her own mother being abroad and remarried, Judy moves to a small hotel. Heart-broken because Craig Denby, the man she loved, married another girl, she finds solace in the company of Ronald Birrell, brilliant young attorney from Tennessee, who recently joined the firm of her father's lawyers. Afraid of marriage, Judy realizes that is why she lost Craig. When she learns from her best friend, Marjorie, that Craig and Mary, his bride of a few weeks, have separated, Judy calls on Mary and phones Craig in an effort to bring them back together. A second call on Mary is necessary to bring about a reconciliation. Judy cannot find work and one evening she returns to the hotel to find herself locked out because her rent is overdue. On the day she lands a job at Danceland as a hostess, Ronald tells her of an opening as social secretary to the wealthy and ambitious Abbey Boland, engaged to marry a count. Judy declines it. When a reporter spots Judy at Danceland, she decides to take the position at Abbey Boland's home. There was much publicity and mystery over the fact she had exchanged dresses with another hostess who had admired the gown she was wearing.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 18

The newspapers carried a story featuring Judy the next day. They user her picture and that of the girl to whom she had given the dress. They played up the whole thing as a mystery. Who was the girl who had traded dresses? Why had she done it? Where had she gone? Was it Judy Rogers, or someone who resembled her?

Marjorie telephoned, her curious and amused.

"Come to dinner and tell me about it", she urged.

"I'd love to. By the way, I have a job, Marg. I'm handling a count and an heiress. I start next week."

"Not Abbey Boland and Count Phillippe Alexis Von Gunderfield?"

"I might have known that would give it away. Not many people are marrying titles this season."

"The Count docks tomorrow."

"Do you know him?" Judy asked curiously.

"I used to. A little. Baybe I'd better warn you. He has charm the kind that makes you think he'd skid down a glass hill to buy you a five-cent apple, and he's got a profile that should be preserved. I had an acrobatic heart about him for a month a couple of years ago. I'm well now."

"He wouldn't waste one of his priceless smiles on me. I'm a working girl. But I'll ask you a lot of questions, Marg. Is dinner at eight?"

"Same old time. Don't dress. There'll be just the two of us. The family is invited out."

Walking along Park Avenue after she left the subway, Judy remembered another night much, earlier in the autumn, when she had hurried down the rainy street to buy a paper. Once more her pictures were on the news stands. Again she was a name to reckon with. It must mean something. Either no one knew how utterly devastated her father's fortune was, or else he was making a comeback, or the beginning of one.

She bought a white gardenia from a flower vender and fastened it at the round collar of her slim black coat. Her hat was a ridiculously small tilted plaque that held a flower bed of autumn blossoms. It tied behind her bright brown curls with a black velvet ribbon.

Half amused at the sensation her attempt to be a dance hostess had caused, she smiled to herself. She could write her memoirs — call it "Society girl on her own in New York"— and supply some really good reading material, she reflected ruefully. Well, if she won a prize in design, she could let her identity be known.

She was in a friendly humor when she entered the private lift that would take her to Marjorie's apartment. Still smiling, she rang the bell and followed the butler into the drawing room.

Then the smile became fixed, a paointed grimace that didn't move. She was looking at Craig. He was smiling at her,holding out his hand, saying something.

She had put his memory aside lately. She thought he did not matter so much any more. Yet here he was, flesh and blood, broad-shouldered, tall, blue-eyed. He had not changed. And her heart was crumbling just as it had crumbled before.

In a second she had regained her composure. She held out her hand, too, making a light remark, smiling disarmingly. She saw Mary at the far corner of the room, in conference with Marjorie, and joined them.

"We certainly are informal, barging into people's houses just before dinner," Mary said, and Judy noticed how rested, calm, and happy she looked. "I meant to leave a message with the doorman but Marporia was just coming in and brought us up. You see, I know the count who's taking an American bride— my cousin knows him well, and she's my reason for it. We didn't have titles in my town back home.

"There's a party planned in his honor, to meet him when he docks. I was to tell Marjorie."

"You'll go, of course, Judy," Craig said.

"No, not this time. I'm on his fiancee's staff. Think how she would feel giving the orders for wedding invitations to a girl who met the boat. I know my place, my dear!"

After that it was casual and easy to chat with Craig and Mary. When they prevailed upon Marjorie and Judy to join them for dinner at some quiet place where there was no need to dress, Judy went along willingly and enjoyed it. Her heart had righted itself. It sat calmly enough on its ledge and didn't wobble when Craig flashed her a smile, or mad an allusion to that world where they had laughed together.

Judy looked at Marjorie and wondered if she had been very upset when the count had turned away, and ridden his romantic charger up another maiden's palace steps. You couldn't tell about Marjorie. She wore her mask so well it appeared real. Maybe it was. Now as for Mary, she had not grown up in the subtle society of that ultra sophistication which demanded that you take anything and everything with a long, lazy smile. Judy liked her very much, she realized.

Three dayes later a storm broke around Judy's head. Her father had been informed of the story in the newspapers. He had cabled her mother, learned that Judy was not with her, and investigated. Chagrined, humiliated, he wired her that he was not responsible for her behavior. He commended her to her mother's care and suggested she take the next boat to Cherbourg.

A cable from her mother followed her father's message. She was amused, hoped to see Judy sometime in the spring, and said goodbye. She was sailing the next day.

Always before, during the weeks that she had been independent and unwanted, Judy had cherished a secret consolation that she could turn to her parents if matters grew too bad. They did not want her, but they would do their duty. Now the gate had closed, the key had turned, and she might look at the tall walls forever. She was on the outside.

She felt lonely. Ronald called her a time or two but he was quite busy. So was Marjorie. The social season was in full swing. It was a month yet until the fashion group which was sponsoring the contest in design would make a decision. With a curiously let-down feeling Judy took the train, in November twilight, to the great estate of the Bolands on Long Island. She had been hired solely on Ronald's recommendation.

A station wagon met her, and the chauffeur piled her bags and boxes inside. There were a few snowflakes in the air. The road ran along the Sound for half a mile, and the clear, cold air was invigorating and fresh. It was good to be away from the city, she thought. Some place in the distance a light house lamp blinked.

Here was the drive, winding and wide. At its far end there loomed a vast white house, whose galleries and ells and additions stretched away. Lights shone, and a car or two were parked at the driveway, at the side of the entrance.

She rad an impression of wealth as she followed the butler up the hall, and another servant up the deeply carpeted stairs to her own suite. She liked the bedroom at once. It was green and white, with cushions heaped on the wide window seats and the chaise lounge. There was an open wood fire, big desk with a typewriter in an alcove, a shelf of the latest books, yellow roses in copper bowls.

Living in the Boland residence might be nice, after all. She wondered where and when she would eat. She was hungry. A maid solved the problem. She appeared with a tray, covered with a crisp white napkin. There was clear hot consomme, black olives and celery, half a small roast chicken stuffed with chestnut dressing, vegetables, a green salad, an ice and coffee on the tray. Judy began to eat, welcoming the good food after her diet at the automat and the cafeterias of her neighborhood.

She was nearly through eating when there was a knock at her door.

Bad Manners Annoy Table Companions

Have a heart, Gwen! Stop giving your companions the shudders! It's table etiquette you should get to the bottom of now, instead of that soup plate!

If you must tilt, do it away from —not toward you. Dip away from yourself with that spoon, too—drink from its side, not its tip. Leave it in the soup plate when you're through. More about spoons? You may use a spoon to sip bouillon—or drink it from the cup. Tea and coffee spoons for stirring only—never for sipping!

Is it fork or spoon for peas, avocado, ice-cream, boiled eggs? Our 32-page booklet on table manners answers these and other puzzling questions on well-bred eating. A guide to charm and popularity through good manners.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of GOOD TABLE MANNERS to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Mr. R. E. Bonter spent the weekend at Gananoque and Ottawa, accompanied by his daughter, Marjorie of Belleville.

Mr. Jack Barrett, of Belleville,

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am 40 years old and weigh 240 pounds. My husband has begged me to diet but I cannot do it. I love to eat and only go to my friends' homes when they invite me to a big dinner, as that is my greatest interest in them. My husband works in an office where he is with beautiful girls every day and he is always telling me how pretty they look and what nice slim figures they have. The other evening Mrs. A. called to see me. She looked so neat and well-kept and ten years younger than I do, though she is older, that I got so jealous of her I wouldn't speak to her and she got up and left. Will you please tell me how to regain my husband's love and my friend's respect?

A JEALOUS WIFE.

ANSWER:

You can probably make up with your friend by apologizing for your rudeness, especially if you will explain to her that it was inspired by your being envious of her slim and attractive figure and her youthfulness. That is a compliment that would butter any feminine parsnips.

The problem as to how you are to regain your attractiveness in your husband's eyes is more difficult to solve. For you must admit that a woman who weighs 240 pounds has little physical allure, except for Orientals, whose taste run to fat instead of bone, as with Westerners.

And, alas, there is not much that you can do now to improve matters. The dieting that would have been effective twenty years ago in maintaining a willowy figure is not to be thought of now. It would not only be hazardous to your health, but also ruinous to such good looks as you have left, for when those who have been stout for a long time reduce, their skin hangs in folds upon them. It ages them until they look almost prehistoric. In addition, it ruins their dispositions and makes them so unpleasant to live with that their families and friends entreat them to return once more to their chocolate creams and amiability and let the scales go hang.

The most that you can do is to cut down on your sweets and starches and fats enough to keep from gaining any more and put in the remainder of your energies in keeping yourself neat, well-groomed and well-dressed; in making yourself so interesting, pleasant and agreeable that nobody will care whether you have a string-bean figure or are an understudy of a haystack.

In the matter of personal appearance, preparedness is the word for every woman. There are lots of things she can do about her looks if she begins in time, but that are unchangeable if she waits too long. Any woman who starts at 20 to keep her girlish figure can do it by counting her calories and controlling her appetite, but she can't gorge herself until she is middle-aged and then expect to look like a flapper.

Nor can a woman go around sloppy and slouchy, ill-dressed and ill-groomed and suddenly turn into a fashion plate. Nor can she let her mind go to seed and then expect to reap a harvest of brilliance. All of these things which we call personality are built up through the years until they become a part of us. And our husbands and our friends have the picture of us as being attractive or unattractive so firmly fixed in their minds that we cannot change it.

It is important now, as never before for the wife who wants to hold her husband to keep herself attractive because every man works side by side with pretty, smart, well-dressed girls with whom the sloppy wife is inevitably brought into comparison, which bodes her no good.

* * * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a young married woman with a baby 6 months old. My husband is a travelling salesman who goes from one town to another, sometimes staying a month in one place while he works that territory. Even with his car he is unable to get home often as he has to drive more than 150 miles each way. Now what we are thinking of doing is giving up the house we rent and buying a trailer so that the baby and I can go with him. We think in that way he can have a home. I can give him better food to eat and we can be together. Do you think the plan will work? I daydream about it all the time, but haven't the nerve to go ahead.

UNDECIDED.

ANSWER:

I think it is a dandy plan. I don't see any reason why it won't work. I live on what you might call the trailer's trail and every day I go by camps that are filled with trailer folks who seem to be having a delightful carefree time.

Your scheme gives you a chance to be with your husband and that means such a lot when a couple are young and when they should be growing together instead of learning to do without each other, as they do if they are much separated. And certainly it will do your husband good to have regular meals, well cooked, and his baby to play with of an evening instead of living the unsettled way he does now.

But don't become a trailer unless you have a drop of gypsy blood in you. If you are one of the ultra-domestic women who must have everything just so and dishcloths with monograms on them to be happy, you had best stay put in a regular house that isn't on wheels.

* * * * * *

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I have been engaged to a young man for a long time. We want to get married, but as my father is dead I am the sole support of my family. I cannot leave them and he refuses to let me work after marriage. I have a married brother. Shall I give my young man up rather than ruin his life by expecting him to wait endless years, or shall we get married and let life take its course? Something must be done.

A. A. A.

ANSWER:

No girl is ever put in a more tragical situation than the one who is called upon to decide between her love for a man and her love for her family. On the one side is her own life's happiness, and on the other her helpless mother and brothers and sisters, and which ever side she chooses means a heartbreak for her.

I cannot decide the question for you. I can only wish that there would be a little more co-operation between those who should consider your happiness a little as well as their own. I think that your mother and the children might make themselves less of a burden on you if they would; that your selfish brother should help support them instead of dumping the whole burden on you and that your fiance might swallow his own pride and prejudice and let you continue working after marriage as long as your family needs help so badly.

DOROTHY DIX.

LAKEFIELD

Miss Vera Moore of Whitby Ladies' College, spent Thanksgiving at her home here.

Dr. and Mrs. MacDougall, of Whitby were the guests over the week-end of Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Moore, at Lakefield.

Rev. W. B. Walker, pastor of Lakefield Baptist church, is still picking sweet peas from the garden behind his home on Smith street. Up until Thursday or Friday of last week, sweet peas, running the gamut of colors from white to deepest maroon, were blooming in profusion in his garden and although the severe frost of Thursday and Friday damaged the more exposed blossoms, there are still sweet peas blooming on the lower vines.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

All at once as Knarf and Hanid, the shadow-children with the turned-about names, were walking down the street with their good friend, Mother Goose, they saw a strange sight.

They saw a lot of men come marching toward them.

But the next minute Knarf, who had run up to the men and had come dashing back again, said: "It's not a parade at all. They're not soldiers. They're all carrying scissors and tape-measures, and pins and needles, and thimbles, and spools of thread. They look like tailors."

Here Mother Goose smiled and said: "That's just what they are. They're the four-and-twenty tailors of Mother Goose Town."

They hurried to catch the tailors.

Going Hunting.

"But why are they marching like this? Where are they going?" Hanid wanted to know.

Just then the four-and-twenty tailors came up to them. They stopped marching, bowed politely to Mother Goose and the two shadows, then started marching again.

But Knarf called after them: "Where are you going, tailor?"

"Hunting."

"Oh,' said Knarf to Hanid. "Did you hear them? They're going hunting. Let's go with them."

So the two shadows said good-bye to Mother Goose and hurried off to catch up with the tailors, who by this time had reached the end of the town and had climbed over a fence and were marching across a meadow toward the woods.

"What do you think they're going hunting for?" Hanid asked her brother as they ran along.

"Oh, a lion or a tiger or a bear, They've gone into the woods."

Sure enough, the four-and-twenty brave tailors marched rihgt into the woods. The shadows couldn't see them any more but the next instant they heard a loud shout.

"Knarf! They've caught something! They've captured the lion! Oh! I'm afraid. Let's go back!"

At that moment they were both astonished to see the tailors come running helter-skelter out of the woods, their coat-tails flying behind them, and dropping their scissors, and tape-measures, and pins and needles, and thimbles, and spools of thread as they ran.

"Run for your lives!" the tailors cried as they dashed bast Knarf and Hanid. "He's coming after us!"

Hanid wanted to run, too. But Knarf held her back. "I want to see that lion," he said. "I'm not afraid of him, no matter how big he is. Oh, here he comes now!"

And out of the woods came—dear me—a tiny little snail with its horns stuck out. "I'll sho wthem!" it cried sticking its head out of its shell. "I'll show them to bother me!" And the two shadows burst out laughing at the brave tailors who had run away from a tiny little snail. I hope you're laughing, too.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, October 11.

Judging by the lunar transits, this should prove to be a day of surprises and probably whirlwind occurrences, which might be considered of devastating import. While at first glance the auguries might be deemed portentous, the function of the prevalent Uranian force is to tear down with drastic definiteness so that it may rebuild on firmer and sounder foundations. In this there is the promise of assistance and solid co-operation from an elderly person or old institution. But be ready for sudden events of far-reaching effect.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of rather unpredictable events. They will be sudden, disruptive and far-reaching, with much drastic tearing down and rigid reorganization, so that more progressive and substantial foundations may result. Elders or established institutions may give sound support in such rebuilding programs.

A child born on this day may have outstanding talents, possibly in some sort of unusual line of endeavor, science, invention, aeronautics or some other spectacular line, to which it may apply its profound attention to the exclusion of all other interests.

For Wednesday, October 12.

A particularly eventful and progressive day is presaged by important planetary aspects. Much will be stirring in both private and business lives, with new matters of moment in each direction being put over at high tension and with much commotion, gratification and pleasure. All may entail rather generous expenditure or financial outlay, with probable later embarrassments or anxieties. Secret or subtl affairs may flourish.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of splendid enterprise and attainments, in which undercover agreements, co-operation or even collusion may give the desired "boost." Personal friendship or intrigue may be influential, with much social indulgence and possible heavy expenditures. These may later be a matter of embarrassment or concern, unless moderation be employed.

A child born on this day may be very energetic and productive in large enterprises or organizations, in which its engaging personality and popularity should assist in fine creative talents.

Comrie—McIntyre

The marriage of Mabel Agnes McIntyre, daughter of Mrs. Agnes McIntyre and the late F. D. McIntyre of Otonabee to Donald Ross Comrie, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Comrie of Keene, took place on Saturday, October 8. The ceremony was performed at 3.30 p.m. at the home of the bride's mother in Keene, and was conducted by the Rev. J. S. Ferguson of Keene United church.

We Noticed

...golden Sunlight that slanted through frosted glass windows and touched into instant glory the russets and golds of sprays of Autumn leaves and baskets of late flowers that banked the altar of a little country church on a Sunday afternoon . . . a shaft of light that suddenly broke through as the minister raised his hand to pronounce a benediction that marked the close of a simple, beautiful service of Thanksgiving. . . . and the next day . . . an anniversary festival at this same little church that is now the busiest spot in the community. Here is a picturesque pageantry if ever there was one! Long tables are laid with snowy white linen and decorated with small golden pumpkins, grapes of deep, misty purple, and bowls of rosy apples glowing with brisk polishings. Hurrying, smiling waiters pile your plate with delicious foods. It is an abundant feast that features the fruits of a bountiful harvest which is the great moment, the climax of Autumn, in which she will never be outdone in grandeur or achievement.

GEO. P. BROOK & SON

Aileen La Plante Weds Frances Ronco

An October wedding of much charm took place on Monday morning at nine o'clock, Rev. J. J. O'Brien officiating, when Aileen Mary La Plante, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armand La Plante, 516 Romaine street, became the bride of Francis Ronco, son of Mrs. Ronco and the late Mr. Joseph Ronco, 544 Donegal street.

Pink carnations and candles adorned the nuptial tables, music throughout the ceremony was played by Mr. J. Armstrong, and the solist was Mr. Ted Bartley, who sang "Ave Marie" and other hymns.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lovely gown of white suede lace over satin that formed into a slight train at the back. It was fashioned with a cowl neckline, and long sleeves that came to a point at the wrist. Tiny, satin-covered buttons were used as trimming. Her veil of white silk net fell in graceful folds to her shoulders from a large white gardenia, and she carried a bridal bouquet of white 'mums that was tied with long ribbons of wide, white satin.

Miss Margaret La Plante, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing a frock of shell pink taffeta made with a bouffant skirt trimmed with small lover's knots of narrow blue velvet. The bodice was shirred and had a square neckline finished with velvet bows. Her veil was of pink silk net and was caught with pink and blue forget-me-nots. She carried a graceful bouquet of bronze 'mums.

Mr. Domonic Ronco, brother of the groom, was best man.

A wedding breakfast was served after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, where th bride's mother receivd in a gown of plum lace with matching velvet hat and corsage of Talisman roses. The groom's mother, who received with her, wore black lace with black velvet hat and corsage of Sweetheart roses.

Later the bridal couple left by motor for Ottawa, the bride travelling in a black taffeta frock with touches of white, a black coat, and black and white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Ronco will live at 544 Donegal street on their return.

The bride wore a teal blue frock with wine accessories, a halo of flowers, and a corsage of Talisman roses. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. F. Graystock, and the groomsman was Mr. Sinclair Comrie, brother of the groom. Miss Marian Comrie, sister of the groom, played the wedding march.

After the wedding supper, which was served to thirty guests, Mr. and Mrs. Comrie left by motor trip, the bride travelling in a wine wool suit with black accessories.

McCall—Hutchinson

A quiet wedding took place at St. John's parsonage, Omemee, when Olive Doreen Hutchinson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hutchinson of East Emily, became the bride of Stanley Herbert McCall, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert McCall, East Emily.

The bride wore her travelling suit of navy blue, with navy accessories, and carried a bridal bouquet of varihued asters.

The bridal couple were attended by Miss Lulu Young and Mr. Wm. Hutchinson.

Long—Junkin

A charming wedding ceremony was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Junkin, Fenelon Falls, when their daughter, Norma Jean, was married to Mr. Basil E. Long of Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Long, Trenton. Rev. W. Sterling officiated, and wedding music was played by Mrs. Fred Jackett, cousin of the bride.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and was gowned in white taffeta made on princess lines, with bolero jacket, and white tulle shoulder-length veil. She carried a bouquet of red roses. Miss Beryl Bowhey, Lindsay, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing a gown of pink taffeta. Her bouquet was of butterfly roses. The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Arthur Long, Oshawa.

After the reception, where the bride's mother received in rust sheer crepe, and the mother of the bridegroom in wine triple sheer, Mr. and Mrs. Long left on a wedding trip. They will make their home in Hamilton.

Ball—Burnham

MILLBROOK, Oct. 11.—A quiet early fall wedding took place on Saturday, October 8, at 11 a.m., at the home of the bride's nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Alex C. Darling, 132 Hudson Drive, Moore Park, Toronto, when Beatrice Pearl, only daughter of the late Dr. E. L. and Mrs. Burnham, was united in marriage to William Edmund, second son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Reid Ball, the Rev. A. L. Sisso, pastor of St. Andrew's United Church, Millbrook, performing the ceremony.

The bride wore her travelling dress of dark green crepe, with smocking at the waistline, and satin sash knotted in front and falling to the skirt hem, the narrow V neckline being caught with a topaz and brilliant brooch. The hat worn was in matching shade, with gloves, shoes, bag and hose in autumn tone, this color being also predominant in the top coat of imported English tweed, with natural coon collar, assumed late when the bridal couple left, by motor, for their wedding trip to Montreal and other points east. There were no attendants, and only immediate relatives were present.

The large living and dining rooms were lovely with a profusion of hot house blossoms, and following the signing f the register, and the informal reception, Mrs. Darling, assisted by her daughter, Betty, served a dainty buffet luncheon.

Bannon—Wellman

MARMORA, Oct. 11. — The marriage of William George Bannon and Reta Marie Wellman, both of Havelock, was solemnized at St. Andrew's United church parsonage, Marmora, with Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth officiating.

The young couple were attended by Gordon J. Haggerty and Aileen M. Wellman, sister of the bride.

Couple Honored At Young's Point

(Examiner Correspondence.)

YOUNG'S POINT, Oct. 11.—friends and members of St. Aidan's church met at the rectory on Thursday evening when, together with Rev. E. C. and Mrs. Moore, they journeyed to the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Darling, to spend the evening with them in their new home and to present to them with their love and best wishes a gift in the form of a silver flower basket, and a beautiful bouquet of cut flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Darling, though completely taken by surprise, thanked their friends for their great kindness.

Progressive euchre was then enjoyed by all, for an hour or so. Then a very delicious supper was served by the uninvited guests. Among those present were Rev. E. C. and Mrs. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bland, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. Rex. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Stenner, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Merrill, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilson, Mrs. J. N. Brown, Miss Elsie Chatten, Miss Helen Coones, Mrs. Mary Windrew and Mr. Tom Duggan.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"The ministry of personal influence is something very wonderful. Without being concious of it, we are always impressing others by this strange power that goes out from us."—Miller.

Dear Friends:

We all know that certain people influence us for good or ill, but I suppose we never think of how much we influence others in what we say, how we live, and the way we act.

I knew a woman, and let there be any kind of a mixup, any form of disorder, any sort of quarrelling, and immediately she put in an appearance, things straightened out, order came like lightning, and peace miraculously reigned.

And it wasn't so much what she said, nor so much what she did. She was not commanding, nor did she dictate. It was something that emanated from her, some power that all recognized.

Think of the power of suggestion. It will make a well person sick if enough people keep saying how sick they look. And it will also make a sick person well through the same method.

All of us influence others, whether we are great or small. We can be a power for good in the world, or a power for evil. You might say," Oh Roberta, I never influenced anyone in my life, No one does what I ask, no one seems even to mind what I say. They all go ahead in their own way, regardless of me."

Well, your power must have come from you in a negative manner. You must have given the impression that you did not expect to be taken notice of, that your opinions were of little account.

What is worry but your own thoughts of failure suggesting to your mind that things are going to be bad for you? You can go and cheer another up by different suggestions, but did you ever think to do it to your own self?

Figure it up this way. You wake in the morning not feeling so hot, you don't feel like getting up, the days work seems more than you can tackle, and so you begin to suggest to yourself that you are ill.

But supposing you turn your thoughts in another direction, and up you get shaking sleep out of your eyes, knowing this is a fresh day in which literally ANYTHING GOOD can happen.

And your step is light, your heart is light too, you are in a receptive mood, and those you come in contact with are influenced by the personality emanating from you.

So, they walk lightly too, looking for adventure in this brand-new day. And those who meet them get some o fthis influence so that they are raised mentally too.

But supposing you come out to the breakfast table grouchy and sulky. Nothing is right according to you, the toast is too hot or too cold, too brown or not brown enough, the coffee isn't right.

You may not utter a word, but your influence is being felt by those around you, and out they go carrying this blueness and irritation with them to infect someone else.

It is not diseases alone that are contagious. Our rule of life our manner of meeting things, our code of honor, each and every one impresses itself on those we meet to their betterment or detriment.

I firmly believe that if everyone, on the radio, on the street, in the homes, in churches and clubs and amongst friends, if they had not talked war, suggested war, this would have cleared up long before this.

As it is, Hitler thinks he must go ahead with war because everyone seems to expect it. It wasn't just emanations, but loud speech, suggestions blared forth of what they expected him to do, power gone wrong, speech when silence was indicated, all of us influencing him and each other, and see where it has got us now. More later. Your Friend, ROBERTA.

Do You Know?

Good canapes may be made by spreading crackers, toast or bread, with cheese and garnishing with slice olives, tiny pickled onions, watercress, parsley, anchovies or pimento?

✧ ✧ ✧

✧ ✧ ✧

When making frozen desserts in which there is a quantity of whipped cream, the cream should be whipped only until smooth, not still. Cream whipped almost to the butter point tends to separate when combined with other ingredients and frozen, with a resultant curdled mixture?

October Bride-Elect Is Entertained

Misses Dorothy and Evelyn Sexsmith of Lindsay were hostesses to about sixty-six girls of the Knitters, Limited, when they gathered to honor Miss Dolly Bagnall, bride-elect of this month.

Many beautiful gifts were received by the guest of honor, and an address expressing a wish for her future happiness was read by Miss Mildred Balwin. The evening was spent in games, and refreshments were served later by the hostesses.

IN MEMORIAM

LUSTIC.—In loving memory of Mrs. Maud Lustic, who died October 11, 1933.

As long as my heart shall hold
Thy memory dear,
And e'er thy grave in loving grief
Shall fall a silent tear.

—Ever remembered by Husband sons and daughter in law, Clair, Frank, Bernice; granddaughter Shirley.

LILLICO. — In loving memory of W. F. Lillico, who passed from death unto life eternal, October 11, 1934.

—Ever remembered by his Wife.

AUSTIN.—In loving memory of our baby, Carole Anne, age eight months, who went to be with Jesus, October 10, 1936.

The chords of memories' harp are softly touched to-day,
For our darling we will never forget.
Her absence to us is a sorrow,
Her loss we shall always regret,
But now she is our guiding light.

—Remembered by her Mother and Daddy, and Grandparents Starr and Auntie Jean.

LUSTIC.—In loving memory of Mrs. Maud Lustic, who died October 11, 1933.

A wonderful mother, woman and aid,
One who was better, God never made;
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million—that, mother, was you.
Just in your judgment, always right;
Honest and liberal, ever upright;
Loved by your friends and all whom you knew,
Our wonderful mother—that mother was you.

LUSTIC.—In loving memory of Mrs. Maud Lustic, who died October 11, 1933.

Our mother is sleeping so free from all pain;
Oh, wake her not, sweet spirit, to suffer again.
She slumbers so soundly; oh, let her sleep on.
Her sickness is ended; her troubles are gone.
Just think how she suffered and moaned with pain,
In the long night hours we soothed her in vain,
Till God in His mercy sent down from above
An angel that whispered a message of love.

—Ever remembered by her son, Jim.

P.C.I. Seniors Get Second Win

Completely dominating play both in the air and on the ground P.C.I.'s Senior Rugby squad took their second straight win and a decisive lead over their group, Saturday, defeating Oshawa 20-0 at Exhibition Park. The Garnet and Grey took the lead early in the first quarter and piled up the lead adding points each quarter. They were never in any great danger because of their early lead, but Oshawa, taking to the air came close several times. It was 7-0 at the end of the first quarter, 9-0 at the half, and 14-0 going into the final quarter.

Oshawa kicked off and Leether made a nice runback to his 25. Neither team could make enough to move the sticks and for 10 minutes the ball stayed between the 30 yard stripes. Then Kovacs kick was short and P.C.I. had the ball on Oshawa's 40. Harle and Scriver made a first down, but two plays were stopped. Leether then hoisted a long spiral to the dead-line for a single. Drew made two nice passes, complete to Rake and Kovacs for a 40 yard gain. They made a first down on a wide extend but Kovacs place kick was short. Foster passed to Ward for a long gain and Leether punted 50 yards deep into Oshawa territory. Kovacs kick from the goal line was blocked by a swarm of P.C.I. players and Bob Ferguson fell on it behind the line for a major score. Diplock drop-kicked the extra point and P.C.I. lead 7-0.

Harle made the nicest run of the game when he took Oshawa's kick-off and ran it back to the 40, through a broken field. Oshawa could do nothing through the line and P.C.I. worked it to the Oshawa 10 yard line but a pass went wild and Kovacs kicked out of danger. Leether kicked to the deadline for a single and near the end of the half kicked 45 yards to the deadline adding another point. Oshawa took the kick off to start the second half and began to open up their aerial attack.

Drew and Kovacs completed several passes to Anderson and Wilson, and several more were called complete because of interference to the receivers by P.C.I. players. However they could get no closer than the 30 and Kovacs attempted place kick was short. P.C.I. marched down the field and Parnall bucked over from the 8 for a touchdown. The conversion went wild as Oshawa broke through.

The teams battled for the remainder of the quarter in mid-field, with neither team being able to hold the ball long enough to have a real scoring chance. To start the third quarter the Garnet and Grey once more began to march, when Leether caught Oshawa napping and recovered his own kick. Parnell's line smash was good for a 30 yard gain and Harle went through the centre of Oshawa's line for a major score. Parnell's attempted place kick was hurried and went wild. P.C.I. had possession of the ball for most of the quarter but added only one point when Leether kicked to the dead-line on the last play of the game. Leether consistently outkicked his Oshawa rival and Harle, Diplock and Scriver looked good in the backfield, Harle especially making several nice runbacks, while the forward wall held nicely at all times giving their kickers and passers lots of time. Drew, Kovacs and Anderson were the best of the invaders. The teams:

Oshawa C. I.—Flying wing, E. Patterson; halves, Raike, Wilson, Kovacs; quarter, Drew; snap, M. Parks; insides, Fetcheson, Best; middles, T. Parks, Dean; ends, A. Smith, Anderson; subs, J. Patterson, Coleman, Pugh, Smith, Scott, Masales, Lockwood, Dunn.

Peterborough C.I.— Flying wing, Foster; halves, Harle, Diplock, Scriver; quarter, Leether; snap, Johnston; insides, Rose, Gillespie; middles, Parnell, Ainslie; ends, Ward, R. Ferguson; subs, Gibson, B. Ferguson, Turner, Moorhead, Elliott, Campbell, Freeman, McNeill.

Trinity School Defeats R.M.C. Team

PORT HOPE, October 11.—(C.P.)—Trinity College School gridders turned back the invading R. M. C. Seconds 14 to 12 in a well-played exhibition fixture here Saturday afternoon. Spencer's plunging and kicking was outstanding for the homesters, and Hillbourn starred for R. M. C. Higginbotham scored a touchdown for T. C. S. early in the contest and Spencer added a rouge.

Hillbourn of R. M. C., completed a long forward pass to Martin in the second for the visitors' major which was unconverted. In the third Morrison kicked a single for R.M.C. and Hillbourn tallied the Cadet's second touchdown which was converted by Martin. Spencer kicked a single for T. S. C. and the quarter ended 12-7 for R. M. C.

T. S. C. came from behind in the final quarter Wallace scored a touchdown which was converted by Spencer and the homesters added a rouge.

R.M.C.—Snap, Avay; insides, McNaughton, Hamilton; middles, Stuart Morrison; outsides, Smart, Harrison; quarter, Donald; halves, McNeil, Orton, Hillbourn; flying wing, Smith.

Trinity College School. — Snap, Seagram; insides, Russel, Coulter; middles, Taylor, Wallace; outsides, McAvity, Langmuir; quarter, Turcot, halves, Waters, Spencer, Higginbotham; flying wing, Warburton.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

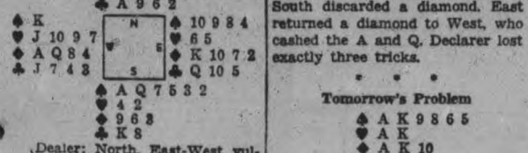
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

SET ON THE LONG SHOT

A RUBBER BRIDGE declarer is obliged sometimes to be like a race track plunger who stakes his all on a long shot, as his only chance to come out ahead on the day. Dropping a singleton king or queen can be right in that class, if the trumps are badly divided against him.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable)

The bidding on this deal began by North calling 1-Heart, South 1-Spade, North 2-Hearts, South 2-Spades, North 2-No Trump, South 3-Spades and North 4-Spades.

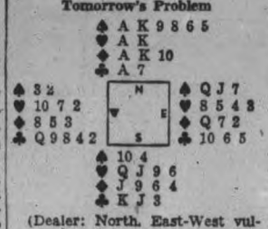
When the heart J was led by West it was apparent to the declarer that he would possibly lose two diamonds and therefore would have to limit his trump losers to one to make his game.

Missing the K, 10, 9 and 8 of spades, South realized, after winning the first trick with the heart A, that if he finessed the J or Q of trumps and the trick lost to the K that one of the other outstanding trumps would be bound to win and his chances for game would fade.

He therefore decided to lay down the spade A and the drop of the singleton K assured him that East could claim only one trump trick. Next came the spade 2 to the J, followed by the two high hearts, East ruffing the latter. On this trick South discarded a diamond. East returned a diamond to West, who cashed the A and Q. Declarer lost exactly three tricks.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable)

Playing for 6-No Trump, how should South proceed after the lead of the club 4?

Interesting History Of Havelock Told To Women's Institute

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Oct. 7.—Largely attended the Havelock Home and School Association held their meeting on Tuesday evening, with Mrs. Walter Nobes, president, in the chair.

A book on "Recreation" will be purchased for the school. The Association also decided to work towards buying a piano for the public school's use, and will hold a "birthday tea' in the near future, the proceeds of which will be devoted to this purchase. A committee composed of Mesdames Holdcroft, Goheen, Taylor, and Pollock were selected to make the necessary arrangements, with Mrs. Taylor acting as convenor.

It was announced that a conference of the Home and School Associations would be held in Belleville on October 21, all members being invited to attend.

The executive told the meeting that Bibles were being presented to the school by the Gideon Bible Society.

History Of Havelock

A most pleasant and interesting feature of the evening's program was an exceptionally well prepared history of the village, by Mrs. Clare Price, who told in words of vivid description the story of Havelock from its earliest pioneer days to the present time.

"Begining away back in 1881, Mrs. Price said that the Canadian Pacific Railway bought a strip of land from William and Alexander Mathison for the purpose of completing a railway line from Smith Falls to Toronto. A spot approximately one hundred miles from each point was chosen and here was the starting of Havelock."

Previous to this time the church, post-office, and a few stores, were located at what is now known as Old Havelock.

The Mathison brothers had the land surveyed for a village under the name of Mathison. The land west of Quebec street was owned by Alex Mathison and that to the east owned by Wm. Mathison. The land to the east was surveyed for four streets and that to the west for three streets and for this reason we have the jog in Quebec street.

In 1881 some lots were sold and a store built on Ottawa street, approximately where Pirie's restaurant now stands. The following year the track was laid and the first engine ran into the village. A school holiday was declared to allow the children to view it.

Station Built In 1883

In 1883 the section house and station were built at the west end of the village and stores and hotels were soon built near where Nobes service station now is. These buildings were mostly all destroyed by fires at different intervals. Later on in the same year the 'round house' was built at its present location, and the station moved down near it."

In 1884 the first full passenger train ran into Havelock. At this time the employees were paid by a "pay-car" which travelled over the road once a month, and paid the employees in gold and silver. Later monthly cheques were issued and two men from the Union Bank at Norwood were sent over to cash these. A large C.P.R. boarding house was destroyed by a fire a few years later.

In 1888 the Presbyterain church was built and in the next year the Anglican Church was officially opened and the Methodist Church moved down from Old Havelock to its present site. The Anglican Church had the first bell in the village and was bought by donation from all the citizens. The Swift Company of Chicago erected a large ice-house for icing beef trains en route from Chicago to cities in New England State.

Up until 1890 the children had to walk to Old Havelock school and at this time a school house was built with two rooms downstairs and a large hall upstairs which was used for different public meetings. This building is still in use and forms the north half of the public and high school.

In 1892 a bylaw was passed by the county council to incorporate the village. Coal-oil street lights were erected on cedar poles and were lit each night by a man who travelled from one to the other with a ladder. Plank sidewalks were laid on the main streets partly by subscription and the balance by a grant from the Belmont township council.

Lancaster Buys Paper

In 1893 the first election took place in the school house which resulted in Alex McNeely being elected reeve. At this time the population was about 750. In 1897 the Havelock Printing office was purchased by T. P. Lancaster, the present owner. Previous to this the paper had been called the Eclipse with Hugh Dryden as editor.

In 1900 several buildings were erected, Our lady of Mount Carmel Catholic church, the Baptist church, the building now owned by the Orange lodge, and the town hall.

In 1901 the Bell Telephone exchange was installed with Mr. A. C. Denike as manager and a branch of the Soverign Bank, opened up. The ladies' Orange Benevolent Association and the Royal Scarlet Chapter were instituted.

In 1902 the piano for the town hall was purchased from W. T. Curtis for $185 and the present park site was bought.

In 1903 the Havelock Electric Lighting and Power Co. was organized with Dr. Joseph Holdcroft as manager. The plant was situated at Burnt Dam and was operated by Charles Easton. This system was replaced in 1920 by the Hydro.

Fire Sweeps Through.

In 1904 fire destroyed Graham's hotel, McKeown's tailor shop, Andrew's store, Donnelly's house, Elias William's store and house, and the barns and sheds of the Dineen hotel. A commercial traveller stopping at the hotel was burned to death in this fire.

In 1907 an addition was built to the school and a continuation school added, with a Mr. Baines as first principal.

In 1908 the first concrete sidewalks were laid in part of the business secion. Fire again destroyed several of the business places on George street, Coons' Bakery, Barrett's store, Joyce's store, and the printing office, all being replaced later by the present brick buildings.

The First Auto

In 1908 the first car appeared in the village, being bought by Wm. Cornell. It was a truck type built by the International Harvester Co.

In 1910 the first skating rink was built where Curtis' store now stands and was operated by Joe Frost.

A new station was erected in 1913 and the rural mail delivery established. The following year Mr. Butcher, then principal of the Continuation School organized a boys anti-cigarette fraternity and had a bylaw passed charging a tax of $50 for the sale of cigarettes in the village.

In 1915 the 93rd Battalion organized for overseas service in the Great War. The Trench Club and Red Cross societies were organized to knit and sew for the soldiers. In 1918 the first airplane was sighted over the village and in the same years the Belmont rural school fair was inaugurated.

The Bank of Toronto and Fennell's store were destroyed by fire in 1919 and the present Bank of Toronto building erected. The same year the village council purchased chemical fire engines and the electric fire siren.

Forty opera seats were presented to the town hall in 1921 by the choir members of the Methodist church.

The Memorial Park gates were erected in 1923 by the I.O.D.E. in remembrance of those who fell in the Great War, and officially opened.

Mrs. J. Kinnaird and the late John Kinnaird started the Mission Hall in 1925, the property changing hands in Sept., 1938, and is now owned by the Faith Mission of Canada.

The local Branch Women's Institute was organized in 1928 with the late Mrs. Whitton as president, the late Mrs. Hubbel as secretary and Mrs. Bullied, treasurer.

Third New Station

In 1930 the first community Christmas tree was sponsored by the C.P.R. Recreation Club for the children. Next year waterworks were installed in the school building and a library started by the women's Institute with Mrs. R. Jones as librarian.

Highway No. 7 came through the village in 1932 and the Pearce Block, last old landmark of the west end business section was removed. The Albion Club, an organization of young men, primarily to promote sport, came into being at this time.

The Girl Guides disbanded in 1933 and presented a "flag-drop" curtain to the village for use in the town hall. This year the hall was completely remodelled and redecorated by the village council.

In 1934 the old Masonic Block was destroyed by fire, and the old Dineen Hotel purchased by the Masons and remodelled into the fine new Masonic building.

A mile of pavement was laid through the village on No. 7 Highway in 1936. In 1938 Havelock's new post office was officially opened in August, situated on the corner of Oak and Ottawa streets.

Movies of Village Life

In this the first week of October, 1938, Dr. Frank Carlton, representing motion picture producers from London, England, is providing us the thrill of a lifetime, and next week we all will have the opportunity of seeing us and our village as other see us.

Following Mrs. Price's so very well prepared address a short talk on the subject of "civics" as taught in the school was given by Miss N. Watson.

A very pretty vocal solo entitled "Linden Lea" was sung by Miss Edith Roberts, accompanied by Mrs. Holdcroft at the piano.

The attendance shield was won this month by the pupils of Miss V. Robinson, and was presented by Miss N. Watson.

Mrs. Beatrice Dewey, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mathison, claiming the distinction of being the first baby girl born in the village, related several amusing incidents of early life in Havelock.

The meeting afterwards concluded with prayer and "God Save the King."

Trophy Donor

Capt. Angus Walters, skipper of the Bluenose, has bitterly protested the proposed course for the International Fishermen's race which is scheduled to take place off Boston and Gloucester next week. The Bluenose is scheduled to race against the Gertrude L. Thebaud for the International Fishermen's Trophy donated by Senator W. H. Dennis, publisher of the Halifax Herald, ABOVE.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c

RHEUMATICS?

Get Relief Similar to a "Spa" in Your own Home

They say conscience makes cowards of us all—but what about Rheumatic troubles? You never know where Rheumatic pains will strike next. You become worn out with anxiety.

And it's probably because your liver isn't working as it should! For this is often the cause of Rheumatic pains. See what happens. Your liver gets clogged, poisons creep sluggishly through your system. Uric Acid crystals form. Pain begins. When you move, these crystals catch you with their spiky points.

This message is not to remind you of your aches and pains but to help you to escape from them. You have heard of the famous European Spas where wealthy leisured people go to take the waters for their Rheumatic pains, Lumbago and Neuritis? Well, among the chief properties of these Mineral Springs are the elements of Sodium, Potassium and Lithium. Now, similar elements have been combined in Fynnon Salt. Stir a ½ teaspoonful in a glassful of water every morning. Drink this relief-giving saline—and enjoy a similar treatment that Spa visitors pay heavily for! Escaped Man-Killer Shot After 3-Hour Hunt

Millbrook Class Visits Museum

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 11. — Thirty-five students of the Ancient History class of Millbrook Continuation School enjoyed an unusual outing on Thursday, when they paid a visit to the Royal Ontario Museum, paying special attention to the Egyptian and Babylonian galleries. At the request of Miss F. Morgan, the principal, the School Board granted her permission to take th day off with the remaining forms carrying under the supervision of Miss S. Buckingham and W. Zeigler. Public-spirited citizens stood behind the venture and generously donated their cars, calling around seven a.m. at the school for the excited group of young people.

On their arrival in Toronto they were shown through the pre-historic gallery by Miss Martin of the Museum staff. From there, escorted by Miss Martin, they visited the Egyptian display.

Through the kindness of Miss Raynor, secretary of the Museum, the students enjoyed their lunch in the Museum tea-room.

In the afternoon Mr. Classey took the group through the Roman and Babylonian rooms, demonstrating and lecturing on the most interesting exhibits, after which they were free to roam around at will, gathering at the main doorway at 4 p.m. for the trip home.

ANCHOR FOUND

RICHIBUCTO, N.B.—(CP). — A ship's anchor estimated to be at least 150 years old has been found in deep water off Richibucto. It became caught in lobster gear and was towed to shore. The anchor is something of a mystery, as no other part of a ship has been found and there is no record of a wreck in this district.

Sign of Times in Sudetenland

No time was wasted in completing the Germanization of the Sudeten towns and cities ceded to Germany by the Munich agreement. Here you see a member of a Hitler youth movement, wearing Swastika armband, changing the name of a street from Masaryk St., named in honor of the founder of the Czechoslovak republic, to Adolf Hitler Strasse in honor of the new Fuehrer. The street is in Asch.

MILLBROOK

Mrs. A. A. Huggins and Messrs. D. R. and G. Fowler were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Claire Platt and family of Wellington. A son was recently born to Mr. and Mrs. Platt.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Powell returned home on Thursday following their honeymoon trip to Boston and the eastern states.

Mr. and Mrs. George Raper and Laura Crocker have purchased the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. McLeod and will move in by the middle of the month. Mrs. McLeod and son Harry plan to leave soon to take up residence in St. Catharines with Mr. McLeod.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Fair, formerly of 2nd Concession, Cavan, have taken up residence in their new home, King street, east. Their son, Howard, is on the homestead and was united in marriage recently to Ruth Staples, also of Cavan.

Frost Is Silent On His Intentions

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Oct. 11.—At Friday's session of the police court a young man from Downeyville was found guilty of using a gun without having obtained a license. Game Warden Hodgson, who laid the information, stated that while on a patrol through Emily Township on a recent Sunday he observed the accused carrying a gun. He informed the official that he had been shooting groundhogs. The accused stated in court in answer to the charge that it was not the intention of the law to prevent a person killing pests. Magistrate Gee pointed out that the law was clearly defined and that he had no other recourse but register a conviction. The accused said he would not pay a fine, but would go to jail. If the $10 fine and costs are not paid in ten days, the court pointed out, possessions of the accused may be seized to pay the amount.

Mr. C. G. Frost, when interviewed Friday relative to the announcement that he would be a contestant for the leadership of the Provincial Conservatives, would make no definite statement regarding his intentions. In response to a query relative to the report, he simply replied: "Please don't quote me on that."

Lunge fishing is reported to be excellent in local waters at present. The other day Mrs. Ray Emery, of Akron, Ohio, while fishing in Pigeon Lake, landed one that tipped the scales at 22½ pounds. The same day Albert Smoke, an Indian guide, caught a lunge weighing 22 pounds in the same waters. Gilbert Clarke, of Cleveland, Ohio, who is holidaying at Lunge Haven, on the lower Scugog, landed a ten-pounder, and a two-pound carp was found in its stomach.

Two sudden deaths occurred in Lindsay on Thursday night. Frederick Charles McGahey, a well-known resident of the town, was found dead in his home. He was born in the Township of Ops, but had resided in Lindsay for some years. He was in his sixty-second year, and was a prominent member of the Orange Order. Mrs. George W. Martin, aged sixty-two years, expired suddenly at her home. She was born in England, and has been a resident of Lindsay for some years.

Jews Fight Immigration Limit As Holy Land Solution Sought

LONDON, Oct. 11—(AP).—Colonial Secretary Malcolm Macdonald and Sir Harold MacMichael, High Commissioner for Palestine, continued their urgent attempts today to find means of stopping disorder in the Holy Land.

Sir Harold, who flew here Thursday at the request of the Colonial Office, was expected to stay in London until Monday at least.

It was understood the Foreign Minister of Iraq, at a conference with Mr. MacDonald and Sir Harold yesterday, proposed a scheme which would prohibit more Jews entering Palestine.

Reports of this proposal immediately brought a statement from the Jewish agency for Palestine that "the Jewish people reject any solution which would condmen them to a minority status in Palestine."

"Jews are Palestine 'on right and not on sufferance'," the statement said. "Their right to reconstitute their national home has been solemnly recognized in the United States of America, Great Britain and the whole civilized world."

Ready To Cooperate.

The statement added, however, that "the Jewish people remain ready to cooperate with the Arabs for the general welfare of the country."

R. G. B. Spicer, former Inspector General of Palestine Police, in a letter to the London Times suggested two alternative ways of settling the trouble:

1. To employ ruthless force against Arab revolutionaries to conquer their rebellious people by force of arms and once this has been done to deal with any recrudescence with inexorable severity.

2. To say to the Jews: "You must abandon any further expansion of your Zionist dreams. What you have you may hold, but it must stop there both in regard to immigration and to land."

Conant Aims To Fight Relief Case

Will Appeal Quashed Conviction, Issue Too Important

TORONTO, Oct. 12.—(CP)—Attorney General Gordon Conant announced today that he would appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada from the decision of the Ontario Appellate division which quashed the conviction of Lakeview relief strikers who had been convicted of unlawful assembly.

"This issue is far too important to allow it to rest," Mr. Conant declared.

Four men and four women convicted by a Peel county magistrate of unlawful assembly after they had detained the Lakeview relief officer last April. They appealed to the Supreme Court of Ontario and yesterday the decision quashing their conviction was handed down. In view of the fact that there was also a dissenting judgment the Attorney General, after a conference with Premier Hepburn, decided on an immediate appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The relief strikers were those arrested when they came as members of a deputation to Premier Hepburn's office last spring.

Calm Postpones Fishermen's Race

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 12—(AP).—A flat calm forced postponement of to-day's race for the International Fishermen's Trophy between Captain Angus Walters' champion and Captain Ben Pine's challenger, the Gertrude L. Thebaud.

The two schooners had been towed to the starting line over a glassy sea, but after drifing about for an hour or so, they picked up their two lines again and started back to the harbor.

The race was called off yesterday after the pair had drifted most of the day.

Halifax, Oct. 12 (CP)

ONE of three girl triplets born yesterday to Mrs. Arthur Salterio was in an incubator today as a precautionary measure, though physicians said she and her two sisters were "healthy."

Meanwhile the dazed but happy father had a housing problem on his hands. "Daddy, where are they going to sleep?" asked Jean, one of his three older daughters, in their home in suburban Prince's Lodge.

"Darned if I know," said Salterio. "I guess we'll have to enlarge the house.

Two of the baby girls weighed five pounds and the other six.

Russia Building No Man's Land Along Ukraine

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Reliable reports that Russia is hastening construction of a vast artificial no-mans-land along its western frontier as a first line of defence against Germany have reached diplomatic circles here.

The information is that Russia, seeing the collapse of their efforts to forge an international barricade eastward around Germany, have dropped everything else in order to protect the Ukrainian wheat and coal fields from invasion.

A program designed to slow down and finally halt approaching army has been dovetailed into natural defences of distance and lack of communications. It is reported here to include:

Deforestation of a belt ranging from a few to a 100 miles wide between the Soviet Union and her neighbors of Rumania, Poland, and Estonia.

Populations Moving Out.

Depopulation of this zone, and in some cases resettlement of evacuated towns and farms with trusted Red Army men and women, ostensibly posing as peasants and workers while guarding the frontier and checking illegal entry.

Construction of a formidable "Maginot Line" along the eastern boundary of this quarantine belt, into which reserve stores are being pushed and fortifications built.

Development back of this area of big military concentration centres, together with well fortified and provisioned air bases. These would support the Russian air force, whose duty would be to harass the enemy not only throughout the buffer zone but before it actually reached Soviet frontiers.

Soviet militarists and statesmen for years have spoken publicly of the Red plan to "meet our Fascist enemies on the soil from whence he comes," meaning beyond the Ukrainian borders.

Claim Coffins Found Nearly Bare

Woman Is Charged Over Brooklin Cemetery Conditions

WHITBY, Ont., Oct. 12.—(CP)—Testimony that in several cases only 17 inches of earth covers the outside shell or cover of coffins in Groveside Cemetery, south of Brooklin, was given in court here yesterday when Mrs Nan Truax, Toronto, appeared on three charges laid under the Ontario Cemeteries Act.

She is charged with enlarging the cemetery without approval of the Ontario Department of Health, allowing burials to be made where the outside shell or cover of the coffin is less than four feet below the surface and failing to keep the cemetery in good order and repair. She pleaded not guilty to each charge.

Magistrate F. S. Ebbs reserved decision for two weeks on the shallow grave charge The charge of failing to keep the cemetery in repair was adjourned two weeks and the charge of failing to get a permit to extend the cemetery was set over with further evidence to be taken at a future date.

Dr. John McKinney told court he had conducted a test on some graves and found the average depth of dirt over the coffin shell to be 24½ inches. The depths ranged from 17, 19, 21 to 33 inches.

Car Minus Lights Hits Wagon Four Get Hurt

NAPANEE, Ont., Oct. 12.—(CP).—Four persons were injured on the county highway at Curles Hill near Yarker last night when a coupe driven by John Purcell, 18, of Colebrook, crashed into the rear of a heavy rack wagon, as it was descending the hill.

Frightened by the impact the team ran away, unsetting the wagon and the driver, Wilfred Connolly of Yarker, was pinned beneath it in the ditch.

He suffered broken ribs and possible back injuries and was removed to Kingston General Hospital.

Mary Purcell, 14, a sister of the car driver and Miss Ileen Wilson, 19, of Yarker, passengers in the coupe are suffering from shock and bruises.

Purcell had a cut on the chin. He told Provincial Constable F. W. Barrett of Napanee that he left home about 6.30 and shortly after his lights went out while 15 miles from home. He continued without lights, he said.

Rev. J. Kennedy Dies

TORONTO, Oct. 12. — (CP). — Widely known as a teacher in Roman Catholic colleges, Rev. Joseph M. Kennedy died here last night in his quarters at St. Michael's College. He had been ill more than a year.

Father Kennedy was born at Lindsay, Ont., in 1870.

Father Kennedy taught at St. Michael's and Assumption College, Windsor. His last active assignment was at St. Mary's Church, Owen Sound, where he was an assistant.

Crocheting, Lion-Raising Kansas Mayor Dubs Tatting War Secretary, Sissy

New York, Oct. 12 (AP)

MAYOR Ralph C. Mitchell of Independence, Kas., whose hobbies are extreme—crocheting and raising lions—said yesterday that United States War Secretary Woodring is a sissy because he tats.

Scorning plain filet or chain trebles and doubles, Mitchell was doing some dainty lace work while he told an interviewer that men who crochet are not softies.

"But a man who tats—ugh!" he scoffed. "He's a sissy." He specifically named Woodring, a fellow Kansan.

To prove he's a he-man, Mitchell displayed two scars on his knee, made, he said, by lion's teeth. He's a veteran lion raiser, he added, and gives them to the city zoo—except for those he gives away as Christmas presents.

His friends never know at the Yule season whether he'll send them a lion or a crocheted yoke for a nightie.

Forest Fire Toll Sweeps Up To 20 As Bodies Are Found Of 2 Settlers, Young Wife, Baby

FORT FRANCES, Ont., Oct. 12 (CP)—Deaths in the forest fires raging in the Rainy River area of Ontario and in northern Minnesota reached 20 today when four persons were found dead.

Ontario Provincial Police learned around noon that the bodies of Sam Fyle, 21, his wife, 19, and their 18-months-old son, and Mabel Olsen, 12, sister of Mrs. Fyle, had been found by volunteer searchers in Dance township, 50 miles northwest of here.

The women and the infant left home Sunday morning to search for the husband who had been fighting the flames nearby. The bodies were found near the home of Ben Fultz, also a victim of the flames.

Police believe the Fyle family made a circle in an attempt to get around the fire which was burning through dry slash. The bodies will be brought to Fort Frances this afternoon.

Anxious Wives Waiting

Meanwhile at Fort Frances groups of women waited anxiously for word from the fire zone where their husbands battled the menace which razed beautiful homes, destroyed thousands of acres of timber and cords of cut pulpwood.

"We fought fire too until the rangers made us get out," said Mrs. Ernest Nesbitt of Dance township, about 50 miles northwest of here. "We lost our newly built home. When the fire had completely surrounded us I left with the two children. My husband stayed with the rangers."

Mrs. Peter Venn of Kingsford township, Mrs. Joe Cogger and Mrs. Ole Larson of Dance also fought the flames with their husbands until rangers took them out in motor trucks.

Chief forest ranger William Darby of the Rainy River district, drew encouragement from today's lowering skies and the threat of rain. It renewed hope for the weary fire fighters who declard only a soaking rain can definitely end the danger

But officials felt the trail of death and ruin was burning to an end. "There is no further danger of loss of life," said Chief Fire Ranger William Darby.

Sixty Mile Front Swept

Flames, slumbering throughout northwestern Ontario since early September, fanned to fury Monday before a stiff south wind. They swept a front 60 miles west from Fort Frances and 30 miles north from the border,

Two women and 10 children of the families of three Labelle brothers, homesteaders in Dance township 50 miles northwest of Fort Frances, were first to die. Benny Fultz, 25, was found burned to death yester-

Propose Casa Loma Headquarters For King And Queen

Toronto, Oct. 12 (CP)

PROPOSAL that Casa Loma, a castle built at a cost of about $2,000,000, be made the headquarters of the King and Queen if they stop here during their state visit to Canada next year, was made today by Sir Henry Pellatt who built the mansion.

"It would be a shame if the King and Queen visited Toronto and were forced to stay in a hotel," he said. "Why not prepare Casa Loma?" He said the cost of fitting castle for residence would probably be less than $5,000.

Comb 8 States For Slayer Of 17-Year Girl

LARCHMONT, N.Y., Oct. 12—(AP).—An eight-state alarm for a blood-stained motorcar was broadcast by police to-day in their quest of the slayer of 17-year-old Mary Imelda Coyle whose bludgeoned and ravished body was found early yesterday behind a movie theatre.

Westchester County authorities, organizing the most intensive search since the kidnap-slaying of 12-year-old Peter Levine last Spring, were balked by a paucity of clues. However, between 10 and 15 strands of brown hair, each about four inches long and without the reddish tint characterized by that of the victim, were found clutched in her hand.

She was slain with a blunt instrument such as a ball-headed hammer, with which the killer inflicted from five to eight fractures of the skull. A search for the weapon in the hope of finding fingerprints was started.

Absence of blood under the body supported a police theory the crime was committed elsewhere, and the body dragged to the vacant lot. Bloodstains led 30 feet to a back road where fresh tire marks were visible.

KILLED BY STRAY BULLET

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld.—Mrs. Helen Perry of Torbay, near here, was killed yesterday when struck by a stray bullet. The bullet came through her kitchen window while Jacob Bradbury was firing at a target in the backyard.

Tokyo Warns All From South China

Don't Move Troops Powers Advised; New Canton Drive

TOKYO, Oct. 12 (AP).—The Japanese Government today urged Great Britain, the United States and other powers to "refrain as far as possible from moving troops, warships and aircraft in South China" in view of the landing of a Japanese expeditionary force, presumably for a drive on Canton.

Notes were sent to the Tokyo embassies of the principal powers asking for co-operation in prevention of incidents in connection with the South China campaign.

The notes designated the area between Swatow, 200 miles northeast of Hong Kong, and Pakhoi, about 350 miles southwest of that British colony, as the area in which neutral powers were to refrain from moving their forces. Japan asked that 10 days' notice be given the Japanese command if "sheer necessity should compel" such movements.

HONG KONG, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Japan's new South China army, estimated at 30,000 to 50,000 men, was reported moving steadily inland from Bias Bay today against little or no Chinese resistance.

Brought into Bias Bay, just northeast of Hong Kong, in more than 60 transports and landed through a blast of naval guns, this new army including a brigade of marines began marching toward the vital railway that brings supplies from Canton to beleaguered Hankow.

The railway extends north from Kowloon, in the Hong Kong district, about 20 miles west of Hachung. By cutting it the Japanese hoped to dominate the Canton River at its mouth and thus stop supplies from Canton.

An influx of new war refugees carting and carrying their belongings brought definite evidence that the war has been brought to the doorstep of this British colony 60 miles southeast of Canton.

No Foreign Threats

TOKYO, Oct. 12 (AP)—A Japanese foreign office statement today said the Japanese would respect vested foreign interests in a new south China offensive, believed to be aimed at Canton.

British, American, French, German and Italian embassies were notified informally of the latest Japanese move although the war office here maintained silence about the area where an attack is to be launched.

The landing of thousands of troops at Bias Bay near Hong Kong was described thus: "Unnamed detachment aboard warships sailed unnoticed into an unnamed bay on the China coast" where they were ferried ashore. The attack was said to have caught the Chinese unawares, with the defenders "fleeing in panic" after firing a few shots.

Prague Sending Sudetens Back

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 12 (AP).—The Czechoslovak Government granted new minority concessions today and an autonomous regime for Carpathian Russians, and took steps to ease a staggering refugee problem.

Several truckloads left Prague for near frontiers this morning, starting the return of thousands of Sudeten Germans to Sudeten areas occupied by Germany. The cost of caring for Czechoslovak refugees is so great a strain on the national economy, Czechoslovaks said, that few Sudetens will be permitted to remain here.

A parliamentary deputy, Andrew Brody, was appointed Premier of the Carpathian Russian (Ruthenian) autonomous state, similar to that permitted the republic's Slovak minority after Sudetenland was ceded to Germany.

The Sudeten refugees, most of them without funds, were ordered to register by noon to-day.

Refuge For Jews?

OTTAWA, Oct. 12.—(CP) Mrs. Nellie McClung, of Victoria, well-known writer and Canadian delegate to the last League of Nations Assembly, last night urged that Canada offer a refuge to Jewish exiles from Germany and other European countries.

Speaking at Dominion United Church, she said the Jews had proved themselves superb agriculturalists in Palestine and would be a most valuable addition to Canada.

Ploughing Match Opens

MINESING, Ont., Oct. 12—(CP)—A record crowd estimated at 35,000 had jammed into the grounds of the 25th international ploughing matches shortly after noon to-day. Nearly 200 ploughmen from all parts of Ontario were entered in the competition.

LONG WAY FOR DINNER

DURBAN, South Africa—(CP).—Coming by air 6,000 miles, a brace of grouse shot on the Yorkshire, England, moors were served for dinner at a hotel here five days later.

Child Lost On Street Takes Off Clothes So As To Get Attention

Detroit, Oct. 12.

RONALD DOWIE, two, doesn't like people to ignore him, but he takes more drastic methods than most people to gain attention. Lost on Detroit streets, Ronald got annoyed as hundreds passed by him. He soon got plenty of attention. He took off his clothes. Startled passers-by took him to the police station. His mother told police her son always does that when he's mad. Sometimes it embarrasses her, she said.

France To Spend 52 Millions More On Arms

PARIS, Oct. 12—(AP).—The French cabinet authorized Premier Edouard Daladier today to spend an extra 2,000,000,000 francs (about $52,000,000) for national defence in the few remaining months of this year.

The appropriations were the first evidence of the government's determination to push French rearmament after the Munich peace of Sept. 30 in which Adolf Hitler obtained French, British and Italian agreement to split Czechoslovakia.

National defence expenditures previously allotted by parliament for 1938 totalled 25,945,000,000 francs (about $674,570,000 at present rates).

At the same time the cabinet, meeting with President Albert Lebrun, was said to have agreed to transfer Andre Francois-Poncet, French ambassador to Germany, to the Rome embassy. He is to carry to Italy French recognition of the Ethiopian conquest.

The selection of Francois-Poncet was not mentioned in a communique issued after the meeting but ministers confirmed it upon leaving the session. The announcement was withheld officially pending the approval of the Italian government.

From Moscow to Berlin

The ministers said they decided to send Robert Coulondre to take over the Berlin embassy from his present post as ambassador to Moscow. Rene Massigli, director of commercial and political affairs at the foreign office, was appointed ambassador to Turkey.

The cabinet quit the meeting with Daladier a few minutes early in order to greet King Leopold of Belgium at the railway station and accompany him to President Lebrun's palace.

King Leopold, who led his country back to complete neutrality in European politics after lining up for years with France and Great Britain, was expected to avoid political talk during his one-day stay in Paris to help dedicate a statue to his father, Albert I.

Slovaks Ask Hitler Intervene

Czech Troops Halt In Retreat Face Hungarians

KOMAROM, On the Czechoslovak-Hungarian border, Oct. 12 (AP).—Persons close to the Slovak delegation in the Komarom conference on the territorial dispute between Hungary and Czechoslovakia said today that the Slovaks had asked Chancellor Hitler to mediate "in this serious hour."

BUDAPEST, Oct. 12.—(AP). — Czechoslovakia and Hungarian troops established fighting positions 250 feet apart to-day, awaiting the outcome of deadlocked diplomatic negotiations on Hungarian demands for Czechoslovakia territory.

The lines were established following yesterday's occupation of two Czechoslovakia frontier towns, Ipolysag and Satoralja Ujhely, by the Hungarian forces.

The occupation was a "symbolic overture," Hungarian said, to recovery of thousands of square miles from Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovak troops at Ipolysag withdrew three-quarters of a mile to the north of the town and started at once to dig trenches in potato fields and surrounding forests.

Hungarian infantry followed suit, establishing positions at close range. Hungarian heavy artillery was in firing position.

A Compromise?

First, Hungary to receive immediately purely Hungarian populated territories. Figures given here are 380,000 population living in a 4,200 square mile area.

Second, a new border to begin from six miles east of Bratislava, to run in an easterly direction three miles south of Nitra, the continue north-east to five miles north of Kassa, thence east above Ungvar and finally connect with the present border south-east of the town of Munkacs, which under this plan also would come to Hungary.

Third, the city of Bratislava would remain Czechoslovak, because it is that country's outlet to the Danube now remaining, and is claimed as the capital by the Slovaks (granted an autonomous regime by the Prague government).

Hungary also wants the Czechoslovaks to guarantee Slovakia will be permitted to become fully self-governing hoping, a Hungarian spokesman indicated, that the Slovaks eventually would prefer to associate with Hungary.

Counterfeiter Nabbed By Accident Wishes Victims' Forgiveness

EDMONTON, Oct. 12.—(CP). — George Torjusson, a confessed counterfeiter, asked a pardon in police court here from the people he had victimized during the last four years as he pleaded guilty to a charge of manufacturing and distributing spurious Canadian currency

"I would be very glad if all the people I have victimized would forgive me," he said yesterday.

Torjusson was arrested here Saturday night by two Edmonton detectives making a routine survey of rooming houses. The detectives "merely happened on the place in the course of regular rounds of rooming houses."

On the strength of a "detective's instinct," they kept knocking at the door of Torjusson's room when he did not respond immediately to their request to "open up."

Not satisfied with Torjusson's explanation he was a "handy man with tools" who made his living by making repairs to phonographs, cameras, clocks and other mechanical devices, they glanced under his bed and there found a cylinder containing a plaster mould for a Canadian 50-cent piece.

55 Coins on the Way

A further search brought to light all the apparatus required for counterfeiting along with 55 coins in various stages of preparation.

Torjusson was arrested, and in his cell told detectives he had been turning out the counterfeit coins at a rate of about $35 to $40 a month. "since he lost his job as a metal moulder in 1934. He had been "passing them as I needed them," he said.

Police estimated he had put out about $2,000 of the counterfeit coins in the last four years. Police said the coins, all bearing the date, 1917, looked, felt and sounded exactly like genuine coins, but that they were softer. The surfaces had been scratched, with dirt rubbed into the scratches, to make them appear aged.

Fall Assizes At Lindsay Last One Hour, No Criminal Cases

Lindsay, Oct. 12.

SOMETHING of a record was set in Lindsay's legal circles Tuesday, when the Fall Assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario lasted exactly one hour. There were no criminal cases on the docket and only one civil action, which caused Mr. Justice Urquhart to comment: "It speaks well for the order and good government of Victoria County."

On the occasion of his first visit to Lindsay since his elevation to the Bench, Mr. Justice Urquhart was welcomed by Crown Attorney J. E. Anderson, K.C., and Cecil B. Frost, on behalf of the Victoria County Bar Association.

Both barristers referred to his Lordship's brilliant legal and military record.

Chamberlain Fishes For Salmon -And Ideas On Defence

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Oct. 12—(CP Cable).—With every cast of his salmon fly in the Tweed river, Prime Minister Chamberlain is turning over in his mind the biggest question facing Great Britain: how to capitalize on the spiritual revival engendered by the German-Czechoslovak crisis and turn it to advantage in a united, strng and more disciplined nation.

In retrospect, the crisis brought out these indelible facts:

1. Britain's military, naval and air defences on which hundreds of millions of pounds have been spent revealed some alarming weaknesses.

2. Civilian corps like the air raids precautions, auxiliary fire-fighting divisions, ambulance corps and first aid crews were under-manned despite the fact thousands of men and women indicated a desire to serve their country in a non-military sphere—figuratively speaking they ran around like sheep on a mountain, not knowing how or where they could satisfy their patriotic desires.

More Civilian Protections

3. Protective measures for the civilian population such as the distribution of gas-masks and the construction of bomb-proof shelters were inadequate in part.

Knowing the full details of the extent of these defensive shortcomings, Mr. Chamberlain has set his mind to correct them. Full reports are being prepared for the cabinet, and the government is expected to

Secretary Of Peace?

WARREN, O., Oct. 12 (AP). — Sixth grade pupils of Elm Road School here are taking the matter up with President Roosevelt. Learning in history class there is a secretary of war, they inquired: "Why not a secretary of peace?" In an effort to balance things they have written to Mr. Roosevelt, asking his views on the subject.

Draper Is Silent On A.F. of L. Charges

OTTAWA, Oct. 12 (CP). — P. M. Draper, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, refused today to comment on charges made against the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada by the executive committee of the American Federation of Labor.

"Until I receive a verbatim report of the proceedings at the Houston convention (of the A.F. of L.) and a copy of the resolutions adopted, I have nothing to say," said Mr. Draper. "Certainly we will have to deal with the matter when we receive these."

The A.F. and L. convention adopted an executive committee resolution requiring all central labor bodies in Canada to be notified that they must be chartered directly by the A.F. and L. They are chartered now by the Central Canadian organization.

Italy Calls On France And Britain To Conclude "A Real Peace"

ROME, Oct. 12.—(CP-Havas)—The Italian Government, through the foreign ministry organ, Informazione Diplomatica, today called upon Great Britain and France to conclude "A Real Peace" following the example of the Munich four-power accord.

In an article commenting on Chancellor Hitler's speech at Saarbruecken last Sunday, Informazione Diplomatica said the solidarity of the Rome-Berlin axis was unbreakable and added:

"Against the Italo-German bloc —125,000,000 men—a bloc the numerical mass of which increases a million a year; against this bloc which has at its disposal today imposing forces and favorable geographic and strategic land, air and maritime positions; against this bloc of closely bound means and spirit, there is nothing more that can be done, except finally to make peace, a true peace, following the example of Munich.

"The address pronounced by the Fuehrer at Saarbruecken finds unconditional approbation in responsible Roman circles, as much in its substance as in its form.

"But the Fuehrer could not let pass in silence the incontestable fact that important groups and parties exist in France and Great Britain who want war against the totalitarian states and who openly regret that the occasion which the Sudeten question offered and which was considered propitious was not seized."

Wrestling Bout Fans Should Know When To Duck Judge Rules

Detroit, Oct. 12.

HABITUAL attenders at wrestling shows should know when to duck ruled Judge A. E. Gordon in dismissing a $10,000 suit Roy T. Rogers brought against arena gardens here. Rogers told the judge of injuries he received when when rushed the referee in a recent bout. "Testimony showed you attended more than one bout and should have known what to expect at the ones succeeding," ruled Gordon.

Captains Threatened

VANCOUVER, Oct. 12 (CP).—Charges that tugboat captains were threatened with shotguns when they tried to moore their booms near squatters' shacks on the north bank of the Fraser River yesterday prompted Vancouver City Council to investigate.

The North Fraser Harbor Board of New Westminster, which made the complaint, charged navigation was impeded by the threatening attitude of scores of squatters, who refused to allow tugboat captains to tie up close to their shacks or house boats.

Fasting 10 Days Pastor To Go Till Death —Or Youth Begins Attending Church

Palmerton, Pa., Oct. 12 (AP)

A GREEK Orthodox Church pastor, beginning the 10th day of a fast he said he undertook to bring more young people to his church, vowed today he would continue "as much longer as necessary to accomplish my ends."

"If God doesn't bring the young people of my parish to church," said the Rev. Kirichenkoff, "I shall know that He wanted to take me to Him."

Since the pastor began his fast Oct. 2, his only nourishment has been three to four cups of sweetened tea daily. His weight has dropped approximately from 185 to 170 pounds during that time.

Although weakened, the Rev. Kirichenkoff is carrying out routine duties at the church and parish he accepted seven months ago. He originally intended to fast only 15 days.

Woman Asks Relief Then Makes Deal To Aid Council Cut Others Off

Welland, Oct. 12 (CP)

A NEW PRECEDENT in relief administration came to light in Crowland township today.

Mrs. Steve Holoday, who demanded clothing for herself and children, but alleged many families on relief did not need such aid and further charged that others were receiving more than needed.

Taking up Mrs. Holoday's accusation, Reeve Fred J. Kilgour, board chairman, declared "If you can bring us evidence that will take any family off the rolls, we'll pay for it."

Mrs. Holoday accepted the offer, agreeing to assist the regular relief investigator at $3.50 for every family taken off the rolls.

British Move To Calm Palestine

Expeditions Start To Wipe Out Terrorist Bands

JERUSALEM, Oct. 12—(AP).—British troop reinforcements fanned out across the Holy Land to strategic points today in punitive expeditions to end guerrilla fighting that has marked the bitter Arab-Jewish conflict.

Columns of infantry and mechanized units cheered by villagers as they followed Palestine highways travelled by the Crusaders of another day.

The troops, assisted by Royal Airforce warplanes, inflicted heavy casualties on a band of raiders in a midnight battle near an Arab village southwest of Jerusalem. One British soldier was killed and another was wounded seriously.

Observers here said events of the past 48 hours indicated the "rebel high command" ordered intensification of activities before arrival of the reinforcements.

The 2,400 reinforcements included the Royal Scots' Greys from India, one of the last remaining horse regiments in the British army. Great Britain is bringing her armed strength in Palestine to about 21,000 soldiers and police.

Pepped Up in Czech Crisis.

(The lengthy dispute between Arabs, claiming to be the dominant people, and Jews, endeavoring to establish a homeland, gained impetus during the Czechoslovak crisis.

(Meeting in Cairo, the Moslem Congress, representing eight countries, yesterday endorsed demands that Britain terminate her Palestine mandate, and that Jewish immigration be ended.

(The Arab Defence Committee on Monday warned Jews to expect grave trouble in the Far East unless they gave up thei raspirations in Palestine.)

From the Jewish side there appeared to-day a sharp reaction to anti-Jewish measures in Italy. Dr. Judah Magnes, President of the Hebrew University on Mount Scopus, Jerusalem, returned funds offered by the Italian government for teaching the Italian language. Others likewise declined the subsidies.

WARSAW

Mrs. Jackson Hostess To Ladies' Guild

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Oct. 12.—The regular meeting of St. Mark's Ladies' Guild was held at the home of Mrs. Vivian Jackson on Tuesday evening, with a good attendance, including two visitors, one of whom was Mrs. A. F. Choate, an old and valued member who is visting Mrs. Donald Davis.

The service opened with prayer, and a Scripture lesson given by Mrs. E. Cooper. After the usual business routine some very pretty quilt patterns were shown and two were chosen; quilts to be made up during the coming winter. Mrs. A. Cooper was appointed to buy material for the quilts, Mrs. D. Davis and Mrs. R. Tighe are to cut all the blocks.

Other items of business were settled and the meeting closed by singing 'Blest Be the Tie That Binds.'

Mrs. Brown was the winner of the lucky cent jar. Although unable to be present she sent contributions towards it.

A social time followed, the ladies and their husbands playing euchre. Lunch was served by Mrs. Jackson, assisted by the president, Mrs. Tighe.

Mrs. Moore returned to Peterborough last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Coleman, Port Hope, were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. David Miller.

Dr. Munro observed a birthday on Sunday.

Exam 1256 Flunked Probe Decides Was Marked Fairly

Winnipeg, Oct. 12 (CP)

THE grade XI Canadian history paper which floored 1,256 of the 2,612 students who wrote the Manitoba Department of Education examinations last June will stand as set by the examiners, a special committee announced yesterday.

They ruled the history paper was a fair test and that 1,256 students failed due to the fact the students knew very little about the subject.

"The committee is of the opinion the papers were marked fairly in the first instance," the report stated.

Oshawa Steel Plant Workers Strike

OSHAWA, Ont., Oct. 12—(CP).—Picket lines were formed about the plant of the Ontario Steel Products here today after a decision last night of employees to go on strike. Failure of the company to sign a new agreement with the Oshawa local of the United Automobile Workers of America was given as the reason for the walkout. More than 70 employees are affected.

Police watched the picket lines, but there was no demonstration.

J. L. Cohen, counsel for the union, said company officials had requested a conference be held this morning in an effort to reach an agreement. The bargaining committee of the union and Cohen will meet C. E. Wright, general manager of the company, who arrived here from Gananoque, head office of the company.

Employees voted unanimously last night to go on strike. The vote followed several weeks negotiating by employees involved to gain a new agreement with the company. The plant is the only one in Oshawa 100 per cent unionized. The original agreement on March, 1937, marked the first agreemet to be signed between an Oshawa company and the U.A.W.A. local.

Dailies Raise Price To Four Cents Copy

HARTFORD, Oct. 15.—Two Connecticut newspapers have raised their price, the Hartford Courant, going from three to four cents Oct. 15 and the Waterbury Republican, going from three to four cents per single copy and 18 to 20 cents weekly rate on Oct. 15. Increased produciton costs with rising taxes were given by both newspapers for the increases.

$100,000 Outlay For Roads About Lindsay

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Oct. 12. — An inquest will be held at Sunderland on Thursday in connection with the death of Albert Doyle, 18. The unfortunate youth, a son of Mrs. Leo Doyle, was coming out of the lane of his home on Sunday when he was struck by a car driven by Wesley Lowes, of Cannington, and instantly killed. The youth apparently did not see the car approaching from the south. The driver swung to the left side of the road in order to avoid a collision, but struck the bicycle in the middle of the highway. According to the police, the car proceeded a distance of 263 feet down the road, out of control. The victim is survived by his mother and fourteen brothers and sisters.

It was announced Tuesday that the Department of Highways has decided to advertise highway contracts covering roads in this district, which will entail the expenditure of $100,000. Ten tons of plush will be laid on the highway from Carnarvon (Haliburton county) to Victoria county boundary; 10,000 tons from Hall's Lake to Dorset; 10,000 tons from Lindsay to Newcastle, and 8,000 tons from Bolsover to No. 7 highway. The sum of $15,000 will also be spent on the road from Lindsay to Cameron, and $30,000 on the Kinmount to Gooderham highway. The work will be proceeded with this year.

Doctor Is Charged After Tweed Crash

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Oct. 12.—Two charges face Dr. J. A. Butler of Toronto: reckless driving and being intoxicated in charge of a car following an accident on No. 7 Highway. The accident occurred when Dr. Butler lost control of his car at Price's Corners, seven miles east of Tweed. The car is badly damaged.

Dr. Butler escaped with minor injuries.

Attendance at Tweed Fair was very low. Postponed once on account of rain, the morning again saw rain. The attendance was the smallest in several years.

Stoco Cheesemaker And Wife Honored

St. Edmund's Hall, Stoco, was a scene of unusual activity when 400 people, old and young, gathered there to tender a welcome to one of their young men, P. Murphy and his bride on their return from a motor trip east which included Montreal, Quebec, and Ste. Anne de Beaupre. An address was read welcoming Mrs. Murphy to her new home and commending Mr. Murphy on his success as a cheesemaker. Several prominent dairy men were present who also spoke in high terms of Mr. Murphy's many fine qualities as a man and as a cheesemaker.

A vast number of gifts were presented to the young couple, supper was served by the ladies and dancing enjoyed by the young folk to music supplied by a local orchestra.

The other dead are: Mrs. Violetta Labelle, 33, wife of William Labelle, and her five children, Abigail, two, Robert, four, Arthur, six, Violetta, eight, Margaret, 11; Mrs. Sadie Labelle, 27, wife of Noah Labelle, and her four children, Florence, two months, Calvin, three, Walter, five, Charles, six; and Maxine Labelle, 11, daughter of Frank Labelle.

Dead in northern Minnesota are Orville F. Williams, 18, civilian conservation corps enrollee from Little Falls, Minn.; Joseph Dardis, 67, International Falls; and Fred Servis of Dunseith, N.D.

Water Gives Out

William Labelle was away from home Monday when fire struck the Dance township homesteads but his brother and neighbors, Bob Fetherson, Nap Lebren, Dan Patterson and Gus Anderson, fought desperately to save the women and children who took refuge in Frank's home.

When the water supply became exhausted and the heat intensified, Frank Labelle instructed the women and children to make a dash for the gravel highway 50 yards from the house. In this short run the party became separated.

Mrs. Frank Labelle and six of the children made their way through the fire to the roadway where they fell. Maxine Labelle, after escaping through the wall of fire, died from burns in hospital here yesterday.

Inquest into their deaths was opened by Coroner W. A. Boyle and adjourned until Thursday. Funeral services will be held today at Emo, 20 miles west of Fort Frances, where live the Labelle grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Labelle.

All other families were believed removed from threatened areas. "Homesteaders were given ample warning to leave their homes," said Chief Ranger Darby. "Those who refused are now being forced by provincial police to evacuate the danger area."

Food was rushed to hurriedly-erected tent settlements sheltering refugees in fire-free zones. A relief fund was started here and care of refugees organized by M. K. Morrison, relief administrator for Thunder Bay, Rainy River and Kenora, and Patrick Kerr, relief officer for unorganized Rainy River areas.

"After an inspection of Miscampbell Township, where we found 15 farm homes and buildings burned to the ground, we got in touch with Hon. Peter Heenan (Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests). He gave us full authority to act at our discretion," Mr. Morrison said.

Among those in most serious condition in hospital are Frank and Noah Labelle, blinded at least temporarily by smoke in efforts to save their wives and children. Mrs. Frank Labelle and three children are in serious condition. Fetherson and LeBren, also burned in efforts to save the Yabelle homesteads, are with them in the crowded hospital.

Thirty to forty homes have been vacated, but none know how many were destroyed. Ravenous flames swallowed up thousands of dollars in timber, farm crops, buildings, shools and personal effects.

"Timber damage is not heavy so far, only cut and standing pulp wood having been consumed," Darby said last night.

In Dance Township, where the fatalities occurred, rangers were figthing to protect the schoolhouse and settlement, but fires leaped over them, running at high speed through tree tops. The fire crew escaped only by retreating to the burned-over area.

Number of firefighters could not be estimated, but hundreds were in the blackened bush country. Men were summoned from Port Arthur, Dryden, Kenora and Sioux Lookout. Darby said every homesteader and settler in the country is out fighting the fire under direction of Forestry Branch rangers.

An Area of "Blast Furnaces"

Six pumps, each with 3,000 feet of hose, were brought yesterday from Nestor Falls Forestry Station north of Fort Frances. A special train with pumps and hose arrived from Port Arthur.

Approaching Fort Frances from any direction travellers seem to pass through a vast area of blast furnaces. Passing along the road north of Emo yesterday, automobile passengers saw fierce columns of flame spring from the crown of spruce trees where a moment before no evidence of fire was visible.

Forestry officials said the fires, burning for three weeks, were started from slashings fired by settlers. All were fairly well under control until Monday's wind drove them into terrifying action. With the temperature at 72 degrees and a wind of 35 to 40 miles an hour the dry timber seemed to explode into fire. These swift blazes were the greatest menace to settlers.

Trains continued to move through the district, but wire communications were disrupted to some extent. Heavy smoke limiting visibility made it impossible to employ airplanes in surveying the fire damage.

H. G. Weber, Chief Deputy State Forester, said last night scattered showers and higher humidity combined with lessened wind velocity were permitting guards to hold fire lines, but the danger would continue until heavy rains or snow fall over the tinder-dry forests.

Germany Wants Czech Trade To Start Now

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—(AP). — Germany wants to resume normal business relations with Czechoslovakia at once. To this end, a government spokesman said to-day, direct negotiations are proceeding independent of the International Commission sitting in Berlin.

This commission is to fix terms of settlement following German absorption of Sudetenland, and Germany believes thousands of detailed problems will keep the commission busy for weeks, too long to wait for resumption of formal economic life.

Among the things Germany wants included in an agreement to govern until the commission completes its work are agreements on resumption of rail, postal, telephone and telegraph communications, and at least a limited exchange of goods, to permit food shipments.

Questions of ownership of property, of patent rights held by Czechs which will now be exploited by Germans, and of the shifting of Czechoslovak capital out of Sudetenland are giving the commission long hours of work.

The new boundaries worked several freak situations. In one instance, an electric light plant of a town is in Czechoslovakia, but the town now is in Germany.

Charge Dismissed Against Acreman

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., gave judgment at Tuesday afternoon's session of the police court in the case of Dennis Acreman of Smith township, charged with not bringing his truck to a full stop before entering Highway No. 7, His Worship dismissing the charge on technical grounds, without having to decide whether or not the accused had brought his machine to a stop.

Magistrate Langley pointed out that before a highway could be legally designated as a through highway it was necessary that the proper stop signs should be erected on public roads and rural streets entering upon the highway. In this case the side road had been variously described as a public road, and as a lane, but His Worship felt that he was justified in coming to the conclusion from the evidence that it was a public road or rural street rather than a private lane. Therefore before a person could be convicted under the section of not having made a full stop before entering a highway from the road it would be necessary to show that the proper "stop" signs had been put up and this had not been proven in this case.

T. J. Carley, K.C., acted for Acreman in this charge, the evidence in which was heard some weeks ago.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Oct. 12 (C.P.). — Winnipeg wheat futures made a slow headway late to-day, with operations virtually at a standstill due to lack of outside influences. Prices rallied a cent at the start and then eased to close ¼ to ⅜ higher, October 60¼, November 60⅜, December 59¾, May 63¼ to ⅜.

Canadian wheat export sales were estimated at less than 1,000,000 bushels.

With United States markets on holiday, all inter-market operations were at a standstill. Buenos Aires also was closed. Liverpool closed 1¾ to ⅞d higher.

Cash wheat demand continued slow. Spreads were unchanged.

Western Canadas wheat marketings yesterday totalled 2,727,000 bushels, more than five times the deliveries of a year ago.

A Change Of Mind

PARIS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Neither "Neville Chamberlain Street" nor "Thirtieth of September Avenue" will appear in Paris this year.

In the delirium accompanying the signing of the four-power "Peace of Munich," the Paris Municipal Council proposed both of the names for streets. To-day both proposals were withdrawn. Their abandonment characterized the change of French public opinion.

Denmark has ruled that workers engaged on public relief work should not be listed as unemployed.

We Noticed

....Clusters of bows, green ones on a dress of green wool....and the dress was worn with a hat of green suede that had a pale pink bird's wing about to take flight from a high crown ...and a happy thought matched the gloves to the contrasting pink on the soaring chapeaux.

◇ ◇ ◇

....A classic, single-breasted suit of salt-and-pepper tweed with notched revers and flap pockets. A gold metal clip adorned the lapel, and with it was worn a brown felt hat with a telescope crown.

◇ ◇ ◇

....Bright gloves and shoes to match, in green, worn with a boxy coat of beige, and a suit the shade of red oak leaves. The high felt that had a crown that leaned forward....an ensemble that was perfect in line and color.

Fashions

A charming dress of your favorite shirtmaker styling, made of popular acetate rayon crepe novelty. You'll look smart and find it so useful for everyday wear. The clean-cut flattering neckline is accented by a contrasting collar of monotone crepe. It is in a bright shade picked out of the novelty crepe. It has the new built-up shoulders. The coat-like buttoned down the front closing makes you look youthful as well as slim. With the same pattern, make a different dress that buttons-down-the-front, only to the waistline. It gives a gored effect to the skirt. This one, will have a high neck with shirt collar. Monotone or plaid woollen is an ideal choice. The illustrated diagram gives you an idea of how quickly it is made.

Style No. 2632 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material with ⅝ yard of 35-inch contrasting.

Young People's Union Enjoys Outdoor Meeting

Weiners, marshmallows and coffee were served around the campfire at the first meeting of Knox Young People's Union, which was held Tuesday evening in the form of an outdoor gathering at Greenhill. Miss I. Barrier, social convener, supervised the refreshments.

Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt led an interesting and different devotional period, and during a short business meeting conducted by Gladys Guard, vice-president, it was decided to change the night of meeting from Tuesday to Monday. Several offices now vacant are to be filled at next week's meeting. Among the vacancies is the presidency, due to the absence of Tom Allen, who left recently for England, where he is attending Oxford University.

A summary of his experiences at Oak Lake Leadership Training Camp this summer was given by Ormond Benson, and a sing-song around the campfire concluded a happy social evening.

May's H. & S. Association Meets

Mrs. W. H. Wheeler, president of May's Home and School Association, presided at a meeting of the association held Tuesday afternoon.

During the business period which followed the opening devotional exercises, the Regional Conference which takes place October 21 in Belleville was discussed, and a good attendance of members is promised.

The resignation of the vice-president, who has resigned because of ill health, was accepted, and the vacancy filled by nomination and accepted by Mrs. Russel Allen. The meeting closed with the National Anthem, and tea was served by Mrs. Albert Lee, Social Convenor.

Plan Hallowe'en Program And Debate

A social meeting of the Young People's Union of St. Andrew's Church was held Tuesday evening in the Sunday school rooms. An enjoyable period of games was held under the direction of James Harvey, Gordon Harle and Harry Vass, and refreshments were served at the close by the Misses Betty and Dorothy Harle, Corine McArthur and Jean Stewart.

Misses Mabel Crozier, Anna Wright, Evelyn McGee, Helen Weston, Betty Kent and Phyllis McLennan were welcomed as new members.

Rev. E. W. Young thanked all who had made the evening a success, and arrangements were made to visit the Lily Lake Christian Endeavor Society on Monday, October 31, for a Hallowe'en meeting. The program will be a debate that "Rural Life is Preferable to City." James Harvey and Miss Frances Clark were appointed speakers on the side of the city.

Conditions In Japan Outlined By Speaker

Rev. C. C. Robinson, a missionary under the Anglican Church Board who is home on furlough from Japan, spoke to the members of the Elizabeth Bell Auxiliary at a meeting held Tuesday evening.

In giving a general outline of conditions in Japan, Rev. Robinson spoke of the confusion of thought which now exists, and which has been brought on by a mixture of the old traditions and the Western teachings now being brought in. A very clear picture of the Japan of today, with its happiness and its misery, was presented to his listeners by the speaker.

On Thursday, October 20, The Evening Bell Auxiliary is sponsoring the English talking film, "Barabbas," which is to be held in St. Andrew's Church.

Don't Spend So Much Time Maintaining Synthetic Youth—Age Is Bound To Come; So Prepare To Meet It Gracefully

IT IS a queer thing that we spend millions of dollars and tons of energy on studying how to keep young and beautiful, but we never spend a nickel or give a thought about trying to learn how to grow old beautifully. Yet the one can be done, while the other is an impossibility.

No effort of ours will stay the hand of Time. It reaches into the beauty shop and plucks us out by the hair of our heads. Before we know it chucks us into middle age. Then, before we can get our breath, it whirls us into old age. Then we realize suddenly that we are in a strange country for which we have not prepared ourselves, and to whose ways and customs we do not know how to adapt ourselves because we had never expected to visit it.

Perhaps the reason that most old age is so unlovely is because it is a condition forced on people against their wills. It is a misfortune that they never thought would happen to them, and so they are bitter and resentful and make things generally unpleasant for themselves and those who have to live with them.

Now considering that age lasts much longer than youth—or at any rate it seems to—it would appear the part of wisdom to put in our best endeavors where we would get the biggest and most lasting results; therefore just on a percentage basis there are more dividends in cultivating the arts and graces of age than there are in trying to manufacture a perpetual synthetic youth.

Also, it is easier. Perhaps it is because we expect so much of youth and so very little of age that every charm and grace of age is magnified a thousandfold. An old man or woman can do business, socially speaking, on a tenth of the capital that a boy and a girl can.

Take beauty, for instance. Or good dressing, or adaptability, or good nature. Any of the things that make people stand out from their crowd. A girl has to be a regular bathing beauty to get noticed as a good-looker, but if Grandma's face isn't as criss-crossed with wrinkles as a railroad map is with lines, and if she has kept her hair and her teeth fit well, she has a reputation as a beautiful old lady.

Grandson has to look like a ready-made clothing advertisement to get a reputation as a swell dresser, but if Grandpa keeps his trousers pressed and wears a collar that fits around the neck and a necktie that doesn't belong to the Rutherford B. Hayes era, he is regarded as a regular Beau Brummell. Any old couple who are not sour, testy, whiney and complaining are famed far and wide for their heavenly dispositions.

The reason most people so dread growing old, and why they cling so frantically to their youth, is because of the three curses of age—loneliness, lack of love, and the feeling that one is in the way and not wanted. But against all of these they could protect themselves if they would devote as much effort to massaging out the wrinkles in their characters as they do the crowfeet around their eyes; if they would try as hard to keep their minds supple as they do their knee joints.

Why are a man and woman lonely in their seventies and eighties? Why are they unloved? Simply and solely because they have not laid up any affection in the hearts of those with whom they came in contact. They have lived selfishly. They have never rejoiced with those who rejoice, nor wept with those who weep. They have never held out a helping hand to those in need, so naturally nobody cares for them or bothers with them. Why should they?

The first principle in preparing for age consists in storing up friendship for that rainy day that is bound to come when we will have lost the personal attractiveness of youth and cannot draw strangers to us. Then we must depend upon those that we have bound to us by a thousand ties of love, of helpfulness, of thoughtfulness, of sympathy and understanding, of favors done and received. No man or woman who has been a good friend and a good neighbor is ever lonely or lacks love in his or her old age.

Nothing is more pathetic than the spectacle of old people who are in everybody's way, who are unwelcome guests even in their own children's homes, but this also is their own fault. They are dictatorial. Fault-finding. Tyrannical. Domineering. Full of morbid complaints. They think that their way is the only way and their point of view the only one. They will not see that the world has changed, that there are new standards, new customs. They pick quarrels with their in-laws. They interfere with the management of the children. They keep the whole household upset. No wonder no one wants them.

But far otherwise is it with those who grow old graciously, who mellow with time and sweeten with age, and who learn from the experiences of life wisdom and tolerance. Such old people are a benediction on a household and they are more popular than any debutante.

It is because age is inevitable that it is so necessary for us to prepare ourselves for it. For it is happy, or miserable, as we make it.

W.M.S. Meeting Is Well Attended

A well attended meeting of the George Street W.M.S. was held Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. A. I. Brown, president, opened the meeting with the Call to Worship, and prayer of Thanksgiving followed. Mrs. A. Putenham was in charge of the devotional period as leader of Group C.

The hymn "Come, Ye Thankful People, Come" was sung, and Mrs. Sarah Armstrong read as the Bible lesson the 15th chapter of Luke, which was followed by prayer led by Mrs. Putenham. A vocal solo by Mrs. C. Renaud was accompanied by Mrs. W. P. Purdy.

The first chapter of the study book "The World In Canada" was taken by Miss E. Might and Mrs. R. Parnell read a devotional leaflet on the parable of the Prodigal Son.

Reference was made to the fact that this month marks the 50th anniversary of the W.M.S. work in Honan, and special prayer was offered for this work in China.

The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $62.74, and that $66.64 had been sent to the Presbyterial Treasurer.

The corresponding secretary, Mrs. Harvey, reported three letters written; Mrs. Hale, convenor of the Sick and Visiting Committee, reported 106 calls during the months of September and October; Mrs. H. Girven, reporting for the Community Friendship Committee, reported 18 calls made; Mrs. W. H. Morton for the literature Committee, reported 25 books read.

An announcement was made of the Sectional Rally to be held at Stewart Hall on October 19, to which all are invited. The meeting is to open at 1.30 p.m. Miss Lulu Rork, returned missionary, will be the guest speaker, and a chicken dinner will be served.

Mrs. J. Fairbrother, Mrs. F. Mather and Mrs. Harvey were appointed as a nominating committee to choose the new officers for the coming year. The meeting was closed with a hymn, and prayer by the president.

Sharpe—Chrysler

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 12.—The wedding took place quietly on Saturday at the United Church Parsonage here of Christeena Geraldine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Chrysler, Havelock Road, to Arthur Carroll Sharpe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sharpe of Hoard's. Rev. Harold B. Neal officiated. The bride who wore a pale blue taffeta dress with matching accessories, was unattended. Following a motor trip to Toronto and other points they will reside at Hoard's.

Roddy—Buchanan

YOUNG'S POINT, Oct. 12.—St. Mary's Church, Young's Point, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday morning at eight o'clock, when Miss Mary Isabel Buchanan, only daughter of Mrs. Walter Young and the late John R. Buchanan, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Francis T. Roddy of Vernonville, by the Rev. C. J. Carroll of Norwood, cousin of the bride. Rev. J. J. Garvey, P.P. of Lakefield; Rev. P. J. Galvin, Grafton, and Rev. H. Wiley of Kingston were in the sanctuary.

The bride wore a graceful gown of wine-berry velvet with shirred jacket and sweetheart hat. Her shoulder length veil, shoes and glaves were of matching shade, and she carried an arm bouquet of talisman roses and lily of the valley.

Her only attendant, Mrs. E. J. Roddy, wore a teal-blue velvet gown with matching hat, veil and gloves, and carried a bouquet of token roses.

The groomsman was Mr. E. J. Roddy, of Colborne, only brother of the groom.

The ushers were Mr. Victor Young and Mr. Frank Carroll, and the wedding music was played by Mrs. Elmer Johnston.

Following the marriage a reception and a dainty wedding breakfast was held at Hooper's palm room, Peterborough, attended by twenty guests including Rev. J. V. McAuley, Campbellford, who was unable to be present at the ceremony at Young's Point.

Mr. and Mrs. Roddy left later on a motor trip to Northern Ontario. On their return they will reside in Vernonville.

"Y" Plans Handcraft School

The Y.W.C.A. has arranged with the Community Welfare Council of Ontario for a ten-day Handcraft School to be held at the Y.W.C.A. from October 19 to 29.

There will be classes during mornings and early afternoons for ladies, children's classes after school and Saturday, and evening classes for business girls.

A number of organizations are already forming groups, and those who would like to attend the classes are asked to register at the 'Y' at once so that sufficient accommodation may be arranged.

The list of subjects to be taught are as follows: Weaving: plain, tartan and pattern; scarfs, bags, cushion tops, chair seats and rugs. (It should be possible for the pupil taking this subject to finish at least one or two articles.)

Pewter: buttons, buckles, costume jewelry such as bracelets, and pins, and ash trays and bowls. Leather: Glove making, purses, key-cases, in tooling leather, leather jewelry and belts. Pottery. Ashtrays, small bowls and jugs.

Rug hooking: Design, color choice of materials, vegetable dyeing. Puppetry: Making and manipulating both hand and string puppets. Planning puppet shows for both adults and juniors. Soap carving, lino cuts and raffia work for both adults and juniors. Making of toys both soft and wooden.

IS YOUR BABY GETTING A TOOTH?

YOUR BABY must "get a tooth". But he need not get a fever with it.

If baby's mother is wise he won't.

Here is what one wise mother, Mrs. Archie Begbie, of Consecon, has to say: "We have not lost one night's rest through teething as I always use my old standby, Baby's Own Tablets. They are worth their weight in gold."

And Mrs. Alfred Hauser, of Guelph, Ont., says: "I have eight children, have used Baby's Own Tablets for 21 years, and find them very beneficial during teething."

Give these safe, little tablets at the first sign of teething fever. Sweet-tasting, easy to take, prompt in action, yet safe for the most delicate baby. Analyst's certificate in every package.

Splendid Cough Remedy Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

To get quick relief from a distressing cough, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll say it's your favorite cough medicine, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a compound containing Norway Pine in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes.

Put the Pinex into a 16 ounce bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make 16 ounces of very efficient remedy, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It tastes fine and never spoils.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is splendid. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

The Lindbergh Story

That quite remarkable story about Col. Charles Lindbergh is probably as good as many others which have found their way out of Europe. It is difficult to compute with any degree of accuracy the number of people who have been blamed or censured for the settlement of the recent crisis, so if Lindbergh is to be dragged into the situation he suffers the slight handicap of having arrived after the head-table guests had departed.

Col. Lindbergh it is asserted has made several visits to Russia and while there he was granted unusual opportunity to inspect the Soviet air strength. They told him things which they would not have told the average visitor and one report says they went so far as to offer him a position as head of the air force.

Then Col. Lindbergh also visited in Germany and in France and within recent times made a landing in Czechoslovakia, and in all these places the door appears to have been wide open and the officers were even anxious to display air strength. The one thing which does not seem to hook up is that Col. Lindbergh, while a great aviator himself, is now more interested in other matters. For months he is reported to have been collaborating with Dr. Alexis Carroll in investigating the manufacture of an artificial heart. But for the purpose of the latest story from Europe the Colonel is an expert and an authority on all matters connected with aviation.

Then it was that the Colonel visited London and went from there to Cliveden, the country home of Lord Astor and Lady Nancy Astor, and while a guest there he told the Lady that the air strength of Russia was somewhat muddled or befuddled and everything in Germany was in ship-shape. Germany was stronger in the air than the Czechs, Britain, France and Russia combined. Thereupon the Lady got immediately in touch with Premier Chamberlain, and he in turn decided it was better to make peace with Germany and have the pound of flesh carved off Czechoslovakia.

The only thing wrong with the story is that Lady Astor says she never received such a report from Col. Lindbergh and she did not communicate with the Prime Minister. The report appears to have its premise on the assumption that the British Empire is governed from what goes on at Cliveden rather than what is decided upon at the official offices of the British parliament.

The other defect is that a suspicious world is not at all anxious to reveal its military secrets to outsiders. They might have shown Col. Lindbergh much, but they would not show him all. Nations are well schooled in the art of being quite hospitable without having revealed too much. The idea of one man going from one country to the other and being able to carry away with him complete knowledge is difficult to believe. Difficult to the point of being impossible. But as stories go in these strange days it is as good as a number of others which have been admitted to general circulation. It names Col. Charles Lindbergh as the man who actually was at the bottom of the peace move in Europe. And come to thing of it Russia has aviators who have performed far greater deeds in the air than the Colonel ever attempted.

Facing Both Ways

There are a few things which continue to run loose following the world crisis. There was so much available evidence to show that people wanted peace that there is little room to doubt. They rejoiced when they found there was to be no war and it was several days after before they started talking of anything else.

Since then the printed word of the world has been rather deluged with the saying that Britain and France have suffered a loss of prestige because they allowed "Hitler to get away with it." The sentiment is not always couched in those simple words; it is at times veiled in regret or draped in full-blown rhetoric, but the meaning is the same. Britain and France, and to a lesser extent, have lost prestige.

And why? Because they found another way to settle a question than by going to war. That's all there is to it, and the same people who a week or so ago were rejoicing over the decision are the ones who today are denouncing various men because they did not drive their countries into a world war. And for the most part they are not the ones who would be called upon to take up positions in the front line.

Room For Argument

A reader of the Examiner asks this question: "On Sunday a little period we have in a Sunday school class for discussion brought out an argument as to the meaning of the word Jew. There were several views given, one of which held the word referred to a certain religion. Can you tell me whether that is so or what is actually meant by the use of the word?"

It is conceivable that people could have a fairly long argument on that apperently simple question. The English word Jew comes through the old French giu, from the Greek Ioudaios, which became in Latin Judaeus, corresponding to the Hebrew Jehudi. The literal meaning is a man of Judah or Judea, in the Bible itself (Esther 2-5) Jew signified an adherent of Judaism. These two views, the one racial, and the other religious, have persisted into modern times, and more recently they have become even more complicated through the Zionist movement, adherents of which contend the word has a national implication. Thus it is possible to have three concepts of the one word Jew—race, nationality, religion.

We believe the best authorities agree that the word has its most significant meaning in the field of religion. Nationality, they agree, is a political term which should be restricted to citizenship of the state of which the particular Jew is a national. We believe it is more correct to say the word Jew refers to the religious beliefs to which these people adhere.

Living Alone

Two houses in a village side by side contained a man with a family while in the other lived a man of 77 whose wife died 25 years ago and who since then had elected to live by himself. Not only were these people neighbors but close friends. The man who lived alone had no telephone and the neighbor next door often enough delivered messages to him.

Yesterday morning he went to do that again, but found the doors all locked although it was high time the man of 77 who lived alone should be up and about. He opened a window and found his old friend dead in bed. A doctor who was called said he had probably been dead for 15 hours. He had not the strength to get out of bed because he had been suddenly stricken with a complaint which had bothered him before and he could not call for help on the phone because he had none.

Possibly there is no great moral in the story, but there is something which indicates that a person of 77 should not be living alone.

Adding To The Sorrow

Evidently the busy tongue and the poison tongue continue to wag. They have done it to such an extent that Dr. James Cotton has considered it advisable to issue a public statement regarding the late James Simpson, former mayor of Toronto, who was killed in an automobile collision.

The rumor was that Mr. Simpson had been confined to one of the mental institutions of the province. Dr. Cotton says the only illness was one which resulted from ptomaine poisoning and from which Mr. Simpson promptly recovered. Never at any time had he been in a mental institution, and never was there any indication that his mentality had been impaired. At the time of his death he was making plans to enter the civic election as candidate for the Board of Control.

Dr. Cotton suggests it is his hope that the persons circulating the rumor might be identified so they could be dealt with. And at best that is a vain hope. People who whisper things behind the hand do not come out in the open. They merely come into possession of something which they consider rather choice and pass it along. If one were to ask them why they did it they would be hard pressed to answer. One can well believe the relatives of Mr. Simpson would not find pleasure in having a public statement issued denying that this gentleman had not been of unsound mentality, but it was the best way to meet the situation. When there is death in a home there is sadness and the waggers of miserable tongues have not hesitated to add to it.

The Lakefield Road

The road between Peterborough and Lakefield has had a number of accidents, and we heard the statement that the reason was there were so many turns in it. Probably there is not a car driver in Peterborough who has not been over that road a number of times, and it is as well known to many people as the streets of the city. The Examiner asked a number of drivers if they thought the road was dangerous and the opinion seemed to be almost unanimous that it was not.

There was a travelling man in the city yesterday and he was making a call at Lakefield. On his return we asked his opinion because he drives all week and covers many thousands of miles during the season. His answer was that he considered it a good road and an interesting one. He said the only bad turn in it was one at the waterworks property and even that was well marked. He remarked that the curves in the road were banked to a greater extent than he had found on a number of older roads and he was sure the road had been well built and he could see nothing dangerous about it if one exercised a reasonable amount of care.

That opinion was virtually the same as that held by the other drivers who had expressed opinions, so the only reasonable conclusion is that the road does not deserve the rather bad name which some people want to give it because there have been accidents on it.

What Does Milk Cost?

It is taking a long time to find out what it costs to produce a quart of milk in Ontario. The Economics division of the Marketing Service of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has been working on the question for a year, and we learn it will add a second and probably a third year before completing its findings. One of the difficulties is in determining just what should be charged against the price of producing milk. There are various districts where even in the same year there may be a great spread in the amount of outdoor feed available. One section of the province may enjoy plenty of rain and good pasture, while another may have had dry weather where barn feeding is necessary to supplement pasturage.

Labor costs show a variation which is almost impossible to accept and the cost of feed and concentrates varied sharply, and tended to show that the farm with the larger number of cows was getting along at less per unit than the farm with a lesser herd population.

The average cost throughout the year of producing 100 pounds of milk is given here together with the average selling price:

	Cost	Selling
Toronto	$2.23	$1.90
Windsor-Chatham	2.18	1.77
London-Brantford	2.06	1.76
Hamilton-Niagara	2.28	1.91
Owen Sound, Peterborough	2.17	1.67
St. Lawrence towns	1.74	1.49
Ottawa	1.62	1.69
Sudbury-North Bay	2.09	1.95
Western Condensery	1.70	1.20
Eastern Condensery	1.42	1.18
Western Cheese	1.41	1.04
St. Lawrence Cheese	1.27	1.01
Ottawa Cheese	1.24	1.04
Cream shippers	1.46	1.03

The fact that those figures have been released shows there is need for a good deal more study. In the Peterborough district the result so far noted is that 100 pounds of milk costs $2.17 to produce and sells for $1.67, which is a loss of an even 50 cents on each 100 pounds of milk. (A quart of milk weighs 2 1-2 pounds).

A layman looking at those figures would come to the conclusion quickly enough that producers in the Peterborough district as well as in most others would have been forced out of the milk business long ago because each time they sell 100 pounds of milk they lose money. A man in any line of business who loses money all the time has to go out of business; at least that is what happens to him in any line of commercial activity. That is what makes these figures hard to understand. The cost of production so far arrived at has what we considered too great a spread between various sections of the same province, and that is probably the reason it is going to take another two years to arrive at something more closely related to a positive figure.

WE ALL DO IT

(By A. R. K.)

¶ The wise men sat upon a bench and loafed around the village green, they talked of things that used to be and watched for sight that might be seen.

¶ Around the green the youth came on to play its game and run its race, it made indeed a merry scene and lent new vigor to the place.

¶ And then the men of yesteryear they talked of what they used to do, and of the strength that once was theirs and how their hurried footsteps flew.

¶ No youth today could run as fast as men of yesteryear had done, no one could turn a handspring now just like the handspring they had done.

¶ And none could play a game of ball and bat like what they used to smite, and thus they passed the moments by and boasted on toward the night.

¶ They lived again those bygone years when youth had measured strength to them, recalling of the days when they were strong and nimble sort of men.

¶ Of course they try not races now for they would tumble on the track, and I am certain ancient pains would start and rumble in the back.

¶ Nor do I blame these ancient men for talking just the way they did, ignoring of the fact that youth had from them skipped away and hid.

¶ We all do that just now and then, it's human nature just run true, we like to talk and boast a spell about the things we used to do.

Czechs Sure Of French Support

THE BIG FOUR must now follow the path they have chosen, with Hitler in the lead and predominant and Mussolini a close second says F. T. Birchall, noted European correspondent. The Chamberlain agreement with Hitler means nothing less than that the four will hereafter sit around a table whenever an emergency arises and decide among themselves what their own and other countries shall do. The only difference is that Chamberlain and Daladier must account thereafter to their own people for their actions. Hitler and Mussolini have no such handicap.

It is a topsy-turvy world before that, and now it has become more so. To believe wholeheartedly the new adjustment can result in the universal peace and happiness for which the world is craving is to expect that good can result from evil; that upon the rape of Czechoslovakia and the broken pledges that permitted it there can be built an era of peace and prosperity for all. All of which the good and pious would emphatically deny.

These reflections perhaps are natural from one who has spent a strenuous week observing at close quarters the peaceful amputation by military force of valuable sections of a decent and law-abiding little country which paid its debts, treated its neighbors honorably and asked nothing more than to be left alone to work out its future. Czechoslovakia contained minorities which did not get that share of its government and all of the public offices which would naturally accompany thought they should have. There undoubtedly were reasons of national safety and national unity which prevented the bestowal of these 'rights'—or privileges, according to one's way of thinking—in a proportion considered fair.

THE CZECHS were willing to bestow them if the minorities became truly Czechish — if they would speak Czech and think nationally as the Czechish majority thought they should.

The Sudeten Germans clung instead to their Teutonic tradition and were unwilling. The Poles and Hungarians in less vociferous but equally stubborn fashion clung to theirs with perhaps slightly less excuse. For the attitude of the Sudetens was the outcome of a quarrel which had lasted at least a thousand years, with the Sudeten Germans heretofore the top dog.

The new Czechish upper dog thought he was safe in maintaining what he considered were his own hardly won rights and pursuing the course he did pursue, for he had powerful friends who encouraged him to do so. There was one especially powerful friend who lent him a billion francs and expert engineers to build strong defensive works in the territory of the Sudeten minority. Two lesser friends made mutually defensive treaties with him.

Then a powerful kinsman of the Teutonic under dog espoused his cause, taught him new methods of fighting back. Propaganda and surreptitious organizations did the rest. As the under dog's kinsman became more powerful, friends of the Czechish uper dog became more cautious. They still promised to adhere to their pledges of coming to his aid if the crucial hour struck, but it was noticeable they took no steps to prepare for the coming test.

WHEN the hour did strike they called for advice to the strongest of all the European family, itself unpledged. This neighbor counseled surrender in the interests of general peace. So we have peace, with the former allies of Czechoslovakia supervising the surrender. But is that exactly conducive to future peace, except at the price of constant future capitulation?

That there has not been a complete or final settlement of all questions between Germany and the other Western powers is obvious. The understanding reached between Hitler and Chamberlain admits it by implication. There is still, for instance, the matter of colonies to be determined, and in the immediate future the question of Danzig will undoubtedly demand solution.

Danzig presents no formidable problem, because German pressure already have forecast its future. It will be reunited to the Reich by some arrangement with the Poles, without objection either from the League of Nations which is supposed to decide its destiny, or from the rest of Europe.

But colonial restoration is quite another matter, since it is generally understood that Germany intends to demand not only her old colonies but other territory, on the general principle that there should be a fresh distribution all around. What will happen when Hitler puts forward his next new demands, therefore, is still questionable, although the Fuehrer jestingly assured Mr. Chamberlain that there would be no question of mobilization on account of them.

"FLASH!"

(Westbrook Pegler in New York World Telegram)

I FIND AMONG newspapermen and particularly press association men a sense of resentment against the misuse of the word "Flash!" by radio commentators, advertising copy writers and the journalistic ignorant who have never covered a story or filed a wire. A flash is just what the word itself suggests. It seldom contains more than half a dozen words and is used to announce some happening of vast importance. It is followed by a terse statement of the news, called a bulletin.

Flash is the highest rating in news value. Bulletins come next. Then come stories in the natural order of their importance as news or entertainment. On a news wire a story must always give way for a bulletin. Any point along the system may break in on any story or bulletin at any time to send a flash, such as "Flash! Chicago Earthquake."

There is no such thing as an "Add-Flash!" and any bureau manager along a press association system who had the gall to break in with a flash as cheap as some of the announcements which nowadays are handled as flashes on radio programs would be set back on his heels.

• Budget Plan Is the Solution

A CORRESPONDENT signing himself "Content" writes to the Montreal Star:

Sir,—In reading last night's Star, I came across a letter from one who signs himself "Returned Soldier" making a squawk about his condition. I am in about the same position as himself; same number in my family, about the same age, only I have no pension in my case. I have a night watchman's job and also clean two flats, run the elevator till 9:30 and care for the furnace, for which I receive the magnificent sum of $66.00 per month; and I hold this job although I am 58 years of age and suffer from stomach ulcers and from my war experience. "Returned Soldier" must be improvident to a large extent. His own words prove it. ("We live one week, and live on bread and lard the rest of the month.") I would ask "Returned Soldier" if he ever heard of a budget? Now I will show him how I arrange mine, admitting that we have given up many things we used to get. My wife furnishes three clean substantial meals a day on the following budget laid out on a weekly basis:

Food	$6.50
Milk	.88
Rent	4.00
Light	1.05
Fuel	2.00
Clothing budget at store..	1.00
	$16.41

Now I had lots of time on my hands, so I did not sit on my tail bewailing my fate but got out and dug up six or eight private houses, where I do odd jobs which bring in on the average $3.00 per week, which allows for monthly insurance and telephone, with a dollar or two left over. One point I want to stress is this: no beer or liquor ever enters my house (it can't be done on my money). As far as home conditions are concerned, I am not ashamed to show it to any one at any time, so they can see what can be done with care, as 90 per cent of the hard luck stories and complaints you see in the papers are the fault of the individual in question and the arrangement of his income. You cannot have beer, cigarettes and moving pictures, as well as play the Chinese lottery, as I see the unemployed doing in my neighborhood, when you are pinching pennies. My advice to R. S. is that instead of running to the papers for sympathy he should put his house in order and on his knees thank the Almighty God for his luck. Then he would see things in a different light.

• Where the English Originated

Q—Could you tell me where the people of England originally came from?—C. R. S.

A.—John Richard Green, in his great book, "A Short History of the English People," says: "For the fatherland of the English race we must look far away from England itself. In the fifth century after the birth of Christ, the one country which we know to have borne the name of Angein or the Engleland lay in the district which we now call Sleswick, a district in the heart of the peninsula which parts the Baltic from the northern seas. Its pleasant pastures, its black-timbered homesteads, its prim little townships looking down on inlets of purple water, were then but a wild waste of heather and sand, girt along the coast with sunless woodland, broken here and there by meadows which crept down to the marshes and the sea. The dwellers in this district, however, seem to have been merely an outlying fragment of what was called the Engle or English folk, the bulk of whom lay probably along the middle Elbe and on the Weser. To the north of the English in their Sleswick home lay another kindred tribe, the Jutes, whose name is still preserved in their district of Jutland. To the south of them a number of German tribes had drawn together in their homeland between the Elbe and the Ems, and in a wide tract across the Ems to the Rhine, into the people of the Saxons, Engle, Saxon and Jute all belonged to the same Low German branch of the Teutonic family; and at the moment when history discovers them they were being drawn together by the tie of a common blood, common speech, common social and political institutions. Each of them was detined to share in the conquest of the land in which we live; and it is from the union of all of them when its conquest was complete that the English people has sprung."

WAS HE RIGHT?

(Detroit Free Press)

IN A BOOK NOW being issued, Henry L. Stoddard, formerly editor and owner of the New York Mail, tells the story of an authenticated conversation in 1905, between President Theodore Roosevelt and Dr. Alexander Lambert, in which Mr. Roosevelt said he thought it would be a mistake to intervene to bring about peace between Japan and Russia, though both nations wanted to quit fighting; but that he intended doing so because he believed it was in line with his immediate duty as President of the United States to act.

The President's idea was that it would be better for the future peace of the world, and especially for America, if both belligerents bled themselves white, and so were forced into years of peace.

This story is not altogether new, but the revival comes at a moment when it is of great interest, and when there is great temptation to speculate on what the world situation might be today, if the armies of the Czar and the Mikado had been left to fight their nations into a state of exhaustion.

What would have been the effect on the fortunes of the World War? What would have been the effect on the situation in Europe today?

LET US SUPPOSE.

(Montreal Star)

LET US SUPPOSE that the worst things which the critics of Chamberlain say about his achievement are measurably true. Let us suppose that he has only postponed war. (No thinking man ever imagined that he could at any time do anything more.) Wasn't it worth while? Now that the Czecnoslovak guestion is settled, what other question is likely to arise in the early future? This was the only dangerous "mine" with a timefuse in sight. Hitler can now, if he does not suffer from diseased nerves, sit down and consolidate his gains. No other German minority clamors for his help, and there are none others that he dare attempt to annex, lest he drive too many neighboring nations into the camp of his potential enemies.

GIRLS' RISKS.

(Niagara Falls Review)

STRANGE that girls continue to accept lifts from strange men when they can read of the too common result of such pick-ups. Across the line, the other day, a girl was hurled from a speeding car, and near Toronto a girl was seriously injured when she was ejected. High among dangerous practices is that of permitting oneself to be taken for a ride by strange men.

AND, BEHOLD, there was a man in Jerusalem, whose name was Simeon; and the same man was just and devout, waiting for the consolation of Israel: and the Holy Ghost was upon him. And it was revealed unto him by the Holy Ghost, that he should not see death, before he had seen the Lord's Christ. And he came by the Spirit into the temple: and when the parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him after the custom of the law, then took he him up in his arms, and blessed God, and said, Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word: for mine eyes have seen thy salvation, which thou hast prepared before the face of all people; a light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel.—Luke ii, 25-32.

SHOULD REACH OUT.

(North Bay Nugget)

IN THE CURRENT and past seasons North Bay and district has been impressed by the fact that while the preponderance of automobile tourists to Ontario originate in the United States, a goodly number are from many other parts of the world. License plates of Hawaii, Mexico, Cuba, Panama, Philippine Islands, Alaska, Porto Rico, British West Indies, Newfoundland and Colombia have been observed on district highways, mainly carrying persons to see the Dionne quintuplets.

Doesn't this indicate that Canada, particularly Ontario, should give more attention to luring tourists from far-distance countries, publicizing the natural advantages of the country for the betterment of health and for a restful vacation under most enjoyable conditions.

AFRAID TO MARRY

By HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Judy Rogers, New York heiress, is looking for a job because her father has been wiped out in a financial crash. When her father goes west with her step-mother, her own mother being abroad and remarried, Judy moves to a small hotel. Heart-broken because Craig Denby, the man she loved, married another girl, she finds solace in the company of Ronald Birrell, brilliant young attorney from Tennessee, who recently joined the firm of her father's lawyers. Afraid of marriage, Judy realizes that is why she lost Craig. When she learns from her best friend, Marjorie, that Craig and Mary, his bride of a few weeks, have separated, Judy calls on Mary and phones Craig in an effort to bring them back together. A second call on Mary is necessary to bring about a reconciliation. Judy cannot find work and one evening she returns to the hotel to find herself locked out because her rent is overdue. On the day she lands a job at Danceland as a hostess, Ronald tells her of an opening as social secretary to the wealthy and ambitious Abbey Boland, engaged to marry a count. Judy declines it. When a reporter spots Judy at Danceland, she decides to take the position at Abbey Boland's home. There was much publicity and mystery over the fact she had exchanged dresses with another hostess who had admired the gown she was wearing. Judy embarks upon her secretorial job at the Boland estate.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 19

JUDY SAID "come in," when the knock sounded on her door. She expected a white-aproned maid to ask if she might help her unpack. Instead Abbey Boland herself stepped into the room.

Abbey was beautiful. Judy granted her that instantly. Her hair was honey-gold. Her eyes were dark purple under long, curly, black lashes. She was taller than average, and quite slender. Her dress was a twilight lavender, and slippers of darker hue were on her feet. Her slim silver bracelets were set with amthysts.

The dream lasted until she spoke. Her voice was too high, too rapid, as though it hurried to overtake a phrase which always ran ahead.

"You're Miss Rogers, of course," Abbey stated instead of asking, "Are you comfortable?"

"Oh, yes, very. It's a delightful room. It like the view of the Sound and the open wood fire is too tempting to make me stir."

Abbey dropped down in a chair, and when she did she looked very young, almost scared.

"There's a lot of work to be done. We are having almost a continuous house party until after the wedding, so there are sleighing parties when the snow comes, skating and skiing. Oh, yes, the swimming pool is an indoor affair, with cabanas and sun lamps on the terrace. We loaf there a great deal. We have tea about five before the fire in the library, or down in the game room . . . You'll learn your way around. I'll go over lists and plans with you tomorrow. Is ten o'clock too early?"

"Ten o'clock is fine. I'd like to get organized."

"We are having a dinner tomorrow night, and I want favors for the guests. I've a whole box of possible things you can sort. If you knew the people you could decide better."

"Maybe I do know them," Judy said gently.

"Oh, of course. I almost forgot that you are THE Judy Rogers. Maybe you'll want to come to dinner instead of eating alone."

Judy's head came up swiftly, as though it had worn a crown and would wear one some day soon again. "No, thank you. I'm here to do a job, that's all."

She wondered if she fancied the relief on Abbey Boland's thin face. She detected a snobbish trait in the wealthy girl, one which refused to admit that a paid worker in the household had social position. Something intangible passed between the two girls. Judy felt it. It might have been a challenge. Maybe it was a warning. She didn't know.

"If you need anything just ring for Myra. She's the maid in this section of the house," Abbey said, and excused herself.

From below Judy heard laughter, light voices, music. She hung her dresses, unpacked her books, took a bath and brushed her hair. She climbed into the wide bed but could not sleep. Presently she got up, put on a skirt and warm sweater, and a brown tam on her curly hair, and slipped down the back stairway. She let herself out and walked in the cold blue air, throwing her head to the stars, looking far, far across the Sound. In the house she felt like a prisoner. Under the dark canopy of the silver-bright stars she was free. This beauty she knew.

She came back in an hour tired, sleepy, at peace. The side door was locked. She rang a bell but no one answered. There were lots of doors, she decided. One of them would be open. She crossed to the south side of the house, but there was no response at the two doors there. She found another one, and rang in vain. Apparently the servants were busy elsewhere, or callers were using the wide front door.

She had avoided that entrance purposely, fearing she might run into the dinner party. Well, there was no help. She would avert her face if she met anyone and slip unobtrusively up the stairs.

She knew she had made a mistake the moment she entered. The dinner party, about to go to the nearby club for further festivities, was assembled in the wide hall.

Someone gave the signal.

"Judy!"

"Judy Rogrs, where have you been?"

"Hi, Judy, welcome back! The town's been dead without you."

They surrounded her. They pulled her this way and that. They let her know how they welcomed her.

The young people whom she did not know gazed at her with eager interest. She sensed that she had stolen the limelight. It was funny. She, Judy Rogers, working for a living, was standing in the middle of this dressed-up group, wearing an old brown sweater and tam, and wondering how Abbey was taking it.

Abbey had made no sound. She stood aloof, lips narrowed, eyebrows drawn, watching.

A young man pulled her forward. "Say, Abbey, what do you mean keeping Judy shut up! Don't let her pull that "I-wan-to-be-alone" stuff on you. She's the friendliest girl in the east. Remember the time at the Sigma Nu dance, Judy . . . ?"

The inner circle closed around Judy. The young people who belonged to society as it appeared in the blue book and the social register lined up with Judy. The others, not in it themselves, and closer friends of Abbey's made her cohort.

Into the midst of the gaiety, a tall, dark young man came. His eyes were lazy, amused, a trifle cynical. He had a small black mustache, a disarming smile, dark hair, a stubborn chin.

"What is it?" he asked.

"Judy!" Two of the young men told him. "In person! Judy Rogers!" They turned to Judy. "It's Count Phillippe."

The count bowed deeply.

"And who, may I ask, is Judy? Probably I should know but I must confess—" He shook his head dubiously.

"I'm secretary to Miss Boland," Judy told him, watching his surprise.

"She's a daughter of Malcolm Rogers of the Street," somebody added.

"Oh, yes, yes. of course." His eyes narrowed and his expression said that he remembered the story.

"Your mother is abroad, is she not? I met her last year, and she mentioned a daughter."

"Phillippe, we're late." Abbey's icy tones ended the conversation. The merrymakers went through the great door into the waiting cars. Judy went up the steps alone.

She wished that she had stayed out of doors half an hour longer. This meeting could have been avoided. She knew instinctively that Abbey resented it. She knew, also, that Abbey was going to desperate measures to enhance her social prestige in the eyes of the count. She must have pulled some pretty fine strings to get two or three of those people to come to her dinner.

It seemed rather absurd and foolish, this fine-point technique of the social game. Once it had been important. No, she told herself, it hadn't. She had yielded to it because it was part of her life. Gratefully she realized that she preferred, really preferred, to be on the outside accomplishing something.

She slipped into cream satin pajamas, threw the windows wide, and climbed into bed. She was half asleep when the telephone at her bed rang. She picked it up. She had noted a minute switchboard in the lower hall which the butler operated. Who could be wanting her?

"Judy?" The cheerful confident tones belonged to Ronald Birrell. "How are you doing?"

"Oh, fine! I'm unpacked, and I've got a view of the Sound, and an open wood fire. Why didn't you come to the party tonight?"

"I wasn't invited," he answered ruefully.

"Neither was I." She couldn't resist that.

"But I am included in the weekend festivities. I'm coming out tomorrow night."

She was glad, Judy realized.

Monster Band Tatto For Lindsay Arena

A big crowd is expected to leave to-morrow night for Lindsay. Our own Regimental Band, the Prince of Wales Rangers is taking part in a monster band tattoo and brass band variety show to be held at the Lindsay Arena. Besides the Peterboro Band there will be Whitby, Cannington and two Lindsay bands, making five bands in all for the tattoo. There will be several added attractions of outstanding merit, Betty and Jean, tap dancers extraordinary in several numbers, also Tom Brown, late of the famous Brown Brothers sextette playing several solo numbers on the oldest saxaphone in the world and which is one of Mr. Brown's treasured possessions and an instrument of priceless value.

The Lindsay girl guides will be in uniform and will assist in the ushering of the show. Some of the highlights of the program will be the rendering of the overture "Western World" by the four bands, comprising 150 musicians all playing at the same time. This number will be directed by Lieut. Peryer of Prince of Wales Rangers of the Peterboro Regimental Band. "Cecile," another popular number, will be directed by Bandmaster Clark of Whitby, all bands taking part. "Poet and Peasant" will be led by Tom Brown, Lindsay bandmaster. Bandmaster McFadden will lead in their own march "Tenth Regiment Band." Brigade Bandmaster Win Philip will then lead all bands in a popular overture and march. After the completion of the massed bands the tatto will take place. This is the outstanding feature of the program. The Lindsay Boys' Band will enliven proceedings by rendering several selections of their own. A big street parade will start at 8 p.m. from the Lindsay Armouries led by the Lindsay Boys' Band, through the town to the Arena. A huge crowd is expected from all the surrounding districts, as this is the first time in many years that an attraction of this size has been staged in Lindsay.

Mother And Daughter Banquet Held By St. John's Society

The mother and daughter banquet held Tuesday night in St. John's Parish Hall, was an annual event of equal interest to the Women's Auxiliary members and the Teen-Age branch of St. John's Anglican church, when the girls were hostesses to their mothers.

The large dining room was gay with autumn flowers and foliage and the tables decorated with yellow and bronze streamers. Gracing the head table was the silver cup won by the girls in the City League basketball games last spring.

Mrs. Frances Abbott, of Kingston, Dominion secretary of the Junior and Little Helpers' branch of the Women's Auxiliary of the Anglican church, was guest speaker and seated with her were the guests of the evening, including Canon W. P. Robertson and Mrs. Robertson, Rev. R. T. F. Brain, Mrs. H. A. Morrow, Miss Jane Turner, Mrs. A. Turner, and Mrs. J. Cridland, who presided in the absence of Mrs. G. S. Cameron, president of the W. A.

The banquet opened with grace by Canon Robertson, after which communnty singing, led by Rev. Mr. Brain, assisted by Mrs. E. M. Foster at the piano, was enjoyed.

In her opening words Mrs. Cridland paid high tribute to the splendid leadership of Mrs. Fred Craig, who is in charge of this fine 'Teen-Age' group.

First on the toast list was that to the King and Queen, proposed by Rev. Mr. Brain, in response to which all sang the National Anthem.

Toast to Mothers.

In voicing their appreciation and love to the mothers, Thelma Howell spoke especially of the work done by Mrs. A. Turner, their organizer, who formed the branch sixteen years ago.

To this toast from the girls, Mrs. D. J. Eldred responded on behalf of the mothers, in gracious words.

Mrs. Harold Howell toasted the daughters and assured them that mothers desired to be pals and friends to their girls as well as 'mothers.'

In reply Jean McElwain thanked the mothers for their presence and good wishes.

Speaking from a wealth of knowledge and experience in various lines of missionary endeavour, Mrs. Abbott, who was a past president of the local W.A., brought a message of real inspiration to both mothers and daughters at this gathering. She traced the development of the missionary movement, beginning with the Little Helpers, whom she termed the foundation stone. The whole W.A. is founded upon prayer and giving. We cannot pray for miscan we give without praying.

Continuing, Mrs. Abbott told of the inception of the Little Helpers' movement which really began with one small boy. When he learned that every W.A. member prayed every day as the clock struck twelve he wanted to be a little helper and pray too.

Before his death a few years later, this little boy offered a prayer, "God bless all missionaries all over the world and all little helpers."

Prayer of 26,000 Helpers.

This has become the prayer today of 26,000 Little Helpers of the Anglican church. Speaking of the work of the Juniors, she said their motto was, "Pray, give, work, tell others and interest others.""

The 'Teen-Age' branch comes next in order and the speaker urged them to continue in their spiritual duties "It is an adventure to be a Christian." If you are a real follower of Christ you have to make a stand for certain things. Don't be lukewarm. The greatest thing we can do is to give ourselves, not necessarily money. Let us be honest with ourselves in everything we do. Have your high ideals and stick to them, and be a real follower of Christ."

The sincere thanks of the girls to the speaker for her splendid and interesting talk and to all who contributed to the success of the evening were voiced by Theresa Laws, bringing to a conclusion a most inspiring meeting.

For this fifth annual banquet Mrs. George Groombridge and Mrs. Fred Craig were in charge of the arrangements, with an efficient staff of assistants in the following ladies: Mesdames D. J. Eldred, J. E. Gynane, R. Ford, H. Lemmings, A. Stanger and D. Bickell.

Baptist Y.P.U. Holds Rally At Whitby

WHITBY, Ont., Oct. 12—(CP).—"There are forces seeking even here in Canada to quench liberty," charged Rev. George Quiggan, Owen Sound, addressing the annual fall rally of the Whitby-Lindsay Association of the Baptist Young People's Union in session here yesterday.

"In Quebec the padlock law says that if you have not the consent of the government you cannot have freedom of speech or newspaper," he maintained.

"If a tithe of what is spent on armaments by our country and other countries was spent on the gospel, the present world situation would not hold," contended Rev. Quiggan.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, October 13.

MUCH PROGRESS and satisfaction are read from this day's sidereal operations, with much activity and keen interest in both old and new projects. There may be very lucrative new contracts or agreements, in which initiative, acumen or shrewdness will gain objectives, especially with "big business" associates.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of whirling activity. Old as well as new matters are under high impetus and should bring to bear much talent, sagacity and shrewdness in handling perplexing situations leading toward desired objectives.

A child born on this day may be highly intellectual, alert, keen and of impressive personality, which will attract the co-operation of elders and those in high standing.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

"Remember Tad Tadpole down by the pond? Knarf was saying to Hanid. "We haven't been down to see him in the longest time."

"Not since early this summer," Hanid answered. "And we promised to visit him, too."

"Let's go down to the pond now. It won't take us long. He'll be glad to see us."

"And we'll be glad to see him. He was a fine-looking fellow, all right," Hanid said as they started down the garden path. They squeezed through the crack in the garden wall—that wasnt any trouble for them, for Knarf and Hanid were shadow-children and shadow-children can squeeze through anything—and crossed the meadow and went around the little hill. And there, on the other side, was the pond.

"Tad Tadpole!" they called.

It looked very pretty. The top of it was covered with big water-lily leaves, among which were some white and blue blossoms. Near the bank there were patches of duckweed.

Can't Find Him.

But though they pushed the water-lily leaves and the duckweed patches aside and peered down into the water, they couldn't see any sign of their friend, Tad Tadpole.

They even put their faces close to the top of the water and called down. "Tad Tadpole!" they called. "Where are you?"

But Tad Tadpole didn't answer.

Finally a brown pond snail, so old that moss was growing on his back, came climbing up a stalk out of the water. He put out his horns (his eyes were at the end of them!) and gazed at the two shadow-children closely for a moment or two. Then he said:

"Looking for somebody?"

"We're looking for a tadpole named Tad Tadpole. Have you seen him anywhere in the pond?" Knarf asked.

"Tad Tadpole? Never saw him in my life. Never even heard of him. What's he look like?"

"Look like? Why—he looks like a tadpole."

"He has two eyes, a mouth, and a long tail," Hanid put in. "He's a very handsome fellow," she added.

"No tadpoles live in this pond any more," the snail said, pulling in his horns and sliding slowly down the stalk into the water again. "They all left about a month ago."

"Left? Where did they go?"

But all the snail said was: "Ask that frog sitting on the lily leaf over at the other end of the pond."

Then he disappeared in the water.

The two shadows looked at each other.

"Which end does he mean?" Hanid asked her brother. "It's a round pond. There aren't any ends."

"We'd better walk all around until we find him," Knarf replied. "But I don't think he'll know where they went. Frogs don't know anything, much."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Benes Will Run For Glasgow University Post

LONDON, Oct. 12—(AP).—It was announced ofifcially to-day that Edard Benes, former President of Czechoslovakia, had agreed to become the Scottish Nationalist candidate for Rector of Glasgow University in the election to be held on October 22.

Dr. Benes resigned last Wednesday as Chief of the state he helped establish 20 years ago, explaining his continuance in office, in the face of the declared enmity of Germany, would "constitute an obstacle" to revival of the dismembered republic.

He retired to his summer home at Sezimovo Usti, south of Prague,and withdrew from the affairs of state.

Other candidates for the Glasgow University post are Sir Archibald Sinclair, Leader of the Liberal Opposition in the House of Commons; Sir Henry Lunn, Vice-President of the League of Nations Union, and Laurence Housman, author and pacifist.

The last Rector of Glasgow University—a purely ceremonial post—was Very Rev. H. R. L. Sheppard, Canon of St. Paul's Cathedral, who died October 31, 1937.

Scottish Nationalists made the announcement of Dr. Benes' candidacy at a crowded students' meeting. Supporters of the former President immediately put up posters reading, "Vote for Benes, the Man Who Saved the World."

Dr. Benes' agreement to be a candidate was obtained through the Czechoslovak Legation in London.

Because the post is purely honorary, Dr. Benes, if elected, would not necessarily have to live in Great Britain.

First Tenors Are Needed For Choir

The Peterborough Male Chorus continued rehearsals last night (Tuesday) at the Y.M.C.A., marking the opening of a new season which directors confidently hope will be one of the best in the organization's entire history.

The type of music in its new repertoire is a challenge and a delight to the ambitious singer and the chorus is attracting many a trained chorister to its ranks. The new library contains music by Sibelius, Svolvsky, Deems Taylor, Mark Andrews, and many other famous composers and arrangers.

The membership committee is now anxious to secure four or five first tenors and about the same number of second tenors. The bass and baritone sections are almost completed. Men interested in securing the best of choral training at practically no cost to them should apply at once to the director, Charles Renaud, 731 George street, or to any member of the chorus.

Prompt attendance and consistent attendance is required and the keenly interested man will be repaid in expert training and high class musical education.

A large number of the chorus attended the magnificent concert in Massey Hall last Friday night, given by the undisputed world leaders in male choruses, the Don Cossacks, led by Serge Jaroff. The peak of musicianship reached by this renowned organization of Russian ex-officers was an inspiration to the members who were fortunate enough to be able to go with the party arranged by the Peterborough musical director, Charles Renaud, who has not missed a Toronto appearance of the Don Cossack chorus in seven years.

MORE ABOUT—

Chamberlain Fishes

met parliamnt on Nov. 1, with a full program of reforms.

Already there have been several noteworthy developments from the lessons learned when Britain went on a modified war footing at the height of the European tension:—

1. Air defence plans will be accelerated by increasing factory productive capacity to a point where the potential output in 1940 may exceed 25,000 planes a year.

2. The balloon barrage, originally restricted to London, will be extended to Birmingham, Bristol, Manchester, Liverpool, Hull, Newcastle, Plymouth, Southampton, Glasgow and Cardiff.

3. The war office and the A.R.P. division of the home office are considering plans to divide recruits between the active defence forces like anti-aircraft batteries and passive defence organizations such as first aid crews. There may be changes in age limits designed to place the younger and stronger men in the active services.

More Guns

4. In all probability the government will seek to accelerate the production of the new 3.7 inch anti-aircraft gun which has an effective range of 30,000 feet, and the Bren machine-gun for land-fighting forces, capable of firing 200 rounds a minute in short bursts.

5. Every effort will be made to bring the regular and territorial armies up to full strength, to equip them thoroughly, and to accelerate training.

Many of these points and a great many more will be going through Mr. Chamberlain's mind as he enjoys his holiday in Scotland.

His main problem is to evolve a plan not based on compulsion which will apportion the available manpower to the various fighting and non-combatant forces in time of war.

He may select some form of a national register, a census of the adult population by which men of certain ages and qualifications would be alocated to various wartime duties. He might go further and have conscription in everything but the compulsory features.

Whatever he does will be designed to bring order out of the modified chaos that existed during the crisis and supply an answer to the national cry, "Tell us what to do," which was heard on every side.

Mrs. Roosevelt, 54 Toasted In U.S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt found it impossible to-day to escape any celebration of her 54th birthday anniversary.

Two parties were arranged in her honor, despite her theory that "the more you forget your birthday as you grow older, the younger you stay."

The Nattional Women's Press Club invited her to a luncheon, and provided ifts of an orchid and a birthday cake with 21 candels. President Roosevelt, only other member of the family at the White House, personally directed preparations for the traditional household celebration to-night.

Mrs. Roosevelt, buoyant and cheerful, told her press conference yesterday that she expected her next year to be as busy, but no busier, than the last.

From many quarters, the last year brought her honors and adulation A Puerto Rico newspaper urged her nomination for president in 1940. New York University honored her for "distinguished public service." She was given 6,000 roses at a "moter-in-law" fete at Amarillo, Tex.

But Mrs. Roosevelt went blithely about her activities. She commented once she did not think the country was ready for a woman president. She served hot dogs to Swedish Royalty at a picnic. She took Mrs. Doris Duke Cromwell, "the world's richest girl," to visit homesteads and square-danced with the homesteaders.

Tricks Of the "Gyp" Retailer Revealed

A survey of the New York department of markets recently revealed the startling fact that Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Citizen are gypped out of $60,000,000 a year by unscrupulous retailers. In the process of the survey, department investigators uncovered many ingenious methods of "getting away with it." Two of these methods are shown here. At LEFT, Max Mencher, secretary, department of public markets, demonstrates how a string from scale plate to a concealed foot pedal makes you pay for a little pressure of the retailer's foot. At RIGHT, lead stuffing in a turkey. You pay for bird and lead. After both are weighed, the lead is removed as the retailer cleans the bird for the oven.

Leader Bosses Women Musicians Like Men, Gets Along Fine

DETROIT, Oct. 12—(CP). — Phil Spitalny, who for five years has bossed 30 temperamental women musicians, told to-day the secret of his amazing success in the difficult roe of maestro of an all-girl band. "I just treat them the way I would a man," Spitalny said.

"Be honest with them, considerate but firm, it is the only way. Half the trouble a man gets into with women is because he treats them differently than he would a man. You know women are not different from men, but most men do not know that."

Florence Rosheger, Windsor, Ont., born girl, the only Canadian with the hour of charm orchestra, confirmed Spitalny's reputation as a successful conductor.

"He is very impersonal and maintains perfect discipline among the girls," Miss Rosheger declared, "he doesn't allow petty differences to come between us."

Miss Rosheger, termed by Spitalny, "a truly fine violinist," joined the unque organization when it was started five years ago in Chicago. She lived in Windsor until she was 12 then moved with her mother to Chicago. Her mother, Mrs. Mabel Rosheger, had her daughter as one of her violin pupils from the time she was three.

Drunken Pedestrian In Safety Spotlight

CHICAGO, Oct. 12—(AP).—The intoxicated pedestrian was given the spotlight today at the United States Safety Council's silver jubilee convention.

He yas put in the same class of public enemies as the drinking driver—a traffic menace on the streets and highways.

Those who promote highway safety on an organized scale said today they would attempt to keep the reeling pedestrian off the highway, just as they have been trying to keep the drunken driver away from the steering wheel.

The council's committee on tests of intoxicants recommended that educational and enforcement methods be directed at drinking pedesetrians.

In its second annual report, the committee said pedestrian deaths amount to 68 per cent of the total traffic death toll in cities, and that many of the fatalities may be attributed to drinking.

Yangsin Line Holds After 77-Day Battle

SHANGHAI, Oct. 12—(AP). — Artilery thunder echoed through the Yanktse Valley to-day as Chinese and Japaiese engaged in a bitter duel for hills around Yangsin, keypoint of south-eastern Hupeh province plains protecting Hankow.

The Japanese reported their forces were closing in on the war-time capital of Hankow from other directions while the offensive was intensified against Yangsin, which foreign military sources called the most important point in the present fighting. Occupation of Yangsin would permit the Japanese to sever the railroad south of Hankow, thus cutting of vital communication lines to Canton.

The invaders have spent 77 days since capturing Kiukiang, Yangtse river base 125 miles south-east of Hankow, in attempts to pierce strong Yangsin defence lines.

Foreign military attaches estimated the Chinese have had 1,150,000 casualties and the Japanese 350,000 in more than 15 months of warfare.

OBITUARY

JAMES ALBERT WARNER

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Oct. 12—James Albert Warner died on Sunday at midnight at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William McMillan.

The late Mr. Warner was born in Chatham 71 years ago last December, and came with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. William Warner to Asphodel when six years of age. He resided in Asphodel where he was engaged in farming previous to his retirement seven years ago. Since then he has lived with his daughter in Hastings.

Deceased was well known in this district and possessed many admirable qualities. Despite the affliction of being blind almost since his retirement he had a very sunny disposition and was devoted to his family and grandchildren. Four weeks ago he underwent a serious operation in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, and since his removal home everything possible was done for his sufferings.

His wife predeceased him nine years ago. He leaves to mourn his loss a family of six daughters, Mrs. James Dickson (Leona) of Keene; Mrs. Thomas Tyler (Gertrude) of Toronto; Mrs. John Robinson (Ella) of Keene; Mrs. Frances Beavis of Hastings; Mrs. James Weir (Bertha) of Stone, Sask.; Miss Mae Warner of Peterborough and Mrs. William McMillan (Ada) of Hastings. His two sons, James was killed in the Great War and John passed away in Western Canada. He also leaves his brother Fred of Hastings and sister Georgie (Mrs. John Corbett) of Ogdensburg, N.Y.

The funeral was held on Tuesday from his late residence at 2 p.m. with service at the Westwood United Church at 2.30 p.m. The service was conducted by the Rev. F. W. Newell, assisted by the Rev. D. K. Perrie of Hastings.

Vienna's Archbishop Guarded After Attack

VIENNA, Oct. 12—(AP).—Police took precautions to-day against a recurrence of anti-Catholic demonstrations by closing to traffic the square in front of the palace of Theodor Cardinal Innitzer, Archbishop of Vienna.

Although authorities expressed annoyance over the Cardinal's sermon last Friday in which he complained that the church had been months, they also were perturbed robbed of many things in recent over what they termed "youthful elements" venting ire against the Archbishop Saturday night.

Joseph Buerckel, Commissioner for Austria, was said to have ordered a thorough investigation. He was said to have warned those responsible that confinement in concentration camps would be the punishment for them.

Belfast, Northern Ireland, recently celebrated the 50th anniversary of the granting of the city's charter.

A Potato "Foot"

KITCHENER, Ont., Oct. 12—(CP)—Add to Nature's Fall freaks. Albert Steffler, West Montrose, displayed a four-toed "foot" grown in a potato. The potato developed into almost the exact shape of a human foot, with one toe missing.

Territorial Army Rebuilding Hailed

LONDON, October 12. — (CP-Havas).—"t is as timely as it is welcome," the Daily Telegraph (Conservative) said today of the Territorial army rebuilding announced by War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha.

"The country will see in it an earnest hope for the fulfilment of that program of rearmament of which the Prime Minister gave promise last week" added the paper. "It is convincing evidence the government recognize not only the need but the urgency of bringing the national defences up to the strength which these anxious times demand."

The diplomatic correspondent of the Manchester Guardian (Liberal) interpreted Chancellor Hitler's speech at Saarbruecken as indicating the Fuehrer feels Great Britain "is not nearly compliant enough and will have to get further scoldings."

"Hitler's speech is interpreted here in London as signifying that whatever changes there may be in the British cabinet he does not consider it desirable that Winston Churchill, Anthony Eden and Alfred Duff-Cooper hold office in the future," the correspondent wrote.

"In the German press, the Munich agreement is the beginning of a new era in which the influence of Berlin and Rome will be decisive. Great Britain is told by Hitler to mind her own business because he considers it his business to interfere in British affairs.

"It is of some interest that Hitler makes no unfriendly references to France. It would seem that he bases considerable hopes on former Premier Flandin and Foreign Minister Bonnet and their supporters. Nor does he appear to see any sort of effective opposition to their policy in France. He is, therefore, treating France much more gently than he is treating Great Britain, who, in his opinion, is not nearly compliant enough and will have to get further scoldings, if not words, until she improves her ways."

C.N.R. Loses Fight On Crossing Order

PORT HOPE, Ont., Oct. 12—(CP)—The Board of Transportation Commission for Canada, has refused an application of the Canadian National Railways for an order suspending an order of February, 1936, requiring the crossing at Walton street here be protected by a watchman between 8.30 a.m. and 4.30 p.m., daily except Sunday, it was announced here yesterday.

The ruling of the board was received in form of a communication to P. F. Baillargeon of the Port Huron board of trade. Action of the transport body was taken following a report of the chief engineer here and submissions by town of Port Hope, the board of trade, two service clubs and the C.N.R.

Two More Scarlet Fever Victims Close Second Tweed School

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Oct. 12.—The Separate School at Tweed as well as Consolidated School has been ordered closed until further notice by Dr. M. G. Dales, M.O.H., due to a case of scarlet fever in the village. During this time children are forbidden to attend church, Sunday school or theatre.

At Lodgeroom, where the death of a 10-year-old boy took place from scarlet fever, two more cases have developed, the mother and sister of the victim being being ill of the disease.

Valera's Drive To End Partition Rapidly Gains Momentum

By Sean O'Cathain
(Canadian Press Correspondent.)

DUBLIN, October 12—(CP Cable)—The campaign to end the Irish partition problem is rapidly gaining momentum Following up his recent talks with Prime Minister Chamberlain in London, Eamon De Valera, Premier of Eire, is understood to be attempting to bring about a conference with United Kingdom and Northern Ireland cabinet ministers to canvass the possibilities of a peaceful settlement

Meanwhile, Nationalist organizations in Fermanagh and Derry City have laid plans in anticipation of a plebiscite Sessions for revision of the current voters' register will be held shortly and thousands of applications and objections already have been lodged

In Northern Ireland Unionist (Government) circles it is feared the necessity of having a united Ireland for purposes of defence may weaken the attitude of the United Kingdom Government towards Mr. De Valera's claims.

This feeling has been intensified by reports that during the discussions leading up to the Anglo-Eire agreement of last April, Mr. De Valera advanced a scheme for the defence of Ireland as a single unit and declined to agree that anything of a satisfactory nature could be done by the 26 counties alone.

Six Arguing Points.

Mr. De Valera's case against partition falls under the following six heads:

1. The territory of the Irish nation has been partitioned against the will of the vast majority of the Irish people.

2. Ulster also has been partitioned, six counties being cut off from other three because the Belfast government could not secure a safe majority in Ulster as a whole.

3. In a block of four of the six counties cut off, there is a majority opposed to partition. (This embraces the Armagh, Derry, Tyrone, and Fermanagh area in which a plebiscite has been demanded).

4. Only in Belfast and the immediate area is a majority shown against unity.

5. Partition was effected with the cry "Ulster must not be coerced," but one third of the population of the six counties is living under coercion.

6. While partition remains, relations between Eire and the United Kingdom will continue to be strained.

The attitude of the United Kingdom government is known to be that partition is a matter best settled between Belfast and Dublin and that it would be difficult to alter the status of Northern Ireland without the consent of the Belfast government.

Mr. De Valera is believed to have made counter proposals that the United Kingdom's reserved powers over Northern Ireland should be transferred to the government in Dublin and that the Belfast government be allowed to continue with adequate safeguards for Roman Catholics in the matter of public employment.

Northern Ireland Unionists point out that by such a scheme the British exchequer would be relieved of financial responsibility for the north, which is estimated at £3,000,000 ($15,000,000) annually, apart from the expenses of military garrisons.

Independent View.

Commenting on the partition issue, the Irish Independent, which supports the opposition party of former President William Cosgrave, today says:

"The English parliament forced upon their country an unnatural boundary for which neither race, religion, nor trade could offer a scintilla of excuse. As long as that outrage on an ancient race is maintained, so long will Irishmen demand that the wrong be righted. Ireland is entitled at least to the same measures of justice as the German, Hungarians, and Poles. British statesmen cannot have one standard of international morality for Central Europe and another for Ireland."

The Fermanagh Herald (Nationalist) declares the fullest use must be made of the "present opportunity to bring about the unity of the whole Irish nation."

"The Irish constitution provides liberty and just treatment for everyone and it is under that constitution that we wish to have the right to live," the Fermanagh Herald adds. "We know that the Irish race, both at home and abroad, stands solidly behind the Irish government and nation in that demand".

U.S. Bars Author

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 (AP)—John Strachey, British Leftist, author and lecturer, today was ordered excluded from the United States.

The order, issued by a special board of inquiry of the United States immigration authorities at Ellis Island, classed the lecturer and author as "a non-immigrant not in possession of a properly visaed passport."

Strachey arrived Monday in the liner Normandie and promptly was taken into custody by immigration officials.

Washington Uneasy On How To Greet King

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(CP).—Although there has not been so much as an official murmur that King George VI and Queen Elizabeth will cross the border into the United States during their visit to Canada next summer, Washington social arbiters are debating whether the wife of the United States President should curtsy to Their Majesties if they call at the White House.

Asked by reporters what she would do if Their Majesties came, Mrs. Roosevelt smilingly replied: "I shall be told by the State Department exactly what to do and do exactly as I am told."

But Mrs. James Helm, White House special secretary, answered in the negative when asked if Mrs. Roosevelt should curtsy.

The consensus in social circles was that the customary American forms of social greeting would be the thing, rather than the curtsy.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

Recruiting Increases

LONDON.—Recruits continue to enlist in the regular army in increased numbers despite the peaceful solution of the European crisis, the War Office announced today. Last week 949 were enrolled, 528 more than in the corresponding week of 1937.

Dropped From Ledge

TORONTO.—Driven from his bedroom by fire, James Davie, 56, climbed out on a window ledge today and fell 20 feet to the ground. He suffered shock, leg and back injuries. Firemen were just arriving to attempt a rescue when he dropped.

Tom Allen On Way To Oxford Tells Of War Preparations England Made During Crisis

A "dreadfully spectacular" welcome awaited Tom Allen, M.A., when he arrived in Europe en route for Oxford University, he write in a letter received Thursday by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Allen, Reid street.

The Empress of Britain steamed into Cherbourg harbor just as the recent European crisis was at its height. "The harbor was mined and only a narrow entrance left for ships. Then about eight submarines, guns and all, passed outward bound. Several huge war planes circled overhead. All was depressingly impressive," he wrote.

"But that was nothing to the impression at Southampton and London. There were no mines visible, but they were there just the same. Searchlights were playing through the clouds."

Some of Preparations.

On board the boat train from Southampton to London, Allen and five Rhodes scholars—fellow passengers on board the Empress of Britain, and all bound for Oxford, Cambridge or London Universities—shared a compartment. One of the group was met by an American girl student. "From her we learned (a) The port of Southampton has been under military jurisdiction and yesterday no one was allowed to enter except on official business; (b) The Queen Mary sailed yesterday with four thousand (so rumour goes) westward bound; (c) A large liner left New York with only 75 passengers; (d) Oxford was not to open for another week and if not then, it was to be converted for military hospital purposes, the same for Cambridge; (e) American Rhodes scholars were told the day before they sailed not to go until the 8th of October——if not then, then not at all; (f) She told us of the great tension in London; of the trenches in the parks, of private cars having been commandeered; of special transport arrangements; that no operations excepting acute and necessary ones, were being performed in the hospitals; all confinements were taking place in homes; of tense scenes in the House of Commons; (g) All German vessels on the high seas had been called home; (h) Even three-year-old children in London are being equipped with gas masks. She has had hers for a week. They are issued free.

"You may imagine the effect upon us of all this news on first reaching "this Blessed Isle" — "peaceful, rural England," "the stately spires of Oxford." We were both excited and depressed."

Park Is Trenched.

Later, on reaching London, he wrote: "You can have no idea, at a distance of 3,000 miles, of the situation and condition of the people here. Across from my hotel is a nice park, all riddled with trenches. At a fire station down the street are piles and piles of sandbags against the walls. On notice boards and sign posts are signs: "Notice regarding A.R.P.—residents of this district will go to such and such a place for trench protection." "Gas masks will be distributed from 9 to 6 at the following places." All last night they were digging in the parks along the district."

Then, just before mailing the letter, he added the postscript: "But it seems now that all the tension has been released, and all seems bright."

OBITUARY

MRS. THOMAS J. SAMPSON

TWEED, Oct. 12.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Thomas J. Sampson of Chapleau and formerly of Tweed whose death occurred in Chapleau took place in Tweed on Monday.

The late Mrs. Sampson was a daughter of the alte eMr. and Mrs. Antoine Dewey of Madoc. She is survived by an only daughter, Hilda and was the last of her family.

The funeral was held from the C.P.R. depot on arrival of the train bearing the remains, to St Cathagh's Cemetery, where interment was made by Rev. Dean Cullinane.

MRS. FLORA ELEANOR ELLIOTT

Following a short illness, Mrs. Flora Eleanor Elliott, 311 Elias Avenue, passed away at Nicholls hospital on Tuesday.

Born in Roseneath, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Turner, and moved to this city about 15 years ago. She was a member of St. James' United church, and was active in many of its organizations.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. H. O. Perry of Oshawa, and Miss Doreen Elliott of Peterborough; and one son, Vaughan of Peterborough; also three brothers, L. A. Turner of this city, M. A. Turner and W. W. Turner, both of California; and two sisters, Miss Hattie Turner and Miss Eva Turner, both of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock from the late residence, at 3 p.m., from St. James' United church, Rev. F. W. Craik officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

GEORGE ROBERTSON

The death of George Robertson, resident of this city for the past four decades, occurred at his residence at 500 Rogaine street, on Tuesday.

Born in Scotland, he had resided in Beamsville and Stratford before coming to this city. He was a member of George Street United church and was active in the organization of that church for many years.

His wife, formerly Helena Frise, predeceased him. Surviving are three sons, Donald of Beamsville, George and John, both at home; and two daughters, Mrs. N. Moffatt, and Mrs. W. Wickett; also two brothers, Peter and David, both of Beamsville.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the funeral Home of A. Comstock and Sons, 305 Water street, Rev. M. C. Parr of George Street United church officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. BIRDSALL RADLEY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Oct. 12. — Funeral services for the late Mrs. Birdsall Radley, of Roseneath, were held in Roseneath United Church on Monday afternoon, following her death at the Mountain Sanitarium, Hamilton, on Saturday, after an illness of many months.

Mrs. Radley was a Christian woman, a quiet home-lover and a devoted wife and mother. She was in her fifty-first year, and before her marriage was Mary, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. Fleming, of Alnwick Township.

Surviving are her husband, one daughter Verna, two sons Earl and Eric, of Roseneath; one sister, Mrs. Wilbert Sandercock, and one brother, Uriah Fleming, of Port Hope; and a half-brother, J. Douglas, of Western Canada.

The service was conducted by Rev. L. W. Scott, who spoke from the standpoint of God's constant touch with man and the immortality of the soul.

The pallbearers were: H. Mouncey, Fred George, J. W. Pacey, N. Doidge, R. McCracken and H. J. McCracken.

Interment was made at Merrill's Cemetery. There were many floral offerings from relatives and friends.

Suggests Advancing Fall Fair Dates.

Advancing of the dates of the fall fairs in this district by at least a week is advocated by Fred J. Slade, president of the Roseneath Fair. He told the Examiner to-day that this subject would be brought up again at the annual meeting of the Central Ontario Fairs Association next winter.

"Running a fall fair is a real gamble," Mr. Salde said. "You never know what weather you are going to get from one day to another after you get past the first week or two in September, and especially when you reach the end of the circuit like Norwood, Roseneath and Marmora. If we get a day like this Friday we'll have 8,000 people or I'll buy you a new hat. And it might be nine thousand."

Roseneath has outstripped most of its neighbors in the local circuit. They have a property that is improving from year to year. It is always brightly painted, they have

Apsley Man Is Fined For Having Coon Skin In His Possession

Illegal possession of a raccoon skin cost Percy Henry of Apsley a fine of $10 and $2.50 costs when he was arraigned on the charge before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning.

"I don't know whether I'm guilty or my dog is," said Henry when asked to plead on the charge. "The dog killed the coon."

"There is nothing here about killing a coon," replied Magistrate Langley. "You are charged with being in illegal possession of a raccoon skin."

Henry then entered a plea of guilty. He told the court that the raccoon had come around his camp trying to get food out of a tree on Saturday night and that his dog had killed the animal.

"You skinned it," said Magistrate Langley questioningly and accused admitted that such was the case.

"His dog couldn't kill a cat, let alone a coon," remarked Fish and Game Overseer J. J. Lyons who laid the charge.

"Put a coon in front of the dog and you'd see," retorted the accused.

"This man had the coon skin hidden under the blankets in his bed," the overseer stated.

Henry explained that his wife had covered the skin over because the weather was warm and the flies were bad.

"There were no teeth marks on the skin," Overseer Lyons stated. "There was a bruise on the shoulder as if the animal had been trapped.

The Rambling REPORTERS

A NEW COMPLEX

A glass turned upside down, according to custom, indicates that one is missing, but to a waiter in a local restaurant it means a lot of grief—at least it did last evening. The waiter was clearing away the dishes from a table after a party had left the restaurant and noticed that one of the large tumblers was turned upside down on the table. He picked it up, but to his amazement the glass was filled with water and spilled all over the table. He is hoping that the amateur magician does his practising elsewhere in future, and is still trying to figure how the trick was done.—McG.

$5,000 Damages Sought By Edward O'Toole

Consequences of a motor traffic accident were related in comprehensive detail in the action of Edward O'Tool of Peterborough against William Hickson of Ennismore for $5,000 and costs in adjourned non-jury sessions of the Supreme Court before Mr. Justice Urquhart this morning.

Mr. O'Toole suffered a double fracture of his right leg in the collision of his motorcycle and defendant's automobile at the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte streets, May 23, 1937. He was riding on the motorcycle in an easterly direction and Mr. Hickson was driving north on Aylmer street.

Negligence Alleged

In their statements of claim negligence was alleged on both sides, Mr. O'Toole affirming that the defendant did not stop at the street crossing. Dr. G. Raymore Scott of Peterborough and Dr. Alfred Farmer of Toronto explained the nature of the compound fracture of the leg bones with special reference to their retarded union. Condition of the blood, lack of the uniting calcium element in the bones, and the extent of the compound fracture were causes of the slow progress to recovery in this case, Dr. Scott said. He had finally sent the patient to the Toronto General Hospital on February 26 this year where Dr. Farmer performed a bone graft operation to promote union at the fracture in the tibia. Both doctors expressed the opinion there would be some permanent disability. Examination September showed that union was taking place in both bones. Mr. O'Toole is now permitted to place the injured leg lightly on the ground to stimulate calcification.

V. J. McElderry K.C., represented Mr. O'Toole, and T. J. Carley, K.C., was counsel for Mr. Hickson.

In addition to the tremendous suffering of the plaintiff at times, there was also the medical and hospital costs up to the present amounting to nearly $800 as listed by Mr. McElderry. It was said Mr. O'Toole had been employed at the Johnson Motors plant prior to the accident.

Divorce Granted

Mr. Justice Urquhart granted the application of divorce sought by Mrs. Mary Walker from Arthur Charles Walker. Emmett Sheehy appeared for the plaintiff.

Facing Charge Reckless Driving

A case that has been hanging fire since the end of June was heard before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court today when Michael J. Murray was charged with reckless driving, the charge originating from an accident near the filtration plant on the Lakefield Road early in the morning of June 26.

On a charge of drunken driving in connection with the same accident Murray was committed for trial several months ago and will be tried at the December sittings. The reckless driving charge was laid at the same time and has been adjourned on a number of occasions.

Murray who was defended by W. J. Arthur Fair pleaded not guilty. The prosecution was in charge of F. D. Kerr, K.C., as a result of the fact that Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., was busy in another court.

Murray is allegedly the driver of a car that collided with another machine driven by Robert Hewitt and the evidence heard today was practically the same as that given in the preliminary hearing of the other charge.

The case is proceeding.

Y.M.C.A. Swimmers Elect Officers

At a meeting of "Y" swimmers last evening in the Y. M. C. A., the following officers were elected for the 1938-39 season, President Stan McBride; vice-prsident, Gerald Corbett; secretary - treasurer, Ted Clarke; social secretary, Tom Macdonald; publicity manager, Wally Farr; coach, Gord Minty

The club has over 20 members already and will consider any new ones who are interested in advanced swimming. Practices are held in the Y. M. C. A. pool Tuesdays and Fridays at eight p.m. for swimming and Wednesday evenings at eight for diving. The club plans a busy season with inter-city swim meets staged, local competition and social events.

They're Still Bombing Barcelona

Women and children are still the greatest sufferers as war goes on in Spain. The Czech crisis may have pushed the Spanish warfare out of the public spotlight but planes still fly over loyalist cities, dropping their missiles of death. Here is a recent picture, made after a bombardment of Barcelona by Franco's airmen. All eyes, save those of the most blase, are turned skyward, whence death may come at any moment.

TO ADDRESS KINSMEN

Harold Warton, V.S., is scheduled to address the Peterborough Kinsmen club at their regular meeting on Thursday evening.

REDUCED FARES.

The C.P.R. fares quoted in yesterday's Examiner as Toronto $1.90 return, should have read $1.95. This rate is scheduled for October 14 to 17.

ENDS SATURDAY.

The first of the two open seasons for partridge ends Saturday night. There will be another open season from November 5 to 10, inclusive, this second period being provided for the benefit of deer-hunting parties.

UNABLE TO APPEAR.

A charge of reckless driving against Albert Mills was again adjourned for a week when called before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court to-day. The accused is still suffering from the effects of an accident and was unable to appear.

TO ADDRESS BUSINESS MEN.

Peterborough business men are to learn how the Toronto Danforth Association has met its problems. To-night at 7.45 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce, the Peterborough Association will meet to hear representatives of the Toronto club and Secretary J. J. Dorris is looking for a full turn-out.

ANOTHER BEAUTY SPOT.

Another beauty spot these days and at any other time in the year is the view across the river toward Nicholls Oval from Water street, Waterford and all that section overlooking the Goose Pond. It is one of the finest spots of scenery in the district, and they say the assessor makes no extra valuation for vistas.

TO ADDRESS ENGINEERS

J. M. Somerville of the engineering department of the Canadian Porcelain Company is scheduled to address the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute on Thursday night in the Paragon hall. The meetings are open to the public and the speaker has taken for his subject "Manufacture of High Voltage Wet Process Insulators."

ALMOST DESERTED.

After a Thanksgiving Day rush that saw lights in many Stoney Lake cottages on Saturday and Sunday nights for the first time in some weeks, the lake is reported as practically deserted now. Most of the cottagers who had remained during September, moved back to town on Monday and others will close their summer homes in a day or two.

FISHING SEASON ENDS.

October 15 is the last day of the bass and lunge season and therefore fishermen have only a few days in which to gather in that big fellow that has been eluding them all year. During the past few weeks the muskies have been hitting and several big ones have been caught, following of course the records of other years which has always shown that a great many of the larger lunge are caught during the last two weeks of the season.

FINDS DEAD DEER.

As a result of complaints that the water might be polluted, Fish and Game Overseer Lyons investigated a report Tuesday that a dead deer was floating in Stoney Lake in the Crowe's Landing district. He found the animal, a doe that had been dead for some weeks but it was impossible to ascertain the cause of death. The inspector had the remains disposed of.

CASES ENLARGED.

Two charges against Brinston Cox were enlarged until next Wednesday by Magistrate Langley in police court this morning. On one charge, that of stealing $62 from Hood and Cumming, accused had previously pleaded guilty. On the second charge of stealing an automobile, the property of Ross Hood, a plea of not guilty was entered and both sides were agreeable to a remand on the two counts. Cox is out on $2,000 bail.

BROTHERHOOD MEETS.

The Mark Street Men's Brotherhood held on Tuesday evening their regular fellowship meeting with carpet bowling early in the evening, followed by refreshments and a business discussion. It was decided that the meeting on next Tuesday night would be an open affair with an invitation being extended to all women and men of the congregation who are interested in bowling. Refreshments and entertainment will be provided by the brotherhood.

GOOD HUNTING.

Sportsmen and women who took the jaunt to the woods this week for their first partridge shoot of the year, report the birds are fairly plentiful but wild. It is quite apparent that the protection afforded by closed seasons has increased the number of partridges in this district. Very few bagged more than a pair, but the majority enjoyed the lovely Autumn weather so much they cared little whether they even saw a partridge.

Harvest Service At Curve Lake

A most unusual display of fruit, vegetables, flowers and grain were blended in artistic design to enhance the Curve Lake Indian United church for Thanksgiving. The ladies of the congregation arranged the unique display. During the 11 o'clock service on Sunday morning, Kenneth Stewart, minister of the church, drew the attention of the large congregation to one most unusual exhibit which was a fine bouquet of wild ripe raspberries. The bushes had been broken off and placed in a vase. Many ripe raspberries, as well as green ones and promising blossoms were noted Older Indians, well acquainted with nature, remarked on wild berries ripening in October.

A giant subway through the city of Kobe, Japan, first considered nine years ago and shelved, is being discussed again and is expected to be started soon.

Life Membership Plan Proposed For Children's Aid Society

Plans for the inauguration of a life membership plan whereby citizens who pay $25 would become members of the Children's Aid Society for life were advanced by Rev. Dr. P. J. Kelly at the regular meeting of the Society yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Kelly was chairman of a special committee named to investigate ways and means of increasing the capital account of the society and this was one of the propositions brought forward. To introduce such a plan the constiution of the organization must be amended and approval must be obtained from the Provincial Government. All monies obtained from such a departure would be turned in to the capitol account of the Society, which has had serious inroads in recent years. The plan will be referred to other societies throughout the province for their consideration, as it is something never introduced before. Life membership certificates will be donated by H. L. Garner.

Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, president of the society, advised the members that a cheque for $1,942.62 had been received from the executors of the estate of the late Mrs. Maria Simmons of Lakefield, and another cheque for the sum of $50 had been received from the executors of the estate of Robert Reid of Peterborough. These two donations when added to the capital account brings the total to approximately $4,000. In view of this increase the finance committee was authorized to purchase $2,000 worth of trust bonds.

Liquor Charge Dismissed Against Nussey

Without calling upon the accused to put in his defence Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in Tuesday afternoon's session of the police court, acting upon a motion by defence counsel H. R. Rose of Toronto, dismissed the charge against Arnold Nussey, 82 McDonnel street, of illegally selling liquor.

His Worship declared that the Crown evidence had failed to prove sale by Nussey.

A second charge of having liquor in a place other than his residence was preferred against the accused after his dismissal on the first count and the case was adjourned for two weeks. He pleaded not guilty.

Arising out of the same case a charge against Roy Courneya of illegal possession of liquor was also adjourned.

The afternoon session was largely taken up with evidence as to events that happened on Sunday, September 25, the day after the day on which Nussey was accused of selling.

Mr. Rose objected strongly to this evidence being allowed but Magistrate Langley admitted it, under objection.

Beer Found in Car

Joseph O'Toole testified to a car deal he had had with Nussey and said that on Sunday, September 25, accused had called him on the telephone and asked him to drive him down town. O'Toole had gone to Nussey's residence and went inside for a few minutes and then Nussey came in and the two started down town. On the way they saw the police car and shortly afterward Nussey said he would get out and walk the rest of the way. O'Toole started to drive home and was stopped by the police. Five cartons of beer were found in the rumble seat of his car and O'Toole swore that it was not there when he started out to pick up Nussey.

"Did not Nussey tell you that his father was coming from Windsor and that he wanted to get the beer out of the house because his father objected to it?" asked Mr. Rose.

"All he told me was that his father was coming," replied O'Toole.

Constables W. A. Clark, John A. Rogers and Percy Sexsmith testified to finding the beer in the rear part of O'Toole's car and as to a search made of Nussey's house at 82 McDonnel street. They stated that beer had been found in the upstairs part, occupied by another family but that there was none in the downstairs rooms where Nussey and his family lived.

Constable Gordon Puffer told of sending a bottle of the beer found near the car on Waterford street to Toronto for analysis and the report received in connection with this bottle was put in as an exhibit.

That concluded the crown's case and Mr. Rose then made his successful motion for a dismissal. Magistrate Langley said that while the police were to be commended for the zeal they had shown and while there were suspicious circumstances he felt that no direct evidence of sale had been given.

Loblaw Contract Is Let Toronto Firm

Contract for the new Loblaw building on Charlotte street was let on Tuesday to Bennett and Pratt, Toronto contractors, who are also building the addition to the Y.W.C.A. Ground was broken this morning on the Charlotte street lot, and it is understood the work will be completed by December 1. The new store will have a frontage of 37 feet and depth of 120 feet and will be the same type of construction as the present building.

Lives Of Children Menaced When Mother Refuses To Be Admitted To Sanitarium

A story of human perversity that may cost the lives of two small boys was related by Miss Rachaele Young, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, at the regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon. It is the story of a woman who is a menace to the health of the community and to all with whom she comes in contact and who can continue to have her freedom because there is no legislation to deal properly with the case.

The woman lives in the county and is afflicted with tuberculosis. She refuses to enter a sanitarium. She could be forced to go to a sanitarium but could obtain her release next day because there is no law which compels a person to stay in such an institution against their will. Three years ago she was sent away but returned home in a week. She has two boys, ages 8 to 10, and two weeks ago when Miss Young was successful in making the two children wards of the society it was learned that both had contracted the dread disease. The children were taken after the family had been evicted and are now in Nicholls Hospital awaiting transfer to the sanitarium.

Woman Refused.

Miss Young explained that her attention was called to this case a few months ago when she first took office in Peterborough, and at that time she urged the woman to enter a sanitarium. The woman stubbornly refused. Miss Young pleaded with her in vain that the other members of the family would undoubtedly contract the disease.

She described the situation as "ghastly," and claimed that such a condition constituted a menace to the public health. The most tragic part of the case is the fact that this woman has a married daughter who is the mother of a month-old baby, and the T.B. sufferer comes into close contact with the baby. There is also a sixteen-year-old daughter over whom the Society has no jurisdiction because of her age.

Th distressing thing about the whole situation according to Miss Young is that all of this might have been avoided had the woman entered a sanitarium.

Committee Named:

Following Miss Young's report the Board named Dr. Barr and Miss Young's committee to approach Alex. Elliott, M.L.A., with a view to bringing the matter to the immediate attention of the Ontario Department of Health.

Alderman Stocker obtained the authority of the Board to begin reconstruction work at once on the cellar of the Shelter to fit it for the proper accommodation and storage of vegetables and fruit during the winter.

TORONTO, Oct. 12.—Declaration that the Ontario Department of Health is seriously considering the enactment of stricter regulations concerning the confinement in sanatoria of patients suffering from tuberculosis was made Tuesday night by Dr. J. T. Phair, chief medical health officer of Ontario.

Dr. Phair, informed of the circumstances described by Miss Young, agreed that a tightening of regulations might be necessary to prevent such occurrences, but he pointed out that present rules were more strict than the superintendent had indicated.

"At present the medical health officer of any community can require any patient who is a menace to the safety of others to be confined," he said. "No patient can 'sign himself out' of the institution whenever he feels like it, as she suggests. Of course, if enough pressure is exerted by the patient, he might be released. No sanatorium is equipped to take care of recalcitrant patients who forcibly object to treatment, but under ordinary circumstances a patient remains until discharged."

Shipping Holsteins To Quebec Dairies

Harold Cathcart of Springville shipped recently two car loads of choice pure bred and grade Holsteins to the Husereau Farms, Fresniere, Quebec. The pure breds were purchased from the Wm. Seymour, Percy Seymour and Carman Seymour Farms, Cavan, and Wallace Brealey. Harry McIntyre, R. E. Drummond, Ken Easton, Preston Armstrong, Otonabee, and the grades were purchased from the farmers' herds locally and Mr. Cathcart's own herd.

Mr. Cathcart also shipped a load of grade heifers to Mr. W. J. Monynes and Son, Cameron, Ontario.

A Flea License

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 12.—(AP).—You must have a license to hunt in Oregon—even if you're stalking a lowly flea. Dr. C. Anderson Hubbard, biologist studying bubonic plague, complained game wardens wouldn't believe he merely was hunting fleas. So the state game department issued the scientist a special license permitting him to shoot ground squirrels and other flea-infested rodents.

Chief Gimblett Inspecting City Schools

Peterborough will never know a school fire disaster if Fire Chief George Gimblett has his way. Today he continued a tour of inspection of the city's schools in the knowledge that prevention is the best way of fighting fire.

It was no hasty glance he gave each school, but a detailed examination, proceeding from room to room, from floor to floor, until he had viewed every portion of each building from attic to cellar, with an eye trained to observe fire hazards.

Walking into St. Mary's Convent this morning, without notice to the pupils, he rang the fire alarm in the corridor and timed the youngsters as they filed out, with a stop watch. Then, with all grouped about him, he told them of the meaning of Fire Prevention Week, its origin and its aim. He told the youngsters they must never play with matches, must never light fires unless supervised by someone older. Particularly must they never pull fire alarm boxes as one city youngster had done recently, he said.

When the youngsters had returned to their classes, he started on a tour of inspection that carried him through all the building. At each school the procedure was the same, at each youngsters filed out with precision, in orderly, trained groups. Not a single hitch occurred at any of the schools.

The tour of inspection commenced on Tuesday, is slated to end this afternoon at the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School where 1,200 pupils are registered.

Five Traffic Cases Are Dealt With

Lydia Matthews of North Monaghan entered written pleas of guilty in two charges under the Highway Traffic Act before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in traffic court today.

On a charge of driving without a permit she was fined $10 and $2.50 costs and on a second charge of failing to turn out when she should have done so when another car was approaching there was a fine of $5 and $2.50 costs.

R. L. R. Smith let his girl friend drive his car recently but failed to find out whether or not she had a driver's premit. She hadn't and it was a bit awkward when a traffic officer happened along. Smith entered a plea of guilty through Constable Gordon Puffer when charged with allowing a person who did not hold a driver's permit to drive his car and a fine of $10 and $2.50 costs was registered.

Bruce Hewittson pleaded guilty to stepping on the gas too enthusiastically and contributed $5 and $2.35 costs in the form of a fine for speeding.

For attempting to pass another car at a moment when conditions made the operation unsafe Don Leonard was fined $2.

Several other traffic cases were adjourned until next week awaiting proof of service.

ACCIDENTS

Almost daily we read about someone being injured or badly shaken up because of an accident.

It is almost impossible to get a bad jar or twist without causing a strain to the spinal column.

This may produce a slight derangement of spinal joints or tightness of spinal ligaments and muscles which will result in nerve constriction.

PAIN

stiffness, backache, stomach trouble or headache may develop.

These discomforts are frequently the direct after-effect of an injury and it has been our experience that spinal treatments do afford genuine relief.

Grove Proves Beautiful Setting For Prep Schools' Thanksgiving Field Day

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 12. — The annual sports day of the Lakefield Preparatory School was held on Thanksgiving Day. The weather conditions were ideal, and the spectators revelled in the warm autumn sun. The races were all keenly contested, and many exciting finishes added to the day's enjoyment. A feature of the sports is the system of Red and Green rivalry. The Reds and Greens represent the two rival houses at the School, each boy being chosen for either Red or Green when he arrives, keeping this throughout his stay. The originator of this scheme was Gordon W. Smith, a master of some years' standing. All races count for the challenge trophy, which is awarded at the end of each school year.

Prizes were won as follows:

Morning Events.

Senior high jump—1 P. G. Frewer, 2 A. B. Crickmore, 3 B. Rose.

Intermediate cricket ball—1 P Carr-Harris, 2 B. Wilkes, 3 W. H. Urquhart.

Mackenzie, of London, and Mrs. Carter.

Church Cagers Hold Meeting

Some changes were made at the re-organization meeting of the local Church Basketball League last night in the Y. M. C. A. Due to what was felt to be an attendance not fully representative, the selection of officers was postponed The present executive is preparing entry forms and lists of rules which will be sent to all churches of the city.

The 1938-39 entry date was set at October 25th for the bantam and juvenile sections. The junior division entry date was not set until in November, in deference to school rugby. Entry fee will be reduced from $2.00 to $1.50 though the league's balance now is but 34 cents. The presntation of crests instead of shields will effect a saving.

The league executive will consist of President Gordon Clegg, Cameron Gorrie and sec.-treas. Don Charlton. Each church entered in competition will supply an executive member. The offices of president and secretary-treasurer may be changed when the executive committee is fully formed. Full co-operation was promised from the "Y" by the recently appointed physical instructor, Walter Ferris. The gym floor will be available for teams wishing practice time Saturday evening, October 22. The league starts October 29th.

It is likely that the league will have a minimum of three teams before operating a section. A better junior grouping than last year is assured by the expected entry of St. John's, Murray Street, St. Paul's and St. Andrew's teams in that division. Churches interested in basketball in any section are urged to organize their clubs before the closing date for entries in the various sections.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

COACH BILL JACKSON of the 1938-39 O.H.A. junior Colts here has named Herb Hendrie manager of the Petes' young puckists. The huge centre of the Orfuns' line—he scales a bit over 200 pounds—likes the ice game, gets along oke with kids and is willing to tackle the job. Working with Jackson during drills and games this winter, Hendrie is a colorful gridder, full of pep and fight, and Balmy Beach didn't like losing him to the Peterborough gang. If he can inject some of the pepper and scrappiness he possesses in the junior hockeyists, the Colts will trot out a lively young squad. Herb was a cop in Toronto but resigned to play rugby here.

* * * * * *

OPINIONS on the Orfuns varied up and down the Rue de Rumor last e'en. Most of the fans felt the locals had made a creditable showing in their senior debut in Montreal on the holiday. Holding the husky Nats to seven points in the last half spoke well for Bill Irwin's bunch. It indicated they were over their nervousness of the first half and that they weren't wilting before the sustained drive of the big Montrealers. The Nats were bashing into 'em every bit as hard in the last half but meeting with a stiffer defence. Orfuns have all kinds of courage, plus speed and a lot of players who will hold their own in senior ranks.

* * * * * *

Orfuns Felt Like Orphans

IT WAS TO BE EXPECTED that the youthful Orfuns would have the jitters at first in their O.R.F.U. senior debut. The boys knew they were facing a tough gang on their own lot and in a new classification. Only a half dozen of the Peterborough pack had fought it out before in senior football campaigns. Orfuns knew they were getting into company which is as good as any in Eastern Canada, or all Canada. In fact, this type of football compares with any on the continent, barring the pro game. U.S. All-American stars have sprinkled senior grid lineups of the O.R.F.U. and Big Four groups in recent years, and Sarnia Imperials have held their own with Argos, Ottawa and Montreal. Names of headline and radio-mentioned luminaries danced through the minds of the local lads, fearsome photos of big 230-pound human battering rams charging at 'em flashed through their dreams—and it was no wonder the ex-P.C.I. and inexperienced others on the visiting squad felt their hearts kicking at their ribs as they took the field of battle in Mo'real on Monday.

* * * * * *

TOOK SOME 10 or 15 minutes, too, before the stage-fright began to wear off, before the boys from this Ontario centre collected their thoughts and realized big guys with big names like Ferraro, Barnabe, Burns, Ryan, Atcheson and Mullins could be stopped by unknowns named Marsh, Crowe, Magee, Spencely, Grose, McIntyre and Creighton. They were beaten then, our Orfuns, but they suddenly began to open up and play their real rugby—and they just about held their own with the star-studded senior Nationals all through the last half. They themselves believe they can lick Montreal here, and they expect to give the brilliant Ab Box and his Balmy Beach cohorts a tough, tough tussle of it here this Saturday. Loucks and Crowe covered more ground than a plague of grasshoppers, and the rest of our team began to show life in the last half Monday, so watch the combined class of the Orfuns' imports and homesters this week-end. They'll show you something.

* * * * * *

Well, The Nats Are Okay, Too

MONTREAL STAR says in part: "The young Peterborough club, though trounced in their first start, are far from being a poor ball club. These kids are certain to be heard from in a big way before the season ends. The Orfuns pack plenty of the old pepper and they kept up a rapid-fire chatter and gave local players and fans several anxious moments when the odd Orange flash would get way on a long gallop, only to be stopped by a Black and White player who was lucky enough to be on the spot. The visiting gridders unveiled two real senior prospects in Mike Loucks and Don Crowe, both boys being standouts on a lineup that proved jittery in the early part of the game. Loucks and Crowe combined to take the bulk of yards gained for the losers through some sensational plunging and tricky ball carrying. Nats all but took the heart out of the pair through deadly tackling. They had to be relieved several times but were still much in the picture at the final whistle, and should go far this year with a better defence." Baz O'Meara, dealing briefly with this "amazing duo," says most of the Orfuns' 192 yards were gained "by the indefatigable Crowe, assisted by Loucks."

* * * * * *

IN CENTRAL ONTARIO intermediate "A" O.R.F.U. squabbles staged over the holiday week-end, Kingston Garrisons took a 31-6 win in Belleville while Cobourg copped a 14-0 smirk from Trenton Fliers on the Lakeshore gridiron. Melkle did some dipsy-doodle hoofing and ran 105 yards once for a try. Quinte scribe says Coach Bob Elliott of the Garrisons showed his experience in line-plunging, keeping the head up to spot openings as he barged through, instead of bucking like a grouchy goat. Referee Gus Ryder of Toronto tells the tale of the game in Cobourg when the home club forgot to produce yardsticks. Someone spotted a crippled chap in the stands so, after a conference with him, the officials returned with two crutches and 10 yards of rope, and this odd setup did okay. And who says it was a lame excuse at yardsticks?

And It's For The Title

FINAL GAME of their O.B.A. series will be Saturday in Hamilton betwixt Stratford and the Petes. At 2.30 in Scott's Park. That's the official dope, and the Petes will get away early Saturday morn. Stratford scribe calls Doll, Calladine and Murphy—who got nine hits among 'em on Monday—murderers' row and adds: "That's the toughest section of lineup to show at the park here this year. Doll is the worst kind of dynamite for a pitcher and the Nats played illy-illy-over with a hand grenade when they decided to pitch to him in the ninth. But if they passed him, they got Calladine, who hadn't done anything except hit three singles in four. And if they passed Calladine, they'd get Murphy, who also had three hits for four. There's no breathing spot for a pitcher when he gets into that nest of apple-knockers." Keep it up in Hamilton, youse apple-knockers!

* * * * * *

DOC ROWDEN is about as well-known to puck and ball fans here as some of the home talent, so we'll slip you this scissored squib from the Oshawa Times: "Mr. and Mrs. 'Doc' Rowden returned home from their honeymoon over the week-end and the newly-married couple, who have been showered from all sides with good wishes and gifts, are proudest of their new frigidaire, delivered to the new home Saturday. The handsome ice box bears a silver plate engraved: 'Oshawa Sports Fans' and it represents the combined gift of more than 700 local fans who, in their united wedding gift, show their appreciation and express their best wishes to the most outstanding athlete to carry Oshawa's colors in the battles of sport with honor and distinction at all times." Think of the figure, Doc, and don't dip into the cooled cupboard too often, eh?

HITHER AND YAWN: Church Cage Loop meeting dope is in tonight ....Pete King, veteran member of the Petes' championship lacrosse team, is on the high seas for a visit to England....Coach Bill Irwin of the Orfuns is an archery addict and shoots a mean arrow.... Niagara Falls won the O.B.A. junior title with a 4-2 nod over Copper Cliff....And Hamilton rubbed out Toronto C.G.E. for O.S.A. intermediate "A" honors, after Electrics beat Oshawa....Andy Rutter got some good camera snaps of our gridders in action Monday in Montreal....P.C.I. grid teams are idle this Sat'day as Lindsay and Oshawa meet....Same two Toronto umps will handle the Petes-Stratford series in Hamilton this Sat'day....Some swim chatter from the "Y" is listed in tonight's paper....Stan McBride is prexy of the club swimmers with Gord Minty the coach....They're calling Glen Salter, ex-Oshawa gridder now with Beaches, "Corrigan" Salter, for going the wrong way in Saturday's struggle....Tickets are selling well for the Beaches-Orfuns' big battle here this week-end ;don't pass it up, folks ....Nothing new on local boxing plans....Nope, we won't admit the Nats and Petes in ball finals are as well-matched as Mrs. Astor's pearls, nossuh!

FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

Forward Pass Defence

By LEW HAYMAN

The best possible defence against the forward pass is to RUSH THE PASSER. I can't stress that point too much and there are two very good reasons for it. First, a passer that is hurried cannot be accurate, and second, all the time a receiver has to get down the field is the time the passer has to throw the ball, and the shorter you make this time the shorter you will make the pass. A hurried pass is usually a short one and even if it is then completed, it is naturally a lot better than having a long one go for a big gain.

Middles and outsides usually rush the passer. The middles should bump the opposing outsides as they start toward the passer, thus momentarily checking them from going down the field for the pass. The insides should bump any delayed receivers trying to come through the line. Near the end of a game when the team with the ball is behind and desperately trying a passing attack, the defensive insides can be dropped back to the secondary to protect against receivers.

As soon as any defensive man recognizes a play as a pass he should yell PASS! as the ball is snapped and so help his teammates in setting themselves for their defensive positions. Defensive men should watch opposing outsides and take their cues from them. Usually, if the outsides start down the field, the play will be a pass. If they block it will be a running play or a pass to the opposite side of the field. To guard against "sleepers" (in which the offensive team leaves a man at one side of the field, away from the line of scrimmage in the hope that he will escape notice), secondaries and tertiaries must make it a point to look toward the sidelines after every play or substitution. "Sleepers" usually come after extension plays, or after a team has received a kick, when a man is left behind as the teams gather for the scrimmage.

NEVER LET AN INTENDED RECEIVER GET BEHIND YOU. The defensive player always stays between the man he is covering and the goal posts. Once the ball is in the air he plays the ball.

The passes most likely to result in big gains or touchdowns are those thrown deep and wide. Hence, when in doubt about covering two men, TAKE THE MAN WHO IS MOVING TO THE OUTSIDE.

When covering likely receivers, break fast for a good position to get there in time to intercept or knock down any pass that is made. Whenever possible passes should be intercepted rather than merely knocked down. The exception to this general rule is on a long pass on a third down, in which case if the ball is caught and intercepted it may leave the team that intercepts in a worse position than if they had merely knocked it down and taken the ball at the original line of scrimmage.

The safety man NEVER ALLOWS A PLAYER TO GET BEHIND HIM BEFORE THE PASS IS MADE. Once the ball is passed he plays the ball like the rest of the defenders.

There are three types of defences used in covering receivers. Each depends on the ability of the material at hand and the type of play used by the opponents. The three defences are called the Zone Defence, the Man for Man Defence and the Combination Defence.

We'll go over these defences TOMORROW with a diagram showing the exact set-up.

Cricket Notes

The Peterborough Cricket Club's annual meeting is to be held at the Chamber of Commerce on Friday evening, October 14, at 8 o'clock. A full attendance of players is earnesty requested as there is important business to come before the meeting. All those who have played in matches should attend prepared to give a helping hand in carrying on the club's business. All persons interested in the game are cordially invited.

When The Examiner moved into its new quarters there were discovered in hidden recesses of the old offices, two old score books of the Peterborough Cricket Club for the 1860's and early 1870's, and these are now preserved in the Public Library. Possibly there are later records in private custody and it would be greatly appreciated if they could be inspected and, if agreeable to the possessor, also deposited in the Library to form a continous record. It is particularly desired to discover the whereabouts of the score-book in use previous to the present one. This missing book covers the years immediately previous to the end of 1935. Any information would be thankfully received by C H. Ireson, 296 Rogers street, phone 3067.

A Deadly Pool

AMARILLO, Tex., Oct. 12 (AP).—M. C. Hancock and W. B. Harris, riding horseback, decided to cut through a pool of water. Their horses stumbled and fell dead in the pool. Hancock and Harris were thrown to the ground. Only by the inches separating them from the water did they miss death. Both horses had been electrocuted. The pool was charged by a broken electric wire.

Lakefield High Recaptures Cup From Grove In Annual Field Day

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 12.—Lakefield High School defeated the Grove by a score of 40 to 26 to recapture the cup in the inter-school field day meet held at the Lakefield Preparatory School on Tuesday afternoon.

To Don Yale and Don Hurl—who represented the High School in every event with the exception of the mile race, goes much of the credit for the High School's fourteen point victory Both lads placed well up in all contests, being in the prizes very time except in the running broad jump when Ken Morris carried the event for the High School by jumping a distance of eighteen feet, two inches.

Bill Nichols, High School's best bet in the mile, ran a beautiful race for an easy win over all oponents.

F. Rewer, for the Preparatory School captured the high jump, with Yale and Hurl for the High School standing second and third respectively.

Potts, Frewer, Crickmore and Rose were in the foreground in the Grove team.

The gallery presented an attractive scene yesterday afternoon, with some two hundred spectators from the village and the Grove seated on benches and on the grass. The bright autumn sun shone warmly on the colorful array, and the excited cheers and shouts of the crowd as they watched.

The first race of the inter-school events was the hundred yard dash. Three contestants from each school entered. All finished within three yards in an exciting race. The winners were—1, Yale, L.H.S.; 2, Potts, L.P.S.; 3, Hurl, L.H.S.

In the high jump, Frewer and Yale put up an exciting ding-dong battle for first place, which was finally won by Frewer at 4 ft. 10 inches. The winners—1, Frewer, L. P.S.; 2, Yale, L.H.S.; 3, Hurl, L.H.S.

In the 220-yard dash, Potts put up a splendid race, winning by several yards. Winners—1, Potts, L.P.S.; 2, Yale, L.H.S.; 3, Hurl, L.H.S.

In the broad jump Ken Morris won for L.H.S. by a nice margin. He jumped 18 ft., 2 inches. The winners—1, K. Morris, L.H.S.; 2, Potts, L.P.S.; 3, J. Morris, L.P.S.

In the relay race Hurl pulling ahead of Morris (L.P.S.). Stewart (L.H.S.) lead McDonald to complete the first lap with the High School ahead. Yale managed to get a lead on Potts who was unable to catch him on the fast last lap and Yale broke the tape several yards ahead to win for the High School. The winning team—Bill Nichols, Archie Stewart, Don Hurl and Don Yale.

Hurl won the pole vault by a wide margin.

In the four hundred and forty yard dash, the Prep. School carried off first place with High School taking second and third positions. The winners—1, Rose; 2, Yale; 3, Stewart.

In the mile race Bill Nichols took an early lead and led the field throughout for an easy first.

This brought the final score up to 40 for the High School who had gained an eight point lead in the first event, and managed to hold and increase it as the afternoon wore on. Lakefield Preparatory School scored 26 points. Five points were alloted for first, three for second and one for third place.

Adanacs On Spot Must Win Game Tonight

TORONTO, Oct. 12,—(CP)—Fans who witness tonight's episode of the Dominion championship struggle between New Westminster Adanacs and St. Catharine Athletics, will probably see the maximum of action the game of lacrosse can produce.

For the courageous young westerners, it will be "do-or-die" and they promise to turn on a pressure attack early in the fixture which will outdo anything they have tried in the first two games of the best-of-five round.

In both games, although the Adanacs, successors to their famous fellow townsmen, the Salmon Bellies, have conducted a strong offensive, Coach Jimmy Gifford claims his team has played more cautiously here than in the drive that carried them to the western title.

Soundly beaten in the first two games, the Adanacs hope to remain in the hunt by piling up an early lead on their more experienced opponents. If they fail to come through, the Mann Cup now held by the Salmon Bellies, will return to the East.

Red Wings Buy Charlie Conacher To Get Out Of The Cellar; Adams To Use 'Cash For Goals' Idea

DETROIT, Oct. 12 (C.P.). — Manager Jack Adams to-day placed his hopes for lifting Detroit Red Wings from the National Hockey League cellar on big Charlie Conacher and a new "cash-for-goals" bonus system.

Adams announced the new set-up and the acquisition of Conacher from Toronto Maple Leafs late yesterday as a training squad of 50 players finished its first ice workout of the seaon.

He said he might use the one-time right wing star of the Leafs' famed "kid line" on a forward line with his veterans, Marty Barry and Herbie Lewis.

The Detroit club, Adams said, contracted for Conacher on a $16,000 two-year instalment plan, paying $5,000 down. The balance will be paid in annual payments of $5,000 and $6,000, provided Charlie, who retired from the game in the middle of last season on the advice of his physician, continues in good health and able to play.

(In Toronto, Manager Conny Smythe of the Leafs confirmed the deal, but Conacher said he was not sure the Wings would "consent to meet my stipulations." He said the contract offered him by Detroit was "decidedly attractive," but not quite what he wanted "in one or two respects.")

Health Better Now.

Some seasons back Conacher underwent a serious kidney ailment and last season there appeared to be some question as to whether the operation had fully corrected his condition. When advised that continued participation in hockey might result in permanent injury, Conacher hung up his skates, and said he was through with hockey for good.

During the summer, however, he told friends he was anxious to get back into the game; that his health was improved and that he might sign for the coming season with Detroit.

J. D. Norris, Jr., son of the Detroit owner, termed Conacher "the healthiest man in Canada now," adding "I asked him if he thought he could score us 30 points over the season and without talking boastfully, he said: "I can score that many points sitting down." We think he can."

As another part of his plans to rejuvenate the club that finished in the league cellar last season after winning the Stanley Cup in the two preceding seasons, Adams put forward his cash-for-goals plan.

He said figureless or small-figure contracts would be offered all Red Wing players whose performance last season had been regarded as "ordinary" and the agreements will call for cash bonuses for goals above a number agreed on by Adams and the individual player.

Remember When—

(By The Canadian Press)

Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics pushed over 10 runs in one inning to defeat Chicago Cubs 10-8 in a world series game at Philadelphia nine years ago to-day. Behind 8-0 in the seventh inning, the A's clubbed out 10 hits for all their runs. They won the championship four games to one.

Gracie Turns Out With The Canadiens

MONTREAL, Oct. 12.—(CP)—Bob Gracie, slim centre star last year with Montreal's disbanded Maroons, turned up last night for gymnasium training with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League. Gracie, who spent the summer working as a diamond-driller in Northern Ontario, was purchased recently by Canadiens.

You Bet He's Happy

Ernie Lombardi, big Cincinnati catcher, flashes a big smile in the dressing room as the baseball season came to an end It was a great season for the Reds, in the thick of the pennant race all the way, and a greater one for Ernie, or "Schnozz." According to the the National League batting unofficial averages he captured crown with a mark of .342.

Molly Hall Leads Field At Tweed Fair

TWEED, Oct. 12. — The recent outbreak of scarlet fever in the district kept the attendance at the Tweed Fair down to 3,000 people on Friday. The fair had recently been postponed from Sept. 23 and 24. The harness horse races attracted the largest crowd.

Molly Hall, owned by G. H. Caldwell of Avonmore, led the rest of the field in the free-for-all to capture the purse. Bedford Grattan, owned by W. Fowler, Kingston, won second prize with Miss Peter Grattan, entered by Allan Brown of Newcastle, third, and Oliver Harvester, owned by James Sutherland of Peterborough, fourth.

In the 2:20 class, Rosalind, entered by J. Vincent of Oshawa, won all three heats. May Worthy, owned by Mrs. Gilligan of Smiths Falls, placed second, and Infringer Grattan, entered by H. Ingles, Campbellford, was third.

Doyle Denies Being World's Worst Says Dame Who Popped Him Just After A Little Publicity

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP).—The rarest bird with the gaudiest plumage still is Jack Doyle (the alleged fighter, not the betting commissioner), whose most recent adventure was to get himself slapped silly the other morning by an indignant, six-foot songstress who said Doyle stood her up.

This made the list of Doyle knockouts virtually unanimous, it being recalled the Irish "thrush" or if you prefer "The Irish bust" recently scored a phenomenal kayo over himself in a London ring, when he swung at his opponent, Eddie Phillips, and missed, and landed upon his brow outside the ropes.

"Ah, yes," Doyle sighed yesterday. "Here I am only 25, and what a life I've lived. Without being boastful, I think I must be good copy."

The reporter had been admitted to the presence by Jack's valet, Jimmy, who expressed the opinion his master "had been taken advantage of "because he had always been too big-hearted and kind to people.

"That dame who slapped him, she's practically a stranger to Jack," said Jimmy.

"That's right," Doyle agreed. "She just wants publicity. She pulled the same thing on me in Hollywood. Popped up at a night club with a photographer along. As for being engaged to her, that's silly."

Night Clubs a Necessity.

Stretching his handsome torso and propping himself a little higher on the pillows, Doyle explained at some length that he, like all athletes, found it necessary to go to night clubs for relaxation. "A man can't sit around looking at the blooming four walls."

He was undecided about his pugilistic future and revealed Promoter Mike Jacobs offered him $75,000 to fight Joe Louis in London last winter, but that he had turned it down for reasons of the heart.

"But don't think I can't get plenty of fights in America," he said. "They'll still pay to see me get popped on the nose. I'm not the worst fighter in the world, at that. I was giving Phillips a good beating the other night when I fell out of the ring. And now the blighter is going to fight for the British championship."

Jack's plans now are to look in at Detroit next week on "an important business" matter and then to continue on to his "ranch" in California.

2 Nats' Players Laid Up After Monday's Game

TORONTO, Oct. 12. —(CP). — Johnny Macdonald isn't a man to give in easily, nor are his Cubs. Beaten badly in their first Big Four football start last Saturday against Ottawa Rough Riders, the Cubs still are optimistic and Macdonald holds that his team will do better this Saturday against Toronto Argonauts.

The Riders whipped the Montrealers 37-0, but Macdonald says the players will go a lot better "now that they've got that game off their mind." Macdonald sent his team through a workout last night in preparation for the contest against Argos, National champions last year. Many of the players still are nursing bruises suffered in the battering they took from Riders, a much heavier team.

Cubs will be without Lloyd Daniels, plucky outside wing, still in hospital at Ottawa recovering from a kidney injury. Missing at last nights drill was husky Gordon Noseworthy, Cubs' kicker. Noseworthy has been troubled this season with a bad ankle and the injury continually is being aggravated.

Meanwhile, all members of the Riders turned out for practice last night except Andy Tommy. The halfback is not injured and will be on hand when the Ottawa team plays Hamilton Tigers Saturday at Hamilton.

Redmen Practice.

McGill Redmen held their first drill since beating Western Mustangs 4-1 Saturday and the only absentee was Alex Hamilton, suffering influenza. It will not be known until later whether Hamilton will miss this Saturdays contest against University of Toronto Blues. Coach Warren Stevens sent his Blues through a light workout in preparation for the tilt.

Len Hutton and Dave Ryan turned out with Montreal Nationals last night after missing Monday's game with Peterborough Orfuns because of injuries suffered in a pre-season game. Two casualties were reported from the game in which Nats trounced the Orfuns. Joe Fahra, who played snap, and Harry Walker, a substitute linesman, were unable to attend last night's session because of slight injuries.

WORSE THAN IN U.S.

JOHANNESBURG — (CP). — Claiming that highway fatalities in the Union of South Africa are comparatively more than in the United States of America, authorities and press have started a vigorous prevention campaign.

Women's Open Star

Sensation of the Canadian women's open golf championships at Ottawa was 17-year-old Marg Esson, ABOVE, slightly built girl from Rosetown, Saskatchewan, who reached the quarter finals of the tourney before bowing out to Mrs. A. B. Walker, a member of the British Curtis Cup team. Her long drives and putting were sensational, but she seemed unnerved on the first nine holes of her match with Mrs. Walker and went down to a four and two defeat.

Kingston Woman Triumphs Over Men

KINGSTON, Oct. 12.— For the second time in succession ladies of the Cataraqui Golf Club can boast about a victory over the men, with Miss Caroline Mitchell defeating Ed Gibson for the Bermingham Trophy, competed for annually between the winners of ladies' and men's divisions. Last year Miss Barbara Rooke won it. In the men's locker room there is a mourner's plaque with the names of the men's losers, and Ed Gibson makes the third on the list. Gibson is also in the finals for the men's championship of the Cataraqui Club with Bill Mooers. They will play their match next week-end.

Hornsby Pilots Orioles For $10,000

BALTIMORE, Oct. 12 — (AP). — Rogers Hornsby, seven times batting champ of the National league, was still tops today. The reported $10,000 salary to be paid him for managing Baltimore Orioles is the highest of any minor league manager.

General Manager Jack Ogden of the International League team announced last night Hornsby would return next year to Maryland. He will replace Bucky Crouse, manager during the 1938 season which saw the Orioles finish in last place.

Ogden's action was just as unexpected as the arrival of the football season. In August he said he would replace Crouse and there was a lot of talk as long ago as April, when Hornsby came to Baltimore as pinch-hitter and coach. After the talk, Hornsby left to manage the Chattanooga team of the Southern Association.

Central Defeats King George 10-0

The runners-up in the Public School Soccer League—Central—added two more valuable points to their total Tuesday afternoon on King Edward Park, when they defeated the King George eleven by the score of 10-0. The winners were more experienced and relied upon their combination to overshadow the smaller aggregation.

First Half:

King George lost the toss and were compelled to face the sun. Central set the pace, to rattle in two goals in quick succession through the efforts of Millen, who scored from far out at an oblique angle. Batten followed, and Kiff ran through the opposition to make the count four and scored from a penalty. On an individual effort, Millen broke fast on the wing to finish with an unsavable shot that sailed in below the bar. Clarke made the count. Central, 7; King George, 0.

Introduced Combination.

On resuming, Anderson vacated the goal position in favor of Lee, who made a brilliant showing between the sticks, and he held the Central sharp-shooter from registering until after 15 minutes of play when Lee headed a centre from the right winger inside the upright. Kiff added two more to the total: Central, 10; King George, 0.

King George—R. Anderson, goal; H. Withers and D. Ralph, full backs; K. Ferguson, G. Powell and F. Wise, halves; K. Withers, H. Foster, A. Barrie, C. Cornwell and S. Stewart, forwards. Subs—K. Lee and S. Joyce.

Central.—N. Drummond, goal; F. Kiff and P. Melklejohn, full backs; G. Hanes, J. Parsons and G. Burns, halves; B. Millen, W. Smith, S. Clarke, L. Batten and W. Smith, forwards. Subs—H. Stewart, W. Griffin and B. Young.

Referee—D. Buchan.

SHIFT DATE OF GAME

KINGSTON, Oct. 12.—To avoid a clash in games here next Saturday, Kingson Garrison and Belleville are planning to play their O.R.F.U. fixture on another date. The Garrison-Belleville game is originally scheduled to clash with the Royal Military College-Ottawa University intermediate intercollegiate fixture, but arrangements are to be considered for a change so that fans will be able to see both games.

Football has more female fans in England than any other game.

BEWARE CHEAP TRICKS

BEFORE YOU DECIDE to take trick with some low card, take a good look at the entry situation. Perhaps it will then become manifest that the cheap trick is really expensive. It may result in blocking communication between one hand and the opposite holding, thus frustrating your entire plans.

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable)

North's original bid on this deal was 2-Spades, to which South responded with 2-No Trump. After 3-Spades by North and 3-No Trump by South, North jumped to 5-No Trump, which South took to 6-No Trump.

When the club 4 was led by West, South took the trick with the J and from that moment on his contract was doomed. He failed to realize that spades had to be run to make the contract and that one sure trick had to be lost there so that every other trick had to be won.

The club A should have been played to the first trick and even though that meant forfeiting one club trick, the play provided an entry to the South hand to cash two good hearts, which with the two in dummy, five spade tricks, two diamonds and two clubs would have been more than sufficient to make his small slam.

Being kept in the dummy with the play of the 7 on the first trick, declarer was obliged to lose one diamond in addition to one spade.

Prevent Fires By Preparing For The Winter

An appeal to citizens in the city to observe Fire Prevention Week by thoroughly cleaning stove pipes, furnace pipes and chimneys in preparation for the winter months was voiced today by Fire Chief George Gimblett.

He observed that the weather was ideal for such work and every citizen owes it to himself and his family to take any and all precautions that would reduce the possibility of fire in homes, factories and public buildings.

The tendency during the past three winters to burn a great deal of wood in place of coal has increased the danger from fire, as soot accumulates more rapidly with this type of fuel.

Vent pipes in bathrooms should be inspected, particularly those leading into chimneys, for it may be found that at some time somebody has stuffed the small vent pipe with rags or paper, and this is one of the common causes of fire. The vent pipes carry the foul air from the bathrooms into the chimney where the up-draft from the fire forces the air out through the chimney. Often rags stuffed into this pipe ignite and a disastrous fire often results.

Metal Containers.

Wooden containers kept in cellars for ashes should be replaced by metal ones, as hot ashes are well up the list in causes of fires. All rubbish which has accumulated in basements, back sheds, clothes closets and attics should be celaned out this week.

Exposed wiring in many of the older houses and buildings in the city merits inspection by the owners, and all places where the insulation is worn off should be taped, after the power has been switched off.

A check-up during the month of September shows 301 defects listed by the inspectors in 305 homes and the defects are listed under 26 heads.

Besides those already spoken of in the foregoing paragraphs, the most common are as follows: Stoves too close to woodwork, defective pipe holes, exposed wood lath, celluloid toys, defective roof, rubbish, using gasoline, using inflammable liquid and bridges fuses.

Safety Valve.

Bridging fuses is one of the most dangerous practices today. It consists simply of placing a copper or washer behind the fuse in the fuse box, with the result that the fuse serves no purpose whatever. It may interest householders to know that the fuse is the safety valve of the circuit. If there is an overload in the wiring any place in the house, the fuse blows out, and cuts off the power, thus eliminating the danger of fire. On the other hand, if there is an overload from the outside, such as a high tension wire falling across a 110-volt line serving the homes, the house fuses will blow out, thus protecting the house from the heavy voltage which the 110-volt line would be forced to carry in such a case. If the fuse did not blow, fire would break out at any exposed point where there was a wire or extension touching metal with but a thin layer of old insulation separating them. Most houses are 30 amp. circuits, therefore the fuses should be not more han 20 amps.

Bund Rally Stoned Leader Gets Ducked

NEW MILFORD, N.J., Oct. 12.—(AP). — A disturbance in which members of the German-American Volksbund were routed by rocks and other missiles and one man was dumped into a pond led authorities to-day to consider the advisability of legal steps to ban future meetings.

A crowd of several hundred men brushed through a cordon of police and firemen last night and stormed a Bund meeting at the home of Adam Kunze, scene of previous clashes.

Rocks, rotten fruit and broken crockery were hurled through windows and several of the attackers seized Kunze and dumped into a nearby pond. He crawled out unhurt.

As a result of the riot at the house where previous Bund meetings have been disturbed by hecklers, Mayor George Mack announced to-day he would confer with Borough Attorney Walter Seufert on the advisability of taking legal steps to bar future Bund meetings in the borough.

With the Boys At the Y.M.C.A.

East City Club Joins the 'Y.'

Forty-one boys of the boys' club headed by Darcy Windsor joined the Y.M.C.A. to make a climax to the membership campaign. The boys made made a down-payment as a group upon their membership and are now individually permitted to enjoy the full privileges of the Y. M.C.A.

Under the inspired leadership of Mr. Windsor, the boys set themselves an objective which was the total amount required for all the boys in the club to join the Y.M.C.A., then they rolled up their sleeves and went to work to raise the amount of money necessary to join. Several methods were used in raising the money; first the boys contributed their own "pin money,' 'then each member earned by chores as much as he could to add to the club treasury, then the group did several jobs all together which raised more money. One of these jobs was cutting the lawn of one of the local churches, another was selling home cooking contributed by the mothers of the boys, another was selling merchandise and turning the profit over to the club. The boys are extremely proud of their efforts and rightfully deserve to enjoy to the utmost the privileges which they have earned.

There are two groups to the club, the one for boys twelve and over, the other for boys under twelve. The younger group will meet this week at the home of Noel Easons, 574 Rogers street at 7 o'clock Thursday evening. The older group will meet at the same time in the home of Gordon McDougal, 78 Sophia street. Last week the group enjoyed a talk by Norman Hewitt on his experiences at Bolton Air Camp.This week the group are looking forward enthusiastically to the plans laid by the executive since the last meeting.

Membership Campaign.

Major Ralph Rogow defeated Major Jim McBride in leading his division to victory in the boys' membership campaign. The team, consisting of Bern Hamlin, Bill Loomis and Jim Ferguson won the team competition with a total of 2,070 points, thereby winning the free trip to Toronto a National Hockey League game. And Fowler led "A" division with Bob Dutton running him a close second. The campaign was successful in giving the boys' division a real start for the season.

Craft Clubs.

Under Wilton Hillier, the new director of craft work, the Y.M.C.A. hobby club start enrollment for the winter programe. There will be a limited registration for each group so 'Y' members are urged to sign up this Friday evening at 7.30 p.m. Groups being offered are: Photography, basketry, woodwork, boat patterns, murals, soap carving, plaster of Paris moulding, stamps, and aircraft. Leaders of these groups will be Bob Elcombe, Wilf Gynane, Jim Ferguson, Bill Loomis, Ernie Cooke, Ralph Rogow, Bill Moorhead, Henry Shepherd and Wilton Hillier.

Safety Deposit Box Loot Over $50,000

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Oct. 12. —(CP). — With a $5,000 reward standing for arrest of safe crackers who Friday night broke into the Jordan Station branch of the Imperial bank, police to-day intensified their investigation.

At first believed to have been a robbery of les sthan $100, it became known Saturday, when a complete check up of rifled safety deposit boxes was made, the loss would mount to between $50,000 and $80,000.

An Imperial Bank official to-day said the highest figure was excessive. He placed the figure at $56,000, made up of $25,000 in negotiable securities, $21,000 in non-negotiable securities and $10,000 in an annuity which is valueless except to Ezra Honsberger from whose boxes all the missing documents were taken.

Honsberger in his estimate halved the $80,000 figure.

Saturday Inspector Albert Ward of the Criminal Investigation Branch of the Provincial Police joined Provincial Constables I. R. Robbie and T. E. Pearson in the case. Assistance was also given by Detective James Anderson, finger print expert of the St. Catharines force.

The reward is a standing one offered by the Canadian Bankers' Association.

Suspect Suicide In Dangling Body At Tree Top

CORNWALL, Ont., Oct. 12—(CP) —Police continued investigation today into the mysterious death of Julien Lavoie, 20-year-old Cornwall laborer whose trussed-up body was found yesterday slung at top of a 40-foot pine tree in the bush near here. Lavoie disappeared last spring.

Provincial Constable R. H. Hawkshaw said he was "quite certain" Lavoie committed suicide and discounted the possibility he was murdered. "There will of course be an official investigation," he said, "but there is no suggestion of murder as no one man or even two could put him up there in the tree top."

The feet of the corpse were tied to branches with a piece of clothesline and the body was hanging head down. Around the trunk and leading to the very top of the tree was an eight-foot piece of half-inch rope.

"It remains to be proven that it is suicide and yet I don't see how anybody could take the body up the tree," said Coroner C. A. Stewart. "The body was roped to two limbs and apparently his belt strap had been used to bind his hands behind his back had dropped off."

Examination after the body was brought down with much difficulty showed it was badly decomposed. Lavoie's disappearance was reported to police May 2.

Hermidas Marsolais of Cornwall made the discovery while partridge hunting. Later Jack Montroy of Cornwall told police he saw what he now believes was the body in the tree four weeks ago but thought at the time it was a scarecrow.

Manion Presses Catholic Youth To Get Into Public Affairs

OTTAWA, Oct. 12 — (CP). — Pledged to propogate the doctrine of Catholic action, 700 delegates to the Canadian Catholic Youth Union convention scattered to their homes Tuesday bearing with them the plea of Cardinal Villeneuve and Conservative Leader Manion that they participate more actively in Canadian public affairs.

The three-day convention finished late last night after a contentious resolution concerning obligatory participation of Canadians in extra-territorial wars was shelved by referring it to the national executive for further study.

The resolution threatened to split the meeting and was passed on to the executive "in order to avoid all dissension, however small it may be, in this convention."

Speaking at a banquet, Cardinal Villeneuve said he thought Catholics have not taken enough part in the social and national life in Canada, "and I say you are going to take such a part."

In a short speech before his eminence addressed the banquet, Dr. Manion urged that Catholic youth take a greater part in national affairs and to seek to bring about national understanding and unity.

A lengthy debate developed late in the afternoon concerning the conscription issue and the banquet was held up for more than an hour while the delegates sought to compose wide differences of opinion on the question.

Some Views

English-speaking delegates questioned the introduction of the resolution. Frank Fleury of Montreal said he agreed with the essence of the resolution, but questioned the expediency of the Catholic Youth Union passing such a motion. "What right have we as Catholics to pass on a motion not essentially Catholic?" he asked, adding that he feared it would compromise the congress.

French-speaking delegates said the resolution would not bar anyone who wished to go to war outside Canada from doing so, but it was simply against the principle of compulsory service for extra-territorial wars.

Another resolution adopted urged young Catholic workers to join labor organizations "that are based on sound doctrine of labor and dedicated to the true welfare of their members without violence, without attacking religion and without fomenting civil discord."

The convention adopted a resolution giving young women's organizations the right to enter the union on equal terms with male organizations. The question had been raised whether the word "youth" in the title of the union was to be construed to mean young people of both sexes.

Adequate penalties for divorced persons who remarry were advocated in another resolution. All materialistic and pagan doctrines were condemned and good wishes of the union were sent to Catholic youth in Spain, Mexico, Russia and Germany.

False Teeth Wearers Are Worst Breath Offenders!

"Need More Than a Mouth Wash" say Authorities... Recommend Polident

Plates and bridges soak up odors and impurities like a sponge! A thin dark scum collects on them. This scum holds germs and decay bacteria. It is so tough that ordinary brushing seldom removes it. And it gets into every tiny crevice where brushing can't even reach. Almost always it results in "denture breath" —probably the most offensive of all breath odors.

Yet there's a perfect way to clean and purify false teeth without brushing, acid or danger. It is Polident, the powder that dissolves away all scum, stains, tarnish and odor. Makes breath sweeter—and plates or bridges look better and feel better. Tens of thousands call Polident a blessing for comfort, convenience and hygiene. FIVE PERSONS KILLED AT LEVEL CROSSING

Drops 30 Feet To Death Fleeing Fire

Sudbury Man Ignores Plea To Wait Arriving Firemen

SUDBURY, Ont., Oct. 13—(CP).—Oscar Philion jumped 30 feet to his death in trying to escape when trapped by a fire in the top floor of the McCool Block early today.

The 41-year-old man landed on his head on the pavement. Police said had he delayed his jump a second or two, he would have been rescued.

J. A. Philion, a brother of Oscar, and Luke Faught, and Mrs. Narcisse Morin, 67, were taken to the hospital, the men suffering from burns, the woman from shock as a result of the fire.

About 20 residents of the building, situated at the corner of Cedar and Lisgar streets, were driven to the street in night attire. The majority, living on the top floor, fought their way through dense smoke to the fire escape at the back of the building.

Got Out But Went Back In

Those who escaped told fire chief Andrews Oscar Philion had left the apartment safely but re-entered the building, apparently for something he had forgotten.

He was next seen hanging from the sill of a front window by Constable Mousseau.

"I shouted at him not to jump," said the constable. "But he disregarded my warning. His brother had told him to jump, that he would catch him. Dropping, he struck a ledge at the second floor. This turned him and he fell on his head."

Firemen had just about reached the scene when Philion made his plunge.

J. A. Philion suffered burns about the arms and face while Faught was scorched on the ball of a foot.

Use Bedding to Escape.

Oscar and Nelson Bolleau escaped by making a rope of bedding and lowering themselves 15 feet to the second floor. From there they dropped another 15 feet to the ground.

Dooley Boivin, well-known boxer, his wife and a roomer, Bud McMurry were brought to safety from their third floor apartment by firemen.

The fire, followed by only 10 minutes, an alarm from the dump at the rear of the Sudbury Steam Laundry. Fire Chief Andrews was returning from the first alarm when he heard the shouting of the apartment dwellers.

The Chief, his driver, Ray Halpenny, and two other firemen battled the flames until the remainder of the brigade arrived from the dump fire.

25 Arabs Slain To Rescue British Patrol

JERUSALEM, Oct. 13 (AP). — Hassan Sidkey El Dajany, a prominent Moslem lawyer, who refused recently to participate in a campaign against Jews and British authorities, was shot to death today.

Details were lacking about the slaying, which followed a day of disorders that left 25 Arabs dead and caused the Royal Air Force to dispatch two planes to rescue a British police patrol ambushed by Arabs.

For many years Dajany was a friend of Haj Amin Effendi Al Husseini, the exiled Grand Mufti of Jerusalem. He was reported to have turned against the Mufty recently and refused to take part in the anti-Jewish campaign.

At the Damascus gate today two other Arabs, reported blacklisted by organized Arabs, were killed.

(The Grand Mufti fled the Holy Land October 16, 1937, and since July, 1938, has been living in Lebanon. On May 5, 1936, Dajany was arrested following a meeting of Arab and British leaders, at which he was believed to have warned that strong measures would be used if terrorism did not cease).

Thirteen Arabs were killed yesterday by bombs from air force planes sent to rescue the ambushed police and British troop reinforcements in a battle on the Jerusalem-Hebron road which lasted until nightfall. Six other Arabs were killed as another British force clashed with a terrorist band. The others were slain in scattered battles with British troops and in scattered shootings.

About 21,000 British soldiers and police have been deployed throughout the Holy Land to end the strife.

Czechs Break With Hungary

Refuse More Land; Four-Power Decision Expected

KOMAROM, Hungary (On the Czechoslovak Border), Oct. 13.—(AP).—The Hungarian delegation to the Komarom conference declared to-night that negotiations on Hungary's demands for cession of Czechoslovak territory had been broken off.

Koloman Von Kanya, Hungary's foreign minister, read a declaration to a final session of the conference stating that the Budapest government would hand over its claims on Czechoslovakia to a four-power conference for decision.

This came about one hour after expiration of a Hungarian ultimatum calling for Czechoslovak acceptance of Hungary's territorial demands—said to cover some 8,000 square miles—by 6 p.m. (noon E.S.T.)

The Hungarian spokesman said his government saw no way to bridge the existing differences between the two nations by continuing the conference.

The Hungarian delegation immediately left the conference hall, on the Czechoslovak side of the border, and crossed over the Danube bridge into Hungary at 7:25 p.m. (1:25 p.m. EST).

No Nations Named

The delegation did not indicate immediately what nations would be included in the four-power conference, but it was believed they would be the same as those at the historic Munich conference which agreed to the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia—Germany, Great Britain, Italy and France.

Before expiration of the ultimatum a high Hungarian source asserted Hungary probably would order army mobilization tonight if her demands were not accepted. However, the announcement that her demands would be referred to a four-power group was believed to indicate that immediate military action was not contemplated.

Shortly before 6 p.m. a Czechoslovak delegate disclosed his country had made a new proposal, but details were not disclosed. It was indicated, however, that by further bargaining on the basis of this proposal Hungary might obtain about 40 per cent of her demands.

Czech Troops Ready

Czechoslovak soldiers moved additional field artillery, machine-guns and supplies closer to the Hungarian frontier along the Danube. They

Ruthenia Ruled By Martial Law

PRAGUE, Oct. 13—(CP-Havas.)—A state of siege, a form of martial law, today proclaimed at Mukacevo (Munkacs) and other districts in Ruthenia following a series of "incidents."

Mukacevo is the principal town of Ruthenia, also known as sub-Carpathian Russia, eastermost province of Czechoslovakia.

The Prague gvernment has granted the province autonomy, but both Hungary and Poland have urged that a plebiscite be held there with a view to its possible union with one of the two countries.

The step was tocounter the activities of Hungarian terrorists filtering across the border. Several serious clashes have occurred during the past few days. Authorities in Ruthenia said railways and telephone and telegraph lines had been damaged and several officials attacked. One railwayman was killed.

All arms must be delivered up to the autorities within 24 hours, the Ruthenian government announced.

Macaulay To Fight For Leadership

TORONTO, Oct. 13 — (CP). — Leopold Macaulay, Conservative House Leader in the Ontario Legislature, to-day reiterated his determination to contest the party leadership at the province-wide convention here December 8-9 to select a successor to Hon. Earl Rowe. The convention was necessitated after Mr. Rowe announced his resignation at the annual meeting here in July.

Mr. Macaulay, former highways minister and leadership candidate in 1936 when Mr. Rowe was chosen, said there was "nothing" in reports circulating in Toronto that he would withdraw from the leadership contest.

Dodge Wounds Not Fatal Says Coroner

LITTLE CURRENT, Oct. 13. — Daniel G. Dodge would have recovered from the wounds he received when dynamite caps exploded in his garage last Aug. 15, Dr. K. C. Falkner told a Coroner's jury here yesterday afternoon. Dr. Falkner performed an autopsy on the body of Dodge after it was found in the North Channel, eleven miles from this town, last Sept. 7.

Wednesday's inquest was adjourned until Oct. 24, due to the fact that Mrs. Daniel G. Dodge, youthful widow of the dead heir to an automobile fortune, is in Detroit, where a Surrogate Court is probing the will of her husband.

The boat out of which Dodge fell after he was injured was equipped with life-saving belts. Dick Droulet, caretaker of the lodge for eight years, testified that all the lifebelts were in good condition.

"Do you know of any reason why he could not have been tossed one of these life-savers when he fell out of the boat?" Dr. R. N. Simpson, acting as Coroner, asked.

"No, I don't know why he could not have been tossed a life-saver," Droulet answered.

Injuries suffered by Dodge were painful, but by no means fatal, Dr. Falkner testified.

"I found abrasions all over his body, none of which penetrated to the bone or to any vital spot. His eyes would not have been affected. The little finger of his right hand was shattered. I also found a bit of steel lodged in the upper part of one arm," he said.

The feature of the session was a demonstration by Provincial Constable G. B. Carmichael, who lit a piece of dynamite fuse to show the jury how it sputters for a few minutes before burning. "There is no danger in lighting this fuse," he assured the court.

Nevertheless, a few of the jurors fidgetted nervously as he applied a match. In a little while the courtroom was filled with a pungent odor, and Constable Carmichael walked over to a wood stove and dropped the fuse in.

Flames Leap To Fresh Timber Land

Weary Crews Fight On More Families Moved To Safety

FORT FRANCES, Ont., Oct. 13—(CP).—Outcroppings of new fire today in northwestern Ontario's flame-blackened forests sent crews, wearied by days without sleep, into new areas in desperate, unceasing effort to hold the damage and death toll within present limits.

Twenty are dead along the international boundary where a swath of black ruin stretches 30 miles wide for some 60 miles west frm Fort Frances.

Courageous fire rangers, insisting the situation is under control and there is no need for undue alarm, still fought fresh outbreaks. Fire sleeping in the muskeg explodes into flame when the blast-furnace heat mets timer or slashing. Flames break out miles beyond previously established limits.

Eight women and 25 children fled their homes 40 miles west of Fort Frances yesterday when one outbreak threatened the district. They were housed in a Stratton hotel when officials, determined to prevent further loss of life, ordered them to evacuate.

The settlement of Devlin, 25 miles west of here, was reported threatned last night with firefighters battling against odds to save the village. Provincial police here said the settlement was not endangered.

Ontario Toll Now 17

Four bodies, evidence of a family's futile struggle for life, were found yesterday in Dance township where all Ontario's 17 deaths have occured. The other three victims fell across the border in Minnesota.

Jack Lloyd, Billy Whiddon and Clyde Kimble, settlers forming a volunteer search party, discovered the four bodies. The dead were 21-year-old Sam Fyle and members of his household.

Plodding through the charred remains of once fine pulp forests, the searchers came first upon ruins of Fyle's house. Within the blackened ruins was the body of Fyle's 18-month-old son. About 10 yards farther they found the body of Mabel Larson, 12-year-old sister of Mrs. Fyle, whose fire-tortured body lay just beyond.

Three hundred yards from the house ruins they found Sam Fyle, his hands crossed above his face, probably just as he crossed them to spare his eyes the torture of smoke and searing flames.

Twelve members of the Labelle family burned to death when fire trapped them on their Dance township homesteads Monday were buried yesterday from the Grey United church at the crossroads at Emo 40 miles west of Fort Frances.

2 "Dead" Decoys Double-cross Hunter And Fly Off As He Builds Hide

Lindsay, Ont., Oct. 13 (CP)

A DECOY double-crossed William Daynes, youthful local nimrod, yesterday. An ardent duck hunter, he has not missed a day since the season opened, but was not meeting with much success until yesterday, when he brought down three large blacks with one shot.

An inspiration came to him to use the ducks as decoys. This he did, placing a stick beneath the bill to hold the head erect. The decoys were placed in a buckwheat field partially covered with water and the youth began to build a hide.

Suddenly there was a loud "quack." With his arms laden with sheaves of buckwheat which had not been gathered owing to excessively wet weather, Bill had the startling experience of seeing two of his "dead" decoys flap their wings, stretch a bit and then with another derisive "quack" take to the air.

"I'll never trust a duck again," Bill says.

Japanese Blaming British, French Aid To China At Canton For Her New Southern Campaign

TOKYO, Oct. 13 (AP)—Japanese declared to-day that British and Frenc haid to China through Canton necessitated the new South China offensive.

"The British purpose in holding Far Eastern fleet manceuvres off Hong Kong (last summer) was quite evident to Japan," the newspaper Kokumin said editorially.

"Both British and French should recognize their shortsighted view is responsible for expansion of the fighting," a Nichi Nichi editorial argued.

"In the Orient there is an oriental type of realities which is totally alien to westerners."

The Kokumin editorial said that "the China incident lacks the formalities of war but there is no doubt Japan is waging a war in China. Therefore, Japanese operations would not be hampered by mere manoeuvres.

"Further we are forced to express dissatisfaction about the attitude of the foreign office in repeating Japan's policy respecting foreign rights and interests.

"The mere existence of operations in South China is sufficient warning to those powers who are extending assistance to China."

Warnings All Around.

The Government yesterday cautioned foreign powers, including Great Britain, against movement of troops, warships and aircraft without 10-day notice to the Japanese Command "lest unforeseen accidents occur." (Britain similarly "reminded" Japan of "the risks to Anglo-Japanese relations which any incident might cause.")

An Admiralty spokesman said today that "we can only hope foreign powers will warn us. I must refrain from saying what results may be expected if untoward incirents occur."

He added that the South China operations were progressing smoothly in "every direction, without further defining the territory.

Japanese navy bombers caused 2,000 casualties among Chinese troops yesterday, he said, and destroyed 60 truck loads of munitions and supplies in raids to cut Canton railways.

Czechs Get 15 Days To Escape Area Given Poles

Teschen, Poland, Oct. 13 (AP)

ORDERS were posted throughout the Teschen district today for all Czechs who have settled since November, 1918, in this area, newly acquired by Poland from Czechoslovakia, to leave by Nov. 1.

Most of those affected by the orders are government employees, school teachers, engineers and factory supervisors.

(Havas News Agency in a dispatch from Moravska Ostrava said Czech teachers already had been forcibly ejected from their schools and from the Teschen district.)

Berlin, Prague To Abandon Plebiscites

BERLIN, Oct. 13 (C.P.-Havas). — An agreement between Berlin and Prague to renounce the proposed plebiscites in mixed population regions of Czechoslovakia was reported reached here to-day.

The question of what further territory is to be ceded to the Reich would be arranged by direct discussion.

Family Trio Girl 20 Are Victims

All Hospital Bound As Driver Piles Into Side Of Engine

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 13 (C.P.).—Five persons were killed in a level crossing accident at the intersection of Highway No. 7 and the Canadian National Railways Huron and Bruce line near Denfield to-day. The victims, all occupants of the one motor car, were:

Dr. George Racey, Parkhill.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wills and their adopted five-year-old daughter, Norma, of Thedford.

Miss Evelyn Mason, Parkhill.

Dr. Racey and Miss Mason were killed instantly. Wills and his wife died within five minutes, while their daughter's death occurred one-half hour after she had been admitted to Victoria Hospital, London. Her skull was fractured.

Girl Accident Victim.

Police said that Dr. Racey, driver of the car, was bringing Miss Mason and Wills to London for hospital treatment. The young woman suffered a broken arm in a traffic accident last night.

Mr. Wills had an infection on his hand and had been forced to lay off work at the Thedford saw mill where he was employed.

The car was proceeding east on No. 7 highway when it crashed into the Diesel car which had left London at 9:30 a.m. The motor car crashed into the side of the C.N.R. car about six feet from the nose on the west side and bounced to the ditch on the north west corner of the intersection, landing upside down. Mrs. Wills was thrown partially out of the car and Dr. Racey and Miss Mason were pinned in the wreckage.

Joseph Parker of Detroit, visiting with friends about 300 yards from the crossing was first on the scene.

Accompanied by John Thompson of Claneboye he was driving east on No. 7 highway when the Racey car passed him about one mile west of the railway crossing. This was at the foot of a long hill. He lost sight of the car as it went over the crest of the hill but came upon the scene less than a minute after the crash.

Road Paved Only On One Side

From skid marks on the highway police formed the opinion that the motor car must have been driving on the cement portion of the road which is paved only on the north side, and that the driver must have seen the approaching train, and applied brakes and swung on the gravel

Romanoff House Splits On Choice Of Next "Czar Of All Russias"

PARIS, Oct. 13—(AP).—White Russian circles reported today a split had developed over the choice of the next "Czar of all the Russians" to succeed Grand Duke Cyril Vladimirovitch, who died in exile yesterday.

The handsome, 62-year-old head of the House of Romanoff and pretender to the vanished imperial Russian throne, proclaimed himself czar in 1924 in a manifesto that named as his successor his 21-year-old son and heir, Grand Duke Vladimir Cyrillovitch.

Some emigres said, however, that many Romanoffs considered Vladimir's status doubtful since his mother, Grand Duchess Victoria Feodorovna, was a granddaughter to Queen Victoria of England and a protestant instead of Greek orthodox.

The other claimant is Grand Duke Dmitri Pavlovitch, Cyril's cousin. He was present with other members of the family and a few close friends at Cyril's death, and was expected to take the present opportunity to consolidate his claims to the pretendership. An immediate Romanoff family council might be considered necessary to solve the problem.

Grand Duke Cyril had been an exile since the Bolshevist revolution 21 years ago. He was a cousin of the late Czar Nicholas II, the last of the Romanoff dynasty to reign. The Grand Duke had been seriously ill for two weeks.

Alberta's Rancher Peer Sells His Castle For $378,000 – Land To Be Split Up

London, Oct. 13 (CP Cable)

AVON CASTLE, ancestral home of the Earl of Egmont, Alberta's "rancher peer," has been sold to H. J. Colebrook, wealthy London surveyor. The purchase price is reported to be in the neighborhood of £80,000 ($378,800), the original cost of the castle, built in 1878.

The estate, in one of the most picturesque regions of Hampshire, embraces 1,322 acres, two secondary residences, farms and cottages.

Mr. Colebrook has a large estate in Buckinghamshire, where he is master of the new Forest Buckhounds. His kennels at Brockenhurst are only 10 miles from Avon Castle. It is understood the Egmont property will be disposed of later in small lots.

After the courts in 1930 upheld the present Earl's father's claim to the Earldom, the family lived modestly in the castle for several years. They used only half a dozen of the 49 rooms. Six years ago the father was killed in a motor crash. The young Earl foresook the castle, returned to Canada and took up farming.

Later he married Miss Ann Geraldine Moodie, a descendant of the royal Stuarts of Scotland. They paid a brief visit to England early this year when arrangements were made to dispose of the estate.

Coup Gives Hitler Fuller Control Of Czechs Than Annexation Plan

By Dewitt Mackenzie
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

BERLIN, Oct. 13 (A.P.). — Germany has lost no time in following up Chancellor Hitler's triumph in the Sudeten quarrel by organizing for a drive calculated to make what is left of dismembered Czechoslovakia an economic dependency of Germany.

Government experts were already busy on the program when German troops marched into Sudetenland to occupy the rich areas ceded by the Prague Government. Field-Marshal Hermann Goering's visit to the new territory was to size up the economic situation. He performed a similar task when Austria was annexed.

A story which is going the rounds amidst much Nazi laughter fairly sums up Berlin's attitude towards the Prague Government and its greatly diminished territories. It is related that the Sudeten Germans came to the Fuehrer and begged for autonomy.

"I'm sorry," was the reply, "but I've already promised that to the Czechs."

Better Than Annexation.

Germany plans as complete a domination of Czechoslovakia as though the Fatherland had annexed its small neighbor. By going about the matter this way Hitler secures all the advantages of conquest without engaging in war, and at the same time avoids the complications which would follow trying to absorb such a liberty-loving people as the Czechs.

100,000 Vienna Nazis Called Out To End Clerical Provocations

VIENNA, Oct.—13—(AP).—Vienna Nazis, using all their propaganda means, launched a campaign today against Theodore Cardinal Innitzer and what they called "clerical agitators."

Newspapers were filled with attacks against the archbishop and "political catholicism." They asserted "the cup is full; it is time to act."

More than 100,000 Nazis were expected in heroes' square tonight for a "mass protest" and district leader Odilo Globocnik ordered "every decent-thinking person in Vienna" to appear there as public notice that the "entire population is against clerical provocations."

Joseph Buerckel, Chancellor Hitler's deputy in Austria, fresh from conferring with the chancellor, was to proclaim measures to "end clerical provocations" at the meeting.

Nazi leaders said "Buerckel will speak with the full authority of Hitler, with whom he has discussed the cardinal's attack Oct. 7 on the Fuehrer and the subsequent stoning of the Cardinal's palace. We do not know what measures the Reich commissioner will announce."

The call to tonight's meeting was in consequence of the cardinal's sermon last Friday and the subsequent storming of his palace. The cardinal was wounded by a thrown rock.

The remark that there still were young people "not so easily tempted to listen to deceitful catchwords" was attributed to the cardinal.

District leader Globocnik said many Catholic Nazis were asking whether to withdraw from the church.

"For days," Globocnik continued, "I have had churches and parish houses under guard so nothing would happen to the gentlemen who caused recent provocations.

"Party telephone lines have been busy for days because a great number of party members were calling to ask whether they should leave the church or not.

"Also, in this, we have been more than correct in our attitude. We have already answered that each individual must follow his own conscience in regard to his relations with the church—for the party refuses to take a position in such affairs.

Police Grab 2 Cars Of Window Smashers But Can't Get Anyone To Complain

Toronto, Oct. 13 (CP)

INSPECTOR Charles Scott today blamed rival gangs who, he said, sought a monopoly on bookmaking and beer running rackets in Toronto after beer bottles were hurled through windows of houses on Mutual and Shuter streets in the downtown section.

Police cruisers caught two cars loaded with men after the bottle-throwing early today and took them to the Dundas street station. They searched the men but occupants of the houses refused to prosecute and the men were released.

In police court yesterday five men were committed for trial on charges arising from another fight between the rival gangs.

Police said a car loaded with men drove up to a Mutual street house today. They said men hurled beer bottles through the windows. Ten minutes later a constable heard smashing of glass on Shuter street. The car had gone before he reached the place. Inspector Scott said occupants of the house did not telephone police.

"I am satisfied the men who threw these bottles are members of gangs who have been fighting," Inspector Scott said. He added that he believed one case was retaliation against a girl who testified in a court case.

2 Score Hurt Fighting Linden Fire

35,000 Watch Flames Destroy Million In Huge Oil Field

LINDEN, N.J., Oct. 13.—(AP). — A weary army of 1,500 firemen and volunteers battled vast tongues of flame and clouds of greasy, black smoke to-day as a raging oil fire in the heart of one of the world's greatest refinery centres roared into its second day.

Rivers of water and fire-smothering foam were poured by firefighters into eight acres of bursting tanks and blazing oil during the early morning hours in the inferno that was the Cities Service Company "tank village" near here.

A crowd of 35,000 had watched in for hours as an estimated 10,000,000 gallons of oil went up in flames, 500 feet high. Damage unofficially was estimated at $1,000,000.

The spectacular fire, accompanied at the start by explosions as one after another of nearly all of 22 tanks in the oil field were ignited, could be seen for more than 10 miles.

S. P. Keator, superintendent of the Cities Service plant, announced that by 5 a.m. E.S.T., the firt was under control and the danger past.

Threatened continually were the Cities Service's adjacent distillery field of 30 other and larger fuel tanks as well as plants of the Sinclair Oil Company and the American Cyananide Company.

A short distanec away is located the huge refinery of the Standard Oil Compny with its 800 tanks—said to be the largest field in the world. Two score fire-fighters were injured, none seriously.

Two Are Arrested For Ferry Robbery

COBOURG, Ont., Oct. 13—(CP). —George Bowen and Donald Potter, of Cobourg enjoyed brief liberty last night after they allegedly broke into the crew's quarters on car ferry Ontario No. 1 last night and stole $80 from the bunk room of Fred Silas. Shortly after the robbery was reported, Bowen was arrested in a pool room by Constables Gavin Reid and Don Erskine. Potter boarded a train at the C.N.R. station but was arrested by Trenton police who searched the train when it arrived there.

Potter was brought back to Cobourg by Chief of Police W. J. Carey.

They appeared in police court today and were remanded for a week. All the money was recovered.

Bluenose Leads At Five Miles

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 13.—(AP).—Although neither skipper wanted to sail in such light weather, the race committee sent Captain Angus Walters, defender of the international fishermen's trophy, and Captain Ben Pine, Gloucester defender, away in their boats at 11.50 a.m., E.S.T., today in a third attempt to complete the second race of a three-out-of-five series for the title.

A southwest breeze of eight miles velocity hardly disturbed the surface of the sea as Walters' Bluenose from Lunenberg, N.S., and Pine's Gertrude L. Thebaud crossed the starting line.

Bluenose took the windward end of the start, crossing about a length ahead of Thebaud, but Pine almost immediately luffed up practically abeam of the big defender. Thebaud won the first race Sunday.

The Bluenose led the challenger, Gertrude L. Thebaud, by 39 seconds at the end of the first five miles.

Their times at the five-mile mark were: Bluenose, 12.24.55 p.m.; Thebaud, 12.25.34.

The opening five miles, referred to as the "tail" of a triangle, carried the schooners in an east by north direction. Then they began the triangular part of the course with a 10-mile beat to windward in a north by westerly direction.

Czechoslovak authorities said that on October 9 smugglers brought a group of Hungarian terrorists into Ruthenia, crossing the border from Hungary at Tarpa, 25 miles south of Mukacevo.

The terrorists were said to have been armed with rifles, hand grenades, explosives and pistols of German manufacture similar to those which previously were found in possession of Sudeten Germans in Northern Bohemia.

With the smugglers, who know the border region well, as guides, several groups succeeded in entering Ruthenia over the week-end.

One group dynamited a railway bridge over the Borzava River, and later attacked the railway station at Borzava-Muzijovo, killing a railway employee and wounding a passenger in a bus which had stopped at the station, Prague authorities said.

Another group circled to the north of the town of Berehevo and attempted to destroy telephone lines and railroad tracks.

1,000 Porters, Drivers Join Rail Strike

LONDON, Oct. 13 (CP-Havas). — One thousand porters and lorry drivers of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway at Camden Town last night decided to join in the London railway strike which threatens to spread still further. The strike started Tuesday over the replacement of a union ticket-puncher by a non-union worker.

Two thousand workers employed in the construction of the new Air Ministry building also went on strike, protesting the dismissal of a worker.

The London railway strike originally involving 1,000 porters and other employees of the St. Pancras and Euston railway stations and the Billingsgate and Smithfield markets. The strikers' committee announced that the personnel of other London terminals promised support.

John Rice, representing employees of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway, said he counts on participation of 20,000 railway workers if the strike continues.

Meanwhile representatives of the four principal railway companies declared they could not meet union demands for wage increases and improved working conditions at present "in view of the economic position of the railways industry."

Japs Pound Fort 60 Miles From Hankow

SHANGHAI, Oct. 13 (A.P.). — Japanese land and naval forces launched a withering attack to-day on Shichaishan Fort, 60 air-miles from Hankow, around which the invaders slowly are closing in while a new Japanese expeditionary force begins attempts to dominate South China.

Most Japanese army and navy officials here believed the new offensive near Canton, 550 miles south of Hankow, was aimed at severing southern railways and capturing the southern metropolis, thus facilitating the relentless drive toward Hankow, the provisional capital.

The invaders established a spearhead at Sinyang, 100 miles north of Hankow, for two-way campaigns designed to add to the Peiping-Hankow railway mileage to their already-captured railways. Japanese war maps show Sinyang to be 187 miles south of Chengchow, Honan Province railroad junction.

With fierce fighting continuing near Liuling, the Japanese charted a drive down the Peiping-Hankow railway toward Lichai, six miles to the south.

Foreigners reported the re-establishment of communications between Kuling and Nanchang, 170 miles south-east of Hankow, so that many Chinese and foreigners who had been marooned at the Kuling mountain resort since early summer could at last escape.

The reports gave credence to Chinese claims of successes in the Teian sector, on the Kiukiang-Nanchang railroad, where extremely bitter fighting still raged despite Japanese assertions the invaders had captured Yngshui, 16 miles south of Teian, and had encircled the defenders of Teian.

Coup Gives Hitler

And the Prague Government is said to be failing swiftly in line with German requirements. There is nothing else Czechoslovakia can do. Gone are the days when she figured on being able to defy Germany through help from France and Great Britain.

The Lidove Noviny, official newspaper of the Prague Government, has made the position clear in recent editorials. In one it said:

"Dr. Benes by his resignation is trying to make easier a new orientation which he himself recommends. Czechoslovakia must adapt itself to the changed situation in Central Europe."

Subsequently we get this, which assuredly is a swan song of sumission: "Central Europe doesn't exist any longer. There is nothing left for us to do except go together with Germany. Even in economic respects we must refrain from any combination calculated to bring us into a line-up against Germany."

Task Nearly Done Now

As a matter of fact, the turning of Czechoslovakia into a virtual dependency is no longer much of a task for the Nazis. The job was all but done for them when their leader achieved his Sudeten coup.

Quite apart from the military situation, many of Czechoslovakia's industries were in the Sudetenland zones ceded to Germany. The smaller state now becomes largely agricultural and the fatherland is the only country capable of absorbing the products of Czechoslovak soil.

There is considerable quiet though unofficial speculation in Berlin as to whether Germany may not obtain still more Czechoslovak territory and cities through infiltration and subsequent plebiscites. There is constant propaganda that Prague really is an old German city. The Germans also covert Brunn and the famous beer brewing cities of Pilsen and Budweis, all of which lie close to the borders of the territories ceded by Czechoslovakia.

Some Germans think the Czech peasants might support Germany in plebiscites involving such cities. This idea is based on the belief that the peasants fear communism and that the main threat of that lies in the cities.

Higher Deaths Show Period Over 60 In "Dreaded Cancer Age"

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—(AP). —An "alarming" increase in cancer deaths among persons more than 60 shows that this period of life is the "dreaded cancer age," Fellows of the United States' Chapter of the International College of Surgeons were told to-day.

Dr. Andre Crotti, president of the Chapter, said in an address prepared for delivery at the College's second annual assembly that a survey of Ohio's cancer death rate, when applied to the United States as a whole, disclosed deaths in the-more-than 60 class had almost doubled from 1910 to 1930.

"Perhaps a good reason for that increase," he said, "is that preventive medicine, better sanitation, especially our highly efficient welfare organizations, maternal welfare, etcetras, save a large number of individuals and prolong their span span of life only to carry them to the dreaded cancer age."

It is a well known fact, he said, that countries where sanitation is the poorest have "a much lower cancer incidence"than regions where sanitation is highly developed, because people die much younger in the former.

150,000 Victims In 1937.

Dr. Crotti is head of the Cancer Clinic at Columbus, O.

Pointing out that 150,000 persons died of cancer in the United States last year, Dr. Crotti said "it is generally conceded that at least one-third of this frightful mortality could be surely eliminated if laity would be fully cognizant of the cancer problem as we see it to-day."

The disease was not contagious and not hereditary, he said, adding:

"It can be truly said that cancer is not only an arrestable disease, but is a curable disease if caught early. In fact, one can say that any form of cancer no larger than a pea can be cured with almost 100 per cent certainty providing it is removed. However ,the chance for complete and permanent cures dwindle rapidly if the size of cancer is allowed to progress unchecked for too long."

Early recognition and early adequate treament of the disease, Dr. Crotti said, provide the only solution for the time being of the high death rate problem.

portion of the road with brakes set.

The car plowed into the side of the train and one headlight was caught in the rods under the railway car.

Dr. Gordon Soper and Dr. W. T. Banting of Lucan were immediately called to the scene and Dr. Soper rushed five-year-old Norma Wills to Victoria Hospital here, but she died shortly after being admitted.

Identification Slow.

Dr. Racey, who is a prominent Conservative worker and well known as a physician in Western Ontario was first to be idenified. Later the identity of the Wills family was established and finally Miss Mason. She was identified by Ralph Gray, Parkhill garage man who said he knew that she was to go to London today with Dr. Racey. He confirmed her identity when he saw the body.

The diesel powered car was under the charge of conductor J. McKeever of 139 Wellington street, Sarnia; engineer Frank McKeown, of 527 Confederation street, Sarnia, and brakeman C. H. Atkinson, 303 Conrad street, Sarnia. The C.N.R. car came to a stop within 375 feet.

Dr. Racey was in his early fifties, Miss Mason about 20 years of age and Mr. and Mrs. Mills about 35 years of age.

Dr. A. R. Routledge, chief coroner for Middlesex county was called to the scene and ordered an inquest, although the date has not yet been set.

British Cabinet Changes Rumored

LORD MAUGHAM

VISCOUNT HALISHAM

Several changes in the British Cabinet were rumored as the Prime Minister enjoyed a short holiday in Scotland after his strenuous activities of the past few weeks. It was reported that Viscount Hailsham, Lord President of the Council, and Lord Maugham, the Lord Chancellor, have asked to be relieved of their posts. Both men have been suffering from ill-health and feel that the work of a Cabinet member is too great a strain on them.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Oct. 13 (C.P.). — A strong undertone featured quiet trading in Winnipeg wheat futures to-day. Prices leaned upward from the start but failed to make much headway due to poor outside support. Final values were ¼ to ⅝ cents higher, October 60⅝, November 60⅝, December 60¼ to ⅜, and May 63⅝.

Canadian wheat export sales in the pit appeared to be small despite New York reports that to-day's business would reach 500,000 bushels.

Firmness at Chicago and Liverpool and strength of stock markets induced a mild buying flurry at the start to send prices up ⅝ cent. Prices eased from the top points in the remainder of a listless session.

Chicken Supper Is Held In Marmora

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Oct. 13.—Under auspices of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's United church, the annual chicken supper was served to a large gathering in the church hall on Wednesday, the ladies well sustaining their reputation for this annual event. After the supper an intensely interesting lantern lecture on "Palestine, Ancient and Modern," was given in three sections by Mr. Grafton of the Belleville Collegiate Institute. The first series of scenes focussed around Bthlehem, the central section featuring Bethany, while the third dealt with Jerusalem and scenes incidental to Holy Week and Easter. Prefacing the lecture Mr. Grafton gave an elucidating map talk on places mentioned in news dispatches of the past few days. The lecture was interspersed with songs by George Woodhouse, the first being "The Open Road" and the second, "The Eternal Pearl," of which a Marmora man, W. J. Cottrell, is author and which was being sung in public for the first time in this country. At the conclusion of the lecture "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" was sung. Rev. C. A. Hollingsworth as chairman, voiced appreciation to the lecturer for his wonderful lecture and pronounced the Benediction.

Mr. Wesley Richardson of Toronto, visited friends in Marmora and Deloro Wednesday and Thursday.

Mr. Hugh Phillips of Toronto, visited his parents over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. L. McCarey of Madoc, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. R. Phillips.

The Bronx Skips It

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—(AP). — Take it from James Lyons, the Bronx lays no claim to that discordant noise popularly known as the Bronx cheer. Lyons, Bronx Borough president, told the Chamber of Commerce "the Bronx cheer was brought here from outside somewhere and for some inexplicable reason was named for our Borough." He added: "But we don't use it up here."

GIVEN TWO YEARS.

NEWMARKET. — John Procopchuk pleaded guilty today to three charges of breaking and entering and theft and was sentenced by Magistrate W. F. Woodliffe to two years in Kingston Penitentiary. A charge of receiving stolen goods was withdrawn.

Mothers! Treat Children's Colds This Proved Way

More mothers use VapoRub than any other medication of its kind—they have proved it by use in their own homes. It was further proved in the world's largest colds-clinic. No "dosing"—just massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. Almost at once, its poultice-and-vapor action starts to loosen phlegm, relieve irritation and coughing, help break local congestion. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Has Made a Good Record

A motion has been brought before the City Council to the effect that the ratepayers shall vote at the civic election on doing away with the City Trust. The degree of enthusiasm which was shown in Council was not great.

Managing the financial affairs of a city through a City Trust is not the usual way of attending to that business. It was inaugurated in Peterborough in 1861, and that is 77 years ago, and has been in operation ever since. The reason why the plan was first adopted was that the finances of Peterborough at that date were muddled. The debentures then outstanding were consolidated and the management turned over to the newly-formed City Trust. It was necessary to secure a charter from the provincial government, and that has been several times revised the last revision having been made in 1908. It is worth noticing that since the inauguration of the system 77 years ago there has not been a financial slip-up in this city nor has there been one dollar lost or defaulted.

The personnel of the City Trust is actually in the hands of the City Council. There are five members of the Trust, one being appointed annually by the Council. The appointment is for five years so one retires each year. The members receive $100 and the chairman an added allowance of $250.

The advantage of the system is that it allows the City Council to call upon the services of men in the community whom it considers suited for the work of handling the financial business of the city. In the City Trust there are five men who pass judgment on all the investments which are made of sinking funds and these investments have to be made within the limits applicable to any other trustee. Right now the total investments of city funds are in the neighborhood of $2,700,000, and in that rather formidable amount there is but one lot of $10,000 province of Alberta bonds on which full interest has not been paid. The Alberta Government offered one-half the interest payments but the City Trust refused to accept payment. The bonds are not in default. Apart from that one item every other investment is sound. When one considers the number of defaulted securities which are held by various organizations today it must be admitted that the City Trust have shown splendid judgment in the selection of investments, and the Department of Municipal Affairs has itself certified to the excellent condition of civic finances in this city.

When a system has worked so well for so many years we can see no particular reason why it should be changed. We are certain that if a man found some system by which he could operate his private business and it was giving him entire satisfaction he would not think of throwing it out. Outside of that there are plenty of organizations and individuals who might well hope today that their affairs were in as good condition as those presided over by the Peterborough City Trust.

Regarded As a Nuisance

From several cities in United States there have come reports of violent attacks on members of the German-American Volksbund, a society which is evidently loyal to Hitler and the manner in which he carries on business in Germany. The last riot was in New Milford, N. J., where the members had gathered at the home of Adam Kunze for a meeting. The home was broken into and Mr. Kunze was tossed into a nearby pond. The Mayor announces he is considering taking steps which would ban all meetings of the Volksbund.

As a rule there is ample latitude for people to hold gatherings in United States but it is difficult to understand why people of German descent who prefer to live and work in United States should be so concerned about keeping alive a Hitler sentiment in that country. If they have taken out their naturalization papers then their interest becomes centred in the government of United States. Otherwise they would be plain frauds and nothing else.

If these meetings are being held for the purpose of strengthening a movement which would undermine the government of United States then the way is open for the government to act in its own self defence. As it stands at the moment the Bund members are apparently making a nuisance of themselves and the residents of United States have shown plainly enough that they are not inclined to tolerate their nonsense.

Can We Pay More?

The names of all veterans who fought in the North-West rebellion of 1885 are being collected, and when that is completed they will be forwarded to Ottawa. Together with the list of names will go a petition asking for an allowance for these men. It is explained that pensions are not being asked but an allowance under the Veterans Allowance Act. It is claimed that veterans of the South African war were given similar consideration. It is estimated there are about 1,200 of the 1885 veterans living today.

No matter whether it is an allowance or a pension the effect will be the same—it will cost money. There may be some of these veterans who actually need such assistance as an allowance would bring to them and there are probably others who need no such assistance at all. If there was any obligation to offer additional recompense then that obligation existed 53 years ago, and it is rather late in the day to bring the matter before the government of 1938.

If each war in which this young nation participates is going to add to the expense afterward then it becomes mighty plain that the extent to which we can participate in wars is limited because our ability to pay is not great. We have not begun to pay yet for our participation in the Great War. We have merely carried the debt from year to year. With Dominion finances in such shape that it is known in advance that the next budget will reveal a deficit the veterans of 1885 have selected rather a poor time to advance their claims.

Advertising Is Informative

Looking through the advertising columns of the Daily Pantagraph, published in Bloomington, Illinois, one gets a fair enough idea of the manner in which people live and carry on business.

Car dealers in advertising used equipment often announce they accept farm produce or stock as part payment. Evidently there are many wood and coal yards as in one issue there were 20 such places advertising their services. A two-ton load of lump coal sells for $7, and several of the coal yards advise their customers that right now is the time to stock up with dry corn cobs which sell for $2 per truck load. Apparently there is a central heating plant in the place as several houses advertised for sale or rent have among other stipulations "city heat."

The value of farm land in that part of Illinois appears to be higher than in many parts of Ontario. One agency offers three 40-acre tracts unimproved and the price is from $80 to $105 per acre. There is also an implement offered for sale which is not used in this district, a corn sheller, used but in good condition for $227. That of course is in the land where a man can make a reputation for himself as a great corn husker after which we take it the cobs pass through the sheller. Also there are several announcements offering 2-row corn pickers for sale. A nursery which specializes in landscape work advertises its services and advises that it is open for business on Sunday as usual. Also there are several plants which announce they are prepared to handle all orders for sorghum; they roll the juice from the cane and customers can do their own boiling down at home. Reading the classified advertising section of a newspaper from another district or country gives one a fairly accurate idea of what manner of living the people pursue.

Worrying In Advance

You can trust the press correspondents to run far in advance of the day in which we are living and find something to discuss. The latest one comes from Washington. King George VI and Queen Elizabeth have announced their intention to visit Canada next year, and on this account there is the rumor that they may visit Washington at the same time.

Now comes the question. Eliminate the King for the moment and concentrate on this: What will Mrs. Roosevelt do when she meets the Queen? Should she curtsy or stand up straight and shake hands? It is reported that the social arbiters in the U. S. circle of selects are already arguing the point, and some of those who are wedded to precedent have searched records in vain but can find none. Mrs. Roosevelt says she will be informed by the State department what to do and she will do exactly as she is told.

As far as Queen Elizabeth is concerned we dare say it will make not the least difference to her whether the wife of the president tries a bit of a curtsy or not. The only ladies in the States who understand well how to do it are those who hasten off to the days for presentation at the royal court in Buckingham. Daughters of the revolution they may be, but they dearly love to curtsy and to bow in the presence of royalty. If the Queen visits the White House she will be quite satisfied and pleased if Mrs. Roosevelt puts out a friendly hand and says she's glad to see her. And on top of it all it is well to remember there is nothing to indicate that the King and Queen intend to visit United States.

Made Them Leave

"We fought the fire until the rangers made us get out." That short statement was made by Mrs. Ernest Nesbitt of Dance township. The fire destroyed the Nesbitt home, and when it looked as though there were time only for escape Mrs. Nesbitt left with the children, but her husband stayed in the bush.

People who live in sections such as ours know little about bush fires. It is correct to say they know nothing at all having regard to the extent and ferocity of the fire which swept through the Rainy River area and northern Minnesota where over twenty victims included wives and children of men who were seeking to make homes for themselves in forest country.

That short statement tells a good deal. "We fought the fire until the rangers made us get out. It was not a case of the women and the children first in the attempt to escape. The idea appears to have been to stay and fight; fight for the home; fight for everything the family possessed and keep on fighting until the fire rangers took matters in their own hands and ordered the women to get out. No country is poor as long as it has such folk establishing homes in its newer sections.

NOTE AND COMMENT

If the war lords of Europe would quit making speeches there might be a time of comfort in the world.

American students suggest there should be a Secretary of Peace. And after all, why not?

France is spending 52 million dollars more on defence. There is evidently to be no peace so far as the taxpayers are concerned.

It must have been an error of course, but we noticed where one paper reporting a robbery said "the police farce is investigating."

A French hunter took two shots at a rabbit but missed. However, he made up for that because the shots struck four other hunters.

The New York Yankees carried eight pitchers on the line-up, and we recall the time when it took only nine people to make up an entire team.

It has been declared that a tobacco combine exists in Canada, but the companies decided they would have to go ahead and plug along as usual.

A Detroit judge has ruled that wrestling patrons should know how to duck when wrestlers or referees are being tossed around. But the act is not always played the same way.

The suggestion that the King and Queen should stay at a hotel when they visit Toronto next summer indicates that the government was a little hasty in getting rid of Chorley Park.

Putting two and two together one would take it that Col. Charles Lindbergh would be none too welcome if he decided to drop in and see the folk in Russia again.

The American Bar Association reports that half the lawyers in United States earn less than $2,000 per year. Interpreting the law does not seem to produce such great rewards as breaking it.

Man in Toronto charged with driving while drunk said it was rheumatism which made him appear unsteady on his feet. Seven days in jail and walking for three months while his car takes a rest ought to bring about a cure.

A liner entering New York brought $51,000,000 in gold from Europe. Gold has a great time riding around the world or getting buried in vaults after all the trouble of securing it in the first place. It is the most unused precious metal the world possesses.

A young lady in Chicago described as a blond dealt effectively with two thugs. It should be explained she weighs 172 pounds, has a medal for boxing and claims to be as strong as an ox. The explanation is considered necessary as the word "blond" does not always suggest such a combination.

Man locked in Barrie jail disturbed the chief during the night by applying at his house for a blanket to keep warm. When he felt the need of a blanket he merely wrenched the door off its hinges and went out. It did not work as well as he expected for instead of giving him a blanket they moved him to another and a better jail.

FULL HOUSE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Uncle Eben used to say, he'd really sort of dread the day, when he was left alone; he wished the children might remain, so everything would be the same, he'd have them all at home.

¶ But then the children drifted out, they had to make their way about, and make their way ahead; and Uncle Eben used to say, that home was neither bright nor gay, the place seemed sort of dead.

¶ The oldest boy got fired I think, his little home began to sink, 'twas weighted like a stone; so with his wife and children two, he knew of nothing else to do, and so he came back home.

¶ The second lad who kept a store, found he could run the thing no more, his creditors moved in; he found that he was broke and bent, and really didn't have a cent, for he'd lost all his tin.

¶ He had a wife and children three, and no resources he could see, he could not start anew; so he came home two weeks ago, and made his father's family grow, was nothing else to do.

¶ So Uncle Eben need not groan, about a sad and empty home, it's very much alive; two sons are camped there now with him; two wives share up the space within—of children there are five.

A PATENT for a "bomb-proof four-posted bed" has been registered at the Reich Patent Office, in Germany.

✧ ✧ ✧

Bomb-proof shelters for private homes may be obtained by Londoners today for $750; payments may be made in monthly instalments. One widely-advertised bomb-proof shelter is known as the "Igloo."

✧ ✧ ✧

Coconut shells filled with explosives were used as bombs in a Hawaiian revolution.

✧ ✧ ✧

Aviators employ dummy bombs made of concrete for target practice, as they cost much less than real ones. Weighing over a thousand pounds each, but two can be carried aloft for each flight.

✧ ✧ ✧

The famed cathedral of Reims, built hundreds of years ago, withstood German air raids during the World War to the extent that of 7,400 bombs dropped upon it, only a few penetrated the building.

✧ ✧ ✧

SNOW WHITE

WALT DISNEY, it is estimated, will take in $300,000 this year from royalties on merchandise linked with his "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," and "Mickey Mouse."

✧ ✧ ✧

Disney believes that his greatest achievement in "Snow White" was the fact that the film brought tears to the eyes of many movie patrons. No animated feature has ever succeeded in doing this before.

✧ ✧ ✧

569 people were employed three and a half years, working all day and, upon many occasions, all night, to screen "Snow White." Of the drawings used four times as many were discarded.

✧ ✧ ✧

Every one remembers the squeak the front door made in the silence when the dwarfs pushed it open. Pulling open a jammed dresser drawer produced the sound. The squishy sounds Grumpy made getting out of the mud into which he had fallen were made by a man walking barefooted in a tub of genuine mud.

✧ ✧ ✧

Deanna Durbin—before fame found her—had her voice tested for the part of Snow White. She was rejected! An unknown girl, Andrianna Caselotti, daughter of a singing teacher, was chosen for the voice part.

✧ ✧ ✧

For "Snow White," Walt Disney had a staff of 25 men who worked on nothing but boiling soup, lightning, wind, rain, and other nature effects.

✧ ✧ ✧

The voices of the seven dwarfs were those of established screen and burlesque comedians.

✧ ✧ ✧

Walt Disney mixed some 1,500 different paints to give his masterpiece unmatched excellence in color. He cast his animators with as much discretion as other studios cast actors and actresses.

✧ ✧ ✧

GAS

ORDINARY BALLOON gas has been found to save the lives of persons choking to death.

✧ ✧ ✧

The word "gas" is really a mangling of the word "ghost". When the scientist, Van Hemholt, discovered he was able to produce a spirit by distillation of various fuels he named it "gheist."

✧ ✧ ✧

Phosgene was the gas first used by the Germans in the World War; one part of phosgene to 10,000 parts of air will kill a man.

✧ ✧ ✧

A reliable test for detecting gas leaks may be found in the fact that tomato plant leaves grow downward in the presence of gas.

✧ ✧ ✧

Marsh gas, resulting from decaying vegetation at the bottom of a frozen Ohio lake, was recently put to use by a skating party. Observing bubbles rising to the under-surface of the ice the skaters made holes with their penknives and touched off the released gas with matches. Whenever they grew cold they had merely to cut another hole in the ice. One gas pocket gave vent to a flame three feet high which burned five minutes. Such a phenomenon would be impossible on a lake with a sand bottom.

✧ ✧ ✧

All gases are colorless, but when put into a tube and subjected to electricity they glow with lights of their own. Neon glows red; argon—purple; helium — pinkish white; krupton — pale violet; xenon—sky-blue.

✧ ✧ ✧

The skins of ripe apples, pears, and hawthorn fruits produce a gas that keeps potatoes from growing. Chemical investigation has shown that the gas is ethylene, similar to that used in carbide lamps.

✧ ✧ ✧

INSURANCE

AUTHORS ARE regarded as poor risks, according to an insurance expert; they are listed somewhere between dynamiters and deep-sea divers.

✧ ✧ ✧

Citizens of Baltimore feared attack before the battle of Gettysburg, and police-holders, anxious to make certain their policies would hold good if they were killed by an invading army, were thus reassured: "Policy-holders defending their firesides will be protected."

✧ ✧ ✧

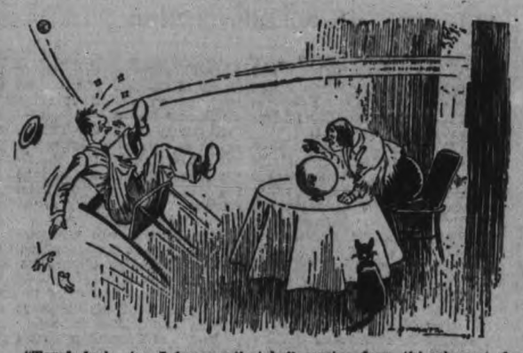
BARONESS HAZED.

(Windsor Star)

ONE OF THE MOST popular girls at the University of Western Ontario, we venture to suggest, will be Baroness Helle Anna Vibeke Holgesdatter Rosenkrantz, of Denmark. And she would be popular even were she not the bearer of a distinguished title.

Enrolling at the university, the Danish girl was the subject of "hazing" by the other girls, her face being liberally smeared with lipstick. She took it all in good part, and entered into the spirit of the "ceremony".

EXPLAINED



"Tough luck, sir. I foresaw that ball coming from th' cokernut shy, but was just too late to tell you to duck."

• Says the Small Fair Is Better

THE SEASON OF Fall Fairs is over.

For some years now we have listened to discussions about the fate of some of the smaller fairs. There are those who claim that there should be one large County Fair, held in some central point, rather than so many more local fairs in the smaller towns and, in some cases, in villages. Naturally, one would imagine that a larger, central fair should be beneficial—and there are many who claim that eventually the small fair will have to go anyway.

With these we cannot agree says Rusticus in the Stratford Beacon-Herald. This Fall we spent several days among the livestock at several local fairs. One of them was a "County" fair with a goodly-sized midway. The others were smaller fairs, with practically no midway or games of chance. From the standpoint of the livestock exhibition there was comparatively more interest in the exhibits at the smaller fairs; and the exhibits of fruits, vegetables and grains were, if anything, better at the smaller fairs than at the County show. It has always seemed to us that the midway was the principal attraction at the larger fair, and it would be interesting to know just what percentage of those who are so certain that the small fair is doomed actually saw the livestock and produce exhibits at the larger fair.

For instance, one chap we know, in comparing the larger fair with one of the smaller town shows, said that he preferred the larger fair but added that he always went to the local because he wished to see the good cattle. Actually the stock at the local fair could not have won many prizes at the larger show, where they would have been in competition with stock from the C. N. E. and the Western Fair. This farmer was not interested in the stock of the professional exhibitor. He was interested in knowing which of his neighbors "could beat the other" in the show ring.

Rightly or wrongly, the directors of the County fair pride themselves on the fact that many of the larger herds visit their exhibition. We understand they even do a good deal of soliciting in order to bring these nationally known herds in; but not more than fifty or a hundred spectators were on hand while the cattle were being judged, and the visitors in the cattle barn were few indeed. The midway got the business.

We have no quarrel with the County fair, but let the directors not fool themselves. It is not the quality of their livestock exhibits, nor yet the size of their produce exhibits, that draws the crowds. We have seen School Fairs where the produce exhibits were more numerous and, if anything, of higher quality than at the County fair. The larger fair owes its popularity to the midway, and to nothing else.

From the standpoint of local agriculture it would probably be a more serious loss if, for instance, Mitchell or St. Marys fairs were to stop holding exhibitions. Certainly local exhibitors, real farmers who have not the money, time, or inclination to fit properly for the show that caters to exhibits from the larger fairs, would lose more by the closing of the local shows; and if fall fairs do exert an influence for good on the livestock and field crops of a community, then we believe that one small fair may do more good than the large one.

We may be wrong, but it is not so much the County fair that deserves grants and patronage as the actual agricultural show. It would prove quite interesting to see what would happen the County fair if the midway were closed down. Frankly, it seems to us that the bigger fairs are getting the lion's share of the grants, while the real farmers' fairs that are doing some practical good struggle along as best they can.

If any fairs must go, then by all means lock up the gates on the big midways and divide the grants among the really agricultural fairs, and agriculture may benefit. Of what use is a 10,000 attendance figure, if only about 10 per cent. actually take a look at the agricultural exhibits?

• Rather Silly and Childish

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

MCMASTER UNIVERSITY has grown up. It has moved to Hamilton and is now located in a handsome group of new buildings. It has a rugby team—one of the present-day necessary adjuncts of higher learning—and it has adopted all the worst features of modern initiation.

The latest initiation ceremony has aroused the wrath of at least one mother, who has complained to the dean of women about the treatment meted out to her freshman daughter. The mother is evidently a Baptist, for she told the dean that as a result of the way her elder daughter was treated, she has decided not to send four younger daughters to McMaster, as she intended.

We would have thought a college with the dignity of McMaster would have frowned down upon the silly and childish performances for some years common to the initiation ceremonies in some of our older universities. However, such does not seem to have been the case.

Among the items of good, clean fun indulged in at McMaster University by the freshettes were the following:

Pushing freshly peeled onions across the campus with their noses.

Feeding one another jam while blindfolded.

Crawling around the boys' residences barking like dogs. The male advocates of "good, clean sport," from points of vantage within the building, doused the hapless co-eds with buckets of water as they performed their dog act below.

We suppose that the dousing of these defenceless girls (pretty hard to class a girl on her hands and knees barking like a dog as a young lady) by grown-up young men would be properly described by that hackneyed and ill-smelling phrase "playing the game."

However, here in Kingston we admittedly live in a glass house, for Queen's freshmen have had to be warned again not to raid the girls' residences, a practice which has become all too common at Queen's in recent years.

SENTIMENT RUNS DEEP.

(New York Times)

BRITISH national decadence, as one of the Opposition speakers in the Commons said, is not a fact, whatever they may think in Nazi circles. But the traditional British phlegm certainly has shown a number of striking lapses in the present crisis. We must wait for the Chamber of Deputies to see whether French public men ever shed tears in public. We have already seen a British Cabinet Minister in the person of Alfred Duff Cooper break into indignant sobs while addressing the House of Commons. A few days before, in the same place, as we noted at the time, Mr. Chamberlain shed tears of relief when the peace message from Hitler was handed to him.

This display of what one might call un-English emotionalism is all the more striking because on the physical side the traditional English type has been exceedingly conspicuous. Tall, lanky, mustachioed and umbrellaed Mr. Chamberlain is the classic Englishman of the cartoonists. Ambassador Nevile Henderson is built along the same line. Viscount Halifax is startlingly so, especially by the side of a short and sturdy French statesman of the Daladier cut. Lord Runciman looks very English, though here the effect may be partly the historic English winged shirtcollar. But tears and sobs by English public men in public!

Well, after all, the late G. K. Chesterton insisted that the most typical of all Englishmen was Lord Nelson, who on his deathbed said to his flag captain, "Kiss me, Hardy!"

INJURING THE WEST.

(Winnipeg Free Press)

WITH the Dominion Government quite evidently running into a heavy loss through its guaranteeing a price of 80 cents for western wheat, it is nevertheless charged with having made a failure of dealing with the situation—with having fixed the price too low—by the Manitoba Commonwealth, the organ of the C.C.F. in this province.

If the price of wheat should remain at about its present level, the guarantee might cost the Government $40,000,000. In the East, a serious view is taken of the large liability, but the C.C.F. apparently thinks that the price should have been fixed a good deal higher. It refers to the minimum prices that were advocated by some of the farmers' organizations when the Government's decision was awaited. Some of them were over $1.00. And the farmers are now urged to insist on a higher price next year, and to go on strike, refusing to deliver their wheat, if they do not get it.

Could anything be more calculated to damn the West in the eyes of eastern people? Could anything make it harder for the West to secure proper consideration for its legitimate claims than a demand like the above, which, under the circumstances, is utterly unreasonable?

IN MEMORIAM.

(The Nation)

WHEN HERBERT HOOVER visited Germany last winter he was a guest at Goering's hunting lodge. The setting was lavish and ostentatious, and on the centre of the dining room table Mr. Hoover saw a bizarre figure of a woman's head. It was life-size, gold in color, and adorned with a necklace and earrings. As Hoover stared at the figure, Goering announced with pride: "That necklace is of real pearls: those earrings are real rubies the whole head is solid gold." He concluded: "That was my first wife."

WOULDN'T ADD A THING

(Toronto Star)

There is talk of a knighthood for Chamberlain. But no doubt he could have had one long since if he had desired it. It would not add one inch to his political stature nor enhance his place in history. It is an empty honor; the real honor is in doing such things as Mr. Chamberlain has done.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

WHEREFORE THE LORD said, Forasmuch as this people draw near me with their mouth, and with their lips do honour me, but have removed their heart far from me, and their fear toward me is taught by the precept of men: therefore, behold, I will proceed to do a marvellous work among this people, even a marvellous work and a wonder: for the wisdom of their wise men shall perish, and the understanding of their prudent men shall be hid. Woe unto them that seek deep to hide their counsel from the Lord and their works are in the dark, and they say, Who seeth us? and who knoweth us? Surely your turning of things upside down shall be esteemed as the potter's clay: for shall the work say of him that made it, He made me not? or shall the thing framed say of him that framed it, He had no understanding?—Isa. xxix: 13-16.

To The Editor

THE REVOLT AGAINST GOD

Editor Examiner:

Sir: These startling words in large type are written across the title page of the New York Commonweal. They refer to the movement called the Higher Criticism or the right to criticise the Bible an idea which has seized upon many people and is based by them on what they call the Appeal to Reason it being contended by them that our reason is our final arbiter and decides as to whether we shall believe a thing or not. I undertook to show in various published articles that our reason not only cannot decide the truth or fact of anything by reason of its uncertainty and weakness, but that nothing that emanates from God, not even nature, is within the scope of our comprehension or reason.

Hence in all such things we must rely upon what we see and feel and from these primary or natural senses arises faith. Faith in all we can have. Comprising this contention in a university magazine article I forwarded it to men much more competent to judge than I am. The result seems to be that my contention that the modernists' appeal to reason is untenable is considered valid. If so we must set aside this now "Appeal to Reason" and once more fall back upon Faith.

GERMANY is a Fascist nation. Mexico approaches Communism. Mexico confiscated without compensation the Mexican oil holdings of American and British capital. Now Mexico is trading this oil to Germany in direct barter for newsprint, electrical goods and other products of the United States and the British Empire. Mexico is negotiating with Italy, another Fascist nation, to trade petroleum for rayon thread. Would you say that Fascism and Communism are opposed extremes, as each would like to have you think, or that totalitarianism, whether "right" or "left," is not more than skin deep in distinction?

Britain Lifts Ban On Bren Papers

OTTAWA, Oct. 13—(CP).—Lifting the ban imposed by the British government on the production of evidence and documents relating to the Bren gun contracts was announced when the inquiry before Mr. Justice H. H. Davis resumed yesterday.

Hon. J. L. Ralston, government counsel, read the following cable from the secretary of state for Dominion affairs in London.

"Confidential. Your telegram October 5, No. 56. Bren Gun inquiry. Matter has been further considered, and as a result army council agree not to press their request that production of evidence and documents about war office contracts which are in possession of His Majesty's government in Canada should take place in camera.

"They rely on undertaking of Canadian government as suggested in your telegram October 4, No. 55, not to disclose information relating to Enfield capacity and production schedule, or any other matter which it would be prejudicial to national security to disclose."

Suggest Publishing Sidesteppers' Names

SLINFORD, Sussex, Eng., Oct. 12—(CP-Havas). — Earl Winterton, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, suggested last night that "some patriotic newspaper" might consider publishing the names of persons who refused to co-operate with the Government's drive for military strength.

"If no comment is made (in connection with publication of the names)," Lord Winterton said in a speech to his constituents, "the persons mentioned would have no grounds on which they could bring libel action."

As candidates for public disapproval he listed:

"Young men of the left who attack the dictators with their mouths and shout for war, but do not dream themselves of joining the regular or territorial forces."

Plot Foiled

Thirteen-year-old King Ananda Mahidol whose throne in Siam is reported to have survived an attempted coup d'etat supposedly in effort to restore former King Prajadhipok to rule the tiny kingdom. According to details received in Singapore, several prominent politicians were said to have been arrested and one minister of the government was reported to have fled to Penang. King Ananda, who celebrated his thirteen birthday on Sept. 20, has not seen his country since he was proclaimed its king on March 7, 1935, after the abdiction of his uncle, Prajadhipok. He has been attending school in Lausanne, Switzerland.

New Air Safety Device Proves Successful

Operating on a radio-beam device that shoots earthwards, the newly developed radio-beam altimeter is being hailed in aviation circles as one of the finest aviation safety factors yet discovered. By means of the new device airplane pilots are kept informed of their height over the ground, buildings, bridges and mountains that happen to be directly below them—in comparison to the standard altimeter now being used which gives only the height above sea level. Peter C. Sandretto, superintendent of United Airlines' communications laboratory, is shown, LEFT, explaining the new safety device to Pilot Captain H. P. Little. The pilot will read the findings of the new altimeter on the instrument, RIGHT.

Grand Duke Cyril Dies In Paris

PARIS, Oct. 13.—(AP). — The Grand Duke Cyril, head of the House of Romanoff and pretender to the Russian throne, died here today. He was 62.

The Grand Duke's wife, the Grand Duchess Victoria, a granddaughter of Queen Victoria of England, died March 2, 1936.

When the Grand Duke proclaimed himself Czar, his son, Grand Duke Vladimir, now 21, became heir to the throne. Grand Duke Vladimir was born at Haiko, Finland, August 17, 1917, when the family was in flight from Russia.

Grand Duke Cyril was father of the Grand Duchess Kira, who married Louis Ferdinand, grandson of former Kaiser Wilhelm, on May 2.

The throne to which the Grand Duke was the pretender was abdicated by Czar Nicholas at the outbreak of the Russian Revolution in March, 1917. The Czar and his family were imprisoned until July 16, 1918, when they were executed at Ekaterinburg, in the Ural district.

A Czar without a throne, Grand Duke Cyril was said to have been supported in a one-servant Paris apartment for several years on an allowance from the late Queen Marie of Rumania, sister of his wife.

Cavan C.G.I.T. Plans Red Cross Course

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAVAN, Oct. 13. — On Friday evening the C.G.I.T. met in the basement of the United Church for their second meeting this fall.

The officers, as elected at the previous meeting, are: Jean Trumpour, president; Norma Gillis, vice-president; Beatrice Fallis, secretary; Joyce Trumpour, treasurer; Elaine Argue, pianist; and Audrey Nill, assistant pianist.

This year the girls plan to take a course in Red Cross work under the leadership of Mrs. Lavergne Fallis, Reg.N.

The president took the chair for the first part of the meeting. Several items of business discussed were the raising of a fund to be turned over to the church; the preparation of a scrap book to be sent through Toronto missions to China, and the making of contributions for a church bazaar.

The recreation period was under the direction of Joyce Trumpour, Bernice Richards, and Bonna Clarke. The topic was Thanksgiving and a number of recitations were a feature of the program. A contest followed, and the meeting was closed by the joining of hands while the C.G.I.T. code was repeated, in unison.

SEMI-PRO BALL POSSIBLE IN PETERBOROUGH NEXT SUMMER

Moguls Strive For Baseball 1944 Olympics

By Bill Boni
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (AP)—Under the direction of Secretary-Treasurer Leslie Mann, the International Amateur Baseball Federation rapidly is approaching its goal: the inclusion of baseball as a competitive sport on the Olympic Games program.

Neither Mann nor his fellow-workers here and abroad expect to reach that goal for the 1940 Olympics. But they do plan to hold amateur baseball's international "world series" in England that summer and then submit their application to the international Olympic committee at the games in Finland in time to be included on the 1944 program.

Baseball, like any other sport, must show that it has the active support of 10 nations banded together in a federation before it can receive I.O.C. approval. Mann and his fellow-workers already have passed that milestone.

The United States and England definitely are committed to compete in the 1939 championship for the John Moores Trophy, put up by the founder and president of England's National Baseball Association. Cuba, Mexico, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Canada and Peru also have agreed to send teams, while Japan, the Philippines, Australia and France, other active members of the I.A.B.F. are virtually certain to take part in the tournament.

Demand Cost Probe

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 13 (CP)—Windsor's citizens committee set up to promote building under the national housing act will demand a Dominion government investigation under the combines investigation act of higher building costs here.

The resolution will go before the committee in two weeks, but members last night approved the principle of the investigation demand. The resolution cited recent statements building costs here are 25 per cent higher than in Hamilton, Ont.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

AFTER MONTHS of work and worry, and years of waiting, the Petes step into the deciding game of the O.B.A. final ball series for the senior championship of the province. They do their stepping Saturday in Hamilton 'gainst Stratford and they'd better snap into it and cut out that intermediate stuff they showed in the Western Ontario city last Monday or they'll be hitting the back alleys en route home. But we know they have the better club and can take the Nats if they play ball. Lefty McNally and Schoolmaster Craig will be the starting hurlers, no doubt. By the way, Bill Prindible—to settle some arguments—measured the distances to the fence at Riverside. From the plate over third to the wall is 308 feet, and over second to the scoreboard is 376 feet. To the foul post over first it's 288 feet. The fence and bank rise about 12 feet over the diamond level.

* * * * * *

DON'T BE TOO SURPRISED if we have a semi-pro ball team here next summer. The O.B.A. is considering a semi-pro setup instead of the present so-called senior amateur section. The boys now get it, if there is any loose change in the club coffers, but—like a gagged gangster—they won't talk. The new idea, published elsewhere tonight, would allow imports at a later date with a salary and no job. The O.B.A. may also do the grouping of senior squads next spring, like the O.H.A. does in hockey. The semi-pro idea sounds right interesting, and the fact that the ball moguls—so long steeped in shamateurism—are even considering it, makes it anyway as much a possibility as, say, hoop skirts revived on George St, for the fair sex ere too long, eh? This question (the semi-pro, not the hoop skirts!) will come up for discussion when the C.O.B.L. has its semi-annual meeting in Peterborough a week from Saturday.

The Bam-Bam-Bammy Beaches

IF THE WEATHER is balmy Saturday, the Bam-Bam-Bammy Beaches' grid openihg with the Orfuns will draw so many cash customers from Central Ontario (and Toronto) that the highways will be clogged for hours before and after. The combined offering of football, a senior debut, and the Balmy Beaches, should leave local sports fans panting like fat men in a heat wave—or anyway inclined to perk up their ears. It'll be a grand scrap with the cocky Torontos all set to have a workout at the locals' expense, and the Orfuns ready to bust loose and treat the Beaches just like they did the Trenton Fliers last year, if they can. At least, Coach Irwin's gang will not have stage fright this time, and they'll battle.

* * * * * *

GRID FANS will recognize a lot of grid stars in the probable starting lineup of the Balmy boys: Flying wing, Sward; halves, Ab Box, Thompson, Manorek; quarter, Gray; snap, Taylor; insides, Worman, Harris; middles, Farley, Casson; outsides, Reynolds, Salter; subs, Hogan, Frizzle, McCullough, Barron, Holden, Holden, Seymour, Hyslop, Shields, Hopper, Downward, Lush, Humphries, McGarry, Reid, Turner. Orfuns are likely to line up like this: Flying wing, Marsh; halves, Crowe, Loucks, Magee; quarter, Irwin; snap, Hendrie; insides, E. Spenceley, Prete; middles, Flack, Winslow; outsides, L. Deadey, Giardino; subs, Krug, McIntyre, Creighton, McNulty, Shields, Hendren, Lambert, Pulkinghorn, F. Spencely, Grose, Curtin, J. Deadey. Two of the players, Eddie Murphy and Chuck Kearns, will be playing ball that day in Hamilton.

* * * * * *

Don't Ever Ever Gamble

FOOTBALL, like drawing cartoons, is a funny game—and anyone that bets the bankroll on any game on the gridiron should have his noggin examined by a vet. The Orfuns are the underdogs in this game, yet they have some experienced performers, several unknowns who will star in senior company this year, a lot of speed, and may combine strategy with luck enough to upset the over-confident Beach crew. We're not predicting a win, as on form the Balmy gang should cop it, but who knows? Didn't two young chaps—totally unknown to senior O.R.F.U. experts—startle Montreal Nats last Monday? We mean Don Crowe and Mike Loucks who stole the thunder from Johnny Ferraro, Tommy Burns, Ed Barnabe and company. And, golly, we've got plenty of other good home huskies on the squad, and good imported players, who are due to show their stuff this Saturday. Yeah, it'll be a game.

EN PASSANT, as the Frenchies warble, writers who saw the Orfuns play in Montreal didn't disparage the efforts of the Irwin gang to any extent. As one Star scribe stated: "They had a Hallowe'en atmosphere to their unies and plenty of youngsters not yet matured in big-time rugby in their lineup. But do not get us wrong. We thought that Crowe was one of the best men on the field and Loucks was not far behind. Orfuns are working on a three-year plan. At that, they worked hard and may win a game or so before the season is over. They should go better at home and you have to give them credit for trying. Certainly the crowd liked the work of Crowe and Loucks." Such gents as Bill Irwin, Joe McNulty, Herbie Hendrie, Harry Marsh, Bill Flack, etc., will create some stir in this group, too, ere snow blankets the gridiron.

They Ran Half a Mile

ONE EVENT, left over from the P.C.I. field day, was run off the other night at the Exhibition Grounds, the senior boys' half-mile race. It was taken by Barry Jack in 2.17 with Don Duncan next and Don Quirt in third place. Which left the senior boys' title a tie at 18 points each for Jack and Duncan. H. A. Craig and his committee, after due deliberation, decided to let it stand at that — and each boy will be awarded a cup as co-champion of the meet. Nice going.

IVAN FLETCHER of the Keene softball team, which won the 1938 O.S.A. intermediate "C" title, says the toughest opposition they met all year was right in the Southend League here. Anyway, Manager Bill Wood, his executive, and the grand gang of softball scrappers which toted the Keene colors to a championship, deserve heaps of credit for the showing. Little Don McCarthy blazed his smoker past a flock of tough babies in provincial playdowns and in finals 'gainst Port Colborne, and his buddies laid on the lumber in dynamic fashion to carve out a niche in the hall of fame this season. Let's see now—following Toronto scribes' examples—isn't Keene nearly a suburb of this city? Surely, so this gives Greater Peterborough (including Nassau, Byersville, Ashburnham, et al) one more Ontario championship for '38. Ah, yes, indeed!

O.B.A. Grouping Is Mooted For Next Year

Semi-pro baseball may be seen in Peterborough next summer if an Ontario Baseball Association suggestion bears fruit during the off-season. With the senior amateur game declining in some parts of the province, a number of suggestions have been made by ball officials whereby the sport might be revived throughout Ontario.

The possibility of opening up the senior amateur game to include some paid players—making it a Class "C" or "D" professional association—has been given considerable thought by O.B.A. officers. As many of them point out in support of their arguments, the various senior leagues at present in the province are really of semi-pro calibre with quite a few players imported to play baseball and getting paid for it.

Grouped Clubs

Another suggestion—which might tie up with the semi-pro idea—would have the O.B.A. do the grouping of senior teams, just as the O. H.A. does in hockey. The Central Ontario League, for instance, started out with but three clubs last spring, and ended with only Oshawa and Peterborough, when Kingston was suspended for using ineligible players. A Central League appeal to the O.B.A. for more clubs did no good, there being no other senior teams in Ontario not already tied up in leagues. The T.A.B.A. ran its own show, with Toronto teams being unable to enter an outside league, and the Eastern Ontario set-up—or even still included with the Petes and Oshawa. And the semi-pro permission would mean baseball even faster than the present good brand. It would not be the out-and-out pro game, but would see good senior amateur teams carrying several fine pro players in their lineups. With U.S. leagues, even the International League, paying players small salaries—ranging from $60 a month to $150, apart from big league prospects—many Ontario centres could afford to bring in an ace battery or a few hard hitters. Using a better league with bigger gates to offset such expenses.

The O.B.A. is faced with the task of shaking up the senior division to get the best results, to keep the clubs already entered in this series and to rebuild where towns like Belleville have dropped out. oNt being hampered by an affiliation with the Amateur Union now, the baseball body of this province has been flirting with the idea of a semi-pro senior section throughout the past summer. It may become a reality in another year, provided clubs in the peninsula, in Western Ontario and in the C.O.B.L. were interested enough. It is doubtful if the T.A.B.A. would advocate such a move, but that association would probably string along with the others, if it passed. Central Ontario would agree, and it is thought there might be a good chance of the Niagara district and the Inter-County League following suit.

When asked about the O.B.A. angle, Max Swanston, local member of the O.B.A. executive and president of the C.O.B.L., said the Ontario Association had an open mind on the subject and was willing to suit the greatest number of senior clubs. He believed the C.O.B.L. would go for such a move—"as they aren't far from it now" — and thought there was a chance the province would see both an O.B.A. grouping of senior teams and some semi-pro ball by next year. Mr. Swanston, who said he would not be a candidate for the O.B.A. executive or Central League presidency next year, owing to business, declared the semi-pro question would come up at the annual meeting of the C.O.B.L. in Peterborough on Oct. 22nd.

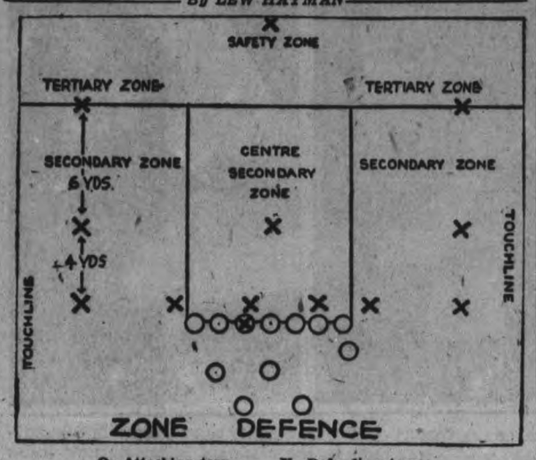
FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

Forward Pass Defence Zone System Is Best

By LEW HAYMAN



O—Attacking team. X—Defending team.

Today we'll go over three systems of defending against forward passes, the zone defence, the man-to-man defence and the combination defence.

Zone Defence.

First we'll take the zone defence, which today's diagram illustrates. This defence gets its name from the face that each defender is responsible for a particular zone. These zones should be assigned so that the territory a man is defending is close to his normal defensive position for any play. The diagram shows the areas, with their names and the men who cover them. It is assumed the team with the ball in this case is using an unbalanced line to the right, as shown, while the defenders are in a 6-3-2-1 formation, that is, with six men on the line, three on secondary defence, two on the tertiary and a safety man.

The secondaries take their places four yards back of the line of scrimmage, with the tertiaries about six yards farther back, and the safety man another 20 yards behind that. The outside secondaries play directly behind their own outside wings and are responsible for the areas shown by the lines, that is from the line of scrimmage back to the line where the tertiary men are stationed, and from an imaginary line drawn from his own middles to the tertiary, and the touchlines.

The centre secondary takes care of any opponents who may enter are area shown, that is between the lines going back from his own middles and the line of scrimmage and the tertiary. He usually takes up his position directly opposite the strongest point of the attacking line.

The tertiaries are responsible for all men who pass the line drawn showing the limit of the secondaries' activities. The safety man has no particular territory, other than making certain that NO ONE EVER GETS BEHIND HIM BEFORE THE PASS IS THROWN. He is, as the name implies, the safeguard against anyone who might get past the secondary and tertiary, the last man in the line of defence.

When a prospective received moves from one area to another, the defender of the area into which he goes should yell, "I'll take him," thus allowing the man who had first been guarding him to remain and protect his own territory. When there is more than one receiver in any zone try to adopt a position where you may possibly be able to cover all of them. If you can't do this, ALWAYS TAKE THE MAN NEAREST THE SIDELINES, who is usually the most dangerous one.

Man-to-Man Defence.

Where secondaries and tertiaries are assigned definite men on the opposing team to cover, it is termed a man-to-man defence. Regardless of where the prospective receiver may go, the defender's job is to keep him covered, somewhat along the lines used in basketball. This system has the advantage of giving each man a definite objective, but, on the other hand, the defender is often not in a good position to cover the man, who may run to a remote part of the field. This is particularly true if the attackers have been able to spot your system of covering its men in advance.

Combination Defence.

This is a complicated system to either understand in writing or to put into practice on the field. The defenders are given particular zones to defend (as in the diagram). These zones are used merely as a start, however, and once the pass play is started the defenders cover specific receivers and stay with them until the ball is in the air.

Whatever type of defence is used, ALL DEFENDERS MUST PLAY THE BALL ONCE IT IS IN THE AIR. Those near the ball should try to catch it. The others should try to get in a position to make the tackle should the pass be completed.

TOMORROW I'll go over a few pass plays, explaining with diagrams, that you may find helpful in your next game.

Queen Alexandra Defeated 4 to 0

Queen Mary public school soccer team was in good form on Wednesday afternoon when it trounced the Queen Alexandra eleven by the score of 4 to 0. The losing goalie played a brilliant game in between the sticks.

Combination Good.

The choice of goals went in favor of Queen Mary and Queen Alexandra centre set the ball rolling to find the west-end halves tackling keenly to prevent them from attacking. After 10 minutes of play Kinmount scored from a penalty shot when he picked the inside of the upright. Queen Alexandra broke through time and again, but failed to carry their attack to a finish, thereby allowing the opposing full backs ample time to clear upfield. After a series of scrimmages in front of the North-enders' goal Jones selected the vacant spot not guarded. Just before the interval, Kinmount dribbled his way toward goal and lifted a high shot in below the cross-bar. Half-time—Queen Mary 3, Queen Alexandra 0.

North-enders Held Winners.

The second half revealed a different Josing team as they settled down to tackle a first opportunity which ultimately broke up the combination of the West-enders and confined their play to midfield. About the middle of the period Dundas registered to make the count—Queen Mary 4, Queen Alexandra 0.

The teams:

Queen Mary — E. Ward, goal; R. Blonden and L. McCarthy, backs; F. Mortimer, W. Jones and M. Dumart, halves; R. Loucks, A. Lester, B. Kinmount, G. Matthews, and D. Dundas, forwards; subs, J. Bond and J. Franks.

Queen Alexandra — J. Gaskill, goal; C. Seal and M. Coones, backs; J. Tighe, N. Hume, and D. Burrows, halves; M. Richardson, N. Harvey, A. Woodgate, C. Bedford, and E. McEwen, forwards; subs., B. Smith and B. Lyons.

Referee—D. Buchan.

Conacher Hired On Bonus Plan By Detroit

DETROIT, Oct. 13 (CP).—Charles Conacher, brilliant Maple Leaf right-winger, who comes to Detroit Red Wings at the end of this week, will be playing on a bonus plan according to plans of the Detroit management, said Jim Norris, vice-president of the National Hockey League team here.

Norris visited Conacher in Toronto recently and said Conacher was so healthy he would make professional strong men blush for shame. "I asked him if he could score 30 points for us," Norris said. "He almost sneered as he answered: 'Why I could score that many sitting in my old grandmother's rocking chair'."

Norris said he had planned offering Conacher a contract that would have brought him considerable cash for every point over 30.

"I think now we'll move that notch up to 40. He might win the Stanley Cup for us and put us in bankruptcy."

Jack Adams is confident the Wings made a good deal in buying Conacher. "Conacher can help us plenty," said Adams. "The players all like him and he's a leader and he can really play hockey."

St. Catharines' Last Period Rally Trounces Adanacs 10-7 To Bring Mann Cup Back East

TORONTO, Oct. 13 — (CP). — St. Catharines Athletics, just about the best last-period team in lacrosse history, agreed to-day that their Canadian senior championship was worth every minute of an arduous two-year campaign.

The Athletics' drive to the Mann Cup started last year when they entered the Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior series with a partially rebuilt team. It continued through last winter when the A's played in a New York State League for "experience," and it gained impetus this Spring with the start of another O.L.A. season as the now-veteran unit added a couple of outside stars.

The quest ended gloriously last night in Maple Leaf Gardens when St. Catharines came from behind to score a third straight victory over New Westminster Adanacs, 10-7, in Dominion finals. The Athletics swept the series with the British Columbia club by rallying late in each of the three games, just as Art Brown's game band had done in important contests all year.

Trailing 4-6 at half time and 5-6 at the end of the third quarter, the Athletics won on a five-goal burst in the last period. The Athletics were a goal behind at half time in the first game, but won 18-11. The score was tied halfway through the second match, but the A's took it 22-11.

To the young Adanacs—a fast, brilliant team that had spilled last year's Dominion champions, New Westminster Salmonbellies—the defeat was bitter. In each game the Coast team carried a full share of the play most of the way, then had to give in to superior all-around strength and straight-ahead lacrosse methods.

Fighting Youngsters.

New Westminster brought a sparkling spinner play and a wealth of courage to pit against the heavier, more durable Athletics. Last night, when both teams showed the wear and tear of the first two engagements; the Adanacs seemed for most of the way to be staking a comeback.

Then, with Big Gun Barnard leading the way, St. Catharines' floor-length plays swept all before them in the late minutes. Barnard rallied the Athletics with a goal after 15 seconds of the fourth quarter. Gord. Saunders put New Westminster ahead five minutes later, but Billy Wilson, George Hope and Punk Morton scored in succession and Barnard capped the spurt with a goal in the final minute.

Trying to inject new life into the tired Adanacs, the management put Dutch Haddon and Lorne Steele, juniors, into the lineup. They fitted well into the speedy attack and after Bob Lee had opened the scoring for New Westminster, Steele justified his selection by making the count 2-0. Goals by Punk Kennedy of the Adanacs and Bill Fitzgerald and Morton of the Athletics left the score at 3-2 as the first period closed.

Both teams wearied rapidly in the second, but Lee added two more goals, Bob Phelan another and Carl Madsen and Joe Cheevers broke through the inspired New Westminster team for St. Catharines' only scores.

The effects of the first two games told in the third when George Urquhart of the Athletics got the only goal of a close-checking session. In the fourth, though, St. Catharines came back as it had done repeatedly all year and there was little the young opposition could do to stem the tide.

Played Feature Roles In Winning Mann Cup

Scintillating in the march of St. Catharines Athletics, to winning the Mann Cup have been Roy Morton, LEFT, and Bill Whittaker, RIGHT. Morton led the scorers in the Ontario Lacrosse Association during the regular season and was a leader in his team's attacks against New Westminster Adanacs, in the series for the Canadian title. Whittaker, goaltender for the titlists, was the outstanding player against the westerners, his play in the nets ruining Adanac attacks time and again.

Canadian Champ

Forced to go all the way to the 36th green before victory was hers, Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen, ABOVE, of Toronto, won the Canadian women's golf title at Ottawa, by defeating Clarrie Tiernan, of Dublin one up. Miss Tiernan was a member of the British Curtis cup team.

Chicago Blackhawks Start For Training

CHICAGO, Oct. 13 (A.P.). — The world champion Chicago Blackhawks, who battled out of almost nowhere to win the Stanley Cup last season, left to-day for Champaign, Ill., where they will train for the 1938-39 National Hockey League season. Player-Coach Paul Thompson led the squad of 21 and will have charge of conditioning for two weeks. Manager Bill Stewart is recuperating from an appendectomy in Dorchester, Mass.

Spoils Divided In Big Leagues

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—With the beaten Cubs back in Chicago and the Champion Yankees scattering to their homes over the country, the World Series figures today held the center of attention.

The total paid attendance for the four games was 200,833 and the gross receipts were $851,166.

The commissioner's share of the receipts was $127,674.90, the players' share was $434,094.66, the clubs' share was $144,698.22 and the league's share $144,698.22.

The players' share is split up among the series foes and the other first division teams in both leagues. It was a record total for a four-game series. But when the Yankees played the Giants in 1936, the players cut came from $460,002.66, the first four games, in which the players share, having drawn larger crowds.

The Yankees received $5,815.65 apiece for whipping the Cubs four straight and each Cub got $4,674.87 for being beaten.

The Red Sox and the Pirates received $32,557.10 each for finishing second, the Indians and the Giants got $21,740.73 each for finishing third and the Tigers and Reds received $10,852.37 each for finishing fourth.

New York Rangers Building Strong Hockey Farm System

WINNIPEG, Oct. 13 (CP)—Some close hockey observers believe New York Rangers ultimately will be to major professional hockey what the New York Yankees are to baseball, as a result of the farm system employed by both organizations.

Yankees, with their powerful "farm clubs" Newark Bears and Kansas City Blues, champions of the International and American Association leagues respectively, have the cream of the minor league crop from which to choose recruits. Rangers are rapidly acquiring a "chain system" equally as potent.

In addition to Philadelphia Ramblers of the International American League and New York Rovers of the Eastern United States Amateur League, Rangers have added Edmonton Athletic Club juniors to their amateur hook-up and have Vancouver Lions of the Pacific Coast league available as a seasoning ground for young professionals.

How System Works

Here is how the Ranger system operates:

Ranger scouts across Canada recommend amateur players to Manager Lester Patrick who in turn invites the players to his annual fall training school here.

Best of the amateurs are taken by Patrick to New York where they perform with the Rovers in the U.S. amateur circuit. As these players develop, they are given opportunities with Philadelphia in professional hockey.

If a player fails to make good with Philadelphia and yet appears to have promise of development, he can be sent to Vancouver for seasoning.

If the player makes good at Philadelphia, Patrick brings him up to the Rangers at various times during the winter to gain major league experience.

Rangers Have First Call

At the same time, Rangers have the first call on junior players at Edmonton and no other N.H.L. club can sign them, unless Patrick decides they can be of no use to him.

This farm system has paid large dividends to Professor Patrick. Of the tentative 1938-39 Ranger lineup, only two players are not graduates of the system. Goalie Davie Kerr was obtained from Montreal Maroons and Defenceman Art Coulter from Chicag Black Hawks.

Last year three players were promoted to the N.H.L. from Philadelphia, Centre Clint Smith and forwards Bryan Hextall and Bobby Kirk. This trio spent the 1935-36 season with Vancouver Lions and then moved as a unit to Philadelphia for the 1936-37 season. Murray Patrick and Larry Molyneaux, regular Rambler defencemen, played several games with Rangers near the close of last year when injuries forced two Ranger defencemen to the sidelines.

Dutch Hiller of Kitchener, Ont., moved directly from the amateur Rovers to the Rangers late last season and fitted right into the Rangers' style of play, largely because the Rovers employ the same checker-board pass attack used by their "older brothers" in the N.H.L.

Amerks' Training School Jammed

SASKATOON, Oct. 13 (CP). — Mervyn (Red) Dutton, the "keep punching" manager of New York Americans in the National Hockey League, is elated with the amateur players attending the club's second annual hockey school here.

"Maybe the fall rains and the good crops are responsible, but that's the biggest and best looking bunch of young hockey players I've seen at a school for a long time," Red remarked after watching the youngsters.

Doug. Cairns, who played with Sudbury last winter, was the only one of the Amerks' pupils missing when Dutton called his school to order for the first skating practice yesterday. He will arrive today.

All regulars on the Americans' roster were present for the second workout except Johnny Gallagher, Kenora, Ont., defenceman, sold to Americans last fall by Detroit Red Wings.

His Worship Watches

The cameraman caught Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, of New York, in moment of "oofing" as he watched the Yankees maltreat the Cubs in the world series. His Worship saw all the games and had a great time at the expense of Chicago's Mayor Kelly, whose loyalty led him to bet on the Cubs.

Leslie Pawson Wins 30-Kilometre Run, Toronto Man Seventh

Greenfield, Mass., Oct. 12 (CP)

LESLIE PAWSON, veteran marathoner from Rhode Island, yesterday won the 30-kilometre United States A.A.U. road race in one hour, 48 minutes, 54 seconds.

George Durgin of Beverly, Mass., was second, five minutes and 29 seconds behind the victor, and Gerard Cote of St. Hyacinthe, Que., third, another minute and 26 seconds back.

Frank Bristow of Toronto finished seventh in two hours, five seconds.

Durocher Gets Dodgers' Pilot Job

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (A.P.). — One of the most eagerly sought positions in United States sport, the managership of one of the 16 big league ball clubs, has been handed Leo Durocher, 33-year-old short-stopping product of West Springfield, Mass.

Durocher was so happy he barely could talk faster than 200 words a minute when he faced the metropolitan baseball writers to receive congratulations on his new job with the Brooklyns yesterday.

Leo fairly bubbled as he told of his plans for the Dodgers. General Manager Larry MacPhail broke in to remark: "If they print everything you've said, Leo, we'll get the biggest press in history on the appointment of a manager."

A cynic in the back row said in an aside: "You'll notice they're only giving him a one-year contract. Wonder who they'll be appointing this time next year."

If Durocher is fortunate and shot with luck, maybe his contract will be renewed for 1940. Burleigh Grimes, the grand old spit-baller whom Durocher succeeds in the long line of Brooklyn pilots, wouldn't advise you to bet on it.

Neither would Babe Ruth, who came out of retirement some months ago to each for the Dodgers, with the bright expectation he would fall heir to Grimes' job. They offered to let the Babe coach again last year, but he turned it down.

Orfuns Play Beaches Here

Balmy Beach and Peterborough Orfuns open the 1938 senior O. R. F. U. season here this Saturday afternoon in the Exhibition Grounds. It will be the first senior rugby seen in this city in 29 years, and the local Orfuns are facing a powerful club in the Beaches of Toronto. The game is likely to draw close to 4,000 fans from the city, district and this part of the province, many Toronto grid followers also attending. Admission is a dollar for reserved seats, half a dollar for rush and a quarter for school children.

Both clubs lost their opening games, Orfuns absorbing a 26-6 reverse at the hands of the husky Nationals in Montreal last Monday and Beaches being beaten 8-6 by Sarnia in Toronto on the holiday. The loser here will be shot into the cellar position. While the Orfuns are the under-dogs in the betting, the Peterborough pack will not go down without a real battle. They have high hopes of pulling a surprise and holding the Toronto bunch in check for a tight score. Coach Bill Irwin learned a lot from the first fixture of the season and his Orfuns will also be in better shape, mentally and physically, this weekend. He will have a full squad out, except for Murphy and Kearns, who play baseball that day.

Coach Alex Ponton of the Balmy boys may be without two of his outside wings, Charlie Box and Bert Haigh, who were hurt in the Sarnia scrap. Ab Box, great passer and kicker of the Beaches, will be the man the Orfuns will have to stop if they expect to hold the visitors. But regardless of the outcome, fans will see a grand gridiron game between two senior football machines, and the orange-hued, speedy locals will give a real account of themselves in their home debut.

U.S. Grid Horizon Glows Brightly As New Stars Begin To Shine

By Drew Middleton
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (A.P.). — A place kick spinning between the goal posts; a pass tossed through the shadows in the last minute of play; the quick shift, the break and the dash down the sidelines as the stands roar—and a football star is born.

There are new luminaries aplenty on the United States grid horizon.

Out at Minnesota they are singing the praises of Wilbur Moore, the half-back who has inherited the mantle once worn by Pug Lund and Jules Alphonse. A senior, Moore was unheralded in the pre-season ballyhoo, but he is the big noise now, the best runner on the squad.

Outstanding gopher end thus far is George Nash, who has caught passes and shone defensively.

Bob Saggau, best freshman back last year, is Notre Dame's most notable newcomer. He plays left halfback, the most arduous backfield position in the Irish system.

Resurgent Michigan offers Tom Harmon, an able ball carrier and blocker, who has been going well behind a veteran line. Wadde Young, the Oklahoma end who smeared Rice's Ernie Lain and harried Texas' passers, is the man of the hour in the Big Six.

Best sophomores on the coast apparently belong to Oregon's webfoots, Jim Nicholson and Jay Graybeal, two fine half-backs, have passed and run Oregon to the top of the Coast Conference.

New York U. coach Mal Stevens calls Joe La Manna "potentially one of the best I've ever seen." Hal Lube or Colgate looms as the passer to succeed Columbia's Sid Luckman as the East's best.

No New '38 Players To Enter Finals

EDMONTON, Oct. 13 (CP).—The Western Interprovincial Rugby Union will send its 1938 championship team east to compete in Dominion finals without those players who have entered Canada this year.

At a meeting this week in Edmonton, the union executive decided the champions must travel east and no player who has not been a Canadian resident for one year will enter the lineup.

The executive also set playoff plans. The second and third teams will play a sudden-death game for the right to meet the first-place club for the union title in home-and-home games, with total points deciding the winner. In the event of a tie for one of the first three positions, the best scoring average will determine the place.

Three Spills In Horse Races Add To Excitement Of Norwood Fair's Success

NORWOOD, Oct. 13.—A day of soft, hazy sunshine, gentle breezes and exceptional warmth was a big factor in the 70th annual Norwood Fair's splendid success here Wednesday. Richard Dean, secretary of the Board estimated the attendance at 4,500 and that approximation seemed to be conservative.

Nearly 140 exhibitors from all over Central Ontario filled all the departments with fine displays of livestock, harvest and home products, poultry, fine arts; and the grounds were amply provided with various booths and attractions, although it was announced that a small midway had failed to keep its contract to supply several rides and other amusements. For some reason unknown to the directors the carnival show did not keep its engagement.

The horse races contributed unscheduled upsets in which Harry Engles of Campbellford was slightly injured, and two or three gigs wrecked. An extra card of athletic events, tug of war, horse shoe pitching and music by the Havelock Kilties spun off the long afternoon with sustained interest for the big crowd.

President Wellington Burgess and his associate directors were delighted with the attendance, and also with the number and quality of the exhibits, especially in both light and heavy horses, beef and dairy cattle, poultry, and in the complete range of products shown in the main building. The Board has had to face occasional frowning weather, even an afternoon of wet snow, a few years ago, but Wednesday made up for some of the past adversities.

Many From Peterborough

Peterborough county and city were largely represented in the crowd and also in the list of exhibitors. In fact more people from the city were seen here yesterday than ever befors. Among the exhibitors were Allan B. Mann, of Bridgenorth; William J. Beatty, Stewart street, both of whom bulked largely in the horse show ring; R. M. Brown, Harry Lush and Mrs. VanAllen in the poultry section; Mr. Brown with 124 entries, registered the largest number of entries in the Fair; J. M. Lowes, and many others. Harry McIntyre of Otonabee had a highly satisfactory day with his horses, and others in that class were Sam Adams of Hastings, Peter Jones of Warkworth, McMillan Brothers of Norwood, Irving Greenley of Norham, Leo Fry and Campbellford, William McGee and Sons of Asphodel and others.

The judges were: Heavy horses, A. E. Webster, Oakwood; light horses, Dr. S. L. O'Hara, Campbellford; beef cattle, Walter Kerr, Myrtle; dairy cattle, Jos. Tully, Otonabee; sheep and swine, Ralph Garbutt, Lakefield; poultry, R. J. Messervey, Point Anne; dairy products, G. A. Gillespie, Peterborough; grain, Patrick O'Keefe, Belleville; roots and vegetables, G. F. Kitney, Peterborough; fruit, Morley Webster; domestic science, Mrs. R. J. Cooper, Orono, fine arts, Miss M. L. McCarthy, Peterborough; household plants, C. H. Williamson, Peterborough.

Results of Races

Three spills provided added excitement for the big crowd that followed the card of nine heats around the half mile track, every heat a race. Harry Engles was hurt in much the same manner and almost at the same place as last year. At that time his left leg was painfully hurt and laid him up more or less for several months. Yesterday it was his right thigh that was badly bruised in the first tangle of the afternoon, in the opening heat. Engles was driving "Richard Hall" with several of the other horses in the big field right at his heels. "Richard Hall," it was said, appeared to break, and Engles was thrown from his gig, "Way Grattan" stepped on him, narrowly missing his head. B. Grant was driving "Way Grattan" and also hit the dirt in the mix up.

Had Dizzy Spells For 3 Years

Result of Acid Indigestion

"Before taking Kruschen," a woman writes, "I had very bad dizzy spells and hot flushes, bad spells of acid indigestion, and I was so nervous at times that the least thing would upset me. I was about three years in that condition.

"I could not tell you in words how happy and glad I am to-day that I gave Kruschen Salts a trial. I have now taken them for 18 months, I would not miss them one day. They are a great help to anyone who suffers as I did. I feel in better health to-day than I have for years. After taking Kruschen for three weeks the dizzy fads and hot flushes left me. I now feel so bright and cheerful. Kruschen Salts assist to keep you fit and fine."—(Mrs.) J. M.

Kruschen Salts is an excellent recipe for maintaining a condition of internal cleanliness. The numerous salts in Kruschen stimulate your internal organs to smooth, regular action. Your inside is thus kept clear of those impurities which, when allowed accumulate, lower the whole tone of the system. —Advt.

TAKE THE LEAD OUT OF YOUR LEGS

Get Oxygen in Your Blood and You'll Get the Pep that Sends You Bounding Up the Stairs

People who smother to death die because oxygen has been completely cut off from them. Just as surely you are slowly smothering if your blood lacks red corpuscles. Red corpuscles are your oxygen-carriers. They carry the oxygen you breathe in to every part of your system. Without enough oxygen-carrying corpuscles, your kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels slow down. Your skin gets pale, flabby, often pimply. Your nerves may become jittery — you tire quickly — feel depressed.

What you need is Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These world-famous pills help make more and better red corpuscles and thus increase the oxygen-carrying power of your blood. Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today at your druggist. See for yourself how quickly this time-proven blood-builder will help give you back your pep. Copr. 1938, G.T. Fulford Co.

Vote Of Confidence For Prime Minister

While a large block of his countrymen was censuring the foreign policies of Premier Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain as a result of the Munich agreement on Czechoslovakia, this little girl was about the first person in England to give the peace-maker a vote of confidence. She is shown at No. 10 Downing Street after tendering her letter to the Premier. Mrs. Chamberlain is thanking the child while the Prime Minister looks on.

Barred From U.S.

Following a warning by American Legion authorities that he is not "readmissable," Evelyn John Strachey, British writer on communism and one-time object of deportation proceedings in the United States was barred from entering into the United States by immigration officials when he arrived in New York aboard the Normandie.

"Baby is fine"

© Whitefoot, Vanc.

AND one of the reasons Baby is making such fine progress is his food —an irradiated Carnation Milk formula—with the full food value of whole cows' milk, easy digestibility and added "sunshine" vitamin D.

In producing Carnation Milk, nothing is taken out of whole milk, except part of the natural water content — nothing is added except "sunshine" vitamin D, by irradiation. Because Carnation is homogenized and sterilized, it is easier to digest, always the same, always safe. When bottle days are over, there is no question of "weaning" baby—he goes on getting his Carnation Milk in his cup. Carnation is also extra good for cooking and creaming—smooth, double rich, and it keeps until opened, without refrigeration.

Write for these Carnation Books. "The Contented Baby" is free. The Carnation Cook Book, containing a host of ideas and recipes, with full-page, full-colour illustrations is 15¢ (postpaid). Carnation Company Limited, Toronto, Ontario.

Sidley Inquest Justified Slaght Argues

TORONTO, Oct. 13. — Justice was taking a strange turn in Ontario if the Government was compelled to consult with "the Horlick relations who are hand-in-glove with Perkins Bull," said Arthur G. Slaght, K.C., yesterday after listening to testimony by D. L. McCarthy, K.C., purporting to show that Attorney-General Gordon Conant had exceeded his authority in ordering an inquest into the death of Mrs. Maybelle Horlick Sidley, Chicago malted milk heiress.

The exchange came during the hearing at Osgoode Hall of an injunction sought by the four executors of Mrs. Sidley's $2,000,000 estate to prevent Chief Coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson from proceeding with an inquest into the circumstances surrounding the heiress's death at the home of Perkins Bull, K.C., last July 6. The hearing will continue Friday at 10.30 a.m.

Mr. Slaght took exception to the submission by Mr. McCarthy that there were no grounds of suspicion necessitating an inquest, and that, had there been any, the Attorney-General "might have had the courtesy to communicate with Mrs. Sidley's family."

For the first time, Mr. Slaght made public the testimony obtained from William Horlick Sidley, son of the deceased woman, at Racine, Wisconsin, ten days ago.

He read extracts in which the young man reiterated his statements that his mother had been kept a prisoner in the Bull home, and his fears that she had been administered poison while a patient there.

Held Authority Exceeded.

Asked if he still thought his mother had been held a prisoner and had been poisoned, young Sidley, according to his statement read by Mr. Slaght, replied: "Very definitely. I still believe it."

"My friend," Mr. Slaght declared, "would have us believe that there were no suspicious circumstances surrounding this unfortunate woman's death, and yet here we have her own son declaring less than ten days ago that he still thinks she was poisoned."

At the close of the day's testimony it became apparent that the executors have based their injunction on the submission that Dr. Lawson had no authority to call an inquest when Mrs. Sidley's body had been removed from his territorial jurisdiction. Coupled with this was the contention that Attorney-General Conant had exceeded his authority in ordering an inquest in the face of the testimony of a number of physicians who had certified to a death from natural causes.

Claims Pills Administered.

In this connection Mr. Slaght declared: "I ask for no apology for Dr. Lawson's conduct. Indeed, he would have been derelict in his duty had he failed to pursue the course he did. This place (Mr. Bull's residence) was a virtual prison, with bars on the windows and on the bathroom. This poor woman was so afraid of being shot that she slept with her head beneath a fur coat."

Referring again to William Sidley's statement, Mr. Slaght read as follows: "I saw Bull give my mother little, round, white pills about three times daily for almost a week. He carried them in his vest pocket, and when I asked to see the prescription he put me off."

"You will note," said Mr. Slight, "that Mrs. Sidley seemed to ask for these pills, and seemed to desire them, and in view of what I'm going to bring in later on I think this will be very important."

Attacks Dr. Bruce.

Earlier Mr. McCarthy made a vigorous attack on Dr. Herbert Bruce, former Ontario Lieutenant-Governor, whom he accused of instigating the inquest because he had been refused consultation with Mrs. Sidley's doctors.

He said that Dr. Bruce had called up Dr. Ray Farquharson, the attending physician, and told him, "Perkins Bull must be watched."

Later, he declared, Dr. Bruce had deliberately suggested that Dr. Farquharson had tried to prevent an autopsy by suggesting that the permission of the executors, in addition to that of the son, would have to be obtained for a post-mortem examination.

"All this suspicion was originated by Dr. Bruce, the man who was willing to go to Mr. Bull's home at 1 o'clock in the morning—if he had been allowed to," Mr. McCarthy said.

He added that Dr. Bruce had pressed the inquest, "because he didn't think a man of his standing should be excluded from anything. He thinks it's disgraceful."

"If there were any suspicion of foul play," continued Mr. McCarthy, "no one would be more anxious to ascertain it than we. The doctors have sworn that death came from natural causes, and if there were any evidence of foul play, it is conceivable that Dr. Lawson would have rested on his oars and done nothing for a week? He was satisfied. He knew the autopsy was done. And, I say again that the only reason that this motion is opposed is because Dr. Bruce felt he should not have been excluded from consultation.

Minister's Son Invents Invisible Ear Drum

The Invisible Ear Drum invented by A. O. Leonard, a son of the late Rev. A. B. Leonard, D.D., for many years secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, for his own relief from extreme deafness and head noises, has so greatly improved his hearing that he can join in any ordinary conversation, go to church and the theatre and hear without difficulty. Inexpensive and has proven a blessing to many people. Write for booklet, to A. O. Leonard, Inc., Suite 202, Canada Cement Building, Montreal.—Advt.

OBITUARY

MRS. MICHAEL ANDERSON.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 13. — A resident of this town for the past sixteen years Henrietta McAvella, widow of the late Michael Anderson, passed away early Wednesday morning. Born in Seymour township 63 years ago she came to Campbellford to live following her husband's death at Bradley Bay. In failing health for several months she was taken seriously ill less than two weeks ago. The funeral will take place from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Rouhan, Bridge street, on Friday, to St. Mary's church, where Requiem Mass will be celebrated by Rev. Fr. J. V. McAuley. Interment will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

C.P. Main Shops To Be Shut Three Weeks

MONTREAL, Oct. 13.—(CP). — Closing of the Canadian Pacific Railway's main shops for the three weeks between Oct. 24 and Nov. 14 was announced yesterday as an economy measure in counter-balancing failure of traffic to reach expected proportions.

About 13,000 unionized employees will be affected in the Angus shops here, largest in the C.P.R. system; the Weston shops at Winnipeg, second largest; the Ogden shops at Calgary and the Vancouver plant. Representatives of the employees agreed "amicably" to the layoff, a company announcement said.

It followed an earlier move toward economy which went into effect at the start of this week, whereby clerical workers take one week ofgf without pay between now and the end of the year. The reduction in pay for these salaried workers amounts to about 8½ per cent.

Running trade employees are not affected by either change. Their employment, company officials announced, varies with the amount of available traffic in any event.

The temporary shop shutdown was described as a "happy conclusion" to union-company negotiations by Thomas Broad, member of the Shop Crafts Federation executive and one of those taking part in the discussions with the company this week. The three weeks' closing was preferable to a layoff of men, he declared. Broad said amicable relations had prevailed throughout the negotiations.

Flames Leap

Rev. Arthur Lavender conducted funeral services for Mrs. William Labelle, Mrs. Noah Labelle, their nine children and Frank Labelle's 11-year-old daughter. Twenty Boy Scouts under Scoutmaster Ralph Marsh carried the bodies to their graves. Babies were enclosed in the same caskets as their mothers.

Benny Fultz, 25-year-old pulp cutter and neighbor of the Labelles was buried in Burris township.

No Damage Estimate.

Chief Fire Ranger William Darby said last night lower temperatures and better humidity improved the situation. He would attempt no damage estimate. Settlers are left without clothing or food and in many cases their revenue sources, cut pulp wood or fire wood, have been destroyed.

M. K. Morrison, district inspector of the Department of Public Welfare, and Patrick Kerr, relief officer, are attempting to locate all homeless refugees but this task has been almost impossible. Refugees are scattered throughout the Rainy River district, some staying in homes of relatives, others with friends.

No buildings or temporary shelters are in use for housing refugees. No plans for rehabilitation of settlers will be made until the fire danger diminishes.

Firefighters, battling the flames with pumps and hose where water is available and with spades and back fires, number anywhere from several hundred to 5,000. Forestry officials could not estimate their number.

Rangers Take On Men.

A Forestry Branch official said only 50 to 100 men were in direct employ of the branch in the district but rangers scattered throughout the fire zone had hired men and hundreds of volunteers were in the woods fighting in organized groups. Asked where these men found shelter to sleep an officer said tersely, "They don't sleep."

Two policemen returned yesterday to report the Stone family, reported missing in Kingsford Township, was safe. Forest rangers said fires in that township were under control. Other reports said the fire was creeping north from Kingsford to the south end of Fleming Township, 25 miles northwest of Fort Frances.

Settlers in that area were being moved to safety by Forestry Department trucks. Schools across the fire front were closed. All possible precautions were taken. Cars carrying pumps and hose patrolled danger points.

Settlers pray for rain to quell the flames. Yet some believe the fire is embedded so deeply in the peat beds far below ground it may survive even the snows of winter.

Danforth Businessman Claims Broadcasting Corporation To Be Second White Elephant

"The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is going to be a greater white elephant than the Canadian National Railway," declared Orville Wyckloff, secretary of the Danforth Businessmen's Association, speaking before the Peterborough association in the Chamber of Commerce last night.

It was the Danforth association that last winter originated the nation-wide poll on increased radio fees that revealed so much antipathy in this country to licenses. The association advised all who answered their poll to pay the fee last year because its members realized nothing could be done, but this year they plan to take further action, Mr. Wyckloff said. He claimed that the Canadian Broadcasting Association is far from meeting expenses out of the fees it collects from radio owners, is getting a large appropriation from the government with which to carry on its work.

The Danforth association began its poll last year as a publicity venture, with the sole object of winning free advertising for itself, he revealed. But within a few weeks members realized that here was a question that was far more important to Canada than the free advertising one association might receive.

Five members of the Danforth club, including its president, Dr. A. J. Vince, spoke to Peterborough members last night, gave them many valuable hints on how to carry on such an association with success. Dr. Vince, in a thorough address, outlined the method in which the Danforth club has been run since its organization in 1919, and described the ways in which the association collects its money.

The Danforth was a "mudhole" when the organization started its work in 1919, and now it is the most live-wire district in the Dominion, declared the president. Such a change has been wrought by co-operation of individual members all working for the betterment of the entire area. He recalled that once when a furniture store proprietor was facing financial difficulty two of his competitors placed enough furniture in his store to tide him over until better times came, just because they realized it was better for the district to have keen competition.

The Danforth has customers as far away as Cobourg, Orillia, Oakville, and the only reason for that is because a keen association has created good-will, he claimed.

Members of the Peterborough association sat in round-table conference at the conclusion of the address and asked for advise on how to conduct their own organization successfully. Other members of the Danforth deputation in attendance were William Arbour, Max Stark, and Paul O'Man.

Y.M.C.A. Drive Goes Over Top

The Y.M.C.A. drive for membership went over the top in its final spurt and today G. H. Roper, secretary of the organization reports 621 members in the men's division. The campaign wound up with a report meeting Wednesday night.

Doug Loomis was presented with the skils by W. A. Richardson in tribute to his work as the leading producer, and Alex L. Elliott, M.L.A. chairman lauded the workers for their untiring efforts on the drive since the campaign started. He congratulated the two campaign majors, T. A. Mackay and Harold L. Garner, on the fine work of their respective divisions.

The general secretary urged the workers to follow through by seeing that new members signed become acquainted with the program and take an active part at once. The different classes are now in a process of reorganization.

Fleetwood Holds Fine Anniversary

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FLEETWOOD, Oct. 13.— Very successful anniversary services were enjoyed at Fleetwood United church on Sunday afternoon and evening a large number of friends motoring in from neighboring churches to united with the local congregation for their anniversary and Thanksgiving observances.

The church interior looked lovely bedecked with late summer flowers and seasonal emblems of a bountiful harvest garnered in were artistically arranged at various points of vantage. The guest speaker for the occasion was Rev. C. L. Brown of Springville church who is favorably knowm among Manvers' churchgoers and who delivered two very appropriate addresses for the Thanksgiving season and who left an indelible impression on his many hearers, the church being taxed to capacity at the evening service.

The Yelverton choir were invited to provide music for their sister church and did themselves great credit.

At afternoon worship two appealing anthems were sung and a special number by a mixed quartette including Miss Jane Mills, Mrs. Ray Malcolm, Mr. Clarke Williams and Mr. Victor Malcolm. The quartette at evening service was also well received when Mr. Sidney Ferguson substituted for Mr. Clarke Williams. Miss Edna Robinson contributed a delightful solo entitled "Living For Jesus," at evening worship. Mr. Vance Wilson acted as organist for the various numbers at each service.

As this church had decided to ask for a special offering rather than hold the customary fowl dinner, the usual offering was largely augmented for the occasion.

It was announced that the third sister church at Bethany would observe its anniversary next Sunday with Rev. R. P. Bowles, D.D., LL.D. of Victoria University preaching in the morning at eleven o'clock and Rev. E. W. Roland of Mark street, Peterborough, acting as guest speaker in the evening.

SHOT BEAR.

Garfield Puffer, who lives a mile east of the White Church at Crowe's Landing, is the proud possessor of a bear skin from an animal he shot on Monday only a mile from the main road to Havelock in the vicinity of Long Lake. Out duck-shooting in the morning, he spied the bear, went back to get a rifle and returned a short time later in search of the big fellow. It weighed close to 250 pounds.

EXAGGERATED STORY.

A rumor that an eight-year-old boy had lost two fingers while playing near a sawing machine in a local lumber yard was found on investigation to be untrue. The boy merely had the skin torn on his index finger when it came in contact with a moving belt and was back at school this morning. The incident however should act as a warning to parents that children should be instructed to stay off private property, particularly sawmill property.

Mrs. L. M. McKee of Winnipeg was to have given the address but was called to her home and Mr. Moore consented to take her place.

CASE NOT COMPLETED

A charge against Michael J. Murray of reckless driving arising out of an automobile accident near the Filtration plant last June, was thrashed out in police court before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., Wednesday, and despite a long session was not completed, an adjournment being ordered to permit the defence to call a medical witness. The evidence was much the same as that given in another charge against Murray in connection with the same accident. W. J. Arthur Fair was the defence counsel and the prosecution was in the hands of acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C.

Chinese Speed Reinforcements South To Save Canton Line

HONG KONG, Oct. 13—(AP).—Heavy Chinese reinforcements were rushed from the East river district to the Bias Bay area near here today indications they might soon come to grips with a large new Japanese expeditionary force.

Roads to Waichow, 80 miles east of Canton and the Garrison City nearest Bias Bay, were choked with commandeered trucks and buses filled with Chinese soldiers.

Waichow is believed one of the first objectives of the Japanese contingent, estimated to number more than 35,000 troops.

The Japanese appeared to be pushing steadily inland towards Tamshui, 10 miles from the coast. From there the invaders would have 25 miles to go across comparatively flat country to reach the vital Kowloon-Canton-Hankow railway, about 30 miles from the Hong Kong frontier.

The defenders were expected to give the Japanese the first real resistance at Tamshui and farther inland beyond the range of Japanese naval guns. The Chinese were reported to have built strong defence works to protect the railroad.

Hong Kong continued outwardly calm, although governor Sir Geoffrey Northcote in a budget address called the proximity of hostilities a "matter of grave concern" because much of Hong Kong's food supply comes frm Kwangtung province.

Reports reached here from Canton that additional Japanese transports were en route to South China, with a few landing probably on the Pearl River near the Bocca Tigris forts near Swatow, 215 miles east of Canton.

Hong Kong police reserves, numbering about 300, were called for active duty, presumably to aid in policing the frontiers.

Labor M.P. Resents Slap At Russia

MAKERFIELD, Lancasnire, England, Oct. 13 (CP-Havas).—Herbert Morrison, Labor M.P., and chairman of the London County Council, last night defied Earl Winterton to prove his charges that "because of her military weakness" Soviet Russia had made "only vague promises" to go to Czechoslovakia's aid in case of war.

Addressing a political meeting, Mr. Morrison said: "I call upon Lord Winterton to produce his evidence. If he has evidence. It is Lord Winterton's duty to prove the allegations in public or withdraw them and apologize to the Russian Government."

The Rambling REPORTERS

HE'S GONE COMMERCIAL

Peterborough's famous talking crow certainly seems to have a liking for educational institutions. He visited the public schools frequently last term and a few weeks ago he was reported as being seen outside the Collegiate Institute. This morning he went commercial and was noticed perched on top of the Peterborough Business College from which lofty perch he took a look at two police officers standing on the corner and hoarsely commanded them to "shove off."—C.

SPOILING THE TEST

An amusing incident threw a moment of brightness into the monotony of a traffic accident damage case that was being heard before Mr. Justic Urquhart in the non-jury sessions of the Supreme Court here Wednesday afternoon. The learned judge was questioning a witness as to his eye sight and casually said to him "What time is it by that clock on the wall over there? One of the young counsel engaged in the case was studying a document intently at the time and when the question was asked, he without giving the witness a chance to answer, informed the court that the time was twenty minutes to five. There was a ripple of laughter in the courtroom in which Mr. Justice Urquhart joined before abandoning the effort to test the eye sight of the witness.—C.

Concert Given To Aid Blind

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 13. — An enthusiastic audience attended the benefit program for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind held at the Hollywood Theatre on Tuesday evening. The theatre was filled to capacity and every cent taken in was donated to the Institute. Perhaps the greatest tribute to the work being done by the Institute was provided by two of its talented members, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Duff of Toronto, whose contribution formed the highlight of a program. Pupils from the Mary Forster School of Dancing in Belleville whose nimble feet and rhythm in motion brought rounds of applause from the audience, assisted. In addition to the stage performance, "Naughty Marietta" was shown on the screen.

Mayor F. F. Long acted as chairman for the program, which was introduced with a stairway dance by Miss Inez Forster. Five-year-old June Scriver did a tap dance and ballet dance in a truly professional style, and Ruth Hagerman's acrobatic dancing demonstrated the grace of movement which comes from years of practise. Other members of the group included Jimmie Cowan, Jerrie Forster, and Mary Forster, all of whom gave exhibitions of tap dancing and Miss Joan Merrinkas, who contributed a reading. At the conclusion of the program the public was asked for their support for the annual tag day for the blind which is being held here on Saturday.

OBITUARY

FREDERICK A. BOYCE

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 13.—The death of Frederick Arthur Boyce, a lifelong resident of Smith township, occurred early Saturday morning at Nicholl's Hospital.

Mr. Boyce had been in ill health for the past six years and had retired from active life four years ago. On September 9, his sixty-second birthday, he suffered a stroke from which he never fully recovered.

Mr. Boyce was a successful and highly respected farmer in Smith township all his life and was widely known throughout the district. The farm that he operated for the past thirty-seven years is now being carried on by his son Arthur.

He was the son of the late Stephen Boyce and Hannah Hendren.

Surviving are his widow, formerly Elizabeth Heard; two sons, Oswald and Arthur; two daughters, Mrs. Warren Northey (Muriel) and Mrs. Stanley Pearson (Hilda) and five granddaughters; also two sisters, Miss Ada Boyce and Mrs. B. Carley both of Macdonald, Man., and one brother, Wellington Boyce of Ethelwyn, Alta.

The funeral which was largely attended was held on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of his son, Oswald. Rev. G. Kelly of Lakefield United church officiated. Interment was made in the family plot in the Lakefield Cemetery.

The pallbearers, six intimate friends of the deceased were Messrs. Thompson Braden, Arthur Fitzgerald, Joseph Rosborough, Bruce Preston, John Bickell and Edward Preston.

MRS. MARY HUBBEL

HAVELOCK, Oct. 13.—The funeral of the late Mary Ann Stevens, wife of the late Amos Hubbel, who died in Havelock on Saturday took place from Curtis' funeral parlors on Monday afternoon, when the service was conducted by Rev. Andrew McLauchlin, B.A., B.D., of the United Church. Speaking from the text, "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints," Mr. McLauchlin told of having been Mrs. Hubbel's pastor over twenty years ago and testified to her loyalty to the church, her love for her family circle and her faith in Christ.

Born at Camden East on January 27, 1850, she lived at Healy Falls and Stanwood after her marriage. Upon the death of her husband, Mrs. Hubbel lived for 20 years with her son, the late Epaenetus S. Hubbel, near Bancroft, and for the past nine years with the latter's widow and with Mr. and Mrs. Geore Hubbel here.

She is survived by two sons, Urban of Bancroft and Wesley of Micnichi, Alberta, and one brother, Emmanuel J. Stevens of Belmont. The interment took place in the family plot at Maple Grove Cemetery.

Among the relatives from a distance present for the funeral were: Urban Hubbel, Bancroft; Mr. and Mrs. Roy White, Weston; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hubbell, Bancroft; Mrs. William Scriver and daughter Florence of Trenton; Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Hubbel of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. William Hubbel and Mrs. Frank Hubbel of Stirling; and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Craighead of Belleville.

Edward O'Toole Is Awarded $1,750 Damages

In his action against William Hickson of Ennismore for damages in a motor traffic accident at Charlotte and Aylmer Streets in May, 1937, Edward O'Toole was awarded $1,750 and costs by Mr. Justice Urquhart in the non-jury session of the assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario which concluded at noon today.

"I would have awarded the plaintiff $3,500, including $1,000 for loss of wages, $800 for medical and hospital expenses, and also allowing for pain and suffering, and possible permanent disability, but finding the parties equally negligent I am awarding Mr. O'Toole $1,750," His Lordship announced. And costs were charged against the defendant.

Both Mr. Hickson and Mr. O'Toole were negligent in failing to keep a proper lookout as they crossed the interesection of the two streets, Mr. Hickson driving north on Aylmer Street in an automobile, and Mr. O'Toole going easterly on Charlotte Street, riding a motorcycle. The collision occurred on Sunday, May 23, between 3.30 and 4 p.m., with no other entangling traffic in the vicinity. Excessive speed was not an issue on either side.

The evidence showed that Mr. Hickson had brought his car to a stop on the south side of Charlotte Street and then proceeded across the street.

Should Have Kept Lookout.

"It was the duty of the defendant to keep a lookout in both directions and to keep looking after starting up again," His Lordship said. "He is guilty of negligence in failing to keep a proper lookout."

Mr. O'Toole thought he was on a through street and believed he was not obliged to look toward his right or left for cross traffic. In that respect he failed on his part to keep a proper lookout.

The plaintiff was represented by V. J. McElderry, K.C., assisted by Edward F. Borbridge, who wore his gown for the first time since his recent admission to the Bar, and T. J. Carley, K.C., was counsel for the defendant.

Youth Is Charged With Theft Of Tire

Pleading guilty before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in Police Court to-day to the theft of an automobile tire in Middlesex County on June 29 of this year, a local young man was allowed to go on suspended sentence.

The offence took place at Lambeth and the case was tried here at the request of the Middlesex authorities.

The accused told the court that he had been up in Western Ontario looking for work and said that the tire had been used by him only a week.

Sentence was suspended on the understanding that the young man would pay the police out-of-pocket costs in the case and the cost of sending the tire back to its owner.

Non-Suit Motion Is Denied Damage Action

Hearing of evidence in the action brought by Edward O'Toole of Peterborough against William Hickson, an Ennismore farmer, for damages for injuries claimed to have been received as the result of a collision between O'Toole's motorcycle and Hickson's automobile at Aylmer and Charlotte streets on the afternoon of Sunday, May 23, 1937, had not been completed when the Wednesday afternoon sitting of the adjourned non-jury sessions of the Supreme Court, before Mr. Justice Urquhart, came to an end.

During the afternoon a motion for non-suit by T. J. Carley, K.C., counsel for the defendant was denied by the court.

Considerable evidence was called by V. J. McElderry, K.C., who conducted the case for the plaintiff. O'Toole himself gave his testimony as to the accident, swearing that he had found himself confronted by Hickson's car at the intersection and that the only thing he could have done to avoid an accident was to try to swerve across in front of the automobile.

C. Devlin testified to seeing O'Toole just after the motorcycle had crossed the C. N. R. tracks and that the machine was making a great deal of noise, apparently back-firing. He said that the motorcycle was a little to the right of the centre of the road and was travelling at about 15 miles an hour. It did not increase its speed while it was in sight of him. He did not see the accident but heard a sound of metal after the motorcycle had passed him.

Heard The Crash

Stewart Gardiner who said that at the time of the accident he was working at Lillico's garage at the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte streets testified that his back was to the intersection when he heard the crash and turned around.

"I saw a motorcycle fly across the road and hit against a wall at the north side of Charlotte street and rebound. Two ladies who were walking on the sidewalk had to run to avoid being hit. The motorcycle came to rest at the edge of the sidewalk," Gardiner testified.

"Did you hear any sound of breaks being applied or any blowing of an automobile horn?" asked Mr. McElderry.

"No," replied the witness.

Alvin Lee, a young boy, living on Brown street, told of sitting on his wheel at the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte streets on the day of the accident and of seeing a car beside him. As the car moved out on to the intersection he heard the roar of a motorcycle and saw the latter machine at the northeast corner of the C. N. R. freight sheds. The car kept on moving northward and the rider of the motorcycle apparently tried to go in front of the automobile and there was a crash.

Statements Differ

Lee was cross-examined by Mr. Carley as to a statement he had given several days after the accident and which differed from the evidence he had just given. In the statement Lee had said that he did not see the motorcycle until it was swerving in front of the automobile. He admitted to Mr. Carley that his memory of what had occurred should have been more accurate then than now.

Anthony Mattucci, another lad who was with Lee at the time and was also sitting on his bicycle gave similar evidence and he too said in cross-examination that what he said in his statement might be more accurate than his evidence during the present hearing. He could not say whether the car that figured in the accident came to a full stop or not before entering the intersection.

Constable John Rogers testified as to measurements he had made at the scene of the accident. O'Toole's motor cycle was badly damaged on the right side from the centre of the machine to the rear while the left front fender of Hickson's car was damaged. There were no brake marks, he said, before the point of impact was reached.

Non-Suit Denied

This concluded the plaintiff's evidence and Mr. Carley immediately made a motion for a non-suit but it was denied by Mr. Justice Urquhart.

William Hickson, the defendant was then called to the witness box and testified that he had stopped his car before entering the intersection and had looked both east and west and believing the way clear had proceeded to cross Charlotte street. After his car had got over the middle of the intersection Hickson's brother who was in the front seat with him shouted a warning and he saw the motorcycle only about five feet away.

Then the crash came and Hickson maintained that it was the motorcycle which struck the car. He had not heard the motorcycle coming.

To Mr. McElderry Hickson said that he could not say why he did not see the motorcycle coming when he had looked west on Charlotte street before starting to cross.

"It couldn't have been there" he said.

"But it was there" replied the counsel for the plaintiff.

Mr. McElderry questioned the defendant as to whether the car had struck the motorcycle or vice versa and Hickson replied that it was the motorcycle that had run into his car.

"I don't think you will make much headway with that" Mr. Justice Urquhart said to Mr. McElderry. "In these cases it is always the other fellow who does the running into."

An Eyesight Test.

Mr. Justice Urquhart asked Hickson as to his eyesight and the reply was that it was good, whereupon the court asked the defendant if he could read the letters on the coat-of-arms at the back of the court room.

"I can read them but I can't pronounce them" remarked Hickson and he proceeded to spell out part of the "Honi soit qui mal pense" legend correctly and also described one of the figures on the scroll.

J. W. Pierce, land surveyor, was called in connection with the plan he had prepared of the scene of the accident and Richard Hickson who was in the car with his brother at the time of the collision corroborated his story of what had occurred.

"What could your brother have done to prevent this accident," asked Mr. Carley.

"Nothing that I can see," replied Hickson.

Mrs. Sarah Deyman testified that she was walking along the north side of Charlotte near Aylmer and saw a car with two men in it stopped south of Charlotte street. The accident followed just after and Mrs. Deyman said she had to run to avoid being hit by the motorcycle which ran up on the sidewalk after the crash.

Mr. Carley stated that he had two other witnesses he had been unable to reach but he hoped to have them ready for Thursday morning's session and the court then adjourned.

$600,000 For Ducks

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 13 — (AP).—The organization known as Ducks Unlimited has spent about $600,000 annually restoring lakes and marshes and destroying waterfowl enemies in Canadian nesting areas, John C. Huntington, vice-president, said in an interview here yesterday. He estimated 76 per cent. of the birds shot each season in America were hatched in Canada.

Neighbors Help Build New Home After Green's Corner's Fire

BANCROFT, Oct. 13. — Philip Green of Green's Corners was burned out of his granary last Friday.

Owing to his residence being in the pathway of the new highway being built through L'Amable, Mr. Green had to tear down his house and had moved into a granary on his farm, pending the erection of a new house.

Last Friday night a fire started in the building by a spark from the stove. One member of the family was in bed and had a narrow escape from being badly burned.

None of the contents of the building were saved. Mr. Green's neighbors turned out in large numbers on Saturday to rush the completion of his new house which he had partly built.

Had Fun On His Job

STRATFORD, Ont., Oct. 13 (C. P.). — Frank L. Prosser retired this week from railroad work after 48 years' service, with the philosophical remark: "I liked it and I had a good time." For 45 years he was in the employ of the Grand Trunk-Canadian National Railways, first as a fireman and then as an engineer. But not once did he work on a passenger run, which is considered unique.

Talk Illustrated By Lantern Slides

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, October 13. — "Weaving a New Web," the first chapter of the new study book was taken up by the Rev. Harold B. Neal at the weekly meeting of St. John's Y.P.U. held on Monday evening. Illustrating his talk with lantern slides Rev. Neal made this an interesting contribution to the program.

The president, Miss Ruth Palliser presided and conducted the program which opened with a piano selection by Helen Nicholson and at the meeting's close an interesting period of games for which the Misses Evelyn and Mae Stotts presided, were played.

St. John's Mission Circle

Mrs. J. D. Mills presided at the regular meeting of St. John's Mission Circle at which a short talk taken from the study book and entitled "The Transforming Friendship" was given.

Miss Mae Bell contributed a vocal solo to the program and Miss Mary Murphy offered a monologue. The scripture reading was given alternately. At the conclusion of the meeting an enjoyable lunch was served.

Giant Trans-Canada Airliners Conduct Daily Trial Flights

Ennismore Couple Honored By Friends

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ENNISMORE, Oct 13.—One of the most enjoyable events of the season took place on Friday when about 175 guests, neighbours and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Killen when they celebrated their twentieth wedding anniversary Their six children were present for the occasion, Anna Marie and Carmel of Peterborough, Regina, Harold, Florence and Eugene at home, also the parents of both parties, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Murphy and Mr. and Mrs. William Killen. The older people played cards while the others spent the night dancing to music supplied by home talent.

At midnight a very dainty lunch was served by the hostess assisted by the ladies.

Many valuable and lovely gifts were received by Mr. and Mrs. Killen and the happy event was brought to a close at a late hour by the singing of "They Are Jolly Good Fellows," and with the good wishes for many happy returns of their anniversary

Gets $1,000,000

Four men rang the doorbell of the Louisville, Ky., home of Mrs. Wright Barr a minute after midnight on Oct. 7, and handed her daughter, Jerrie Barker, ABOVE, a cheque reported to be for $1,000,000. The cheque was believed to represent her share in estate of her father, Jesse Barker, former Peoria, Ill., banker, who was found shot to death just twenty-one years ago.

Lakefield Church Has Turkey Dinner

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 13.—About 250 people attended the turkey dinner which was served by the ladies of the parish of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, Lakefield in the parish hall here at 5.30 p.m. on Thanksgiving Day.

A number of out-of-town guests were present, including Rev. J. J. O'Brien, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, Peterborough, and Rev. F. E. Grant of St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough; Messrs. Fred Garvey and Jim Bryan and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Legrandeur of Toronto, and many others.

After a delicious dinner Leahy Bros.' Orchestra of Douro provided music for square and round dancing, and a delightful evening was spent.

Millbrook Institute Hears Talk On New Educational Course

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 13.—For their October meeting, the Millbrook Women's Institute gathered at the home of Mrs. B. B. Dawson recently when much business was discussed. Their president, Mrs. R. J. McKnight, presided, assisted by their hostess, as program convenor.

Following the reading of a letter from the Crippled Children's Society, the sum of $2.00 was voted to them. At the request of Mr. L. H. Winslow, representing the Durham Ratepayers' and Trustees Association, $3.00 was voted them for prizes in public speaking devoted to public school children only.

The secretary, Mrs. J. Hilton, was instructed to notify the department that the branch was in favor of the national magazine.

At that point Mrs. Dawson occupied the chair for her program on education. Miss Ruth Thorndyke rendered a solo appropriate to the theme entitled, "Schoolday Sweethearts, accompanied on piano by Mr. William Edworthy. A splendid synopsis of the new course of study was delivered by Mr. B. B. Dawson, principal of the Public School, who gave some interesting data on the teachers' convention he attended last week in Toronto.

The new subjects were explained in detail. Social studies are a combination of history and geography; English, made up of literature, spelling, writing, grammar and composition; mathematics, arithmatic; natural science, nature study, botany; zoology and geology; art—music and health. Above all, the course requires books and they are supplied by the board. Professors at the convention stressed the fact that it would take at least five years to make a complete change.

Today a farmer has as much education as a college professor who receives his knowledge from books and gradually knows more and more about less and less as well as nothing about everything; with that in mind, the course has been introduced so children may observe rather than be taught.

On resuming the meeting, the president thanked those on the program, and asked the secretary to read the names of the new convenors and their groups, for the coming season. The convenors are: Mrs. G. O. Fallis, in charge of legislation; Mrs. B. B. Dawson, education, Mrs. E. C. Richards, health; Mrs. D. Olan, Canadian industries and agriculture.

Mrs. Richards was made responsible for their next gathering and was asked to arrange for a meeting place.

A lengthy discussion centred on the proposal of Mr. F. C. Scott to rent a room in his new building. Mesdames J. R. Eakins, W. H. Armstrong, were appointed to interview Mr. Scott prior to the next meeting.

A card party was arranged for Thursday, October 20th, with each convenor responsible for full details assisted by her group members. Mrs. R. J. Smith will be asked for the use of her home for the event.

Before concluding with the Mizpah benediction, the president announced that an executive meeting would likely be called in the near future.

St. Andrew's Anniversary

Appropriately enough, the annual anniversary services of St. Andrew's United Church, Millbrook, fell on Thanksgiving Sunday when large crowds were in attendance. Baskets of seasonable flowers decorated the altar, adding beauty to the already lovely old church.

The special speaker for the occasion, was Rev. Principal H. A. Kent of Queen's Theological College, Kingston, who gave a rousing sermon in the morning from the text Matthew 5, verse 5: "Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth, with emphasis on the recent war crisis and the treaty of Versailles, when Christian principles were used.

The senior choir rendered the anthem, "The Lord is in His Holy Temple" and the quartette, "Though Your Sins be as Scarlet."

In the evening, Rev. H. R. Williams of Grace Presbyterian church, read the scripture lesson from Mark 54th Chapter; Rev. Kent took as his text Isaiah 32nd chapter, verse 22: "A man shall be a hiding place from wind," stressing the fact that when artificial things are stripped away from us, we begin to protect those who are defenceless which is truly a hiding place from wind.

Music was contributed by the Y.P.U. choir of two anthems, "Sing to the Lord of Harvest," and "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say." The quintette, composed of Messrs. M. McDowell, E. Edworthy, F. L. Edworthy, G. Might and K. Kidd, rendered "He Will Not Let Me Fail."

WARSAW

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Miller, Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Miller, Keene, were Thanksgiving Day guests of Mrs. Miller and Mr. Melville Miller.

Miss Burgess was home over Thanksgiving Day.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryson, Toronto, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Douglas.

Mrs. A. F. Choate went to Peterborough on Monday after spending a few days with Mrs. Donald Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Anderson, and Mr. and Mrs. Lee, Toronto, were Thanksgiving guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Anderson.

Rev. D. K. Perrie of Hastings occupied the Presbyterian pulpit on Sunday evening and preached a very helpful sermon based on the tenth chapter of St. Johns Gospel. He declared the pulpit vacant, and Rev. Mr. Kennedy will preach on the three charges on Sunday, October 16. At the close of the service the Sacrament of the Lords Supper was dispensed.

Rev. Mr. Wilkinson of Bridgenorth preached the anniversary sermons to good congregations in Zion Church on Sunday morning and evening. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson took his work on the Bridgenorth charge.

Zion Church was well filled on Monday evening, for the anniversary entertainment at which Rev. J. W. Wilkinson presided. The program, which was much enjoyed, was opened by community singing. Miss Violet read a history of Thanksgiving Day. John Wilkinson gave a piano solo, Donald McCracken, a recitation; Miss Barbara Parsons, a delightful piano selection. A dialogue, "Teaching the Sunday school, showed some of the difficulties. Mrs. J. W. Wilkinson gave one of her lovely piano selections; Trevor Little gave a reading. Four girls sang "Under the Apple Tree." There was a very amusing dialogue, "Managing a Husband"; Mrs. Ralph Hamilton gave a reading. An amusing impromptu debate, "Resolved, that it would be better for the women to propose than the men," ended the entertainment. Messrs. Alec Darling, Ralph Hamilton, and Ernest Butler were affirmatives and Messrs Garfield Crowe, Howard Hamilton and George Parsons negatives. Mr. Alec Darling gave the best speech. Ralph Hamilton said he could not think of anything, and sat down. The decision was given to the affirmative side.

After the National Anthem the people went to the Orange Hall, across the road, where there was a weiner roast—hot dogs, sandwiches, pie and tea.

APSLEY

Mrs. Frank Tanner and sons, Fred and Kenneth and daughter, Elsie were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith on Sunday.

Mr. J. Radcliff, a former resident of Apsley, now of Stouffville accompanied by Mr. A. Lee visited at Mr. Alex McColl over the weekend.

Mr. Booth and friends of Oshawa were in the village on Monday.

Mrs. Christie Robinson and daughter, Ethel, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Simon Windsor over the weekend.

Visitors in the village on Monday were Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Anderson and Dr. and Mrs. D. Anderson of Toronto.

Dr. H. B. Anderson has donated hundreds of books to the Apsley W.I. and this winter they will be in circulation in this locality.

Dr. Anderson was born near Apsley and in his youth taught public school in both Burleigh and Anstruther. He is now practising in Toronto.

The harvest thanksgiving services of the Apsley United Church was held on Sunday evening. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with autumn leaves, fruits, flowers and vegetables. Rev. R. McMullen, pastor, took the service. A large congregation attended.

Mrs. Brundage of Peterborough is on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Peters.

The girls' junior W.A., under the leadership of Mrs. Stanley Windsor have started their winter session with a paper chase uniting with the boys' league last Saturday.

Eating Delicious Quaker Oats George Parsons Trains for Hockey

Toronto Maple Leaf Star eats Quaker Oats to build Muscles—Strength!

George Parsons says, "I eat Quaker Oats to help build lasting energy and strength." It is known, too, that oatmeal is the richest thrifty source of that precious health and nerve food—"Thiamin" (Vitamin B_1). Perfect health is not possible without it. You should have "Thiamin" daily because it is not stored in the body. Quaker Oats contains more protein, the element that builds rugged muscles. The carbohydrates in this cereal give "energy-drive". And, remember, only Quaker Oats contains healthful Vitamin "D".

Lakefield United Church Enjoys Fine Thanksgiving Anniversary

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 13.—"Thanksgiving is an evidence of civilization. It is a mark of refinement," said Rev. A. M. Irwin of Whitby, when he addressed a large audience at the special anniversary services of the Lakefield United Church, which were held as usual on Thanksgiving Sunday, October 9. Rev. Irwin addressed both special Thanksgiving services, and on Monday, in further celebration of the anniversary occasion, a delicious Thanksgiving dinner was served by the ladies of the congregation. Following the dinner a delightfully informal variety concert was presented by entertainers from Toronto, Keene, Warsaw, Peterborough and Lakefield.

At the morning service Rev. Irwin chose as his text the words, "In everything, give thanks. He said that gratitude and thanksgiving differ only in degree. "Gratitude," Mr. Irwin said, "is an emotion. Thanks is the verbal expression of the emotion, and thanksgiving is putting our gratitude in action—that it is an active expression of gratitude. Thanksgiving is an evidence of civilization. It is a mark of refinement.

Specially fine Thanksgiving music arranged by Mrs. H. E. Moore, organist, included a Thanksgiving anthem by the full choir, a soprano solo, "Thanks Be to God," by Miss Cora Charlton, and a baritone solo: "Open the Gates of the Temple," sung by Mr. E. Winger of Toronto. Rev. G. F. Kelly, pastor, introduced the guest speaker.

At the evening service, Rev. Irwin took as his text, the words of Paul in Romans I, verse 16: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."

The music included an anthem, "O Praise the Lord"; a trio by Mrs. Walter Hamblin, Mrs. Dora MacMillan and Mrs. D. H. Webster, and a solo, "He Wiped the Tear From Every Eye," sung by Mr. E. Winger.

The Annual Supper.

On Monday evening, the tables groaned with good things as the ladies of the congregation served dinner in the basement of the church.

Rev. Steed and Rev. McMinn of Edmonton, Alberta, were present, and gave an equally humorous addresses.

The program follows: Two selection, "Fairy Land" and "Minuet" by a violin ensemble composed of eight pupils (four girls and four boys), all pupils of Miss Rome and Mr. Rome in Peterborough; a reading by Howard Darling, Warsaw; a solo by Arthur Steed of Emmanuel College, Toronto, "When the Ebb-tide Flows," followed by an encore, "Three for Jack"; a piano duet, by Miss Price and Miss Ferguson of Keene; a solo by Miss Cora Charlton; an address by Rev. McMinn of Edmonton, Alta. who was Rev. Kelly's roommate at McGill University during their college courses.

A reading by Howard Darling, entitled "Down on the Farm." The encore was "Licenses and Permits."

Rev. Ferguson of Keene and Miss Price sang a most enjoyable duet in Scotch dialect. Mr. Gunston rendered the selection, "Just a Song at Twilight," an dthe audience joined in the chorus.

Rev. Steed, a missionary from Africa, spoke amusingly at this point, after which Rev. Kelly thanked the Board and the ladies for their fine work in connection with preparations for the delicious supper.

The violin ensemble played a second group of selections, including: "March of Freedom" and "Gold Mine in the Sky." Howard Darling recited "Circus" and "The Bride," to the great enjoyment of the audience.

Miss Price and Miss Ferguson rendered a second group of sparkling piano numbers, and Arthur Steed delighted the audience with his vocal presentation of the "Floral Dance."

The violin ensemble led in "God Save the King," bringing a most successfull entertainment to a close.

On Tuesday evening, supper was served in the church, again, with a large crowd present.

Mrs. George Eagleson visited at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dawson, of Lindsay, over the weekend.

Anniversary services will be held in Centreville Presbyterian church on Sunday, October 30. Rev. Rev. Harold Reid of Oshawa will be the guest preacher.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kinsman of Toronto visited his mother on Sunday.

Three Slants On Garbo

Three striking closeups of Greta Garbo. The Swedish girl who rose to the pinnacle of movie glamor in Hollywood, as she returned on the S.S. Kungsholm, after a long absence in Europe. Questioned by an eager throng of reporters about her reported romance with Leopold Stokowski, musician, with whom she spent part of her vacation, Miss Garbo refused to be drawn into a discussion, insisting that she never talked about "my private life." She was, however, willing to talk about anything else.

Havelock Honors John Moore

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Oct. 13.—Recently transferred to Hanover by the C.P.R. John Moore, president of the local C.P.R. Recreational Club, and Mrs. Moore were honored by the club and local citizens, on Tuesday evening. Following a short period of bowling the members assembled in the club house where the presentation of a very fine wrist watch was made to Mr. Moore and a box of candy to Mrs. Moore, as a token of the esteem in which they are held by their friends here.

Mr. H. W. Roche read the address and Reeve E. W. Seeney, T. P. Lancaster and L. G. Hagerman expressed the general regret of all upon their removal from Havelock and wished them every success and happiness in their new home.

Badminton Dance

A very lovely "Thanksgiving" dance, sponsored Monday evening by the Havelock Badminton Club proved quite a success. Music for the varied dancing program was provided by Jack Grant's Aces of Havelock.

A novelty "statue" dance was won by Miss Marguerite Roche, of town and Charles Couch of Campbellford. The lucky couple in the "lucky spot" dance were Miss Helen Covert and Errol Hoffman, both of Havelock.

Refreshments were served during the evening by the club members.

Lindsay Seeking New Constable

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, Oct. 13.—The town council will advertise for applications for a new police officer to take the place of Constable Simnett, who resigned from the force. He proved a most efficient officer, and the council last night expressed regret at his resignation.

The police are on the look out for thieves who entered the garage of A. Leighton at Cannington a few evenings ago, rifled the cash register and carried off cigarettes valued at $35. Entrance was gained by prying up a hinged storm window and breaking a pane of glass.

The Fall Assizes of the Supreme Court, presided over by Mr. Justice Urquhart ,opened yesterday at the Court House. There were no criminal cases on the docket, and only one civil case, which only lasted an hour. "This speaks well for the order and good government of Victoria County," His Lordship remarked.

Thomas Keane, an eighteen-year-old transient, was sentenced to five months in the Ontario Reformatory by Magistrate Gee for stealing a suit of clothes from a local man. The youth had been convicted in Toronto in 1937 on two charges of theft.

Vernon Dinner of Lindsay, a well known C.N.R. engineer, dropped dead in the engine of his cab at Foxboro shortly after one o'clock yesterday. Mr. Dinner was a married man and was very popular in railway circles.

Van Kleek Fortune To Be Split Among 2,000 Heirs

Souris, Man., Oct. 13 (CP)

MRS. Margaret Robinson of this Southwestern Manitoba town has been notified she is one of 2,000 heirs to the enormous Van Kleek fortune.

The estate comprises 2,600 acres in Sumatra, 192 acres in New York City, including the site of Trinity Church, and considerable property in Holland.

Bequest to heirs is being made by the Holland Government through the Bank of Canada.

Mrs. Robinson ,a widow, was born Margaret Van Kleek and has lived in Manitoba for the last forty years. The Van Kleek family came to New York from Holland 300 years ago, moving to Canada during the War of 1812. They settled at Van Kleek Hill in Ontario.

Yelverton Ladies Hold Fowl Dinner

(Examiner Correspondence.)

YELVERTON, Oct. 13.—A very successful fowl dinner, followed by an excellent program, was held on Friday evening at Yelverton United Church, following anniversary services held the previous Sunday.

Early in the evening supper tables were laid in the shed on the church property, where the ladies of the church efficiently catered to the appetites of the many guests from the surrounding community. Liberal servings of roast goose with hot mashed potatoes and tempting gravy followed by delicious pies, cakes, etc., more than satisfied every Thanksgiving appetite present.

Rev. C. H. Ferguson, pastor of the church, in his usual genial manner, welcomed the many incomers and voiced the appreciation of his congregation for the hearty co-operation of all concerned. When all were served the tables were cleared and removed, and comfortable seating capacity was provided for an excellent program. A double quartette, including four ladies and four gentlemen from Mark Street Church, Peterborough, were introduced and contributed excellent music. Miss Eileen Sellon of Peterborough, elocutionist, royally entertained her audience with several amusing numbers.

The group leader announced the various numbers on the program.

The proceeds of the evening amouted to well over the hundred mark, and those who were responsible for this annual activity were deeply gratified with the liberal sum provided for use in the furtherance of church work at Yelverton.

Capital's City Planning Scheme Rushed For Royal Visit

OTTAWA, Oct. 13—(CP).—The spacious downtown plaza fitting to the dignity of the nation's capital and graced by the towering white arch of the national war memorial is being rushed to completion as Ottawa prepares already for the historic visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth next summer.

Officials of the Public Works Department said to-day that the new plaza in the heart of Ottawa and close by Parliament Hill will be nearly finished before winter, and the rest of the work done in early spring.

The huge square is the central part of the civic beautification plan designed by the French planning authority, Jacques Greber, and normally would not have been completed until next July.

The whole area is a shambles now, cluttered up with straining cranes, bumping trucks and hundreds of workmen. Buildings have been razed and new ones are being erected. By the time the snow flies, the new street car tracks will be laid, the new roadway built and order produced from constructional chaos.

A Beautiful Square.

When Their Majesties arrive, Ottawa's downtown square will be without an equal in the Dominion. From broadened Elgin street, the royal visitors will be able to look northward up the hill across the broad sweep of the plaza to the 70-foot war memorial in the centre with its impressive bronze figures.

Back of the square is the east block of the Parliament Buildings on one side and the city's principal hotel on the other. Beyond the east block is the grey stone pinnacle of the centre block tower, and away in the distance, as a natural backdrop, are the blue Gatineau hills.

The city is co-operating with the Federal Government in having its share of the beautification scheme finished before the royal visit. The police station and the fire department headquarters are old buildings on the edge of the square and there is an effort being made to build a new building and raze the old before the summer. The Rideau Canada bridge to the east of the square is being widened to fit into the plan.

AFRAID TO MARRY

by HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Judy Rogers, New York heiress, whose father has been wiped out in a financial crash, finally lands a job as social secretary to the wealthy Abbey Boland. Heart-broken because Craig Denby, the man she loved, married another girl, she finds herself becoming interested in Ronald Birrell, brilliant young attorney from Tennessee who recently joined the firm of her father's lawyers. Judy's father has gone west with her stepmother while her own mother, remarried, is abroad. When Craig and his bride have a misunderstanding, it is Judy who brings them together. Abbey is making preparations for her marriage to a count.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 20

If Judy had any thought that she might be included in some of the week-end merrymakings, following the welcome accorded her by the Friday evening dinner guests, she changed her mind. Abbey Boland was brisk, efficient, demanding Saturday morning. She gave Judy a list of names to whom notes were to be sent, indicating the context of the message. She wanted a menu planned, some linen checked. She had a dozen errands. One of them included a purchase in the village.

About 5 o'clock Judy closed her desk, put on the sweater she had worn the previous night, and started to the village store. Abbey wanted candles, slim and ivory, for a tea table for Sunday. Judy was quite sure the local shop would not have them. Still, an order was an order. She would do her best.

She was correct. The store had white candlesticks, and green and red. No ivory. She made a purchase of the white and started home. Ronald would be arriving soon. The train, she noted, was on the tracks now. She had walked about 100 yards when the town car passed her. Not the country wagon, this time. In it were Abbey, the Count, Ronald and someone else. She knew that Abbey pretended not to see her.

She was almost sure the Count waved. The car did not stop. Had she been asked to ride, Judy would have pleaded the need of exercise. To be deliberately slighted was another matter.

Trudging up the road, the wind singing through the blue trees, Judy forgot Abbey. She calmed herself with the far view across the water. She was nearly home when a tall figure came toward her. She recognized the count. He swung into step with her.

"Miss Rogers, let me apologize. My fiancee, at times, has very bad manners." His eyes twinkled.

"Maybe she doesn't watch the road," Judy answered, laughing, too.

"No. Bad manners. American manners." He shook his head.

"Love should be blind to any trifling faults," Judy reminded him.

"Is that another way of saying that if I get too critical of Abbey she'll toss my great-grandmother's crested emerald back at me, and marry a good hardware salesman?" His eyes twinkled.

"No, she won't do that. She'll take the criticism and like it, I suppose. Some women are like that."

"Not you?"

"I don't approve of marriage even when the two people salute the same flag."

"Come, come, Miss Rogers. How would the world populate itself?"

"Why does it have to be populated? Love's such a travesty. It doesn't last."

"You have loved a boor."

"No, I didn't love anyone. I once thought I did."

"Then is love so necessary for marriage?" he queried.

"You don't think so, I gather?" asked Judy.

"There should be some romance, of course. But there are a possible dozen or more people anyone could wed from his acquaintances, and be actually happy. Is it not so?"

"To your way of thinking, yes. To mine, no. Abbey loves you a great deal, you know."

The count looked down at her, and shook his head, commiseratingly.

"And I love her. Never fear. I'll not tell her that her new secretary offered criticism of her. After all, who am I that I should? Miss Boland is a delightful and charming girl, my affianced wife. I respect her very much."

"You used to know a friend of mine," Judy said steadily. "Marjorie Barton."

The gay eyebrows were lifted too quickly. "You know her?"

"We were roommates at the same school." She named it.

"It is a good school. I have known others from there. I saw Marjorie at the party when the boat docked. Only for a minute. What is she doing?"

An impish idea seized Judy. Marjorie's aunt had endowed a hospital. Marjorie's father was wealthy, but not extravagantly so. But Judy said: "The hospital endowment of the Bartons has interested her. Ten millions is a lot of money, don't you think?"

Judy saw the dart go home. He had not known Marjorie's family had so much. She spoke again: "It's an aunt's money but Marjorie helps her with plans."

The count looked relieved. "Ah, yes, yes, of course." Plainly, he said, he had not lost out on anything.

As they neared the front entrance to the house, the count smiled again, and held out a lean, brown hand.

"Let's be friends, can't we?" He spoke slowly. "Abbey and I understand each other. She knows I need plumbing for my castles, a good furnace, and some polo ponies. I haven't deceived her. I've asked for a dowry, and her father is settling it. But we like each other, we have fun, and she wants a title. Goodness knows why—but a title is my stock in trade. I'm not being underhanded. Please believe that of me."

Judy eyed him steadily. Then she extended her hand, too.

"I do. And I hope you'll be very happy, and the plumbing will always work, and the furnace will never give you trouble. Goodby."

She found a side door open tonight. She was waiting for her tray to come up when an imperative knock sounded at the door.

"Yes?" She knew it would be Abbey before the girl entered.

"The candles—did you get them?"

"There were no ivory ones, just white," Judy extended them.

"But they are cheap and crude! I can't use them." She stamped her foot. "I wanted ivory!"

"I may have some." Judy crossed to a drawer, opened it, and removed some exquisite carved candles. "I brought these back from the Orient a few years ago. They haven't been used. Candles really should make a lovely light."

The ruse worked. Abbey colored. "I couldn't take them, possibly. And—will you join us for dinner tonight? There are the family, Mr. Birrell, Count Phillippe, and a few house guests, and a dozen people from the city."

Thus, it happened that Judy, dressed in a ruffled golden chiffon frock, with antique twisted gold rings in her ears, presently sat across the table from Ronald. The conversation concerned itself with foreign places — Hawaii, Finland, Singapore, Rome.

Some of the guests had been to all of them, some had seen one or two. Ronald had not been away from America. He talked about his mountains and Judy felt a fierce loyalty to him. He was so much finer, stronger, better than these people who sunned themselves in southern lands across blue waters. What did he see in Abbey Boland? Why did he take such an interest in her affairs? Did he know that she and the count were having a marriage of convenience?

She puzzled over it, smooth brows knitted, until the coffee was served in the drawing room. The group was going to the village to see a picture, and she gave herself up to the homely comfort of it. She did not go back to the drawing room, though, when the entertainment ended, and they had returned. Instead she went to bed.

Sunday morning she went alone to the small white church at the end of the village street. The service was sweet and simple. She felt clear and clean as she came away. Coming down the steps, Ronald joined her.

"You were there, too?" she asked, and felt glad.

"I was there. Could I interest you in a hike this afternoon?"

Abbey would dislike that, she knew, so she shook her head.

"Sorry. There are letters to write. And I'm pouring tea at 5."

She took her own candles to the great library where the table had been prepared. No one was around. She removed the pale blue candles which Abbey had used as a substitute for the shoddy white. She was admiring her handiwork when Abbey entered.

Use House Plants for Window Decorations

Heart-shaped philodendron, trailing ivy, rosy-leaved coleus and shy begonia make this tiny window the centre of interest in the room. Pottery jars in ivory and vivid blue-green rest on 10-cent glass shelves. For a larger window have glass shelves cut to size.

A south window's best for this lovely picture—though you'll have to remove the begonia during hours of strong sunlight. East is excellent, west fair for decorative plant arrangements. Even a sunless north window is charming with shade-loving ferns and foliage plants.

Our 32-page booklet tells best exposures, temperatures and easy care for ferns, foliage, flowering plants and cacti. How to force bulbs, raise plants in water, make dainty dish gardens. Beautify your house with plants!

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of MAKING PLANTS AND FLOWERS GROW INDOORS to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—I am engaged to a young professional man who is very neglectful of his appearance. He comes unshaved to see me, in need of a shoeshine, a clean collar, fresh linen and to have his clothes brushed. He does this even when we are going out with friends who are always well groomed. He seems to think that the way he looks doesn't matter. But it matters greatly to me. What would you do if you were in my place?

ANASTASIA.

ANSWER:

I wouldn't marry him. I would break off the engagement for two good and sufficient reasons. First, because I would know I would soon cease to love a slovenly man if I had to look at him every day of my life. And secondly, because I would know that he was predestined and foreordained to make a failure in his profession. I should want a husband who was on the up-and-up, not one who was on the down-and-out.

Love can stand many and great trials, but it cannot endure disgust, and that is the only sentiment a woman can have toward a man who is in need of a bath, a shave and a haircut, and who generally looks as if he needed to be run through a laundry. A filthy collar, wrinkled clothes, unmanicured nails, the stale odor of perspiration—faugh—she turns from him in disgust! She doesn't want his dirty hands to touch her. She doesn't want his stubbly face within a yard of hers.

Such a man isn't her hero of romance. He isn't her Fairy Prince. He is a sloppy bum, too lazy even to keep himself clean. Men know that the quickest and surest way for a woman to disillusion a man is for her to slop around in a soiled kimono and down-at-the-heel slippers, with her hair in curl papers and her face cold-creamed. So by the same token women, who care far more for appearances than men do, are ten times more punctilious about how a man looks and ten times more easily disgusted at his being slovenly.

If your fiance thinks that it does not matter how he looks he is making the biggest mistake of his life. We are all judged by our appearance, and that is fair enough, because it is all that the general public has to go by in forming its opinion of us.

Strangers are not mind-readers and they cannot know that a heart of gold beats under a coat that is covered with soup stains, or that under a thatch of hair so long that it looks as if you might scare up a rabbit in it, there functions a clever brain. Nor can they know that it is lack of vanity and not lack of energy that explains a three days' stubble of beard and trousers that appear to have been slept in.

Nor is the casual stranger likely to find out that the man who looks like a tramp is possessed of nine of the cardinal virtues, and is an intelligent and competent business or professional man, because the outside appearance has been so unattractive that the observer doesn't bother to excavate under the surface for the real man. No employer would ever give a job to that sort of a looking man. No one would trust a law case to him. No one would think of sending for him if they were sick and needed a doctor, because they would argue that a man who was that sloppy in his personal appearance would be equally sloppy in his work; that if he wasn't willing to take the trouble even to change his collar or press his pants and shine his shoes he certainly wouldn't go to the trouble of digging up all the fine points in a law case or reading up all the authorities in medicine about one's symptoms.

A poet has said that "the coat doesn't make the man." But he was all wet. A man's coat is his show window that advertises the line of goods he carries. It may be cheap. It may be shabby. It may be threadbare. But if it is clean and well pressed it shows that he has done the best he could, that he has self-respect and energy and is worth giving a trial.

• • • • • •

DEAR MISS DIX—My sister-in-law is a woman of 60, with a good husband and two grown-up daughters, yet she tells my wife that she is craving for romance. I think this is as bad as being unfaithful. What do you think?

VERITAS.

ANSWER:

Oh, no. Wrong thoughts are not as bad as wrong deeds, because they are usually just sort of vague dreams in which we think we would like to commit certain crimes which we really would never do. Most of us, for instance, have had murderous thoughts at times and felt that we would have an unholy joy in strangling somebody or carving out their hearts, but if it came to the pinch of killing we couldn't bring ourselves to slay a chicken. Also, most of us have lain awake at night planning some vengeance we would like to take upon some one who has mistreated us, but when the time came when we really could get even with our enemy we have done him a good turn instead of blasting him forever.

I imagine that there are very few married people who have not been unfaithful to each other in their thoughts even when they have not deviated by a hair's breadth from their marriage vows. But Darby has had his fleeting moments of temptation when some young and glamorous maiden has flitted across his pathway, and fat, middle-aged Joan has looked at some slim young sheik and felt her heart do a flipflop as she wondered what it would be like to have another taste of the angel's food of love and to feel kisses hot with passion on her lips. But Darby and Joan just toyed in their thoughts with a dream and then went back placidly enough to their nice, comfortable, unemotional domesticity, and no harm was done, as there would have been if they had had affairs with seductive strangers.

For a woman of 60 to crave romance is both ridiculous and pathetic. It is ridiculous because she is so far past the age when she has any allure for men and when she can inspire any feeling in them warmer than respect and a lukewarm liking. Her beauty is a thing of the long ago. Her vial of magic is spilled, her wand of enchantment broken, and you feel like laughing at her and weeping over her when she still has the desires of a young girl.

That, I think, is the most pitiful thing about women, that they never shed their sweet tooth, no matter how old they get, and that as long as they live they still crave love and romance and he flatteries and attentions of men. It is their curse that they have an appetite that remains perpetually unsatisfied, and a heart that at 90 is still the eager heart of a flapper.

So don't be too hard on your sister-in-law. She is just a woman, and she is just built that way and can't help it.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

All at once, as they reached the far side of the pond, Hanid exclaimed: "Look! There's the frog!"

Knarf looked in the direction his sister was pointing. Sure enough, there was the frog, sitting very contentedly in the centre of a water-lily leaf near the bank. He seemed to be watching the clouds in the sky, for his eyes pointed straight up.

"We'll ask him if he knows where our friend, Tad Tadpole, went after he left the pond," Hanid said.

Knarf shook his head. "I don't think that frog knows anything. He doesn't look very smart. What is he staring up at the sky for?"

"All frogs do that. Let's go over to him."

They stopped at the edge of the bank. Then Hanid called to the frog: "We're looking for a tadpole who used to live in this pond. Did you know any of the tadpoles here, Mr. Frog?"

"That doesn't mean I'm grumpy."

"Gr-rr-rump!" went the frog.

"I told you so. He doesn't know anything. Besides, he's plain grumpy," Knarf said. He sat down on a stone and faced the other way.

But Hanid smiled. "Don't mind my brother," she apologized to the frog. "He thinks you'de grumpy. You're not grumpy at all, are you?"

"Of course not," the frog answered, hopping from the lily leaf to the edge of the bank, right near Hanid's feet. "You see, I just say gr-rr-rump. That doesn't mean I'm grumpy. It just means good afternoon in frog language."

"That's what I thought," Hanid said. "Now tell me: Did you know any of the tadpoles who used to live in this pond at the beginning of the summer?"

"Oh yes—I knew lots and lots of them."

"Oh, I see. Well, the tadpole we're looking for was the nicest tadpole we ever met. Wasn't he, Knarf?"

"He certainly was," Knarf answered, without turning his head. "He had a fine long tail. I bet it's twice as long now."

"I bet it isn't!" the frog suddenly said. "I bet it's gone now."

Knarf turned around.

"What makes you so sure?" Knarf asked.

The frog gave a little hop back to the lily leaf. "Because," he said, "because I used to be a tadpole once myself." With that it said: "Gr-rr-rumph" once more, and hopped with a little splash into the water.

"Come back!....Come back!" Hanid called to him. And Knarf looked puzzled. "I wonder," he started to say, "I wonder if that frog could be Tad Tadpole?"

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, October 14.

A very lively day is forecast according to the lunar and mutual configurations. High hopes and wishes expansive aims and objectives should flourish under the enhancing, productive and promoting rays of major planets. It is time for reaching to high goals with the certainty of the co-operation of employers, superiors or those in prestige and power. But goals cannot be attained without prudence, restrain and moderation.

Those whose birthday it is are on the verge of grand opportunity for the fulfillment of their dearest desires, with the active aid of those in power and those of high influence. But tact, restraint and prudence are recommended.

A child born on this day may be versatile, energetic, resourceful and of high ambitions, although impetuous, high tempered, aggressive, and audacious.

Miss M. Rannie Addresses University Women's Club

At the monthly meeting of the University Women's Club, held on Wednesday evening in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A., an excellent addres son Folk Songs was given by Miss M. R. Rannie. She traced in an interesting manner the history of these songs, which are the work of no one person or period, having been transmitted orally down through the ages, and pointed out that the rediscovery of these folk songs has increased the artistic wealth of the world, and influenced classical music.

Several delightful numbers, representative of the folk songs of England, Scotland, Ireland, and French-Canada, were sung by Mr. Maurice Park.

The thanks of the club members to Miss Rannie and Mr. Park was expressed by Miss Howson. Hostesses of the evening included: Miss Moore, Mrs. Phillip, Mrs. Ryan, and Mrs. Spearin.

Stevens—Blackburn

A quiet ceremony was performed in the United Church parsonage at Athens on Wednesday, October 5, Rev. A. S. Cleland, formerly of Norwood, officiating, when Mrs. Regina Blackburn of Cautley, Quebec, became the bride of Mr. J. A. Stevens of Norwood.

The bride wore a tailored travelling suit of grey, navy accessories, and a sable fur.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Stevens will live in Norwood.

Heath—McKeown

BONARLAW, Oct. 12.—A very pretty Autumn wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McKeown of Mount Pleasant, Rawdon last Wednesday at eleven a.m. when their only daughter, Francis Marion, was united in marriage to William N. Heath, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heath of Rawdon. Rev. J. E. Beckel officiated.

The ceremony took place beneath an arch of evergreens. The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father and wore a gown of white silk velvet with shirred neckline and sleeves. She wore an imported silk tulle veil with a coronet of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses. The wedding music was played by Miss Isobel Turner who was gowned in navy blue sheer.

Miss Marian Walker of Burnbrae was bridesmaid, wearing a gown of pink silk net over taffeta and carried a bouquet of Briarcliffe roses. Mr. Don Heath of Bethel assisted the groom. During the signing of the register Mrs. Evelyn Barnum of Rylestone, gowned in navy blue sheer, sang "All Mine Alone."

The bride's mother was dressed in brown sheer and the groom's mother in a frock of dark green. Immediately after congratulations the wedding party of sixty were ushered to the spacious dining room where a buffet luncheon was served.

The decorations were carried out in pink with a tiered wedding cake as central decoration for the bride's table.

The groom's gift to the bride was a chest of silver, to the pianist and soloist gold lockets set with cameos.

The happy couple later in the afternoon attended the Heath-Walker wedding and the two couples left on a motor trip to Ivy Lea, Thousand Island bridge to New York returning by Montreal and Ottawa. They will take up residence at Sine.

Music Teachers' Association Meets

The monthly meeting of the Peterborough Chapter of the Ontario Music Teachers' Association was held at the home of Dorothy Allen Park on Wednesday evening, October 12.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mr. Harry Northrop.

Large Audience Hears Travelogue

An interested audience of over eight hundred people were at George Street United Church on Wednesday evening to hear an illustrated travel talk by Rev. M. C. Parr.

Scotland, England, Holland, Belgium and France were made real to his listeners as Rev. Parr added his clear and descriptive stories of the highlights and beauties of each country that was pictured. Half of the 150 slides, which were exceptionally fine in detail and coloring, were taken by Mr. Parr with his own camera, which was a gift made to him by a young man from the Young People's Society of the church prior to his departure overseas this summer.

The lecture was under the auspices of the George Street W.M.S. Evening Auxiliary, and opening exercises were conducted by Mrs. W. H. Morton, Presbyterial President; Mrs. A. I. Brown, president of the George Street W.M.S., and Mrs. A. F Lane, first vice-president.

A male quartette was also enjoyed. The singers were, Mr. A. V. Lillow, Mr. C. S. Thompson, Mr. E. Rowe, and Mr. W H. Cunningham. They were accompanied by Mrs. E. Rowe.

Miss R. Young Is Guest Speaker

The King George Home and School Association met Tuesday evening with the president, Mrs. Max Swanston in the chair.

Miss Rachael Young, Superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, was guest speaker, and her address on the responsibilities of parenthood and the great value of home training was of much interest to the members.

An instructive talk on fire prevention was given by Mr. A. McDonald of the Fire Department, and Mr. S. E. Kerr, principal of the school, spoke on current events. At the November meeting Mr. K. S. Wightman will be the guest speaker, and his subject will be "Books."

An announcement was made of the special service to be held Sunday evening, November 6, in St. Paul's Church, and all members urged to attend. A paper collection is to be held on October 27 and 28.

The attendance banner went to Miss Moore's room.

China plans to construct over 4,000 miles of new railway lines.

Several matters of business were discussed, and a musical program was given by the following artists: Violin solos by Mr. Roy Rome, accompanied by Miss Marguerite Rome; vocal solos by Mrs. Olive Searles, and M. H. Park, accompanied by Gwen Craw; piano solos by Mrs. Agnes Logan Greene.

A very interesting talk on the progress of school music in Ontario was given by Mr. R. B. Harle, and a musical contest was won by Mrs. Mary Northrop. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

The shine on a dress or suit of dark serge which comes with wear will disappear, and the garment will have a much improved appearance if it is sponged with hot vinegar and pressed as usual? There will be no odor of vinegar, nor stain on the garment.

It's worth keeping a nail brush in the kitchen? Used dry, it's an excellent thing for cleaning the grater after it has been used for grating cheese or lemon rind, or anything dry. It's spotless in a moment. Used with water, it is the quickest way of cleaning celery, radishes, new potatoes, etc. Just try it!

The bread mixer may be washed easily by pouring a little boiling water into it and putting the cover on tight. In a few minutes the steam will soften the little particles of dough that adhere to its sides and it can be washed with very little effort.

(By MARY MOORE)

We have had so many urgent requests for economical menus and recipes, that we think this recipe for cookies calling for bread crumbs might be very welcome.

Chocolate Crumb Cookies

Melt 2 squares unsweetened chocolate in top of double boiler, then add 1 medium sized can sweetened condensed milk and stir over boiling water 5 minutes until the mixture thickens somewhat. Add 1 cup toasted bread crumbs (dry and toast them in warm oven), a shake of salt and ½ cup either walnut or peanut or almonds meat chopped finely. Blend together then drop by spoonfuls on buttered baking sheet. Press half a nut meat into each cookie if desired and bake at 350 degr. Fahr. for 10 minutes or until set. Remove from pan at once or they will stick. This quantity makes 24.

One and one-half cups bran flakes or 2 cups corn flakes may be used in place of the bread crumbs in the above recipe.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Mary McGillen Is Wed To John McKenzie

Immaculate Conception Church was the scene of a lovely Autumn wedding Wednesday morning when Mary Norah McGillen, only daughter of Mrs. K. McGillen and the late Peter McGillen, became the bride of John Duncan McKenzie, only son of Mrs. Mary McKenzie and the late John McKenzie of Scotland. Very Rev. Dean O'Sullivan celebrated the Nuptial Mass and solemnized the marriage, and Miss Leona Hummel played the wedding music. Mrs. D. Campanaro sang.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, L. P. McGillen and she wore a floor length gown of velvet in spice rust shade trimmed with gold and in tunic style. Her off the fact hat was in matching tones of rust and had a shoulder veil. She carried on arm bouquet of Talisman roses. Miss Agnes Scollard, the bridesmaid, wore a lovely frock of Burgundy shade velvet trimmed with gold, matching hat in velvet and carried a bouquet of yellow Sunbeam roses. Joseph McGillen, brother of the bride, attended as best man. Ushers were Claire McGillen, a brother of the bride, and M. J. Clancy of Peterborough.

Later a wedding dinner was served at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club to thirty guests. Mrs. McGillen, mother of the bride, wore a dres sof navy sheer with corsage of Briarcliffe roses and the groom's mother, Mrs. McKenzie, wore figured sheer trimmed with white and a corsage of Talisman roses.

In the afternoon the young couple left on a motor honeymoon trip and on their return will live in this city. For travelling the bride wore a two-piece knitted suit in apple green shade, Robin Hood style felt hat in British Tan, and shoes, gloves and purse to match the hat. She carried a brown tweed sport coat.

DINNERS OF THE WEEK

By MARY MOORE

SUNDAY.
Veal Birds (see below)
Baked 4-inch Squares Buttered Squash (in the shell)
Brussels Sprouts in Drawn Butter Sauce
Raw Celery and Carrot Slivers
Vanilla Ice Cream with Butterscotch Sauce
Cookies Coffee

NOTE (Veal Birds): One and three-quarter lbs. veal steak cut ¼-inch thick, ½ lb. sliced breakfast bacon, 2 cups thin white sauce, 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion, 4 tablespoons cream or top milk. Cut the veal into strips the width of the bacon. Roll each strip in bacon and fasten the roll with a toothpick. Sear quickly on all sides in heavy frying pan or Dutch oven, then pour over the white sauce, sprinkle onions on top, cover and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for from 2 to 3 hours. Add the cream just before serving. These are very tender and flavorful and make an economical meat dish for a company meal.

MONDAY (Vegetarian)
Spaghetti in Tomato Cheese Sauce
Broccoli with Drawn Butter Sauce
Crumbed Halved Baker Tomatoes
Carrot Rings with Butter and Parsley
Baked Apples Cinnamon Toast
Coffee

TUESDAY (Guests)
Sweetbreads with Scrambled Eggs
Creamed Potato Cubes
Chopped Spinach
Fresh Pear Salad on Lettuce with Baumert or Cottage Cheese Crackers Coffee

WEDNESDAY

Sliced Tomato and Head Lettuce Salad
Open Face Grape Pie Coffee

FRIDAY
Fish Moochie (see below)
Corn on the Cob
Stuffed Tomato Salad (Celery and Apple)
Fruit Cup—Sliced Peaches, Oranges, Pears
Cookies Coffee

SATURDAY
French Fried Egg Plant Sticks
Poached Egg on Toast
Brussels Sprouts with White Sauce
Cantaloupe Hot Tea

NOTE: For Friday's Fish Moochie: Flake into pieces canned crab (packed in Vancouver), canned tuna and mix with whole shrimps—there should be 2 cups altogether (any of these could be used fresh is accessible). (If you have a table chafing dish this is an excellent item to make in it). Otherwise melt 4 tablespoons butter in iron frying pan, add 2 tablespoons flour and stir until mixed, then stir in ½ cup milk and stir until thick. Beat 2 eggs and add them to ½ cup milk, then stir these into the hot mixture. When thick add ½ cup sliced sauteed or canned mushrooms, 1 teaspoo chopped pimiento, and the fish, necessary salt and white pepper, shake of mace. Heat through—add a dash of sherry if you approve, serve on toasted crackers.

QUESTION: I have several questions to ask you, so I shall get right down to business. The directions for Mrs. Pepy's Fruit Mincemeat do not specify cooking, or the addition of brandy as a preservative, so I am wondering if it will keep all right without either. I want to make some soon, but I should like to be sure of its keeping qualities.

Also I have found three copies of "Emem's Dark Rich Fruit Cake"—each one is a little different. One calls for one cup cider and 3 cups flour; No. 2 for 1½ cups cider and 2 cups flour; and No. 3 for no cider and 2 cups flour. Will you please put me right on this. I am sorry to appear so stupid, an experienced cook could tell by the consistency of the batter, but I don't know very much about fruit cakes, and there are so many ingredients at stake. I am a little afraid to experiment without advice from headquarters.

Some time ago you promised if one would write asking for them you would send recipes for puff paste delicacies. Among those mentioned I should like Raspberry Puffs, Orange Sticks, Peach Crusts and Calve Tarts, if they can still be had.

Please, Mrs. Moore, what are hickory nuts? I can get Brazils, pecans, filberts, almonds, walnuts, cashews and peanuts, but alas no hickory. Your hickory nut cake sounds so good I should like to make it, so would you suggest the best substitute for hickory. I suppose you are wondering why I have become such a nuisance all at once, but I have been pasting your recipes in a book and they all sound so good I don't know just where to begin.

Have you ever heard of a method of curing ham, which when cooked could be sliced through bone and all? I seem to recall having read something to that effect and wondered if it were feasible, and if you would have the recipe.

Sorry to take up so much of your time....but one last question, may one sterilize jars in the oven, and how? Thanks.—C.F.L.

ANSWER: Thank you for your long interesting letter.

First I must get the cured ham with the sliceable bone off my mind—I have never heard of this method, and called a pork curing firm to get their opinion, and the head of the curing department says the process you suggest is impossible. I am inclined to agree with him since bones are made principally of calcium—a very hard mineral. Surely you could have your butcher remove the ham bone, roll the meat tightly and completely skip the bone-softening puzzler.

Mrs. Pepy's Fruit Mincemeat should be cooked by baking it in the oven covered at 300 deg. Fahr. for at least one-half hour. This eliminates stirring and danger of burning. Keep in sterile jars.

Those variations in Emem's Dark Fruit Cake are what I have been doing from year to year with my own cake. It you use canned crushed pineapple the cider can be eliminated and 3 cups flour used. If candied pineapple is used plus 3 cups flour you will need at least 1 cup cider to moisten it—less cider if only 2 cups flour. I prefer the cake with the crushed pineapple, 3 cups sifted flour and no cider.

Raspberry Puffs

Roll plain or puff paste one-eighth inch thick, cut in pieces four by three and one-half inches and put on tin sheet. Put half tablespoon raspberry jam on centre of lower half of each piece, wet edges halfway round, fold, press edges firmly together, prick tops, place in oven and bake at 500 deg. Fahr., for about 18 minutes.

Orange Sticks.

Cut plain or puff paste rolled one-eighth thick in strips five inches long by one inch wide, and bake in hot oven. Put together in pairs with Orange Filling between.

Orange Filling.

(For puff paste orange sticks.)

One tablespoon butter, 3 tablespoons powdered sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, one-third cup sugar, yolk 1 egg, ¼ cup orange juice, grated rind ¼ orange, 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Wash butter until creamy, then add sugar gradually. Mix, flour, sugar and egg yolk slightly beaten. Add orange juice and cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Combine mixtures and add grated rind and lemon juice. If the orange juice is sour, it is not necessary to add the lemon juice.

Peach Crusts

Roll puff or plain paste one-eighth inch thick, cut in two and one-half inch squares and bake in oven of 500 deg. Fahr. Cool, press down the centres and arrange on each one-half a canned peach drained from syrup. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and put ½ teaspoon brandy in each cavity. Light just before sending to table.

Calve Tarts

Roll puff or plain paste one-eighth inch thick, and cut in rounds of size to cover outside of tart tins. Cover tins with paste, prick several times, and bake at 500 deg. Fahr. until delicately browned. Place one-half canned peach in each case and fill each cavity with one-half a blanched Jordan almond.

Hickory nuts are very similar, in size and shape and appearance to pecans. Their shells are harder than pecans, and pecans are usually longer. Their flavor is also similar.

In the hickory nut cake recipe either pecans or walnuts may be substituted where hickory nuts are not available.

Yes, jars may be sterilized in the oven. Place jars in roaster in about 2 inches of water, either standing up or lying down, cover, turn on heat and bake at 275 deg. Fahr., for twenty minutes after this temperature has been reached. Do not touch edges of jars after they are done. Apply sterile rings and glass tops with sterilized pinchers or clasps.

Write whenever we can help you.

WINTER FAVORITE OF SILK PARADE

By PRUNELLA WOOD

The annual silk parade has come and gone, but one of the outstanding fabrics offered for our winter glamorizing is a pure silk lame tissue, which is stout enough for the tailoring it requires to reduce its opulence to everyday uses, yet soft enough to be finished minus that shiny armored car look.

Here we have a frock made of this supple fabric, its bodice and skirt both detailed with stiched down sun pleatings. Notice the exaggerated shoulder width the frock achieves through its stitching, and notice, also, that a hat of matching fabric, trimmed with bands of mink, has been suggested as its perfect complement.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Knowledge is said to be power; and it is power in the same sense that wood is fuel. Wood on fire is power or fuel. Knowledge on fire is power. There is no more power in knowledge than there is in the stones or stars, unless there be a spirit and life in the knowledge which gives it its energy. In proportion as men have this spiritual power, they become strong in the world." —A. Mackenzie.

Dear Friends:

Did you ever read of the man who had all kinds of wood to make a fire, all kinds of food that needed heat, yet starved and froze to death because he had no matches, and did not know how to bring fire by artificial means?

That is how knowledge affects us when there is no fire of energy to use it. Knowing how to make a dress yet never getting a piece of goods and a pattern, cutting into the cloth, shaping and sewing it, will not get you a new dress.

All knowledge must be used before you get the power from it. Water used to run in rivers and streams before men used their knowledge of the power there for the benefit of mankind.

Men could also see the havoc which the power of wind could cause, but when they harnessed this power in windmills, then their knowledge was beneficial to them.

Knowing the power of good and evil is of no account unless it is used. Using the evil power put human beings in reformatories, and prisons, on the gallows or in the electric chair.

Yet this knowledge of power turned in the wrong direction with all the pain and sorrow attached, never seems to learn others who attempt to use it in the same manner.

The power in the human mind, gathered from what we experience, what we read, what we are taught in schools and collegiates, is truly knowledge.

But what good is it all stored up in your mind? What benefit are you or anyone else getting from it unless it be used? Knowing this or that fully, but with no energy behind it, is useless indeed.

Everything we have or know must be shared to get the best out of it. One person goes out to work, and shares their salary to keep them independant, whether it be in the home, or in a room by themselves.

And the one at home shares their experience in looking after a home, in cooking meals, in buying wisely, in keeping peace amongst different natures, and this sharing keeps things balanced.

But, if each one keeps this knowledge of how to earn a living inside their brain, and the other keeps the knowledge of keeping a home together wisely there also, what good do either one get.

Knowing how to paint, yet never painting. Knowing how to play the piano, but never playing. Knowing how to talk wisely so that your influence is felt, yet remaining silent, what good is all that knowledge to anyone.

Knowing that God is in His heaven, yet never talking to Him. Knowing that He hears and understands and is willing to help when we call upon Him, what good will it do us if we are too stiffnecked to use this knowledge?

Just having faith, what is that to you unless you use it? For faith in use makes miracles come to pass. Knowing you have Divinity within you, yet living like the beasts in the field, what CAN your Divinity do for you? Knowledge is NEVER power until it is used. Are you using yours? Let me know. Your Friend, ROBERTA.

IN MEMORIAM

FERGUSON.—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Donald Ferguson, who passed away two years ago to-day, October 13, 1936.

Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break, but all in vain;
To have loved and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never,
The memory of those happy days when we were all together.
No one knows how much we miss him,
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost him.
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts his memory lingers
Sweetly, tender, fond and true,
There is not a day, dear husband,
That we do not think of you.
To those who have a husband or father:
Treasure him with care;
You will never know his value
Till you see his vacant chair.
—Sadly missed by Wife and Family.

Mussing Up the Maples

At Duffus Alleys last night Ed Rowe of the C.G.E. Drafting Room topped the bowlers of 4 leagues with a three game total of 692. In the first heat between Westclox office pin topplers H. Guppy with 608 and G. Millen with 603 were high men. Four teams of draftsmen showed up and Rowe's 692 was followed by Rooke's 630, Palmer's 624 and Hickey's 604. Sixteen teams of Quaker Oats hitters produced 665 by H. Fisher, Mattuci 663, A. Barrett 642, W. Pallant 619, A. Delpellaro 613 and A. Bonney 609.

In the midnight frolic of 12 automobile teams, Eric Nickson banged down 690, A. Watson 678, M. O'Neill 673, Bill Pinn 663, H. Gray 637, Ken Shadgett 618 and Clayt Ruth 602. Minion and Falls shared in a 769 total. 293 singles by Shadgett and Fisher looked to be tops for the night.

In the Auto League the champions of last year, Automotive No. 1, got a strangle hold on first place again by downing Ford 8 to 0. They have yet to lose a game. A strong Chrysler gang hung up a 6 to 2 defeat on Chevrolet to hold second place. A bitter fight between Nash and Hudson resulted in a 6 to 2 win for Howson's men and leaves both teams tied with Buick who had their wind knocked out by the new Graham entry, which finished strong to cop the last game. Lack of help was disastrous to the Dodge and Olds teams, as both outfits dropped 8 points to Pontiac and Auto No. 2.

The night of nights in bowling circles falls this evening when the crack pin spillers of the town congregate for the first whack at the City League schedule. We don't know yet who's who, but expectations are that the Martin brothers, Delahaye brothers, Anthony brothers will be sprinkled freely with other top notchers such as Weese, Firth, Gimblett, Curvin, Lew Marsden, Routley, Stanbury, Martyn, Miller and a score of others. When those guys take off their coats it means a hot session for pin boys and scorers.

Remember When—

(By The Canadian Press)

Harry Wills, giant negro, was disqualified in the 13th round in his heavyweight boxing bout with Jack Sharkey at New York 12 years ago tonight. The Boston sailor had a clear margin on points when Wills was disqualified for use of a back-hand blow.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

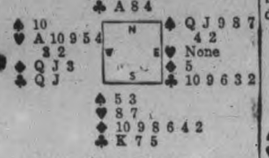
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

REPEATED DOUBLES

WHEN YOU HAVE heard nothing but ordinary passes from your partner, your doubling at the first opportunity will be interpreted as a request for action from him. If the next player bids and your associate passes, your second double is a still more urgent request for action. Most good players treat repeated doubles as still informative up to the range of bids of three.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable)

Two different contracts resulted from this deal in a team-of-four match. The bidding was exactly the same at both tables up to a certain point.

East and South passed and West opened with 1-Heart, which North doubled. East put in a 1-Spade bid and South passed again. After 2-Hearts by West, North doubled again and East bid 2-Spades. South passed and West called 3-Hearts. North injected another double, over which East bid 3-Spades.

At the table where the contract was played there, the East player was able to make it. The lead by South was the heart 8, which was taken in dummy with the A and the diamond 5 discarded. Declarer lost two trumps and two clubs.

The South player at the other table came to life after his partner's third double and put in a 4-Diamond bid which the opponents did not dispute.

Bethany Church Ladies Plan Bazaar

BETHANY, Oct. 13. — The members of St. Paul's W. A. held their regular monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Clara Armstrong with thirteen ladies and one guest present.

A letter of thanks was read from a member who had been remembered while in hospital by the committee in charge.

The checking of bazaar contents and flatware on hand was conducted by the president.

The major item discussed was the placing of committees for the bazaar and the required decorating to be done on Nov. 18th.

A real treat was late enjoyed in a very full report read by Mrs. A. H. Monk of the Victoria Deanery meeting which more members had attended at St. Pauls church, Lindsay, on September 27.

At the closing benediction, the hostess served a delicious lunch, assisted by Miss Laura Morton.

St. Mary's Guild.

The members of St. Mary's Woman's Guild met at the home of Miss Annie Sisson on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. The meeting had been deferred several times. The president had sufficiently recovered from a painful accident to her right arm to be present for the first time.

Discussion regarding a social evening resulted in a vote for a Hallowe'en social to be held at Lifford community hall on Monday, Oct. 31. Everyone who can is requested to come in costume and join in the fun. The holder of the lucky ticket will be made known and the lovely quilt will be presented during the evening.

Havelock Trustees Order More Books

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Oct. 13.—The Havelock Public School Board held their regular monthly meeting on Wednesday evening, with Trustees Mrs. Brisbin, Mrs. Nobes, and Smith present, and Chairman Dr. G. H. Gardner, presiding.

Principal Duncan reported that there were 197 pupils enrolled and that the average attendance was 181 during the past month. The teachers lack several books for teaching the new course of study, and about $10 should be spent on each room.

Caretaker Buchanan, in his report to the Board said that the new roof had leaked during the recent rainstorm. The pump in the town hall is also leaking and he suggested that the pump overflow be drained into the pit.

On motion of Trustees Nobes and Brisbin, Principal Duncan was authorized to purchase a supply of books up to $50, and interview the local dealer as to prices.

On motion of Trustees Gardner and Brisbin, the Board directed the Principal to instruct the teachers that all minor supply work be handled by the permanent staff.

In the event of a longer supply period requiring another teacher, the Board instructed the Principal that the appointed supply teacher should be given the work. Mrs. P. T. Greenley was appointed supply teacher on motion of Trustees Gardner and Brisbin.

The offer of $75 for the school's electric pump and tank by Mr. Smith was accepted.

The accounts as read were ordered paid, with the exception of that of Mrs. P. T. Greenley for supply teaching, on motion of Trustees Mrs. Brisbin and Smith.

Grandmothers' Day

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 13. — A meeting to which the grandmothers had been specially invited has been scheduled to be held at the home of Mrs. A. M. Anderson on October 27th under auspices of the Seymour West Womens Institute. Another interesting feature of the meeting will be the presentation by Mrs. Howard Clark and Mrs. F. McCulloch of complete report of the Buymanship class which was addressed in Warkworth on September 15 and 16th by a leader from the department. An old fashioned lunch will form an important part of the program arranged for this meeting.

Nazis Would Limit British R.A.F.

Claim They Require Three Planes To England's One

By Paul-Louis Bret
(Copyright, 1938, the Havas News Agency.)

LONDON, Oct. 14 (CP-Havas).—A tentative German proposal that Great Britain should limit its air force to one-third the strength of Germany's has been unofficially transmitted to the British Government through the Marquess of Londonderry, well-known proponent of Anglo-German co-operation, it was reported in informed political circles here today.

The German plan, it was said, is to apply the principle of the Anglo-German naval agreement of 1935 with the percentages reversed.

On the grounds that Germany's needs for protection are greater, Berlin would now ask that it be entitled to three planes to every one Great Britain builds.

Germany would agree to preserve the naval ratio and Anglo-German armaments would be thus stabilized in fixed proportions in the air and on sea.

This was generally regarded here as a trial balloon. Only if British reaction seems to indicate that negotiations on this basis are feasible will Germany make its proposal formally, it was believed.

Widening Strike Hits London

LONDON, Oct. 14.—(CP-Havas).—Distribution of London's food supplies was seriously affected today when 500 truck drivers employed at the Broad street freight station struck in sympathy with striking employees of the London, Midland and Scottish railway.

Private trucks and taxicabs were sent to the station to take away food, particularly a large shipment of fish.

Earlier, 1,000 workers meeting at the Broad street station had decided not to strike in sympathy with L.M.S. porters, ticket punchers and servie employees, although 250 employees of the commercial road freight depot joined the strike.

Strong police squads were ready to maintain order this morning when hundreds of strikers gathered at the entrance of Euston station after a report some men had returned to work.

John Rice, chairman of the Strike committee, told a gathering at Euston station he expected a settlement within 24 hours, failing which the strike would be extended.

Escapes Assassin

Edward Keith-Roach, British district governor of Jerusalem, who escaped with his life, when four bombs were hurled at the automobile in which he was riding, by assassins on the old city wall in Jerusalem. This attempted assassination and another battle of British troops against Arab outposts, marked the bitter dispute in Palestine among Arabs, Jews and British authorities who are attempting to restore order.

Nazis Predict Cohorts To Quit Church

VIENNA, Oct. 14 (A.P.). — Nazi leaders said to-day the breach between the State and the Roman Catholic Church was wider than ever after Austrian Nazi Commissioner Joseph Buerckel's anti-cleric speech, and predicted many Nazis would withdraw from the church.

Buerckel's listeners in Heroes' Square last night cried: "We'll leave the church," after he announced:

"If they pray against us in church then I demand of every individual National Socialist that he have nothing more to do with such a church."

Buerckel revealed that negotiations for a working agreement with the church had been broken off.

He charged the Catholic leaders delayed the negotiations because they "speculated" on a war over Czechoslovakia which would give them a "new chance."

He blamed Czechoslovak Jews for demonstrations in behalf of Theodore Cardinal Innitzer last Friday. The demonstration fired Nazi resentment, and in fighting on Saturday the Cardinal was injured by a stone. Windows of his palace were broken.

"I have decided," Buerckel said, that "all Czechoslovak Jews and those Czechs who compromised must leave Vienna as soon as possible."

Barrie Shop Looted Of $2,000

Third Raid In 3 Years Clean Jewellers Of Watches, Rings

BARRIE, Ont., Oct. 14 (CP). — Daring burglars rifled Reeve's jewellery store in the business section here during the night and made away with wrist watches and rings valued by the proprietors at between $2,000 and $3,000.

The robbers entered the store by climbing through a fanlight over the main entrance door fronting on the main street. They left the building by the same method, leaving a chair parked against the door inside. They had apparently used it to climb back up to the transom.

Proprietors of the store reported that the floor of one show case had been entirely cleaned out of wrist watches and low priced rings and also a portion of the show window in front of the store. More than one hundred watches, valued at from $10 to $50 were taken.

The robbery, discovered by Gordon Reeve, one of the proprietors, when he arrived at the store this morning, was linked by police with the theft of a motor truck during the night from in front of the residence of Jack Dyck. Two men are thought to have escaped in it.

It was the third burglary of the jewellery store in three years.

Stolen Bonds Trailed To Toronto

TORONTO, Oct. 14 (CP)—Toronto police have uncovered an attempt to sell the major portion of the $80,000 worth of bonds stolen last Friday from the Imperial Bank of Canada branch at Jordan Station, near St. Catharines, it was reported today.

Ontario securities commission investigators were reported working on the case, and it was said the attempted bond disposal was made in Toronto. The bonds were stolen from the strong box of Ezra Hornsberger, wealthy fruit farmer.

It was reported reliably a Toronto broker had been questioned by commission investigators regarding his movements and "attempts" to raise loans on certain bonds said to have been stolen from the Jordan bank. The broker allegedly attempted to approach certain clients for heavy cash loans at a large discount.

It was said also the broker approached another group of brokers and when a check of details of the transaction was made it was found the bonds were some of those stolen from the bank. About $70,000 of the bonds supposedly are in Toronto.

Japs Charge France Allied With Kai-Shek

TOKYO, Oct. 14 (CP-Havas). — France has entered into an agreement with General Chiang Kai-Shek for the "joint defence" of those Southern Chinese areas in Yunnan, Kwangsi, and Kwangtung Provinces adjacent to French Indo-China, the semi-official Japan Times alleged today.

Quoting "a most reliable source," the Japan Times said the agreement applies particularly to Hainan Island, southern tip of China, which dominates the Tongkin Gulf.

"The motives for the French action some time ago apparently aiming to interfere with Japanese movements toward Hainan and other islands is now explained by this agreement," the paper said.

Press reports today said that in Rome on Wednesday Premier Mussolini received a delegation of Japanese journalists and told them: "Japan and Italy have already concluded an anti-Comintern pact, but I am ready to enter into closer relations with Japan."

Irish Appeal To Hitler

BELFAST, Oct. 14. — (AP). — A group of Nationalists appealed to Chancellor Hitler today to aid their campaign for union of Northern Ireland with Eire.

After an Armagh county mass meeting they sent this message:

"We call upon you to use all endeavors to persuade Premier Chamberlain to bring about freedom for the minority in Northern Ireland and abolition of partition in our beloved country."

The campaign to abolish the partition, including representations in London by Prime Minister Eamon De Valera of Eire, has been ignored by the Belfast press.

Five Persons Killed In Level Crossing Crash

Five persons, including a five-year-old child, met death when a car driven by Dr. George Racey, of Parkhill, crashed into a C.N.R. Diesel engine at Denfield, Ont. Eyewitnesses reported that evidently Dr. Racey's car skidded on the wet pavement and slid into the centre of the engine. Instantly killed in the crash were: Dr. Racey; Miss Evelyn Mason, of Parkhill, 20, a nurse, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wills, of Thedford. Norma Wills, 5, was rushed to Victoria Hospital, London, where she died shortly after admittance. The wreckage of Dr. Racey's car is shown, ABOVE, shortly after the fatal crash.

Queen Escapes Injury As Block of Wood Crashes At Feet In Tour Of Shop

Dundee, Scotland, Oct. 14.

QUEEN ELIZABETH escaped injury here today when a heavy block of wood crashed down from a rack and missed her by a few feet while she was inspecting the Lord Roberts Memorial workshops.

Dismissing the incident with a laugh, the Queen continued her inspection of the shop and later purchased several pieces of furniture for Buckingham Palace, including a gate-leg table on which the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret will do their studies.

The block of wood fell from the rack in the polishing department when a member of the Queen's party accidentally bumped into it while stepping aside to permit the Queen to pass.

In addition to the table for the Princesses, the Queen purchased a bedroom suite in natural figured oak with a carved walnut decoration of a special design incorporating the rose and thistle for her personal use at the palace.

Guns To Ring Each British Factory Manned By Plant Crews To Fight Off Enemy Air Raids

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Oct. 14—(CP).—A new plan to protect key industrial plants from low-flying aircraft in time of war was announced today by the war office.

A reserve of the territorial army will be formed with light anti-aircraft units in industrial plants. Officers and men will be recruited from employees of the plant and given special training in handling light anti-aircraft guns and machine guns which will be mounted round the factory. Each plant will have its own defensive force to combat low-flying planes.

The announcement followed sweeping changes in the territorial army which have included in recent weeks a general organization in anti-aircraft divisions, which were increased from two to five. The five divisions, which will come into operation Nov. 1, will have headquarters at Uxbridge, Hucknal, Edinburgh, Chester and Reading.

The scheme, which goes back hundreds of years to the time of private armies, will apply to all kinds of industries, but particularly armament plants, power stations, chemical plants, and oil tanks.

The idea behind it is to give extra protection to key industrial plants from enemy planes which get through the general defences.

Anti aircraft strength of the territorial army has jumped from 27,370 a year ago to 47,250 today and the increase from two to five divisions is expected to double the personnel in the next 12 months.

TO ATTACK UNEMPLOYMENT

WASHINGTON.—Informed persons in the United States administration disclosed today that a broad new attack on the problem of unemployment is in the making. This may result, they said, in presentation of congress early next year of a correlated program for restoring work opportunities by improving conditions in the nation's basic durable goods industries. Details have not been made known.

Blind Woman Jailed For Year On Robbery Count

Vancouver, Oct. 14 (CP)

KATHLEEN NEWMAN, a blind woman, was sentenced by Magistrate H. M. Wood to one year in Oakalla Prison when convicted yesterday on a charge of robbery with violence.

Olie Olson and Allan Cleary, convicted on the same charge, each was sentenced to two years in penitentiary.

The three were charged with "strong-arming" William E. McBirnie Oct. 1 and robbing him of $1.80.

Toronto Leads Cities In Income Collection

OTTAWA, Oct. 14 (CP).—Toronto, with a total of $41,410,921, led all cities in collections of income tax in the first six months of the present fiscal year, it was shown today in figures released by the National Revenue Department.

Collections in Ontario with figures for the corresponding period the previous fiscal year in brackets included: Kingston $254,966 ($233,097); Belleville $553,764 ($550,490); Toronto $41,410,921 ($33,342,027); Hamilton $7,427,784 ($5,805,260); London $10,401,632 ($8,940,266); Fort William $439,708 ($291,775).

LUMBER YARD DAMAGED

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. — Fire last night caused $15,000 damage to the Wise lumber yard and the adjoining sash and door mill of Kennedy and Pagatto. Cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

Chinese To Move 400,000 From Canton

HONG KONG, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Preparations were hurried today to send 400,000 women and children and the municipal and provincial governments into the interior from Canton as a new Japanese force of 40,000 moved closer to that South China metropolis.

The invading Japanese army captured Tamshui, 12 miles from Bias Bay where it landed Wednesday, and was reported striking due west in a 20-mile drive to cut the Canton-Kowloon railway at a point about 20 miles from the borders of this British Crown colony.

Incessant bombing and shelling left Tamshui in ruins. The invaders drove relentlessly toward the garrison city of Waichow, 82 miles east of Canton and 35 miles north of Hong Kong.

Chinese resistance improved as the Japanese columns moved steadily inland. The invaders' airplanes and artillery were being used with crushing force.

With the destruction of a long wooden bridge about 15 miles north of Hong Kong, Canton was cut off except for the highway to Waichow and the water route to Macao, Portuguese colony 70 miles south of Canton.

Archives Shifted

Events were moving rapidly in Kwangtung province, of which Canton is the capital. Provisional and municipal archives, it was learned, were being sent to Yungyuen, in northern Kwantung.

Heavy Chinese reinforcements were being rushed to Cheungmutau, on the Canton-Kowloon railway, and to Waichow, where a bitter battle was expected.

Kwantung authorities were reported to have asked the consular body of the Shameen foreign settlement of Canton to convey to the Japanese a request that Lingnan University and the French Catholic Cathedral in Canton be declared safety zones for non-combatants.

More than 200 foreigners remained in Shameen. The United States gunboat Mindanao, with one French and five British war vessels, were bottled up in waters near Canton.

Labor Gains Seat In Australia

WELLINGTON, Oct. 14.—(CP Reuters).—Prime Minister Michael Savage's labor party, in power for the past three years, scored an early triumph in the New Zealand general election today by gaining a seat from the Nationalist opposition party in polling in the four Maori (native) electoral districts.

The result was 3 to 1 in favor of labor, with the nationalists losing the northern Maori district. General voting will take place tomorrow.

In an election appeal the prime minister said the issue was simply whether the country's future policy was to promote the interests of the many or of the few.

Restaurant Man Held

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 14.—(CP).—Chin Wee, Aylmer restaurant keeper is held under $2,000 bail on a charge of common assault on Andy Bennett and Fred Charlton, of Belmont. A dispute arose over the price of a meal Bennett and Charlton consumed. Chin brandished a knife and chased his customers out of the restaurant and along Aylmer's main street.

Grants Motion Preventing Coroner Lawson Probing Heiress' Death

Crown Had Declined To Accept Word Of Three Physicians Woman Had Died Of Natural Causes

TORONTO, Oct. 14 (CP).—Mr. Justice Charles McTague today granted a motion to prevent Coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson of Toronto from proceeding with an inquest into the death of Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley, malted milk heiress.

Four executors of Mrs. Sidley's $2,000,000 estate presented the motion before Mr. Justice McTague in chambers, contending there were no grounds for an inquest and that, in any event, Dr. Lawson had exceeded his authority in ordering one after Mrs. Sidley's body had left his jurisdiction.

Mrs. Sidley died here July 6 at the home of W. Perkins Bull, lawyer and historian. An autopsy and post-mortem resulted in reports by physicians that the Racine, Wis., heiress died from natural causes.

TORONTO, Oct. 14 (CP). — The Crown is unwilling to accept the word of three physicians that Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley, malted heiress, died from natural causes and demands a full investigation, Arthur W. Slaght, K.C., asserted today in opposing a motion for an injunction to prevent holding of an inquest.

Seven days before her death here July 6 at the home of W. Perkins Bull, lawyer and historian, Mrs. Sidley suffered a violent attack which left her body black and which no one could explain, Slaght said.

D. L. McCarthy, representing four executors of Mrs. Sidley's $2,000,000 estate, had argued the chief coroner, Dr. Smirle Lawson, was without power to order an inquest nine days after the woman's death when the body had been taken to Racine, Wis., for burial.

Slaght declared the only person who had come forward with an affidavit to block the inquest was Bull, adding: "One would think that Bull would desire a full inquiry. In the mind of her son was the thought there had been poisoning."

Slaght protested against statements made Wednesday by McCarthy concerning the connection of Dr. Herbert A. Bruce, former Ontario Lieutenant-Governor, with the Sidley investigation.

Czechs Pledge Loyalty To Germany

MUNICH, Oct. 14 — (AP). — An official German announcement said to-day Frantisek Cehvalkovsky, Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia, had given Chancellor Hitler assurances Czechoslovakia in future will adopt "a loyal attitude" toward Germany.

The announcement came some two hours after Hitler had received the Czechoslovak envoy in the Fuehrerhaus, scene of the historic Munich conference which two weeks ago set the seal on Czechoslovakia's dismemberment at Hitler's behest.

The official account of the meeting said the Fuehrer had expressed profound regret that the question of Czechoslovakia's Hungarian minority had not yet been solved and had told Chvalkovsky he hoped an amicable solution of this problem soon would be found.

Informed circles said Hitler, in his 90 minute conversation with the Prague envoy, "took occasion to discuss all questions involving both states."

Up To Powers

The Komarom conference, in which Hungary sought from a Slovak delegation representing Prague satisfaction of her demands from Hungarian-populated areas of Slovakia, broke up yesterday without agreement and Hungary announced she would take her case to the four powers of the Munich accord.

(A leader of the Slovak delegation said Hungary had demanded 4,349 square miles with a population of 1,120,000; Czechoslovakia had offered to cede 2,152 square miles with 378,000 population.)

Nazi circles believed Hitler demanded among other things abandonment of Czechoslovakia's alliances with Soviet Russia and France.

There was no ceremonious reception for Chvalkovsky no flags were flown. There was no guard of honor as on previous occasions when foreign statesmen were received. Nothing in the city indicated that the envoy of a friendly neighbor country was being entertained.

Hitler previously had supported Hungary's territorial demands on Czechoslovakia and declined at the Munich conference of Sept. 29 to guarantee the frontiers of the republic until she had settled her minority disputes with both Poland and Hungary.

Toronto Organizes Racket Busters To Smash Downtown Gangs

TORONTO, Oct. 14 (CP)—Police Sergt. George Crawford was placed in charge of a special "racket busting" squad today as authorities moved to curb an outbreak of gang warfare in a downtown section of Toronto.

Inspector Charles Scott, in whose district the mobs have been operating, announced Sergt. Crawford's appointment. Members of the squad, in civilian clothes and in uniform, will patrol the Church-Dundas-Jarvis streets area where the beer-runners and other racketeers are concentrated.

Men and women have been beaten up and the interior of houses wrecked since the rival gangs inaugurated their incipient hostilities.

The Ontario Liquor Control Board is expected to launch a full investigation into the beer-running. Some 200 runners are said to be in business in Toronto.

U.S. Tactics Used

The same characteristics which have marked the activities of mobs in United States cities have been evident. Fights over women, refusal or fear of witnesses to lay charges and luring of men to "clip joints" by attractively dressed young women lead authorities to believe they are confronted with a serious problem.

Mayor Ralph Day and members of the police commission have already announced their determination to clean up the matter by smashing the rival mobs.

"Undermanned as the Toronto Police Force is, we will do our best, if conditions do not improve," declared Commissioner Col. A. E. Kirkpatrick. "I fear it will be the bounden duty of the police commission, despite a high tax rate, to demand an early augmentation of the force."

Arrests Made

A number of arrests of men and women have been affected and they are at present waiting hearing on charges of assault and causing malicious damage.

Beer runners do most of their business late at night after the liquor stores and brewery warehouses have closed. For $3 or $3.50 they will deliver a dozen quarts of beer which ordinarily sell at $2.70.

German and Italian Brand Young Jew With Swastika In Jersey Park

Irvington, N.J., Oct. 14 (AP)

A NINE-YEAR-OLD Jewish boy bore on his forearm today a crudely shaped double swastika, carved into the flesh with a penknife by two older youths.

Judge Thomas Holleran told the Jewish lad and his tormentors, a 14-year-old boy of German descent and a 17-year-old youth of Italian descent, the United States flag "was a symbol of liberty and and decency while the swastika was symbolic of bestiality and bullying."

The father of the Jewish boy, a federal employee attached to the internal revenue department, told the court the two boys seized and branded his son as he walked through a park.

Town Councillor's Choice Of Wife Starts Move To Revise A Law

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 14.—(CP)—William Shipway, 40, member of the Ailsa Craig village council, went free on suspended sentence today, while representatives of law and church prepared to carry to the House of Commons their fight to revise the strange law which frustrated Dan Cupid and brought Mr. Shipway before the courts.

Because of the law, the prominent Ailsa Craig garageman was forbidden to marry a girl of his choice, though she was of age, and no blood relation to him. Unable to wed, they lived together anyway, charged Crown Attorney Newton, and on Sept. 26, a child was born.

After complaints to the crown attorney—complaints which defense counsel Mayer Lerner said came from busybodies — Shipway was charged under the morality section of the criminal code. He appeared before County Judge Wearing today and pleaded guilty.

The court then listened to the story of Shipway's long fight to be married. Several years ago, the Judge was informed, Shipway had married a widow, and the girl in the case is the daughter of the widow by her first husband.

Three years ago, the widow died, and Shipway and the girl, who is 20 years old, wished to marry. But they found the way blocked. The law will not allow a man to wed his deceased wife's child.

No Special Councillors

The court was told that they had appealed to the provincial secretary, to see if special permission might not be obtained for the ceremony. The provincia lsecretary's department could find no special powers.

They turned to the United States, and visited two or three states, believing the laws there concerning marriage might be less strict but again the law was against them.

Coming back to Canada, their case was again taken by interested parties of the church, with the provincial government, and there it was indicated the law itself would be taken before the Federal House for review.

The court suggested that further effort be made to discover a place where the couple might marry.

Hint Germany May Abandon Naval Pact If Britain Continues To Arm

By Roger Maffre
(Copyright, 1938, The Havas News Agency.)

Rome, Oct. 14 (CP-Havas)

IF Great Britain continues its large-scale rearmament Germany may renounce the Anglo-German naval treaty of 1935, Italian observers in Berlin reported to Rome today.

According to this version of the present views of Germany's leaders, the British rearmament program will disrupt the balance of power in Europe and will be regarded in Berlin as an attempt to establish and maintain Franco-British hegemony.

French and British efforts to strengthen themselves are regarded in the Reich, these observers said, as efforts to make France and Great Britain strong enough to check the "natural evolution" of Germany.

Bulgaria Nips Revolt Plot In Bud

Thousands Arrested Arms Seized After Assassination

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 14 (AP)—The government invoked nationwide police precautions against political terrorism today after the discovery of a revolutionary plot against the government.

Precautionary steps apparently were directed chiefly against the outlawed Imro, an organization of extremist Macedonians wanting an autonomous state including the 2,000,000 Macedonians now living in Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Greece.

The government arrested several thousand persons, most of whom were released after questioning, and seized large stores of arms.

Officials believed the assassination Monday of General Yordan Peyeff, chief of the Bulgarian general staff, was to have been the signal for revolution.

The assassin, Stoil Kiroff, shot himself. Before he died, an informant said, he confessed he used pistols supplied by the Imro and that he had been instructed to shoot the king, the premier or some one at the war ministry.

Quick action by King Boris, government quarters said, checked the conspiracy.

The Imro was declared illegal in 1934 and since has been rigidly suppressed. Bulgarian informants said the Macedonians want an autonomous area under the crown of Bulgaria. Propaganda to this end, however, never has been tolerated by Yugoslavia and Greece where 1,000,000 of the Macedonians live as minority groups.

Chinese Retake City Of Liuling

SHANGHAI, Oct. 14.—(AP).—Heavy losses were admitted both sides today as the 464-day-old Chinese-Japanese war swept over 550,000 square miles in 11 Chinese provinces.

Invaders from the sea smashed toward the Canton-Kowloon railroad in South China with the aim of severing vital communications systems which 15 months of frequent bombings have failed to cut.

More than 500 miles to the north, other Japanese columns, warships and bombing planes redoubled efforts to pierce the ring of defences around Hankow, the provisional capital.

Bitter fighting raged in the Sinyang sector, on the Peiping-Hankow railroad 100 miles north of Hankow, where the defenders said they recaptured Liuling and thereby blocked a projected Japanese drive down the railroad to Hankow.

Search Widens For Girl Slayer

LARCHMONT, N.Y., Oct. 14 (AP)—Police widened their search for the killer of Mary Coyle today while they investigated a 26-year-old woman's story that an unidentified motorist had molested her.

Mamaroneck police said the woman appeared at headquarters earlier and told of a motorist's attempt to seize her on her way home. He attempted to drag her into his automobile, she said, but she broke away. Mamaroneck is adjacent to Larchmont.

Connecticut state police sought three youths in an automobile bearing New York licence plates. Patrons of a dining car in Norwalk reported overhearing the men discuss the Coyle murder in a "suspicious" manner.

The men abruptly left the diner, patrons said, after one of them was heard to remark "It's getting too hot for us around here."

Aside from the discovery of Mary Coyle's bloodsoaked coat and beret, police reported no new clues in the slaying Monday of the 17-year-old high school graduate.

Boom In Detroit

DETROIT, Oct. 14.— (CP).—Industrial Detroit, so often the economic barometer of these United States, is experiencing a major building boom, recalling pre-depression years. Two of the seven working days since Oct. 1 have shown building dollar volumes exceeding $1,000,000.

Permits for construction of single family residences reached 70 in one day, a figure unreached since the height of boom times.

Daladier Clamps Censorship On Radio News

PARIS, Oct. 14 (A.P.).—Premier Daladier's Government to-day established virtual censorship over news broadcasts from 11 of France's largest privately owned radio stations.

An order published in the official Journal without explanation brought not only news broadcasts of political affairs but those on economic and financial matters under the Government broadcasting service.

The measure applies to four large Paris stations and seven key regional stations. Radio in France is a combination of private and state ownership, with the Government communications ministry operating a network in competition with private stations.

Under the new setup stations affected are required to submit to the Government daily the "full text" of "anything concerning news broadcasts or presenting a political economic or financial character."

Strikes Stir Trouble.

The Government at the same time was concerned with three other problems—unrest in Alsace-Lorraine, increasing production in the aviation industry, and an effort to break the long workers' tsrike in Lyon.

It was announced that Vice-Premier Camille Chautemps had decided on "various measures" designed to solve the economic problem of provinces along the German frontier, where increasing Nazi propaganda activity was reported.

The measures, which were not specified, came as the Strasbourg Chamber of Commerce demanded that the Government negotiate commercial treaties with Germany in order to improve the economic condition of the border provinces. The Chamber denied political motives.

Millbrook L.A. Plans Goose Supper

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 14. —Twenty members of the Ladies' Aid of Grace Presbyterian church gathered at the home of Mrs. E. L. Armstrong, 8th Line, Cavan, recently for thier October meeting.

Mrs. J. R. Thompson, the president, read a Thanksgiving poem to open the meeting, afted which she read the 105th Psalm; Miss Agnes Johnston led in the special Thanksgiving prayer, which concluded the devotions.

During the business period a substantial cheque was voted to the Board of Managers. The sum of $55 was cleared from the fair dinner.

Arrangements were made for their annual fowl supper which will be held on Tuesday, November 15, following the anniversary services on November 13.

Table convenors were chosen as follows: 1, Mrs. H. A. Kerr and Mrs. J. W. Wright; 2, Mrs. S. E. Eakins and Miss Mina Gibson; 3, Mrs. J. N. McGill and Mrs. A. Miller.

The president, along with Messrs. J. Burns, S. E. Eakins and Rev. H. R. Williams were appointed as the program committee. Arrangement of tickets and publicity were left in the hands of the board of managers. It was decided that this year they hold the supper a half hour earlier than formerly.

Mesdames S. E. Eakins and J. R. Thompson were asked to be responsible for purchasing the geese. The canvassers for each section were named and were asked to be on hand in a report to the next meeting, scheduled for October 26. The president, Mrs. Thompson, will be their hostess and felt it was necessary to hold another meeting this month to arrange the various committees needful for the success of the supper. Miss Mina Gibson's group will serve afternoon tea.

At the conclusion of the business, tea was served by the group convened by Mrs. R. J. McKnight and over $4 was realized.

Flames Roaring Nearer Fort Frances

FORT FRANCES, Ont., Ont., Oct. 14 (CP)—Forests ablaze on new fronts in northwestern Ontario challenged firefighting resources today but flames were repulsed without further threat to life or serious property loss.

Overworked forestry branch troops, concentrating since Monday on a 60-mile stretch west from Fort Frances, were called into action east of the fire-embattled town when calls for help came yesterday from Atikokan and Crilly. Weary firefighters answering the call were aided in successfully combatting the fires by a drop in wind velocity.

Red menace was brought closer to Fort Frances, fanned by a high south wind. Citizens turned out to stop a threat from along the river front. Backfires carrying the menace away from the town still burned fiercely last night two miles west.

Across the river, the 2,500 residents of International Falls, Minn., anxiously watched flames licking through timber a mere two blocks from the city limits. Residents of Sunnyside Addition, a group of 30 houses on the outskirts, were prepared to evacuate.

Throughout southwest outskirts of the town men and women were ready with garden hoses, pails and shovels to oppose fire threats. Tinder-dry slashing between the fire and International Falls added to the danger.

May Jump the River

Fort Frances residents feared fire in International Falls would jump the river to this town. "If they go, there's nothing in the world that can save us," a forestry official said.

West of Fort Frances fires were being controlled within the 30-mile swath, 60 miles long, in which 17 persons died Monday. Three of the fire's deaths occurred in Minnesota.

Thirteen Ontario victims were buried Wednesday and the other four, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Fyles, their 18-months-old son and Mrs. Fyles' sister, 12-year-old Mabel Larsen, were buried yesterday in Fort Frances. Fyles was 21, his wife 19.

Clyde Kimble, one of the volunteer searchers who found bodies of the Fyles family near their Dance township home, recounted evidence of their struggles to reach safety.

"Sam and his wife certainly put up a real battle for their lives and to save the children," Kimble said. "The cover was off the well and it never was before. There was a pail nearby. I think Sam ran between the well and the house carrying water as long as he could.

"They might have saved themselves by running to the garden patch in the centre of a clearing. Some pumpkins in the garden were not touched by fire. I think they suffocated. The hair on their heads was not badly burned and burns on their bodies could have been caused by smouldering ashes in which they fell."

Calls Bring Aid.

When the call for help came yesterday from Atikokan, 90 miles east of Fort Frances, Chief Fire Ranger William Darby sent a special freight car there with 5,000 feet of hose, two fire pumps, and a relay tank.

Equipment was sent by hand car to Crilly, site of one dam of the Manitoba and Ontario Power Company which supplies power to Fort Frances. A large construction gang working on the dam fought the fire and reported it under control last night.

A fresh outbreak near the town of Devlin, 15 miles west of Fort Frances, was under control after residents made a gallant and successful effort to save the United Church building, standing on a hill-top. Volunteer workers established huge backfire guards and the church and village were believed safe.

In Kingsford Township, 40 miles north-west, settlers were removed from the Off Lake and Clearwater Lake districts as officials feared the spread of outbreaks there. Fires were fanned into renewed life in Dance Township yesterday, but little further damage can be done in that area, already burned over.

The 10 persons in hospital here were in slightly improved condition last night. Most seriously ill, 13-year-old Burdine Labelle still fights against burns and pneumonia. Burdine lost her mother and four sisters in the fire on Monday. Seven other members of the Labelle family died and eight are in hospital. None will lose their eyesight, a danger feared earlier.

Relief authorities are planning rehabilitation of homeless settlers.

M. K. Morrison of Port Arthur, directing relief administration, will request the forestry branch to make a survey of fire-swept districts as soon as men can be spared. Later an agricultural survey will be made to determine feasibility of rehabilitating refugees on homesteds they vacated.

Many Pitiful Tales

Morrison said last night 22 families of refugees are in Fort Frances, 30 women and children are being cared for at Emo, 40 miles west, and 75 women and children are billeted in a large farm house and the community hall at Stratton, 25 miles west.

Stories of great loss, great courage and patient resignation are many.

"After all, it was home," whispered Mrs. D. K. Robson as she choked back tears and turned away from her farm house in Jingsford township.

Mrs. Robson and her six small children set out by truck for Fort Frances and safety while behind them her husband and neighbors battled in a last desperate effort to save the farm buildings.

The Robsons moved to the Kingsford township homestead from a prairie farm just a year ago and were "beginning to make a go of things."

"Then this had to happen," said Mrs. Robson. "It's hard to leave you know but I had to for the sake of the children. The fire is awfully close."

With them in the rescue truck were Mrs. S. Rorice and Bernice and Elva Hendren, aged 24 and 12, whose mother refused to leave her home and husband, they said.

Aimee Celebrates Birthday

To symbolize her girlhood "down on the farm," Aimee Semple McPherson celebrated her birthday recently with a milk-drinking party at Angelus Temple, Los Angeles, where, attired in a sunbonnet and a gingham dress, she carried a shiny bucket full of milk which she passed out in tin cups to all comers with many a "Hallelujah brother" and an "Amen sister."

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN CROSS.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Oct. 14.—The funeral of the late Mrs. John Cross was held at St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora, on Thursday afternoon. Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell officiated.

The pall-bearers were Floyd Gray, Orville Trumble, George O'Neill, Hector Boudreau, Jules Ethier and William Simmons.

Interment took place in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

MRS. JAMES H. MOORE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 14.—The funeral of the late Mabel Florence Adelaide Cox, beloved wife of James H. Moore, Douro, whose death occurred at her home in Douro at 12.30 noon, on Monday, was held from the deceased's late residence on Wednesday afternoon at 2 p.m. The funeral was very largely attended, friends and relatives being present from many parts of the district to pay their last respects to Mrs. Moore, who was beloved by all. A great many beautiful floral tributes bespoke the respect and admiration of a wide circle of friends.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. G. F. Kelly, pastor of Lakefield United Church of which the deceased was a member. During the service, Henry Batten of North Monaghan sang the beautiful old hymn "Our Life is like a Stormy Sea" as a solo, and Rev. Kelly read Whittier's hymn "When On My Day of Life the Night Is Falling," which was a favorite of Mrs. Moore's, and which was read at her request.

The pall-bearers were Ray Gallagher of Detroit, John Londerville and Max Harrison of Peterborough, Dr. A. A. Fraser and Messrs. E. H. Northey and Robert Spence of Lakefield.

Interment was in Lakefield Cemetery.

The late Mrs. Moore who was in her sixty-third year, was born in Douro township on August 16, 1876. She was the only child of Solomon Cox and Harriet Lukey of Douro.

After spending her childhood on the homestead in Douro Miss Cox was married to James H. Moore of Otonabee on October 28, 1896, and went with her husband to Havelock where they lived until the death of Mrs. Moore's father. At that time they returned to the Cox homestead where Mr. and Mrs. Moore have since resided.

The deceased was a member of Lakefield United Church, having been a Presbyterian up until Church Union. At the time of her death she was a member of the Women's Association, and of the Women's Missionary Society of the Church, and had been for a number of years a member of the executive of the Lakefield branch of the Women's Institute.

She was a woman of sterling qualities, a devoted wife and mother and a true friend. She was a splendid worker in the societies to which she belonged and displayed great initiative and progressiveness and was most courageous during long months of suffering.

She will be sadly missed, not only by her own family, but by her many friends in Lakefield and vicinity.

Mrs. Moore is survived by her husband and two children, Myrtle, in Detroit, Mich. and Wray at home.

THOMAS ASPINALL.

The death of Thomas Aspinall, 833 Water Street, occurred in Toronto on Thursday evening after a lengthy illness.

Born in Brighouse, Yorkshire, England, he was a son of the late John Aspinall and Nancy Marshall, and had resided in this city since 1915. He was employed as a twister by the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds Company. He was a member of the Anglican Church, and of the Independent Order of Foresters in England. A great lover of home and family, he had a host of friends who will regret his death.

Surviving are his widow; two daughters, Mrs. Carl Duck of Peterborough, and Mrs. Mackenzie King of Kingston; also two brothers, James and George, in England.

The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock from the family residence at 833 Water Street. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. J. W. HANBIDGE

The death of Gertrude Emma, beloved wife of J. Wasson Hanbidge, occurred at Nicholls Hospital Saturday evening.

Mrs. Hanbidge had been in poor health about two years. She had been in the hospital for the past six weeks.

Her parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Argue of Cavan township. She was in her fifty-third year.

Surviving are her husband, two sons, Kenneth and Robert, five sisters, Mrs. Richardson, Sherbrooke St., Mrs. Lowry and Mrs. Hamill of Garden Hill, Mrs. Argue and Mrs. Bedford of Monrovia, Calif., and one brother, H. C. Argue of Millbrook.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the family residence, 709 Aylmer street, with Rev. M. C. Parr officiating.

The pallbearers were Errol Hanbidge, Linden Richardson, Ronald Argue, Fred Lowery, and Norman Hamill, all nephews and Rodney Echobichon.

Hill Head Youth Faces Theft Count

LINDSAY, Oct. 14.—A young resident of Hill Head, Ops Township, faced Magistrate Gee on the charge of the theft of thirty-five chickens from a resident of Reaboro. The accused pleaded not guilty. A local poultry dealer purchased the poultry, and stated the accused made the sale. Evidence for the defence was with a view to explaining the movements or whereabouts of the accused at the time of the theft. The case was adjourned until Friday.

Men Available To Rake Up Leaves

Do you dread those fall tasks—raking leaves, pulling up the garden, cleaning your back yard? Then give Dan Douglas a call at 571 and he'll have a man up in a jiffy.

The head of the Employment Service of Canada, Peterborough branch, says he has dozens of men who are anxious to secure any kind of work, and who call at his office every morning. "A good many people don't think it's worth while to call me when they have only an hour or two's work to offer, but that's not so," he said. "These men want that kind of work—any kind of work—and we are only too happy to be able to give it to them."

So, if you have any chores you want done promptly and efficiently, and at the same time want to do an unemployed man a good turn, call Dan Douglas.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Oct. 14—(CP)—Good orders from export and overseas firms lifted Winnipeg wheat futures a cent late to-day. At the final bell prices were ¾ to ⅞ cent higher, October 61⅝, November 61¼, December 60⅝, and May 63¾ to ⅞.

Canadian wheat export sales were placed around 1,000,000 bushels.

Apart from export interest operations were quiet and at times trading almost stopped.

Western Canada marketing continued in fair volume. Deliveries yesterday were 2,179,000 bushels, almost five times greater than a year ago.

There was improved cash wheat demand. Shippers and exporters were moderate buyers of Nos. 3 and 4 Northern, Nos. 2 and 3 Garnet and feed wheat.

Coarse grains eased at the close.

Premier King Is Needed In Gun Enquiry

OTTAWA, Oct. 14 (CP)—Frequent references to the Canadian government's policy on munitions traffic, contained in evidence before the Bren gun inquiry, may lead to the calling of Prime Minister Mackenzie King as a witness. He is on a holiday in the West Indies and not expected back for three weeks. If called he would be questioned on government policy with respect to munitions contracts.

Yesterday's evidence brought several outbursts of impatience and ended with a sudden adjournment nearly half an hour before the time set by the commissioner, Mr. Justice H. H. Davis of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Considerable emphasis was placed by the star witness, Major General L. R. Lefleche, deputy minister of defence, on the fact that it was a matter of policy laid down by the government that the defence department could not act as an agent for the British war office in its contracts for munitions in Canada.

Depends on What Develops.

Questioned by newspapermen outside the commission chamber on the possibility of the prime minister being called, Hon. J. L. Ralston, chief commission counsel, said it depended on the course the inquiry takes and what develops. It has already been indicated Defence Minister Mackenzie would be called.

Earlier this week the prime minister was quoted in a letter from Dr. O. D. Skelton, under-secretary of state for external affairs, dated April 23, 1937, as having ruled against a suggestion that the British war office be invited to purchase certain types of munitions in Canada.

General Lafleche was near the end of his long recital of relations with Major J. E. Hahn, president of the John Inglis Company of Toronto, starting late in 1936, from which arose a contract whereby the Inglis Company would manufacture 7,000 Bren machine guns for the Dominion government and 5,000 for the British war office.

Criticism of the government's handling of this contract, contained in a magazine article by Lt. Col. George Drew, Toronto lawyer, prompted the government to initiate the inquiry.

Impatience Expressed

Justice Davis expressed impatience yesterday when L. A. Forsty, K.C., of Montreal, associate commission counsel, wanted to read a long memorandum submitted by the defence department to the inter-departmental committee on munitions contracts. He was also dissatisfied with results of his efforts to ascertain from the witness whether the contract was submitted to the committee as one acceptable to the department.

Col. Drew, who is appearing on his own behalf, declared he could "see no way this inquiry can ever be terminated" if proceedings went on as suggested by commission counsel.

Justice Davis said Mr. Forsyth could read the memorandum if he desired but he would extend the hearing half an hour to make up for the time used in the reading.

Later Justice Davis criticised the inter-departmental committee's action in appointing a sub-committee and told the witness he was not impressed by any narrative of General Lafleche's conversations with its members.

This brought from Col. Ralston the suggestion such observations should not be made from the bench since they "go out from here as conclusions and become subject for newspaper editorials."

"This is a political trial," Col. Ralston declared, "and is being tried in the newspapers."

Counsel for the Maclean Publishing Company, I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., Toronto, immediately protested. "I resent any suggestion that I am here in a political capacity," he said.

Col. Ralston explained he meant it was political in the sense that it involved the government and the people's representatives in parliament.

"It should not be a political trial but the public are making it one," Mr. Hellmuth said.

Nearly half an hour before the time Justice Davis had set for adjournment a heated interchange arose when Col. Drew declared the witness was "insulting our intelligence." Justice Davis ended the argument by suddenly adjourning.

Loyalist Relief

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(CP).—The freighter Erica Reed, Canadian-American relief ship, will set sail for Spain Oct. 30 with a cargo of food, clothing and medicine for Spanish loyalists. The relief ship committee estimate 5,000 tons of goods will be loaded on the ship. The cargo has been donated by Canadian and United States sympathizers. Several carloads of goods were sent here from Canadian centres such as Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Windsor.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 103

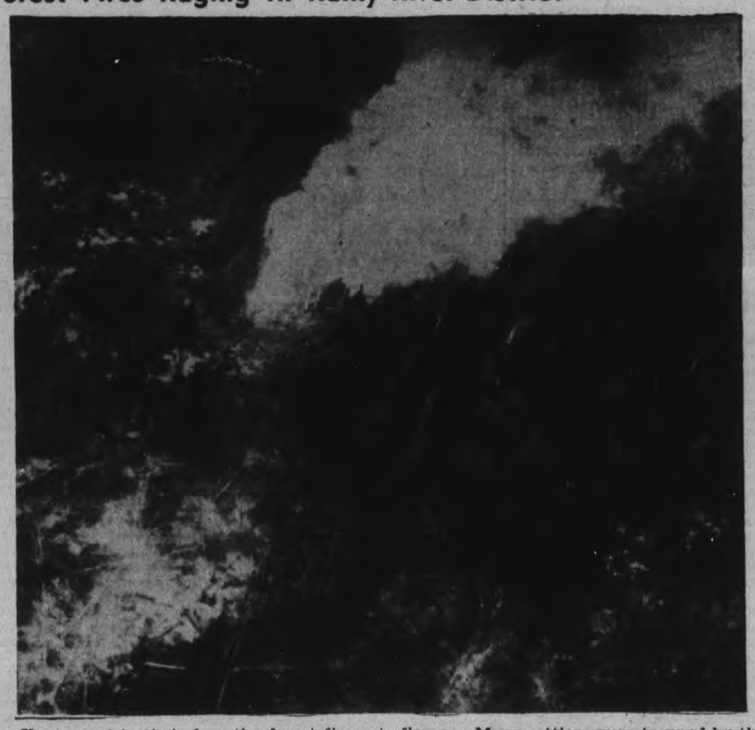
Forest Fires Raging In Rainy River District



Unchecked in their fury the forest fires which are ravaging the Rainy River district, are seen here in this aerial view. Scores of settlers have been made homeless, with all their worldly possessions devoured by the flames. Many settlers were trapped by the flames, as they attempted to flee to safety, and burned to death. Twenty persons are known to have perished in the flaming forest, while still others are reported missing.

Millbrook W.M.S. Hear Fine Talks At Live October Rally

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Oct. 14—The October meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's United Church was held at the home of Miss M. Finnemore, with thirty members present.

Mrs. Stinson, convenor of Group G, presided for the opening devotions.

Mrs. Stinson introduced the subject, "The Honan Mission Jubilee," by comparing it to a spring of water which finally broadened into a great river. A brief historical sketch of Honan Mission, 1880-1900, was given by Mrs. Rea. Mrs. Sisco told an interesting story of school life at Cheeloo.

A duet, "I know that my Redeemer Liveth," was rendered by Mrs. Johnston and Miss Hansmen.

The business session was presided over by Mrs. A. L. Sisco, after which Mrs. Weston Fallis continued the study period, the theme being, "Through Missionary Windows."

A prayer for peace in China and Japan was given by Miss E. Hatherley, after which a hymn was sung.

An interesting and educational few moments followed, with several ladies giving short talks, Mrs. Fallis telling of work done in the hospitals of Africa; Mrs. Sisco, work in West China; Mrs. McKnight, Christian nurses in West China; Mrs. W. Fallis, work in Korea; Mrs. H. Lang, Korean womanhood; and Mrs. J. Hatherley, Korean Missionary Society.

Singing of the hymn, "Tell me the Stories of Jesus," and a prayer from Mrs. Fallis completed the meeting.

During the social hour which followed, a delightful lunch was served by Miss Finnemore, the hostess.

On Tuesday at 8 p.m., under the leadership of Eleanor Bigelow, missionary convenor, the Young People's Society of St. Andrew's United Church, Millbrook, enjoyed a well-attended meeting.

Miss Leitha Edworthy contributed a solo, "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," which fitted in appropriately with the topic for the evening, "Worshipping God Through Music." Assisting Miss Bigelow during the devotional period were Misses Leitha Edworthy, Maude Smith, Jean Fisher and Messrs. Kenn Kidd and Wm. Ridge. Wm. Ridge, who took the topic, discoursed on the first chapter in the new study book, "Building a New World."

During the business session, the president, Mr. B. B. Dawson, announced the next meeting would be under the leadership of the Christian Culture convenor, Esther Might. At the same meeting, he said, he expected to hear a few words from those members who would be attending the Young People's convention in Perth this coming weekend, at which it is estimated there will be a goodly showing from the Millbrook group.

36.9% LESS TOY BUSINESS

Japan shipped toys valued at $3,441,366 to other countries in the first six months of this year, a decrease of $2,012,840, or 36.9 per cent. compared with exports in the first half of 1937.

Support Chamberlain

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Oct. 14—(CP)—Support of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's peace efforts was shown here today by 250 delegates to the semi annual convention of the Provincial Chapter of the I.O.D.E. The meeting ends tomorrow.

Mrs. William Morrison, Hamilton, provincial president, said that unless some one has a better solution to offer to the world crisis of a few weeks ago they should not criticize.

Brockville Church Blaze Claimed Set

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Oct. 14 (C P.). — Described by Fire Chief John Hartley as "purely incendiary" an outbreak of fire was discovered early to-day at St. Francis Xavier's Roman Catholic Church. A neighbor noticed flames issuing from a box leading to a cellar window and turned in an alarm.

Firemen who put out the blaze found a box had been filled with leaves soaked in turpentine. They also found that paper soaked in the same liquid had been placed under a vestry door where it had burned itself out. No damage was done except to the paint of the door.

A cross was burned on Murray's Field at the north-east outskirts of the town last Saturday.

PUBLISHES SECOND BOOK

NEW YORK. — Anne Morrow Lindbergh's growing love of flying emerges vividly in her second book, "Listl The Wind," to be published today. In a sense a companion-piece to her "North of the Orient," which became a best-seller, it gives further glimpses of her as the working partner of her husband.

Ilsley Upholds Public Service Career

MONTREAL, Oct. 14 (CP). — A career of public service in a British democracy is as honorable a human undertaking as presents itself and in Canada, particularly, are standards of public life high, according to Revenue Minister Ilsley.

Before the annual meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Canada, the Revenue Minister last night defended, despite some aspects which often "disturb and disgust," Canada's party political system providing Canadians with such careers.

That democratic system had "served well," said Ilsley, and most Canadians believing in it would not abide by a partyless or one-party state as established in some European countries.

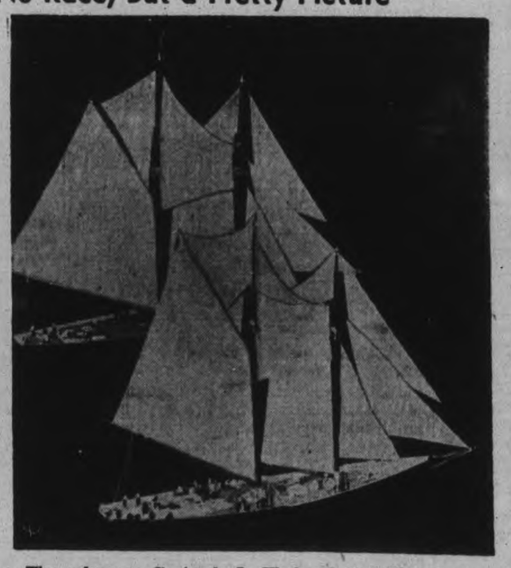
However, to young men seeking a high type of public service, partyism of the "extreme type" presented "unattractive features," he suggested.

As the "unattractive features," the Minister mentioned "electoralism and all it implies, especially in the financing and conducting of elections"; the appeals to what Sir Wilfrid Laurier described as "passion and prejudice"; and the difficulty of maintaining efficiency and stability in public service when partisan demands became too extreme.

Canada's racial divisions required a high standard of public leadership and it was because of the "quality" of the leaders produced by the Dominion that the "two great races live together in unity," he concluded.

A pigeon lost in Nantes, France, in 1934, has just returned to its home.

No Race, But a Pretty Picture



The schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud and Bluenose presented a pretty picture as they drifted side by side during the second of the series of races for the International Fishermen's Trophy. The race was cancelled due to lack of wind when neither boat finshed within the time limit set for the race. The Thebaud has a slight lead on the Bluenose, ABOVE, as the crafts drifted out to sea on the first leg of the race. The second race was run on Thursday, with Bluenose winning.

They Are All Dead

Death operated to the full 100 per cent. when a car driven by Dr. George Racey of Parkhill ran into a train at a level crossing on No. 7 Highway not far from Elginfield, the point where a turn is made for traffic which is going to London on the South or Lucan on the North. There were five people in the car and all were killed. That section of No. 7 is paved with one strip on the north side of the road, but the rest of the road is well gravelled and kept in good condition. The driver of the car, having lived in that district for a good many years would know of the existence of the railway crossing; he would not come upon it unexpectedly.

The strange feature is that Dr. Racey should be driving for the purpose of taking two patients to London for hospital treatment. A young lady who was with him had her arm broken in a car accident only the night before. A man with an infected hand was also a passenger. There is a degree of irony in a situation which took their lives while they were seeking aid from physical disability.

The disaster ranks as the worst in Ontario this year, the nearest approach in mutiple tragedy being the crossing accident at Stratford which took the lives of four young men in the spring.

There will of course be an inquest, and there will be sincere enough efforts made to reconstruct the tragedy so jurors will have adequate idea of what actually did take place, but at best a degree of surmise will have to substitute for direct testimony. Those who know exactly what did happen are all dead. In the absence of such witnesses skid marks may tell much and the fact that the death car passed another going in the same direction only a mile back may tell more.

They Speak In Millions

It does seem that in order to come abreast of the times in which we live it would be necessary to expand our powers of understanding until they were able to speak and move and think in terms of millions. Hundreds and thousands of other years will not do.

In one day's news we find that large oil tanks at Linden, N.J., are on fire and 1,680,000 gallons of oil are stored there. Also the damage done to the plant and surrounding buildings will run into several millions.

President Roosevelt was discussing appropriations for the U.S. army and said the year would call for an expenditure of $740,000,000.

The Canadian Pacific announced a plan to reduce its operating expenses by having the shop men, 13,000 in number, take holidays for three weeks. It was said the saving to the company would amount to a million or more.

Then we read something else on the same day about the cost of putting 200 million bushels of Canadian wheat on the old world markets, and on the same day there was notice of an adjournment in the effort to break the will of Daniel Dodge which disposed of property worth 10 millions. And at the end of the list was the story of Angus McIntosh and his suit against the Homewood Sanitarium of Guelph where he is asking for damages to the extent of $1,500,000.

So if you do not have sufficient and adequate understanding of what a million dollars means it is going to be rather tough trying to understand just what is going on in the world today.

Labor's Poor Leadership

The C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. have done the thing which will produce for these rival Labor organizations the least results—they have decided to fight each other.

John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, has offered to resign if William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will do the same thing, the idea being that such resignation would remove the feeling of personal animosity from the situation. We doubt whether Lewis meant much by that offer because he knew Green would not resign, therefore he himself would not have to resign. Green said the resignation offer was merely a grand-stand play by Lewis, and there is probably as much truth in that as anything else.

If these two powerful Labor groups engage in actual warfare it will set organized Labor back a long distance. One will certainly try to undo what the other is doing.

John L. Lewis undoubtedly had the ear of Washington for a long time and he had that advantage because he had been wise enough to support Roosevelt with money and effort when he was seeking his second term.

Fear of what the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. may lose by continuing their warfare is the one thing which may knock some common sense into the heads of the warriors. The Teamsters' Union, the largest and most strategically located in the A. F. of L. makes open threat to leave and become independent. The Garment Workers, the largest affiliate of the C. I. O. takes the same attitude. If that were to take place it would mean the start of the disintegration of both the central Labor bodies. At the moment organized Labor as far as its central bodies are concerned, is in a worse position than it realizes.

Why Ridiculous?

Burgess Book appeared before the North Grimsby township council to voice objection to allowing hunters to enter his premises to shoot pheasants. Farmer Book related that although he had posted notices on his farm the hunters had arrived and as a result two cows and a horse had been killed.

He believed the township council should supply free of cost notices saying "No Trespassing." But Reeve C. W. Durham did not think that way at all. Rather this way:

"Sell a man a license to shoot then provide a farmer with signs to stop him. It's ridiculous."

And what makes it ridiculous? The farmer owns his land; he owns the buildings and the stock. If he does not want hunters on his premises has he not the right to put up a sign saying so. We dare say when Farmer Book lost his two cows and a horse the township did not come forward asking opportunity to share the loss by way of compensation. Small wonder the man was moved to ask protection to the extent of some printed notices telling hunters to keep out.

The Price Of Milk

That we are paying too much for milk today is the claim advanced by a woman reader who is certain more milk would be used if the prices were reduced. In part she says: "It does not seem right that we should be paying more for milk here than we used to pay in England. We used to live in the Battersea district in old London and secured our milk there for less cost than we do right here in Peterborough."

As a rule this paper is willing to accept statements made by correspondents, but in this case we believe our correspondent is in error. We have before us a magazine published by the United Dairies which distributes dairy products in London, and it is the largest firm in business there. In this magazine the prices are given for a number of grades of milk and not in any case is the price as low as the 11 cent figure which is the prevailing price in Peterborough today. The United Dairies charge 14 cents for pasteurized milk; for a quality known as "Superiority Farms guaranteed," the price is 18 cents per quart, and "Grade A" pasteurized is also 18 cents. Certified milk coming from farms specially licensed by the Minister of Health, and which is bottled on the farms but not pasteurized, is quoted at 27 cents per quart.

What the prices were in the days when our correspondent lived in Battersea we have no way of knowing, but today the prices of milk in London as quoted by United Dairies are much higher than the prevailing price in Peterborough.

Toronto Is Talking

When our King and Queen come to Canada where will they stay if they visit Toronto, our provincial capital? Toronto has already discussed that to the extent of many voices and many columns and no finality of answer has been given. One set of deep thinkers suggest that Casa Loma is the place; it looks something like a spot associated with royalty, but a service club in Toronto has been drawing funds for its work by making a show-place of it and there is no desire to quit the premises.

Premier Hepburn is dead set against Casa Loma, and he is certain the province is not going to spend a dollar trying to make that "architectural monstrosity" a fit place for the royal visitors. Chorley Park, formerly the home of the Lieutenant-Governor, but now closed and in the hands of a hospital, comes in the same class as far as Mr. Hepburn is concerned. It also is of the "monstrosity" type.

Some one else has suggested reserving an entire floor in the largest hotel, while others suggest there are palatial homes in Toronto which might be placed at the disposal of the Royal visitors.

Lieut.-Governor Matthews is the representative of His Majesty in the province and it would seem fitting that he should have something to say about the arrangements, but so far all the other folk, big and little, have been talking so hard that Mr. Matthews has not been able to make himself heard.

Would Not Be Easy

If the question is raised of returning colonies to Germany it is going to be a complicated business. One example alone will illustrate that. Tanganyika formerly was German East Africa, a colony which Germany lost following the Great War. It is now governed by Britain under a mandate from the League of Nations. The League of Nations may have been looked upon as a strong body at the time the mandates were being distributed, but has since proved itself weak in dealing with situations in which large and powerful nations were concerned.

Whether Britain is anxious to retain Tanganyika is something on which there appears to be little information. But the East African Board, although not an official body, has already warned Britain it would object seriously to having the colony returned to Germany, and there have been other protests more official in nature which show that South Africa would object to Britain releasing former German colonies now governed by Britain.

So the British government would face the delicate situation of dealing with an expectant Germany and satisfying her own self-governing Dominions at the same time and that would call for a brand of diplomacy which has not yet been invented.

Meant a Great Deal

Gilmour Memorial Baptist church is 100 years old and is marking the occasion in a fitting way. Records and church minutes were not kept in early years with the same accuracy as they are today, but there are several families whose history dates back to the founding of this church and from generation to generation history and anecdote have been passed along to make a fairly authentic report.

These churches which date back close to the beginning of things are more important than the buildings themselves. They represent the attitude, the desire and the outlook of the folk who first entered the district. Life was not an easy matter then and of money there was little. But of strong desire there was a great supply, and that quality may have been more abundant than it is today.

The people wanted some place where they could gather together for worship. The first places erected were possibly humble indeed, but they were actually greater than the logs and the boards which gave them visible form. They stood like sentinels in a new land telling that it was being peopled by God-fearing folk. Much of the spiritual and moral strength we possess today was born in such places.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Just when we were breathing easier after getting the war excitement out of the air comes the announcement of a possible Federal election next year.

Elevated super-highways running through buildings are predicted. Some of the present day drivers have tried to start that kind of thing on their own account.

University of Toronto students have voted for a marriage course. We hope this would not be followed by post-graduate work in divorce laws.

Folk wearing bathing suits must keep out of Toronto parks and off the streets. The Queen City continues to live up to its reputation as the fussiest big town in the country.

Again the regulation 100,000 people are attending the Ontario plowing match. The attendance never seems to get above that figure but then again it never falls below.

Italy has been asked by United States to give the Jews equality with other citizens. Trouble seems to be that the supply of equality runs out in several European countries before it comes time to serve the Jews.

The shipping season via Hudson Bay is over with the departure of the third and last ship carrying grain to Europe. We hope those who were so enthusiastic for this route are now quite satisfied that they were wrong all the way through.

Two men who figure to some degree in the reward for the capture of Hauptmann in the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby are now fighting it out to see how the money shall be divided. The only points which appear certain in that case are that the baby was kidnapped and Hauptmann was electrocuted.

EXAMPLE

(By A. R. K.)

¶ When old Columbus sailed away, I've often heard the people say, and likely it is true; he really didn't have a chart, nor did he know the rules by heart, of what he meant to do.

¶ Sea-faring rules were simple then, but they were brave and dauntless men, with nothing much to fear; they went and left the folk alone, they didn't know when they'd get home, they might be gone a year.

¶ And it got noised among the crew, that Chris knew not the thing to do, nor when or where he'd land; and they were filled with hate and fire, they'd tie him up with bits of wire, a nasty sort of band.

¶ But old Columbus knew his stuff, nor did he use the sailors rough, or fill them full of lead; he just kept watching star and moon, and how the sun hung at noon, but kept on going ahead.

¶ And when the crew said they were lost, and named the trip an awful frost, and hammered on his door; Columbus scoffed at turning back, nor was he yet a beaten hack, he sailed ahead some more.

¶ I guess that rule of his was good, when things don't go like how they should, but get mussed up instead; just do the very best you can, and be a cool and honest man — and keep on going ahead.

China Can Fight Twenty Years

HANKOW MAY FALL and tremendous suffering may be inflicted on the Chinese, but the Japanese will never conquer China in the opinion of Dr. A. J. Brace, well known in Peterborough, who spent 25 years in that country as a university professor and Y.M.C.A. worker.

Dr. Brace, who is spending his period of furlough from China working as an organization secretary for the International Commission of World Service of the Y.M.C.A., expressed the belief that the Japanese would welcome an opportunity to withdraw from China if they could do so without serious loss of face.

Dr. Brace's eldest son, Carman, is an executive in the transport department of the Chinese Government at Hankow and keeps his father constantly informed about new developments in China. His uncensored letters reach this country in 10 days from Hankow, via the American Airways clipper service from Canton.

In his last letter, only three weeks ago, Dr. Brace's son said that while Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek was determined to hold Hankow as long as possible the loss of the temporary capital would not make any vital difference in the plan of campaign. The Chinese would pursue their "scorched earth policy" of leaving nothing of value to the invaders and would withdraw further to the interior, tempting the Japanese to lengthen their lines of communication still more and making the invaders more vulnerable than ever to guerilla attacks.

According to the letter, 31 Japanese garrisons had been wiped out in the Province of Shansi alone and forces of 25,000 had dwindled to 5,000 without any major battles being fought.

BUILDING ROADS

Two great motor roads are being built by the Chinese, Dr. Brace stated. One leads to Burma and the other to Russia. Some 500,000 coolies are at work on the old caravan road used by Marco Polo, transforming it into a modern motor highway.

Dr. Brace said Chiang Kai-Shek intends to use the four provinces furthest from the sea which have a combined population of more than 100,000,000 as a nucleus of Chinese resistance even if the whole Yangtse Valley is lost. There he is building 16 arsenals and 40 huge airdromes, and there he feels he can hold out for 20 years if necessary.

After the fall of Nanking the Japanese made overtures for peace, Dr. Brace recalled. When they told Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek his capital had fallen, he pointed out that he had eight more capitals if necessary. At that time the Japanese presented five demands through German diplomats. These included cession of the five provinces of North China; occupation of Shanghai; ousting of all British and American advisers; installation of Japanese gendarmes in Central China; and a cash indemnity from China to cover the cost of the Japanese military operations. The Chinese leader replied that China would not treat with Japan until the Japanese armies were withdrawn.

The Japanese have not been able to understand the new spirit in China which has resulted in the unification of the country, Dr. Brace believes. Instead of crushing Communism the Japanese invasion had solidified Chinese relations with Russia.

THE COMMUNISTS

These are based purely on mutual advantage, rather than on common ideas, Dr. Brace declared. Chinese Communism is quite distinct from the Russian variety and is intensely national. Should anything happen the present leader he believes that power would pass to the former Communist military leaders.

Chiang Kai-Shek's chief crime, in Japanese eyes, Dr. Brace stated, is that he was trained in Japan, speaks Japanese and knows Japanese aims too well.

He declared that by averting war in Europe, Britain saved, for the time being at least, her possessions in the East. He charged that the Japanese would welcome a world war in order to drive the British and Americans from the Far East and settle their scores with Russia.

The Japanese believe in the manifest destiny of their nation to save the world, and in the event of a victory over China would become an immediate menace to New Zealand and Australia as well as to British interests in the Far East. He feels that Japan is closely allied with the other Fascist powers and that a Japanese victory would be a Fascist triumph and would mean disaster for the democracies.

Chinese, Dr. Brace states, are afraid that British financial and commercial interests may attempt to make terms with Japan and to cut off the aid which China is now receiving in munitions and supplies.

MORNING GROUCH.

(New York Times)

THE SURGEON who operated on James Roosevelt at the Mayo Clinic did very well by his patient, but not so well by the peace of the American home. The President's son is making a fine recovery, but Dr. Howard Gray, speaking before a group of professional colleagues in Chicago, implied that it is a distinction to have stomach ulcers. The ailment is mainly due to the pace of modern life. Men who are always on the go, who are always keyed up, are most susceptible to peptic troubles. Dr. Gray thinks ulcers are "almost a compliment" to a man.

It is plain what this news, when it gets abroad, will do to family peace in America. Wives who have hitherto put up with just ordinary dyspepsia across the breakfast table are now told that they are dealing with unrecognized greatness.

Husbands will be encouraged to feel more than ever sorry for themselves. They are not only sick men who are denied proper sympathy but exceptional men who are not sufficiently appreciated.

• What Does the Farmer Keep?

TO THE EDITOR: In view of the decision of the Dominion government not to include Ontario farmers within the scope of the 1938 operation of the Wheat Board, would you be good enough to use the following quotation, as to wheat-growing costs, from the editorial columns of your contemporary The Telegraph-Journal (St. John, N. B.) and permit a brief comment on same?

"By cutting corners in certain instances, he" (a live-stock and machinery dealer in Alberta who owns and operates six farms, all of them paid for) "says costs can be reduced to $5 an acre. Twenty-five bushels at fifty cents will return $12.50, leaving $7.50 profit. Of course, it is pointed out, from this profit must come the carrying charges on the land, taxes, repairs to fences and buildings, upkeep of machinery and other incidental expenses, and in addition there are the living expenses of the farmer and his family. On the basis of an eighty-cent price per bushel, the gross return would amount to $20 per twenty-five bushel acre, or $15 after paying the cost of seeding, harvesting and delivery. I or a 640-acre farm, not unusual in Western Canada, the net return would total $9,600."

(The figures look pleasant enough, Mr. Editor, but it is just shameful what the facts do to them. It will be noted, for instance, that the above-quoted grower speaks of "twenty-five bushels at fifty cents," indicating that he actually gets—and retains—that price. Further along in the above picture it is assumed that the only deductions to be made from "an eighty-cent price per bushel" would be "the cost of seeding, harvesting and delivery." Unfortunately, for the farmer, even if he delivers No. 1 Northern at the Wheat Board's eighty-cent "peg," elevator and freight "costs" call for $4.20 for each 25 bushels sold. It is apparent, therefore, that the average grower delivering a bushel of the top grade of the grain, at the board's price, actually receives 63 cents at his country elevator. There are many other features in this wheat picture which cannot be gone into here. Who ever heard of 640 acres of wheat on a 640-acre farm? Moreover, the twenty-five bushel fiction should be taken with reservations. Alberta's yield this year averages 17.7 bushels; Manitoba's 15.7 bushels; Saskatchewan's 10.4 bushels.

• Say $1 Fishing Fee Should Stay

EDITOR EXAMINER, Sir: The sunshine and warm weather of these closing days of the fishing season, serve to aggravate those of us who tried to do our fall fishing during the very wet days of September. Except for occasional bright spots in the season the year of 1938 will be remembered as an off season for fishing in the Peterborough section.

During my September sojourn by the fireplace and radio while the rain poured down on Lake Chemong, I chanced to read a statement by an official of the "Department of Fisheries," regarding the discontinuing of the three day—$1.00 license, because it was abused, and because there was no way to check it or prevent the changing of names, etc.

The $1.00—3-day fee was by far the most attractive offering Ontario has made to residents of these border States. It provided a way by which we could spend one or several week-ends in Canada for $1.00 each trip. Its discontinuation has turned the Ohio trade to the far superior fishing around the islands of lakes Erie and Ontario, and to Michigan and Wisconsin for longer vacations.

There is such a thing as "Safety paper," used for bank checks, which cannot be easily changed. May I make a suggestion for the approval or condemnation of our Ontario friends, for it is they who are the losers. Issue a 3-day permit, printed on safety paper, bearing on the margin all the legal dates between July 1st and September 15th. When the permit is purchased have the agent punch out the three days on which it is desired to fish. Allow any three days in any ten-day period, thus permitting a man to spend some time with his family at the resorts or in town or in sightseeing. The license fee is only a very small part of the cash a party would leave in Canada and more men would be accompanied by their families.

The abuse of any license is up to the agent and the game wardens. It is no secret that one $5.50 license often returns to Canada with a different fisherman each time, and many have fished for years without a license. In fifteen years of fishing, some 100 or more weeks, I have encountered only two wardens. Always interested in sending more Clevelanders to the Peterborough section, I would appreciate the comment of your readers.

Cordially yours,
WALTER H. STARK.

FISHING PROBLEM.

(Maclean's Magazine)

THREE Nova Scotia inshore fishermen, after toiling from daybreak to noon, landed 423 pounds of fish.

The Halifax Herald prints the following report of what happened.

For the catch, the fishermen were paid $3.68.

From the $3.68 the fishermen had to deduct $1 for delivery to market, leaving $2.68 to pay for three men's work, gasoline, bait, and upkeep of boat and gear.

Of the 423-pound catch, 324 pounds were sold to retail customers.

The consumers paid for those 324 pounds of fish a total of $30.20.

Housewives paid almost ten times the gross earnings of the fishermen.

Whether or not the circumstances in this specific case were exceptional we do not know. But study of prices paid to fishermen and prices paid by the consumer over a period of some weeks shows a very wide range indeed.

Many Nova Scotians wonder why the Dominion Government, while guaranteeing western wheat prices, fails to enquire into the plight of the fisherman, who, in pursuing his calling, often endangers his life.

SHRUNKEN PRAGUE.

(New York Times)

UNDER the Habsburgs, Bohemia and Moravia for centuries constituted an economic unit, the farmers of Moravia and inner Bohemia finding their chief market in the outer industrial districts now claimed by Germany. Czechoslovakia's industry is largely based on lignite, or brown coal, which Germany will acquire. Though the frontiers of the new State are still indefinite, it is certain that Germany will get some of the country's most important textile, glass and chemical works. Germany, as a result, will be greatly strengthened both in an economic and military sense. But the economic outlook of Prague and the people who remain in the shrunken and dismembered Czechoslovak State is now a dark one.

OF HUMBLE ORIGIN.

(Toronto Globe and Mail)

THERE IS FOOD for thought in the fact that three of the national leaders at the meeting in Munich are of humble origin: Daladier a baker's son, Mussolini the son of a blacksmith and "hard up" in his youthful years, while all the world knows that Hitler was a paper-hanger. And there they are as heads of world powers. Only by hard work, and the spur of ambition may young men get along like this.

PUTTING IT GENTLY.

(Regina Leader-Post)

THE TINY TEMPEST raised about the ears of Professor Carlyle King of the University of Saskatchewan as a result of his reported remarks upon British foreign policy, might just as well subside without anyone losing sleep over it.

The mail that comes daily to the desk of a newspaper editor shows that the woods are full of "experts" upon this and that. Young Dr. King is an expert on English literature, but not on British foreign policy, as far as we know. It is clear that the importance to be given to anyone's views depends on whether he knows what he is talking about or not.

THE COST.

(Hamilton Spectator)

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT has loaned $50,000,000 to the government of Czechoslovakia. This sum is to be used in economic reconstruction, refugee settlement and other urgent tasks arising out of the Munich agreement.

It sounds like quite a large amount of money for use in peace. It would be nothing for use in war—it is merely the cost of one of Britain's great battleships, like the Nelson.

From 1933 to 1938 the costs of world armaments went up from $4,000,000,000 to $17,000,000,000. At what price is this economic sacrifice? The "guns before butter" rule, inflicted on the people of the dictatorships, has called the tune to the rest of the world. And the strength of its impact was only realized less than a month ago.

RED CAP SERVICE.

(The New Yorker)

MISS ANNE MORGAN'S secretary, who, her admirers tell us, is red-headed and a double for Billie Burke, was on her way home from a vacation in the West and between trains in Chicago dashed off a postcard to her sister. "I hope I make this train," she concluded hurriedly, and handed the card to a Red Cap, asking him to mail it. When her sister got the message, it bore a neat, pencilled postscript: "She made it. Respectfully yours, Red Cap."

LORD RUNCIMAN'S STAY.

(Glasgow Bulletin).

When Lord Runciman left for Prague he remarked that he would be away from London circles a month or three months. In political circles in London the hope is being expressed that he will remain in Prague for another two months at least. The contention is that the longer he stays there the better from the standpoint of peace and good will.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

AND IT CAME TO pass on a certain day, as he was teaching, that there were Pharisees and doctors of the law sitting by, which were come out of every town of Galilee, and Judaea, and Jerusalem: and the power of the Lord was present to heal them.

And, behold, men brought in a bed a man whoch was taken with palsy: and they sought means to bring him in, and to lay him before him. And when they could not find by what way they might bring him in because of the multitude, they went upon the housetop, and let him down through the tiling with his couch into the midst before Jesus.

And when he saw their faith, he said unto him, Man, thy sins are forgiven thee. And the scribes and the Pharisees began to reason, saying, Who is this which speaketh blasphemies? who can forgive sins, but God alone?

But when Jesus perceived their thoughts, he answering said unto them, What reason ye in your hearts? Whether is easier, to say: Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Rise up and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power upon earth to forgive sins, (he said unto the sick of the palsy,) I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy couch, and go into thine house.

And immediately he rose up before them, and took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his own house, glorifying God. And they were all amazed, and they glorified God, and were filled with fear, saying, We have seen strange things to-day.—Luke v, 17-26.

SEVEN CENT GAS TAX.

(Windsor Star)

ACCORDING TO THE Detroit Free Press, "a State has to have a lot of scenery to overcome a seven-cent gasoline tax."

To which a reader of the Star adds: "Ditto to Ontario."

Seven cents a gallon is too high a tax on motor fuel. If the Provincial Government decides to put it into effect it will be taking one more step toward killing the goose that lays the golden eggs. The motorists of this province, and the thousands of outside motorists who visit us, have contributed many millions of dollars to the public coffers in this way. But there is a limit to their endurance and to their patience. They can be pushed just so far. When the limit is reached they are bound to rebel. And then the revenue starts dropping in alarming fashion.

LIONS ARE CHEAP.

(London Observer)

LION CUBS, IT IS believed three in number, were born recently to Bessie, a lioness who herself was born in the Regent's Park menagarie.

The lions on exhibition in the Zoo now number over 20.

It is not so long ago that a pair of lions cost anything from £100 to £150. Today, owing to the strides that have been made in menagerie-keeping, involving the use of artificial sunlight, and the various discoveries in medicine, nearly all zoos have been successful in breeding these animals.

As a result they are of very little value, and most zoological gardens would, in fact, be quite willing to present a pair of lions to anyone prepared to pay the cost of their transport. Lions have been kept for nearly 30 years in captivity.

A Bit of Nonsense

Agreeable

"My husband admires everything about me—my voice, my hands, my eyes, my very shadow.

"And what do you admire about him?"

"His good taste!"

Proof?

Counsel—You say this man was drunk?

Witness (cautiously) — Well, I said that he sat in his car for three hours in front of a street excavation waiting for the light to turn green.

Nazis To Demand Czechs Cut Old Bonds

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—(AP). — The Czechoslovak foreign minister, Frantisek Chvalkovsky, came to Berlin today to talk of the new relationship with Germany and political quarters said he would be urged to break old ties with Soviet Russia and France.

How far Czechoslovakia should bind herself economically to Germany, now that Germany has taken Czechslovak Sudetenland, also was an important question before Chvalkovsky in his talks with Joachim Von Ribbentrop, the Reich foreign minister.

(The Havas News Agency said Chvalkovsky would see Chancellor Hitler at Berchtesgaden.)

Political informants held Germany would insist Czechoslovakia abandon her alliance with Russia, in accordance with Nazi principle, and that France geographically was not in position to offer anything, so Chvalkovsky had better make the best arrangements possible with his next door neighbor.

Field Marshal Hermann Goering's newspaper, National Zeitung, outlined Germanys viewpoint thus:

"German policy, which accomplished the return of Sudeten German territory to the Reich, will not be influenced against the new Czechoslovak state by hostile reminiscences.

"It is much more to the point to see that, in place of a former centre of unrest, the state is contented domestically and adapts itself organically and sensibly to the middle European situation in foreign politics."

Bound To Learn

VANCOUVER, Oct. 14—(CP).—William Newcombe, young Vancouver artist, left for Clinton, Ont., Wednesday in the hope he can learn what farm life is really like. Newcombe thinks he has an idea for a comic strip, and wants to get it syndicated. One character is "Heezy," a farm boy.

"You've got to know your character to draw him," Newcombe said. "He's going to work on a farm to find out what kind of character "Heezy" ought to be.

To Police Czech Area

Major Sir Francis Fetherston-Goley, pictured ABOVE, National chairman of the British Legion, will lead legion volunteers who will police Czech plebiscite areas. The legion's offer to send a force of 1,000 "bowler-hatted, peace-loving men" to police the plebiscite areas was accepted by the British government.

As Poland Took Teschen

Threshing Engine Crashes Bridge

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, Oct. 14—Mr. Percy Crawford met with an unfortunate experience one morning last week when crossing the marsh bridge north of the village with his threshing outfit.

Just as the engine was in the centre of the bridge it crashed through. A block and tackle was secured and with the aid of several men and two trucks the machine was finally extricated just before dark.

Traffic was directed through the farm of Elwood Grandy.

This bridge has been in a questionable condition for some time. It was built twenty-five or thirty years ago by the late Christopher Armstrong.

Thanksgiving Service

"The significance of Thanksgiving with special references to our profound thanks for the measure of peace which we trust will be presented" was the theme of an interesting and appropriate address delivered by the pastor, Rev. A.Y.P.A. Officers Are Installed

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, Oct. 14.—The afternoon service on Sunday at St. Mary's Anglican church, Manvers, was held as a celebration of installation of officers of the A.Y.P.A. and was conducted by the rector, Rev. A. R. Holden. The following are the officers: President, Robert Reid; Vice-President, Harold Page; Treasurer, Gordon Smith; Secretary, Marjorie Page.

After each new officer had taken the pledge of fidelity, they were presented with a badge of office.

The retiring officers were commended and tendered hearty thanks for their loyal services.

Special prayers were offered for Thanksgiving and the forthcoming Ontario conference.

$285,000 Yacht!

BAY CITY, Mich., Oct. 14—(CP)—The first sea-going yacht built by a United States resident since 1932 has been completed here at a cost of $285,000, but nobody seems to know the new owner. The boat builders refused to tell the secret. The 290-ton boat has a 16-knot cruising speed, $30,000 worth of decorations and will cost $4,000 a month to operate.

Six Credit Houses Are Opened Under Alberta's New Scheme

EDMONTON, Oct. 14.—(CP). — With Hon. D. B. Mullen, Alberta Minister of Agriculture, the first depositor, the Edmonton Credit House was opened here yesterday by the Alberta Government without formal ceremony.

Sixth house or branch of the Provincial Treasury Department to be opened, the Edmonton branch is located in the courthouse. C. A. Gogan, former bank employee, is manager of the branch with a staff of three.

Designed to increase purchasing power and encourage manufacture of Alberta made goods, the credit houses are under direction of Hon. Solon Low, Provincial Treasurer. Cash is received from depositors either as individuals or as retail merchants.

Depositors receive pass books and non-negotiable transfer vouchers which are to be accepted by co-operating merchants for purchase of goods. The vouchers are then deposited to the credit of the merchants.

A bonus of two per cent is paid on three times the value of Alberta goods purchased by use of the vouchers. Cash withdrawals may be made to the extent of cash deposits but bonus credits can be withdrawn in cash only after a two per cent discount. Merchants may withdraw cash to the replacement value of the merchandise sold.

Pain Like Knife From STOMACH TROUBLE

If you suffer from stomach pains you'll sympathize with Mr. J. F. S., of Ipswich. "Sometimes," he writes, "I had taken only half my dinner and had to walk about the room, the pain was so dreadful, like a knife." But Mr. J. F. S. no longer suffers stomach trouble, and he owes his happy recovery to the highly effective action of the four alkalies prescribed by stomach specialists.

You can take these same alkalies, as Mr. J. F. S. did, simply by getting a bottle of Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. These alkalies are perfectly balanced in Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. They relieve pain extremely rapidly. And they do more. They soothe inflamed stomach walls with a protective coating which allows the stomach to recover its normal functioning. Get Maclean Brand Stomach Powder (always in bottles in cartons) from your druggist. Look for the signature "Alex. C. Maclean" which must appear on every bottle and carton. Maclean Brand Stomach Powder is not genuine without this signature. Never sold loose. 125

"I'll admit the automotive plants don't buy my eggs, but they paid wages to 130,000 Canadian workers and their dependents who bought over 33 million eggs last year.

"They bought our butter, milk, cheese, wheat, wool and livestock too. They had money to pay the barber, dentist and doctor, and to buy the food, clothing and the needs and comforts of life made by other thousands of workers.

"Export markets are uncertain. Our factory employees are our best market. Industry and agriculture have got to work together in this country. What's good for one is good for both."

• • • • •

A fair estimate of the agricultural products purchased by employees of plants making cars, parts and materials would be: 507,000 bushels of wheat, 2,126 tons of butter, 8,281 tons of meat, 229 tons of cheese, 1,179 tons of poultry, in addition to immense quantities of milk, honey and numerous other products. Think of these figures when you buy an automobile.

"IT'S THE TOBACCO THAT COUNTS"

ONLY THREE LEAF FACES ARE MISSING AS CLUB RALLIES

Team To Start Training Early In Week

TORONTO, Oct. 14. — A visit to a local hotel on Thursday evening in search of Art Ross, boss of Boston Bruins N.H.L. Club, failed to produce the always-interesting Arthur, but it did produce Gordon Drillon, Toronto Maple Leafs' right-wing ace, who led the major puck circuit in scoring last season.

A recent arrival here from his home city of Moncton, N.B., Drillon says he is feeling fine, and he certainly looks the part. Although the big boy's frame still is in process of filling out, he weighs only four pounds more than when he reported to go to training camp last year. Then he weighed 183 pounds stripped; now he tips the scales at 187. A summer spent in playing softball and tennis evidently kept Gordie in the proverbial pink.

Drillon Limbers Up.

Drillon's first move after reaching Toronto was....guess what? Unable to wait until the Leafs and Syracuse Stars reach the Preston-Galt training camp next Monday, he went to Royals Rink for some limbering-up on skates.

The sharpshooting winger has not yet been tendered a contract for 1938-39, but he doesn't expect to have any difficulty when it comes time to sign on the dotted line. He expects Manager Smythe to arrange the contract on a bonus plan for scoring production, and he says that will be okay with him.

Among the signs that Indian Summer is passing will be the gathering of many puck-chasers here in the next few days. Many of the Boston Bruins and Hershey B'ars, their new farm club in the International-American League, will assemble in Toronto to-day before being transported to their training camp at Hershey, Pa., on Saturday. Herb. Mitchell, the Hershey coach, was on the job here on Thursday, and either Art Ross or Cooney Weiland will have the job of herding the burly Bruins into camp. The useful Weiland has succeeded Lionel Hitchman as Bruins' assistant coach and he will also double in brass as spare forward on the line-up.

Eagerness of the young Leafs to again get going on the job is shown by the fact that, although they are not due to go to camp until next Monday, only three of them are not right here now. Kelly, Chamberlain, and Kampman are the only ones who are not in Toronto. Drillon, Broda, Boll, Armstrong, Metz, and Coach Irvin have arrived to swell the ranks of those who live here the year around.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

LIKE THE KID in the toy department, we want to see a lot of things, by golly, at the Grounds ala Exhibish tomorrow aft. When the Balmy Beaches and the Orfuns clash at 2.30 by your pawned ticker. We want to see the great Ab Box kicking and passing like he does in eight-column headlines in the Toronto papers. We want to see the mighty Ponton pack which were a cinch to cop Canadian senior grid honors—till Sarnia beat 'em in Toronto last Monday. We wish to see if they're still sore at Herb Hendrie and Bill Irwin of Orfuns for leaving 'em, and what they'll do about it. And what Herb and Bill will do back, too! We desire to view the work of bruising Bill Flack, chunky Johnny Shields and rugged Joe McNulty against high-class opposition. We also wanna see if the Beaches can do any more toward stopping scrappy Don Crowe and swivel-hipped Mike Loucks than the Nats didn't do in Montreal.

• • • • • •

WE ARE ALSO CURIOUS to witness the work of other good local gridders 'gainst the Balmy ones now that they've got over their nervousness. We won't bet the family silverware on a local win, yet we do expect the Orfuns to surprise the Beaches and a lot of folks—several thousand, in fact—with their battling class here tomorrow. The gaily bedecked Orfuns had their baptism in Montreal and did fine in the last half, but this week they shouldn't have a a bad first half. They should go out there and fight their heads off before the home crowd and show the cocky Torontos that the Peterborough bunch are not the setups expected. The Orfuns have nothing to lose and everything to gain, which is always the time to strut your stuff, with all stops pulled out. Come on, you alligators, swing it hot!

• • • • • •

It's a Strong Wind

BEING in the neighborhood of Hiawatha the other day, we dropped in to see old Spit-in-the-Wind, the famous guide and weather prevaricator. Asked him what the Orfuns would do this fall, though rugby is rather out of his line of fish stories and fleecing tourists. "Ugh," grunted the old gent, as he took a chaw of licorice, "I stand by big water and I hear big wind. I listen and I do not like it. You neither would like it if you had swapped your heavy underwear for a jug of firewater last March! I hear wind moaning and groaning like Mrs. Spit-in-the-Wind when she eats too much. It means a long winter with six people breaking legs on ice sidewalks in the west end. It says prices will go up as people go down, and there will be another crisis in Europe. It says—ouch!"

• • • • • •

THE "OUCH" was a natural reaction to a kick in the shin, as we interrupted him "Hey, what about the Orfuns?" we asked the old grunter. "Uh," says he, with a licorice belch, "listen to the wind but all he says is much ice for hockey games which means many braves and squaws will try to buy tickets to matches, and there will be many orphans at home. And—" but we saw old Spit-in-the-Wind had got his signals crossed, no doubt reaping the fruit of a summer's search which revealed a crock of redeye, aged in the woods nearby. So we took our ha t and our departure—though we pass this info of a stiff winter along to the puck moguls at only the nominal charge of three cents. And they also get the war news, funnies, ads and all.

• • • • • •

Hurry, Hurry, Hurry

IT IS NOT OUR INTENTION to do a circus barker's yell. Our coat of arms (though shabby) is not a chisel rampant on a doublecross. Nor do we go for Barnum's motto: "Never give a sucker an even break." Grid fans and others who go to see this game are not suckers. They'll get their money's worth, or can have it back. They'll see a lot of fine football, plenty of furious action, and two nifty senior squads in a real battle. The tilt will draw hundreds of people from a long way off to see the Beaches and Orfuns play—so don't pass it up, folks.

• • • • • •

WHILE THE PETES won the O.L.A. senior "B" championship—that is the Ontario title—this year, the boys had to travel nearly half way around the world to do it, yassuh! They covered 11,440 miles, according to Alex Fitzgerald's figures, playing a double schedule with their own group, a single interlocking one with another, plus playdowns and exhibitions. Played 38 games. Only car accident in all their travels was a small dent in a fender, and the only serious player accident in their many hard frays was a broken wrist by Jack Weston-felt—and he played with it. Of course, there were many sprains, pulled tendons, cuts and bruises—but what are little things like these to lacrossers? A player who finishes a tough season without being hemstitched like a ladies' blouse feels like a sissy.

A Gutted-Stick Gathering

THE LACROSSE PLAYERS and executive will hold a meeting tonight at eight o'clock in the Y.M.C.A. and all should be present. It's a business gabfest to wind up things for the season. Dunno how the club did financially but they had good gates most of the summer, even if their travelling expenses were heavy in a big double group and injuries were fairly frequent. Some recognition of the lacrosse championship here should be made as the battle-scarred Petes proved popular with hundreds of fans and they certainly earned their laurels in more than four months of tough going.

MANAGER EDDIE MURPHY and his ballsters are off early tomorrow a.m. for Hamilton to tilt with Stratford Nationals in the deciding game for the senior O.B.A. championship. They should win it, too, if they play their usual brand of baseball. Scores will be wired back every three innings, and the game is at 2.30 o'clock. Good luck, gang, tote home the title! The last local team to hit senior ball finals was in '27 when the Petes lost out to Hamilton. Our squad that semester included: Al Heckman, Jeff Hardill, Max Swanston, Hap Harrison, Ray Rose, Tommy Holyman, Shiner Johnston, Jimmy Hall, Fred Ash, Jake Hall, Ike Batten and Lambert Collins. Most of these gents are still living here but they have hung up their spikes, some only fairly recently. Many have added a bulge about the equator, but all are still hot ball fans.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—(AP). — Some queer things are happening out there in that Minnesota football powerhouse. . . Bernie Bierman has a 217-pound fullback (Larry Buhler) playing right half and running the ends. . . . Wilbur Moore, born and bred a right-half, is playing left and tearing the tackles apart for amazing yardage. . . Bierman has a converted fullback—George Faust—playing quarter, and, oh yes, just for a change, Fullback Marty Christianson is playing fullback. . . There is a hard-boiled hockey defence man (Mariucci) with a lot of body checking talent playing one end, and a basketball hot-shot guard (Butch Nash) playing the other. . . Guards play tackle and tackles play guard.

Baseball gossipers have Burleigh Grimes catching on at Rochester and Jimmy Wilson at Buffalo. . . Just to show you how Bill McKechnie feels about his second base problem, he has offered Lines Frey, Wally Berger and a promising kid catcher, Will Hershberger, to Boston for the aging Tony Cuccinello. . . . The Messrs. Bill Terry and Larry MacPhail didn't almost square off against each other during the World Series, did they? . . . All because Brooklyn defeated a pitcher (Ross Eans) Terry had bought for Jersey City? . . . Anyway, their feud is at the "berling pernt," as the say in Brooklyn. . .

Ernie Lombardi of the Reds won the National League batting championship with a pair of sprained and tightly-taped wrists during the last three weeks of the season. . . They were so swollen the club doctor told him to quit and go home. . . Old Ernie stuck and won the title with a mark of .342. . .

Conacher Goes To Detroit

When the 1938-39 National Hockey League season opens next month it is more than likely that Charlie Conacher, ABOVE, for the past decade an outstanding star on right wing for Toronto Maple Leafs, will be in the line-up of Detroit Red Wings. Conacher, forced out of the game last season because of a general weakened condition, aftermath of an old injury, was thought to be through with the game for good. However, he is reported to be in fine shape again and an agreement for his sale was made between the Leafs and Red Wings. All that remains is for Conacher to agree to the terms offered by Jack Adams' outfit.

Mussing Up the Maples

Forty-two teams of C.G.E., Bankers, Loblaws and City Leaguers was the turnout at Duffus' Recreation last night (Thursday.) The preliminary 16 team C.G.E. squad shot out 13 men with 600 or better. Joe Marsden and A. Ferguson led the parade with 703 each. J. W. Copping 683, T. Millar 659, P. Pryde 646, D. Pilling 633, J. Tobin 632, J. Lalonde 622, J. Barry 614, D. Hall 614, R. Mason 611, W. Westran 609, and G. Jay 603. Copping and Ferguson walloped off 347 and 307 singles.

For the Bankers, E. R. Taylor of the Montreal chalked up 701, Leclair of George St. included a 304 single in his 687, and McKillop of the Toronto again stood out with 628. A 272 single by W. McDonald was the best score for 4 mixed teams of Loblaw bowlers.

In the initial appearance of 6 City League teams, 16 men went over the top, Bill Masters had a large evening when he took on all comers with a 790 total. Fred Martin knocked down 788 pins. V. Anthony 769, W. Stanbury 761, L. McIntosh 710, G. Caird 702, G. Walton 698, E. White 672, W. Firth 633, T. Cupoli 656, S. Turner 650, R. Dyer 644, N. Routley 631, W. Weese 628, R. Lewis 620, and G. Gimblett 617. Martin and Anthony turned in 379 and 318 singles.

The Capitol Grill team took the lead in points by taking all 3 games from the Barbers. Thirty pins on the aggregate for Pattenicks saved them a tie with Duffus team and K. of C. had to roll 3,327 to take 3 points out of 4 from Grafton's with 3,292

In the 9.30 o'clock ten team C. G.E. league, Frank Woods' 790 topped the following good scores: Les Calladine 765, K. Whatley 727, F. Parson 712, George Walton 695, Chuck Kearns 694, C. Cox 668, R. Dyer 648, J. F. Reid 622, P. Halliday 617, M. Ruiter 602. Whatley, Parsons and Dyer pumping off 356, 332 and 311 single games.

Walter Firth of the City League states there are still vacancies for a few good teams in this Blood and Thunder Loop.

Mountain Fighting

HENDAYE, France, Oct. 14—(AP) —The insurgents, aided by heavy reinforcements, succeeded today in driving government militiamen partly out of the strategic positions they had recaptured in the Pandol Mountains on the Ebro front. The Government insisted, however, that its troops still were holding the dominant hills commanded the entire range.

Liquor And Food

DIDSOURY, Alta., Oct. 14—(CP) —Price of one bottle of liquor—$3.00—will buy 14 items of food, sufficient for a large family for three days, delegates to the 25th annual convention of the Alberta branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union were told here yesterday.

In the convention hall a liquor bottle—an empty one—is part of a temperance display. Beside it is an array of groceries. "Three dollars worth the price of the bottle when full," says a label.

Orfuns Are Set For Real Scrap

Coach Alex Ponton's Balmy Beach team will be minus a couple of regulars here tomorrow when the Toronto senior O.R.F.U. outfit meets Peterborough Orfuns at 2.30 o'clock in the Exhibition Grounds. Charlie Box and Bert Haigh, outside wings, are on the injured list. But Ab Box, noted passer and kicker, will be on hand for this senior opening here, and the Orfuns will have to hold him if they hope to stand a fair chance. Aside from C. Box and Haigh, the Beaches should be at full strength and will be hard to stop with their open style and razzle-dazzle plays, plus distance hoofing. However, the Orfuns will be considerably better than in their game with Montreal, and promise to give the Balmy Beach bunch a mansized battle Saturday. It should draw a huge crowd of city, district and outside fans.

In Harry Marsh, the locals have a first-rate flying wing who will hold his own against Beaches. So will such halves as Don Crowe, Mick Magee and Mike Loucks. At quarter, Bill Irwin is a former Beach star and he and Herb Hendrie (ex-Beach snap) are liable to have a real battle with their former teammates, rivalry over their move being strong. Earl Spencely and Ed Prete looked good in Montreal at inside positions, while two big boys, Bill Flack and Al Winslow, will be tough to pierce at middles. Leo Deadey, former Argo star, and Maurice Giardino are fine outside wings. The alternates have class, too, including: Curly Krug, Gord McIntyre, Joe McNulty, Jerry Creighton, Johnny Shields, Don Hendren, Jim Lambert, Ross Pulkinghorn, Frank Spencely, Jack Deadey, Lloyd Grose and Pup Curtin. This bunch, over their nervousness, will give the Beaches and the fans a real scrap of it here tomorrow.

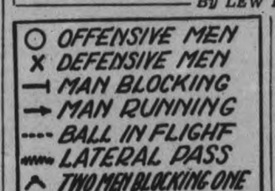
FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

Wherein We Give You Two Good Forward Pass Plays

By LEW HAYMAN



Key to Diagrams

Modern football places emphasis on the decoy system when making forward pass plays. Today we'll go over a couple of plays that fall in that category. In ALL PLAYS THE PASSER MUST TREAT ALL DECOYS AS POSSIBLE RECEIVERS. Meanwhile the decoys must run and act as if they were going to receive the pass.

All pass plays should be built up from the same formations as are used for running plays, so as to add deception to your attack. If you don't do this the defence will be set for a pass every time you call for the play.

Now let's go into the first play. I'll go over the things to be done and you follow me while looking at Diagram No. 1. Line up with an unbalanced line to the right, using a single wing-back, that is, only one of the halves playing close to the line of scrimmage, No. 6 in the diagram. The backs are numbered, 1, 2, 3, 4 and 6, so just follow them as I go over their movements.

No. 3 starts moving before the ball is snapped, so that when it is snapped he is in a position to race wide, drawing the defensive outside secondary out to cover him. The offensive right outside (indicated with diagonal lines) races through to keep the centre secondary busy.

With the snapping of the ball to No. 1, he and Nos. 2 and 4 start out as if it were an end run, with No. 1 dropping back to pass. No. 6 DELAYS until the defensive outside secondary has moved out to cover No. 3, and then he races into the territory just vacated, where he receives the pass from No. 1.

Since the defence usually has the middles and outsides rush the passer, these men must be blocked. The offensive left outside blocks the defensive right middle; the left inside pulls out of the line to block the defensive right outside; No. 2 blocks the left middle and No. 4 blocks the left outside. All these are indicated in the diagram, as are the men who look after the defensive insides.

Now let's look at Diagram No. 2 and we'll go over the movements in this play together. The line-up is the same as in the other play, with the backfield starting to move exactly as they did before. No. 3 gets in motion before the ball is snapped and gets over to draw the left defensive outside secondary wide.

The offensive right end (indicated with diagonal lines) goes through and behind the centre secondary, making him back up to cover. The offensive left outside (indicated with dots) DELAYS, then, as the centre secondary is drawn backward by the right outside, races in front of him, taking the pass from No. 1.

Meanwhile, No. 6 has delayed and then raced through to position shown, taking a lateral pass from his left outside, who makes the lateral pass immediately after receiving the forward.

As before, Nos. 1, 2 and 4 start out as if the play were an end run, No. 1 passing and the other two blocking, as shown. The blocking by the rest of the team is also shown, the left inside blocking the defensive right middle and the right inside pulling out of the line to block the defensive right outside.

TOMORROW I'll have a strategic map on hand and we'll go over that together.

Central Defeats Prince Of Wales 5-1

Central Public School soccer team defeated Prince of Wales eleven on Thursday afternoon by the score of 5 to 1. This win gives the Central the right to meet the league leaders —King Edward—in the play-off for the Alex Kay Trophy for the school championship. The games will be played next week.

A Lively Period.

Both custodians were called upon to save their charges after the forwards had broke through the defence time and again. After five minutes of play, Lee broke away fast on the wing to place Clark in possession, who made no mistake in scoring. Thereafter Prince of Wales boys added zest in the game through their aggressiveness in every department to have the better of the argument, but Drummond in Central goal was unbeatable. The West-enders kept up the steady pressure until an opportune breakaway by Kiff terminated in him making the count 2 to 0 before the interval.

On resuming, Lee of Central was lying unmarked twice, and he made good use of the opening by registering twice in quick succession. Kiff followed from a penalty kick. Bartley, of Prince of Wales, got his team's only counter. Central, 5; Prince of Wales, 1.

Central.—N. Drummond, goal; F. Kiff and P. Meiklejohn, full backs; G. Hanes, J. Parsons and G. Burns, halves; G. Lee, L. Batten, S. Clarke, W. Smith and B. Millen, forwards. Subs.—H. Stewart, V. Giffen and B. Young.

Prince of Wales.—G. Beatty, goal; J. Frape and B. Nattress, full backs; T. Smith, R. Crowe and S. French, halves; R. Doughty, H. Henry, J. Saunders, L. Maudsley and D. Bartley, forwards.

Referee—D. Buchan.

Continues His Fast

PAMERTON, Pa., Oct. 14.—(AP). —The Rev. Lazar Kirichenkoff, startig the eleventh day of a fast he hopes will bring more young people to his church, said to-day that "they will return to worship, or they will have an opportunity to attend my funeral."

Visibly weakened, the Rev. Kirichenkoff, pastor of a Greek Orthodox church, has taken only three to four cups of sweetened tea daily since Oct. 2. He has lost 15 pounds, but refuses to discontinue routine duties at his church.

Kitchener Pro Cleans Up Golf Tourney

HAMILTON, Oct. 14. — Lloyd Tucker of Rockaway Club, Kitchener, one of the smoothest-stroking young professionals of the province, gained the championship of the Hamilton and District Professional Golfers' Association yesterday at the Burlington Golf and Country Club when he defeated a representative field with a score of 147 for the 36-hole test.

With the championship the Rockaway pro won the newly donated Webb's Trophy, to be awarded annually to the champion.

Tucker proved the most consistent of the field, although he did not have the best rounds. He toured the bayside layout in the morning in 75 strokes, three over par, and gained even figures in the afternoon round. Surpassing him in the afternoon were Arthur Dorman of Waterdown, and Jack Galloway of Glendale, who each clipped two strokes from par with 70's, but as both had heavy first rounds they had to be content with second and third places, respectively.

Jack Roberts of Oshawa gained most birdies with eight, while G. Anderson of Tillsonburg had five. Dick Charman, Paris, two, and Normie Himes, Galt, and Lloyd Tucker, the winner, one each.

Following the tournament the entrants repaired to the Globe hotel for dinner, and the trophy was presented by its donor, J. Wilson. Nichol Thompson, veteran professional of the Hamilton Golf and Country Club, and president of the Association, acted as chairman, and it was announced the annual meeting would be held at the Chedoke Club here next Monday.

O.R.F.U. SECRETARY EXPLAINS FORMING OF SENIOR GROUP

Local Orfuns Are Included To Make Strong Circuit Of Nats, Imps And Beaches

The story of the formation of the 1938 senior O. R. F. U. group is explained by Secretary R. H. Bailey of the Union in the following article in the Sarnia paper:

While the past is behind us and we look forward to the season of 1938 as the brightest in the history of the senior series of the union and those who know tell us that no good ever came of raking over burned embers, I think it only fair that the football fans of Sarnia and Western Ontario should be told that the series we are looking forward to this year or one very similar has been our ambition and hope since the close of the 1934 season when we were left with only three senior clubs in our series. We worked just as hard to attain that ambition in the years since 1934 as we did this year but it took four years for the breaks to come our way and now we feel that you are going to witness some of the finest football played in Canada.

Panthers Necessary

Why? You may ask, did the O. R. F. U. carry a team of the calibre of the Hamilton Cubs or Panthers in the senior series of the union when they did not measure up to the strength of Sarnia Imperials and Balmy Beach. It therefore might be interesting to know that without this third team, Sarnia's bid for a championship each year would not have been possible as under the Canadian Rugby Union constitution a team to be eligible for the dominion playdowns must have played in a union of three or more teams during their own season.

During the four years of recession, every possible means was attempted to strengthen the team of the Hamilton entry and many promises were made to us that this would be carried out, even to the extent of changing the name of the club. However, it just seemed that as soon as a player on the O. R. F. U. team showed any promise he was moved over to the Inter-provincial team.

Over Wide Territory

After the close of the 1937 campaign which ended with Hamilton Panthers cancelling their final game with Balmy Beach in Hamilton, we determined that we would canvass every possible portion of the provinces that we thought might support a senior entry. As secretary of the union it fell to my good fortune, and I say that with all sincerity, to visit the cities of Windsor, London, St. Catharines, Hamilton, Dundas and Peterborough. The football representatives of each of these points were enthusiastic over the idea of entering senior football but in each and every case the matter of finances was the stumbling block. Because, remember football fans, it takes real money to equip and operate a senior football club in competition with those playing today.

Fortunately there is one man in the O. R. F .U. who never loses faith in the person of our president, Mr. John DeGruchy. He felt all along that the break was coming to us and suddenly it did out of a clear sky, when Mr. R. F. Porter, who had been an officer of the Montreal Indians, came to us with the suggestion that the C. N. R. team of Montreal be included in the O. R. F. U. senior series. At a meeting held in Toronto on February 21st, attended by Messrs. Maurice Chilton, Jack Baker and Art Massucci, of Sarnia, officers of the Balmy Beach Club and the president and secretary of the union, the proposal of the Montreal Nationals was formally presented and unanimously accepted. That day in February is certainly historic.

Hamilton Resigns

At this juncture we received the resignation of the Hamilton team and once again we were left with a three team group. This condition was not satisfactory as the teams had trips to make between Sarnia, Montreal and Toronto and only two scheduled home games out of which to produce the money to finance these trips.

All during our meeting the talk had been that the O. R. F. U. senior series would be the strongest and best balanced in Canada and as yet we had only three clubs. Actions, however, speak louder than words. Mr. E. Floyd Muirhead, president of the Balmy Beach Club, and Mr. R. Fred Porter, president of Montreal Nationals, went into a real football huddle with themselves and out of it came the most enthusiastic and sporting gesture that it has been my pleasure to witness in many years in sport. They would make a substantial grant of money to a committee of reliable gentlemen in a city which we thought would support and carry on with a senior team. This was all that had been lacking in Peterborough and when the proposition was put to them they were able to see the way clear to proceed.

Montreal Has Power

Now what of the teams themselves. We will start in the east and work our way back to Sarnia. Montreal Nationals have taken over between fifteen and twenty of the Montreal Indians of last year, among them are Ed. Barnabe of Queen's University, Tommy Burns, ex-Argonaut and Montreal, Dave Ryan, Jack Riddell, Stan Ferry, Johnny Ferraro (you will remember him), Ern. Hempey and Len Hutton. The National will use the C. N. R. playing field in Montreal which will seat between seven and eight thousand people and their following will be made up from the fans who have followed the fortunes of the C. N. R. intermediate teams in the Quebec union for years along with those who have watched this galaxy of stars playing under the Montreal Indian banner for the past two or three years.

Peterborough Strong

You will no doubt imagine that Peterborough Orfuns will be the question mark team of 1938 and possibly they will. To me, however, Peterborough are in much the same position as Sarnia when they broke into senior company some ten years ago. Remember this is not the first time Peterborough has had a senior O. R. F. U. club. They won the championship back in 1907 and among the players on that team was Ross Craig who was later to win himself great fame as a Hamilton Tiger. Peterborough have had junior and intermediate teams for years and a collegiate team which has always been a contender for scholastic honors. Added to this they have been able to get sufficient players of senior experience to give them the balance required to make them contenders. Just give this team another year and they will take a hand in saying who will be champions. The games in Peterborough will be played on the fair grounds which remind one very much of the playing field in Ottawa at Lansdowne Park. A covered stand takes in one side of the field and the other side and two ends will be allotted for automobile parking just as they do in Ottawa and all spectators will be under cover. I feel that we made no mistake when we included Peterborough.

Balmy Beach will be stronger than last year, and the fans in Sarnia need nothing from me to bring back to memory the stirring batties between your team and the Beachers during the past few year. These games have been classics and I think they will continue to be so.

As to your own team Sarnia Imperials, you certainly know more of them for the 1938 season than I do. They have been a credit to your city and to the union in the past and will no doubt carry on from last year, making a strong bid for O. R. F. U. honors and further if possible.

With two of our teams playing in two of Canada's largest cities and the others in cities not so large it fell to those in charge to devise some means of devising a plan that would help those teams not having the larger clientele to draw from. Therefore a pool will be formed and out of each gate, after the regular expenses have been paid, 5 per cent will be deposited in a central pool and at the end of the playing season this total amount will be split equally among the four clubs. Further at the end of the regular schedule of games, the teams finishing first and second in the group will play home and home games with points to count on the round to decide the championship. Out of these two games a further pool has been planned and after all expenses have been paid the gates will be split 35 per cent to each of the contending teams and 15 per cent to each of the non-contending teams. The idea behind this pool is to give each club a nest egg on which to start the following season. We are building this series not alone for the year but for years to come.

Needless to say I appreciate the opportunity of placing the full facts of the senior situation before the fans of Sarnia. You are to be commended for your loyalty to your club and for your patience with so few games in your home park. This situation has now been rectified and we look to you for your continued support and enthusiasm. We feel that we are bringing to your city some of the brightest stars of the game. Show them that Sarnia is without doubt the greatest football city in Canada.

Plays Middle Wing For Orfuns

Big Al Winslow, who bumps the beam at 198 pounds, will be playing middle wing with 206-pound Bill Flack for the Orfuns here tomorrow when the local gridders open their home season against Balmy Beaches of Toronto. Winslow is husky, young and a hard battler. He learned the O.R.F.U. game with the intermediates here and is a tower of strength in blocking on the line. Al will be wearing No. 16 sweater Saturday. Adanac Battlers Fail To Show Up For St. Kitt's Banquet

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 14.—A dinner party originally planned to honbr the New Westminster Adanacs, eliminated in the Mann Cup series by the St. Catharines Athletics, was held at the Hotel Leonard last night without the Adanacs in attendance. The dinner party, tendered by the St. Catharines Board of Parks Management, was attended by the Athletics and old-time lacrosse players of this city. H. B. Burgoyne, Parks Board Chairman, was Chairman of the complimentary dinner.

The Adanacs, who were the guests of the Rotary Club here at noon luncheon yesterday, along with the local players, departed for Toronto early last night, after being taken on a scenic tour of the Niagara area in the afternoon. They departed for Montreal from Toronto, on a brief visit before returning to their British Columbia homes.

"Not Good Cricket."

The New Westminster players, nor the management, were not criticized by local officials for failing to remain here for the dinner to which they had been invited at the conclusion of the three-game series in Toronto on Wednesday night.

However, Justice W. A. McDonald of Vancouver, B.C., Honorary President of the C.L.A., said it was "not good cricket" on the part of the Adanacs to be absent when the dinner was planned in their honor.

Justice MacDonald, a native of St. Catharines, and a member of the Athletics of 1877 and other years, said that "lacrosse was Canada's national game, and it will be kept to the front by box lacrosse. I am satisfied that box lacrosse is here to stay, and it's the best game played in the world today."

He said it was the ambition of the C.L.A. to keep the lacrosse spirit throughout Canada to-day, and he explained his version of the game's popularity through the fact that the "spectator knows what the players are trying to do."

Civic Reception Later.

Rev. F. S. Dowling, former Orangeville lacrosse player, called upon the citizens not "to forget our boys as the days of lacrosse recede." He urged that they be woven into a prominent and worthy place in the citizenship of St. Catharines so that they may accept positions of esteem in much the same manner they hold positions of esteem as athletes.

Other speakers were: E. H. Lancaster, K.C., Vice-Chairman of the Parks Board; Harvey Dudley, President St. Catharines Lacross Association; Art Brown, Athletic coach; N. J. M. Lockhart, M.P.; Judge J. G. S. Stanbury, and A. J. (Bunny) Morganson of Toronto.

It was explained at last night's meeting by Chairman Burgoyne that a formal civic reception and banquet will be tendered the championship team at a later date.

Early Thursday more tha 10,000 enthusiastic sports fans took part in the wildest and largest ovation ever tendered a sports team in St. Catharines when the champions returned from Toronto. The reception continued from before midnight until 3 o'clock Friday morning.

This past season he was manager of Little Rock in the Southern Association.

Dutton Gives Amerks Tough Work Out

SASKATOON, Oct. 14.—(CP)—Manager Red Dutton sent New York Americans through a tough, two-hour practice session here yesterday with everything in the workout except body-checking. Dutton gave the players orders to "lay off" that for the present.

Earl Robertson and Alfie Moore worked in the nets with Al Murray, Joe Jerwa, Wilf Field and Pat Egan, Nelson Amateur, on defence. Dutton also moved Joe Benoit, Trail Smoke Eater winger, up among his professionals for the workout on the forward lines.

Heavy rains and high water recently marooned many farmers in Colombia.

Remember When—

(By The Canadian Press)

Joe McCarthy, only man in major baseball to win pennants in both the American and National Leagues, was appointed manager of New York Yankees seven years ago today. He piloted the Yanks to four American League titles and in 1937 his contract was renewed for a three-year term at $35,000 per year.

Bluenose Wins Second Race By 12 Minutes

GLOUCESTER, MASS, Oct. 14.—(AP).—The old Queen of the North Atlantic, Captain Angus Walters' big salt banker Bluenose on Thursday defeated Captain Ben Pine's challenger for the International Fishermen's Trophy, the schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud, leading the aspirant for the title around a purported forty-mile course by twelve minuts.

Thebaud sailed away with the honors Sunday in their opening engagement of the three-out-of-five series, leaving each contender with one victory.

Bluenose's elapsed time of 4 hours 39 minutes and 10 seconds was within about five minutes of the record for the course. But because of the lightness of the prevailing southwesterly breeze, never exceeding sixteen miles an hour, many expressed doubt the schooner actually sailed forty miles.

Buoys Hard to Find

The doubts received some support from the rival skippers, who had difficulty finding inconspicuous trawl buoys used to mark the course, and who expressed belief they were improperly pficed. Use of such marks in water already liberally dotted with trawl buoys on more prosaic duty was perhaps unfortunate.

A part of the Bluenose's margin was established on the second leg of the course, a 10-mile beat. Thebaud went far to windward of the true turning mark, her crew misled by a fisherman's trawl buoy, beside which the committee boat had taken up a station.

Today's course was charted as a 30-mile equilateral triangle with a five-mile "tail," the tail to be sailed twice.

After an 11:50 a.m. starting signal, delayed from 9:05 by lack of a breeze, Bluenose was first across the line, but Thebaud, footing faster soon drew up to weather and passer. It was a lead she was unable to hold and the big defender soon weathered the challenger to turn the five-mile mark first by 39 seconds.

Then began the 10-mile windward leg, on which Bluenose increased her lead to 12 minutes and 15 seconds. The relative positions of the schooners remained almost unchanged throughout the balance of the contest.

A course intended to send the contenders twice around an 18-mile course has been charted for tomorrow.

Captain Angus calls it a merry-go-round and some supporters of Thebaud say the latter has some advantage on it because the smaller vessel can turn more quickly than her big opponent. The committee set 9:05 a.m. as starting time.

PRISONER ACQUITTED.

COCHRANE.—An assize jury here yesterday acquitted S. Bucovich, 16, of Timmins of a manslaughter charge laid following the shooting of Augustine Kader of Timmins. Bucovich faced trial on the same charge last spring but the jury disagreed.

MONKEYS RAID ORCHARDS

Baboons and monkeys are raiding orchards, causing heavy losses to farmers in the Bathurst district of South Africa.

He's Back Again

Charging over the practice turf is Harry Sonshine, middle wing star with the Canadain champion Toronto Argonauts, who hopes to be back in the Scullers' line-up before the season is over. Sonshine, one of the east's finest secondaries, suffered a fractured jaw in a game with Ottawa last year, but is now back at his old playing weight and in good shape.

Toronto Dusts Extra Bleachers For Saturday's Mixup When McGill Redmen Meet U. of T.

They are dusting off the extra bleacher seats in Toronto's Varsity stadium and getting ready for an overflow crowd when the Redmen from McGill invade the U. of T.'s home grounds Saturday. A Toronto-McGill football clash hasn't attracted such interest in several seasons.

It's all because the reds and blues seem to be the class of the intercollegiate union and, on paper at least, they should provide the outstanding game on the east's schedule this week-end. The result will decide leadership of the college circuit.

Only the result of two othr games are in doubt as the section swings into the second week's play with McGill and Toronto tied for the college lead, Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts heading the interprovincial union and Sarnia Imperials and Montreal Nationals atop the Ontario union senior series.

No Sign of Change

Chances are small for a change in the big four standing. Riders, runaway victors over Montreal Cubs last week, move into Hamilton against the inexperienced Tigers while Argos, who started defence of the union championship with a 21-7 win over tigers, tackle the Cubs. Neither of last week's victors should encounter much difficulty in winning again, paving the way for a "crucial" two-game series between themselves starting a week from Saturday.

Ranking below only the McGill-Toronto clash in interest to the section as a whole, Imperials play hosts to Nationals in a game designed to provide the first real test for the Ontario union's newest contender. If Nationals, led by burly Johnny Ferraro, can defeat the seven-times O.R.F.U. champions, they will be given serious consideration for sectional honors.

Bets on the Beaches?

Despite Nationals lop-sided victory over Peterborough Orfuns in their first start, while Imperials were held to an 8-6 win over Toronto Balmy Beach, the champions, will start as favorites to overcome the Montrealers on Hugh Stirling's booting and their general heavy offensive. Meanwhile, Balmy are conceded a wide edge over Orfuns. They will play at Peterborough.

The third game in which the result is a toss-up, besides the featured attractions, is Queen's and University of Western Ontario at London. The champion tri-color showed defensive strength for three quarters in losing to Toronto last week while Western never were far behind McGill, losing 4-1. Both teams have been concentrating on line play during the week's practice and the result may be decided on the work of the punters, Jack Brown for Queen's and Lyn Thompson and Jack Kennedy for Western.

Major Surgery Is Practised On All Animals

Remarkable progress made in recent years in major surgery on animals was described by Dr. Harold Worton, V.S., B.V.Sc., addressing the Kinsmen Club at their bi-monthly dinner meeting in the Empress Hotel last night.

"Almost any abdominal surgery done on human beings can be done on small animals with success today," Dr. Worton said and went on to tell his listeners that it is not unusual to remove the tonsils from a dog, or to remove his apendix. Referring to the latter operation he said that dogs in southern lands where the climate is very warm are subject to hookworm and that the caecum is the seat of the infection. This organ in a dog corresponds to the appendix in a human and when the caecum is removed the dog is cured from the hookworm affliction.

He outlined his topic as the advancement of veterinary science in Canada and its relation to public health and first discussed milk at some length. "Milk is one of the most important foods at the disposal of the human race and yet it is unfortunately more liable to contamination and abuse than any other food available, which makes the examination and rigid inspection of cattle so important as they are the chief sources of supply. The premises also must be inspected as they may be the cause of contamination."

"Two type of diseases may be transmitted through milk, the first are the diseases primarily of animal origin, such as tuberculosis, septic sore throat or undulant fever and the second group are those of human origin like scarlet fever, typhoid or diphtheria which may be transmitted from one person to another because a person afflicted with the disease handles milk which is later consumed by another person."

Lauds Pasteurization

Pasteurization which has recently become compulsory in cities services a dual purpose in so much as it first destroys the T.B. baccili and secondly destroys other organisms which are dangerous to public health. It is wrong to think that with pasteurization compulsory it is unnecessary to inspect herds for disease. Pasteurization will destroy the germs in milk taken from a cow afflicted with tuberculosis but the fact that the cow is diseased robs the milk of most of its quality.

Because pasteurization has been introduced there has developed in some quarters the idea that because the process destroys most of these organisms there is little need for much concern as to the healthiness of the milk before pasteurization. This idea is quite unsound. Pasteurization will never convert into healthy normal milk the produce taken from unhealthy badly kept cows, because by the mere fact of the cow being diseased the quality of the milk is lost.

Toronto is a good example of what pasteurization will do, because since pasteurization was introduced there have been no cases of tuberculosis in children. Any cases reported came from outside the city.

Speaking of tuberculosis Dr. Worton said there are three types, human, bovine and avian. The human is more virulent for humans, bovine for cattle and avian for birds but humans can also take the other two types. The disease is essentially a chronic one and pursues a slow course, often lying dormant for years before it causes the death of the animal. As cattle are the chief transmitters of the disease to humans and because there is no definite treatment for T.B. in cows, all animals found to be infected are immediately destroyed.

Contagious abortion is next in importance among diseases of animals in relation to public health as it causes undulant fever in humans. It may be transmitted through milk but more often through the men handling the cattle during the time they abort their calves.

Strep mastitis is an inflammation of the udder of cattle which gives rise to septic sore throat in humans and is another disease which the veterinarian has to contend with, and this is receiving widespread attention at the present time. Mange and ringworm are diseases which can be transmitted from animals to man and although they do not cause death are disagreeable. Anthrax is another disease which is fatal to cattle and may be transmitted to man, but is almost unknown in Canada at the present time. It causes pustular boils and eruptions on a human which might prove fatal if attacking a vital organ. Some years ago there was an outbreak of this disease and it was traced to shaving brushes imported from another country, the germ remaining on the hair used to make the brushes. Now all such imports are thoroughly disinfected before being sold.

Smallpox in man and animals has been known for centuries and inoculation was practiced in China three centuries ago. Calves are now kept specifically for inoculation purposes under veterinary control and one calf will produce sufficient vaccine to treat 1,500 persons.

Meat Important

Meat enters so much into our modern diet that it is highly important to consider what diseases may be caused in human beings through its consumption. The Health of Animals Branch maintains veterinarians in all large abbatoirs, who make inspections of animals before and after they are killed and any found disesed are used only for fertilizer.

Animal diseases and public health is an enormous subject and although much progress has been made, there is still a great deal to be accomplished. It is only in recent times that medical men have recognized the importance of veterinary medicine and the vets owe much of their success and progress to the members of the medical profession. Far sighted medical men established the first colleges where veterinarians were trained as the importance of studying animal diseases became known and the profession is still in its infancy. The veterinarian and the members of the medical profession are working hand in hand with a common objective, namely the preservation of public health.

Dr. Worton was introduced by Norman Elliott, who described him as a young but very able man who has a difficult profession. He said the speaker had obtained his Bachelor of Veterinary Science at University of Toronto, and had played rugby at O.A.C. and played outfield with the Guelph senior baseball team a few years ago when Lefty Judd led the team to an Ontario title. The thanks of the club was extended to the speaker by Alec Sollitt.

Explosion and Fire Ravage Oil Refineries

A series of explosions, wrecking more than 15 giant oil tanks in Linden, N. J., started an inferno of flaming oil which engulfed eight acres as 1,500 firemen and volunteers battled to prevent the flames from spreading to adjoining oil fields. Railroad trains had to be re-routed as sections of track were destroyed by the explosions. As far as authorities were able to ascertain no lives were lost in the fire.

Organization of Man Power Urged For England By Sir John Simon

SHEFFIELD, England, Oct. 14 (C.P. Cable). — Organization of man-power in the United Kingdom must be planned now, Sir John Simon declared last night at the Cutlers' Feast.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking at the annual dinner of the historic body, did not discuss the relative merits of voluntary and compulsory service.

But he said: "The organization of man-power is a very complicated task. We must not wait for this organization until a crisis recurs. In whatever may be the most appropriate form, we must do it now."

Sir John added: "Our democracy can establish justice and maintain power only if it evokes from every citizen a resolve to dedicate himself to its service and a willingness to give up everything, however precious or customary or jealously guarded, to make this country strong for freedom."

German Artist In Nazi Bad Graces Wins 1938 Carnegie Prize

Pittsburgh, Oct. 14 (AP)

KARL HOFER, 60-year-old German artist now frowned upon by the Nazi regime, last night was awarded first prize in the 1938 Carnegie international exhibition for his canvas called "The Wind."

Announcement of the winners was made before an audience of more than 2,000 in Carnegie Music Hall.

First prize carries, in addition to international prestige, a cash award of $1,000.

Second prize of $600 was awarded to Maurice De Vlaminck, French artist of Flemish antecedents, for a painting called "Winter." An American, Arnold Blanch of Woodstock, N.Y., received third award, $500, for the only work in the prize list which has its roots in the current social struggle. He calls the canvas "People."

Hofer is far enough on the Conservative side of the modern movement to be represented in most important permanent collections on both sides of the Atlantic. "The Wind" is beautifully composed and painted, a canvas showing two figures caught in a swirl of wind-blown drapery, seen against a low-toned background.

Plans To Bolster Rearmament Under Industrial Committee Being Suggested For Britain

LONDON, Oct. 14 (C.P.-Havas).—The Executive Council of the Federation of British Industries last night announced it would create a committee for permanent consultation with the Government. The committee would be charged with bolstering rearmament and placing industry on a war footing swiftly in case of necessity.

The announcement said he decision was the direct results of lessons learned when Europe approached the verge of war during the last days of September.

It came at a time when indications grew that important decisions would be reached by the Government which might provide for emergency mobilization of the population.

Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking at Sheffield last night, declared the organization of man-power "is a very complicated task. We must not wait for this organization until a crisis recurs. In whatever may be the most appropriate form, we must do it now."

Back on Tuesday.

Prime Minister Chamberlain is expected back from his Scottish fishing holiday on Tuesday to preside at Wednesday's Cabinet meeting. He is understood to have been turning over in his mind means to accelerate the defence program which was shown to have some weaknesses at the time when the country went on a modified war footing.

Many newspapers and public speakers have called for some form of national mobilization, with informed circles stressing that national service is not national conscription and there was no need for extreme measures to strengthen the peacetime personnael of the Royal Navy or the Army.

So far as the Admiralty is concerned, it was stated, effectives, both in regular service and the reserve are sufficient for any eventuality.

The army is composed of permanent enlistments. The Territorial Force is being amply fortified under the present recruiting system.

Similarly the Royal Air Force, the Auxiliary Air Force and the Civil Air Guard were absorbing all civilians desiring to specialize in aviation activities.

The form of national service being sought by many quarters was understood to be to strengthen the passive defence forces, the distribution and production of essential food supplies and to bolster heavy industry production.

Register Citizens.

Informed circles expressed belief citizens of both sexes eventually would be registered and the competence and capabilities of each person noted for collaboration in national defence. Such registration would serve to direct those offering their services into the tasks most fitted for them. In this connection it has been pointed out that the ranks of anti-air raid services need to be filled.

Sir Auckland Geddes, War-time Minister of National Service, appealed in a letter to The Times for establishment of an office similar to the one he headed to ensure "mobilization of the population for a total war" within a few months after the outbreak of a conflict.

The Daily Mail (Independent) asked its readers: "Are you in favor of obligatory military service or organization of a voluntary service;"

The Daily Express (Independent) continued to call for conscription of economic and man-power resources. The president of the Baltic Exchange, one of the world's greatest grain markets, stated officials of the exchange were disposed to see their entire organization placed at the disposal of the government."

Silhouetted Against the Raging Flames

Silhouetted against the raging flames of the forest fires that have spread death and destruction in the Rainy River district, are these two firefighters. They are but two of the thousands of men fighting to gain control over the roaring forest fires which have claimed at least 20 lives, made scores homeless and inflicted millions of dollars worth of damage to valuable timber land.

Hitler To Advise Czechs Bow To Hungary

MUNICH, Oct. 14—(AP).—Foreign minister Frantisek Chvalkovsky of Czechoslovakia arrived here today to learn Chancellor Hitler's remaining intentions regarding the already-dismembered republic. Nazi circles predicted Hitler, whom a four-power conference here two weeks ago gave a rich slice of Czechoslovakia, would tell the envoy:

1. The Prague government must quickly cede to Hungary the Czechoslovak districts where Hungarians predominate.

2. Germany will not favor the Hungarian-Polish idea of a common frontier to be created by the incorporation of Ruthenia with Hungary.

3. Germany will approve a new Czechoslovakia comprising Czechs, Slovaks and Ruthenians as autonomous sections of a republic having only an army and a foreign policy in common.

4. Czechoslovkia must abandon her present alliances with Soviet Russia and France.

5. Germany lays little stress upon Czechoslovakia's future importance as a military factor, and hence is indifferent whether Czechoslovakia joins in a military pact with Germany.

Another important question was said to involve a German guarantee of the new state's frontiers, badly cut up by the German-British-Italian-French accord announced here Oct. 1 and subsequent Polish-Czech negotiations.

Sues For $1,000,000

Ivan J. Spear, Chicago promoter, is pictured here as he appeared in court to press a $1,000,000 suit against Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the Dionne Quints. Mr. Spears is charging Dr. Dafoe, and other defendants, with conspiring to break a contract whereby Spear would have exhibited the quints at the Chicago World's Fair.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight! (Advt.)

Calves Drop 50 Hogs 15 On Week's Sales

TORONTO, Oct. 14 (C.P.). — Weighty steers were down 25 to 50 cents cwt. on a slow cattle market, while other killers sold steady on the Toronto Live Stock Market this week, the Dominion Live Stock Branch reported. Calves lost 50 cents after a steady opening. Hogs were off 15 cents, while sheep and lambs held unchanged.

The cattle run included 1,060 from the West. Trade was dull from the opening with a carry-over of 2,400 head on Tuesday. The holdover was reduced to around 700 by the close.

A top load of steers sold at $6.65 with another load at $6.50. Other good steers brought $5.50 to $6 with some rough steers as low as $4.50. Butcher steers and heifers made $3.50 to $5.50 with the bulk from $4.50 to $5.00.

Butcher cows ranged from $3 to $4.25, canners and cutters from $2.25 to $2.75. Butcher bulls brought $3.60 to $4.25 and bolognas $3.25 to $3.50. Choice fed calves traded at $9 to $9.50, with mediums downward to $6.00.

Stocker prices were steady at $4.50 to $5 cwt. for the majority, with tops at $5.25 and some culls as low as $3.50. Milkers and springers were steady with good tested Holsteins selling up to $75 each.

Veal Starts at $10.50.

Top veal calves opened at $10 to $10.50, and closed at $9 to $9.50, with a few at $10. Common heavy calves ranged down to $5 and grassers brought $4 to $4.75. Some fat Western calves sold to killers at $5 to $6 cwt., and some good Western Angus calves made up to $7 as stockers.

Hogs were 15 cents lower at the start and held steady for the balance of the week, with spots 10c lower on some Thursday sales. Bacons sold at $8.25 off trucks, with a few down to $8.15 at the close. Sows were quoted at $6 to $6.50 off trucks. Suckling pigs were offered at $3 to $5 each, but few sales were made.

Most good ewe and wether lambs were $7.75 delivered by rail and $7.50 by trucks. A few picked lots reached $7.85 to $8 on Tuesday. Bucks and heavies sold at $1.00 cwt. discount, with culls generally $6.50 cwt. majority of sheep were from $2 to $4 cwt. with a few good light ewes up to $4.50.

$350 In Stockings Stolen From Store

ORANGEVILLE, Ont., Oct. 14 (C P)—Thieves forced an entrance in the store of J. Kearns and Son here last night and made off with several hundred pairs of silk stockings valued at about $350.

The robbery was discovered when G. Leighton and W. Hatcher of Orangeville, noticed a car parked at the rear of the store. They noticed two men "apparently foreigners" emerge from the cellar carrying boxes and then notified Chief Constable A. McNeill who investigated.

According to the police, the robbers forced their way through a window into the cellar, jimmied off the door leading into the store and picked up their loot, scattering materials over the store front.

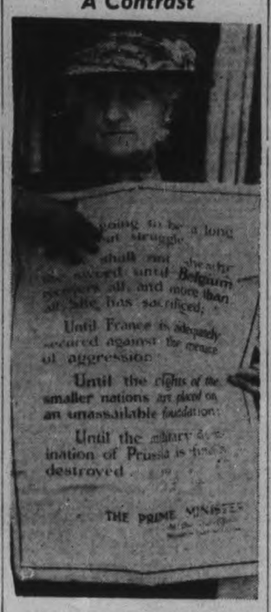
A Contrast



When Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of England reported to the House of Commons details of the settlement of the Czechoslovak minorities affair, a contrast to what some called Britain's "surrender" to Adolf Hitler of Germany was provided by Mrs. S. W. Leach and this poster she paraded up and down the street. The poster, which she has had since 1914, contains excerpts from the Guildhall speech on Nov. 9, 1914, of then British prime minister, the Earl of Oxford and Asquith. The final bristling sentence on the poster read: "We shall not sheath the sword—"until the military domination of Prussia is finally destroyed."

Cheese Makers Complain Against Dockage

Cheese factory patrons and also cheese makers of the district drafted only one resolution last night for the meeting in Toronto November 21 of the executive of the Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association and attending delegates.

George Elliott of Norwood, president, and A. E. Thurston of Bobcaygeon were appointed delegates from the Peterborough county branch of the association.

The resolution by Mr. Thurston, seconded by Chas. McNulty of Asphodel, proposed that consideration be given to a general complaint of a "dockage" in the weight of cheese from the time they leave the factories until they are put into storage by buyers; and also that some appropriate action be taken to protect the industry against an apparent loss of revenue of which they have no control.

W. J. Moore, dairy instructor, said that cheese lose two pounds or more during the first two days of the eight or more they are held in factories; and also that to allow for further shrinkage the weight is reduced half a pound in the quantity stamped on each box.

Mr. Thurston stated that Bobcaygeon had been penalized 120 lbs. this season. A loss was reported "about every other shipment." His suggestion was to the effect that if possible some inspector or other official might be appointed to enquire into these alleged deficiencies in weight that were charged back to the factories. At the present time there is no means of "checking" on this situation to verify the reported losses.

Mr. Elliott urged the members to attend the Campbellford banquet on Saturday, November 5 at 7 p.m., and Mr. Moore strongly recommended to the cheesemakers and patrons the cheese convention in Belleville during the first week in December.

Several members mentioned the feeding of turnips to cattle during these last weeks of the cheese season. There were no serious complaints of milk producers turning to turnips, but several suspected cases were mentioned. For the good of the industry, and especially of patrons who adhere to the ideals of sound cheese-making, it was said that turnips should not be included in cattle diet, and that means particularly, perhaps, the tops.

Kinmount Case Sees Officer Charged

LINDSAY, Ont., Oct. 14—(CP).—John Campbell, Woodville, a county constable of Victoria county prior to the receipt of his resignation today by Crown Attorney J. E. Anderson, has been charged with perjury, the Crown Attorney announced to-day. The charge was laid after evidence given by the accused in a liquor selling case here October 3.

Campbell said that he had purchased a bottle of liquor from a man in Kinmount while investigating alleged bootlegging activities there and that he had handed the bottle unopened to Provincial Constable David Adair later. County Constable Russell Hargrave said that a man named Trumble had been given a drink out of the bottle before it was given to Constable Adair.

Gilmour Memorial Congregation Cradle Of Baptist Faith To Mark Its 100th Anniversary

One hundred years of Christian endeavor in the Baptist faith will be fittingly observed at Gilmour Memorial Church, Chemong Road, on Sunday when the church marks a century of growth with special services. The story of the hundred years is one of romance, courage and toil, and stars back in the Autumn of 1837 when the Rev. John Gilmour, came to Peterborough after a pastorate in Montreal to take on behalf of the New England Company, supervision over the Indians at Chemong and Rice Lake.

There were no Baptists in this section of the country at that time and occasionally Mr. Gilmour besides preaching to the Indians delivered sermons to the substantial white settlers near Lake Chemong. Little apparent success rewarded his first efforts but finally James Mann, a settler of character and solid worth responded and was duly baptized. Others made application for baptism so that in 1838 four were baptized on profession of faith. This baptismal service had taken place on November 4th 1838, and was the baptismal service of immersion. Those definitely known to have been baptize dthat day were Mr. and Mrs. John Walton, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graham, Mr. William Paulin, Mr. and Mrs. James Mann, Sr. and James Mann, Jr. who was then 18 years of age. This boy lived to see many of his descendents follow his example and they number close to half of the present membership.

Meet in School House

The little band immediately undertook to erect a place of worship in the township of Smith and preaching of the Gospel has been maintained there ever since. In 1838 the services were held in James Mann's school house and in 1840, a small plot of land was secured from Robert Nicholson on the west side of Communication Road. Here a small chapel was erected which remained in use for over fifty years.

It is particularly appropriate that the guest preacher for the anniversary services be the Rev. Prof. George P. Gilmour, M.A., B.D., professor of church history at McMaster University, Hamilton, for he is a great grandson of the founder of the church in Smith township.

On the following Tuesday evening a congregational meeting will be held and an illustrated lecture on the Holy land will be given by Rev. Gordon Jones, B.A., Ph.D., of James Street Baptist Church, Hamilton. Dr. Jones is a great grandson of the late John Walton, who was one of the first group baptized a century ago. Miss Lilian Eastwood of Toronto and former member of the church will be guest soloist, and a feature of the service will be hymns by a quartet of the older members of the congregation, James A. Young, Joseph R. Mann, Thos. H. Graham and J. Alex MacGregor.

Other Congregations Started

Very early in its history, "The Line" church as it was called in days long ago, began to do missionary work. In 1845 a branch church was opened at Selwyn and in 1846 seven members were dismissed to form a branch church in Peterborough. In 1863 a further branch was opened in Lakefield. Thus at one time a sort of Collegiate church existed for only one annual meeting was held to transact business and all members were subject to the discipline of "The Line" church. Needless to say this is an unusual form of church government among Baptists. However, the Peterborough church did not separate until 1874 and the church at Lakefield remained in connection until about 1886.

During these early years the minister also visited once a month a mission in the township of Dummer, but in 1860 this task had to be relinquished. Even after the separation with the Peterborough church, the work was heavy. Fortunately one pastor, Rev. F. Ratcliffe, had his father-in-law, Rev. Mr. Gerrie to assist him. The latter died suddenly during service in the Lakefield church. For many years it was the custom to have students from Toronto Baptist College, the forerunner of McMaster University, assist during the summer months. Unfortunately very few of these are known by name but among them were a Mr. Bennett, Mr. Bone, and H. C. Priest, the latter to become a missionary to India.

Built Home for Minister

In 1851 the members decided to erect a home for their minister. This was done on a plot of land purchased from Michael Sanderson, lot 7, West, Communication Road. In 1887 this house was accidentally destroyed by fire. Although the church felt depressed over this loss it spurred the members to greater endeavors. By 1888 a new manse had been built and in 1890 the present church ediface was erected. With the building of this edifice it was decided to name the church Gilmour Memorial in honor of her founder. The late professor Joseph Gilmor laid the cornerstone, May 26, and the building was dedicated for worship on October 26th 1890, with the newly appointed pastor Rev. W. S. Barker and the preceding pastor, Rev. E. Huff, occupying the pulpit.

First Sunday Schools

Prior to 1873 Sunday School had been conducted in the old temple on the Lindsay highway and the James Mann schoolhouse. In 1873 Mrs. A. E. de St. Dalmas, wife of the pastor, organized one central Sunday school to be held in the church building. Today the Sunday school continues to be a helpful source of the church's spiritual life.

The early missionary activities have never died out and today Gilmour church maintains a very high place among Baptist churches for missionary zeal and contributions.

The present minister, Rev. R. D. Wright, believes that this thorough gospel foundation that is so hastily sketched here is the reason why today this church, never having much over one hundred members and at most times considerably less, has shown such a remarkable average attendance at the worship service held every Lord's day.

The Gilmour Memorial church is glad to bear today the name of her founder. Although Mr. Gilmour was succeeded as pastor in 1843 he continued to reside in Peterborough until the time of his death. During these years he often visited the churches of the circuit he had done so much to found and many times presided when difficult questions had to be decided. The last minutes of the section referred to already tell of his presence at the business meeting of "The Line" church held Oct. 3, 1866, when he addressed the church on "The importance of maintaining a high standard of Christian excellence." As an effort to show the church's appreciation the following letter, together with the gift of a set of silver spoons, was presented to him June 19th, 1850, and duly recorded in the minutes:

Dear and respected Sir,

The members of the Smith Baptist church, beg you will accept the accompanying present, as a small token of the high esteem and sincere affection, which they entertain towards you, and as an expression of gratitude for your disinterested and useful labours among them, continued a long succession of years with undiminished zeal, and evident concern for you highest and eternal welfare.

Signed on behalf of the church,
William C. Nichols.
John Walton.

The following have served as pastors of the church:

Rev. John Gilmour, founder, 1838-1843; Rev. Robert McDougal, 1843-1845; Rev. John Edwards, 1845-1847; Rev. Peter Wilson, 1847-1849; Rev. Edward Riddell Roberts, 1849-1869; Rev. Mr. Stock, 1869-1871; Rev. J. Dyall, 187-1874; Rev. F. Ratcliffe, 1875-1883, and Rev. John Gerrie, associate pastor; Rev. A. E. de St. Dalmas, 1883-1887; Rev. E. Huff, 1887-1890; Rev. W. S. Barker, 1890-1893; Rev. C. E. McLeod, 1893-1898; Rev. W. A. Gunton, 1898-1902; Rev. Lachlan McKinnon, 1903-1907; Rev. J. R. Bonner, 1908-1913; Rev. R. J. McLaren, 1913-1915; Rev. John Galt, 1915-1920; Rev. R. MacGregor Fraser, B.A., B.D., 1920-1922; Rev. W. S. Edgar, 1923-1930; Rev. R. D. Wright, M.A. B.Th., pastor since December, 1930.

Rev. F. E. Malott Is To Retire

Rev. Dr. F .E. Malott, for the past four years pastor of Wall Street United Church, Brockville, has announced he will retire from the active ministry at the end of the conference year in June, 1939. Previous to going to Brockville, Dr. Malott served in Young United Church, Winnipeg, for seven years, and for six years in Bridge street, Belleville, before going to the Manitoba city. Other pastorates held in his 40 years in the ministry include Chatham, Orillia, London, Ont., and Peterborough (Trinity United). He is a graduate of the University of Toronto in arts, and of divinity, of Victoria College. Dr. Malott, who is a native of Essex county, married a daughter of the late Rev. Dr. Hannon, once pastor of the First Methodist (now United) Church ,St. Thomas.

A 15-Pound Anchor Right Lifesaver In Great Salt Lake

Salt Lake City, Oct. 14 (AP)

IT IS PROPER procedure to toss an anchor to a person drowning in Great Salt Lake, says Prof. Thomas C. Adams of the University of Utah. A 15-pound weight is about right to hold a distressed bather's feet down in the highly buoyant water, he discovered in tests conducted by Boy Scouts. A life preserver tips a swimmer face down.

Dr. H. Waite Dies In Yorkshire

Dr. C. B. Waite, pathologist at the Government Laboratory in the city buildings received word this week of the death of his cousin, Dr. H. Waite of West Leeds, Yorkshire, England.

The Yorkshire Evening Post in an account of the well known practitioner's passing says Dr. Waite has been a surgeon and physician in Leeds since 1885. He was 77 years of age and had been ill for some time.

He was a retired surgeon major of the Northern Telegraph Company of the Royal Engineers and held the Territorial Decoration while serving in this Territorial Unit about 40 years ago. He wrote a medical handbook for the troops, "How to keep fit—The Soldiers Guide to health in field, camp and quarters." and among those who complimented him on it was Field Marshal Lord Roberts.

He also devised a complete medical equipment which was subsequently adopted by the War Office. He was a pioneer in ambulance work and instructed the first class to be formed in the district under the St. John Ambulance Association.

Made Gifts To Museum

Dr. Waite had an unusual and outstanding collection of military medals, regimental badges and autographs, and gave a large collection of regimental badges to the Leeds Museum in 1931, and this year the Corporation bought from him, his collection of medals. He has every medal for the past hundred years of British Military history except the V.C. and it took him thirty years to assemble it.

His collection of autographs assembled mostly by purchase, included great names in almost every walk of life of the 70 years before the Great War. Among statesmen there were Gladstone, Morley and Palmerston. Among famous writers there were Charles Dickens, Rider Haggard, Robert Browning and Hall Caine. Among the autographs of eminent divines were Cardinal Manning, Cardinal Newman and C. H. Surgeon, and the stage was represented by Martin Harvey, Henry Irving and others.

Y's Men's Club To Stage Revue

The Y's Men's Club of Peterborough announced today that complete arrangements have been made with George Zarfas of the Canadian Production Company to produce an elaborate and gorgeously costumed musical presentation.

The production will be staged in the Collegiate Auditorium Wednesday and Thursday, November 30 and December 1st. The cast will include stars of former shows and the committee in charge of the talent are doing their utmost to give the patrons the benefit of witnessing the first notable performances of new comers who will make their debut in this forthcoming musical.

The chorus will be an outstanding feature of this newest type of revue entertainment and the patrons will thrill at the intricate and precision dance routines which these young ladies will execute.

Special thought has been given to the scenic display and since the Production Company is often confronted with having to stage shows in other than regulation theatres, the scenery for this show has been designed so that the same changes and effects can be displayed with the same artistic appeal.

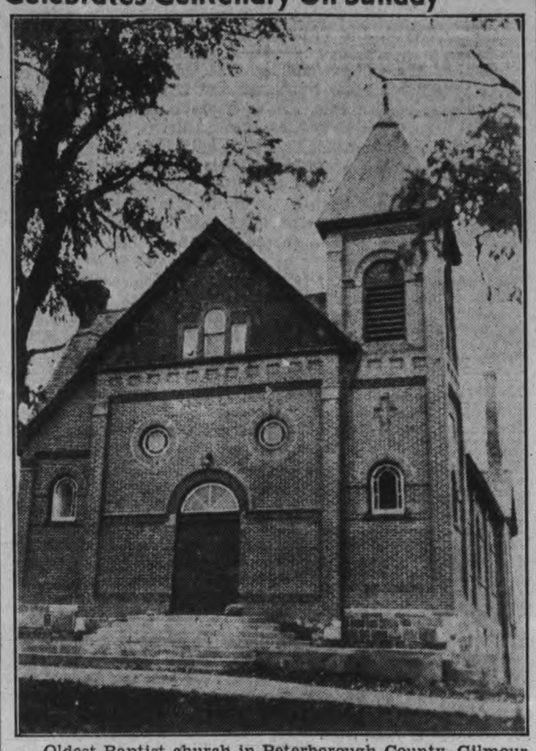
The proceeds from this show will go towards furthering the work of the Y's Men's Club supplying shoes for children who are unable to attend school. It is hoped a generous support to this work will be given.

Those in charge of the production are: Harold Coleman, chairman; Jim Goldie, Doug. Loomis, George Nichols, Ray Brown, Graham Eastwood, Jack Nichols, Jack Thornton, Wm. Jeffries, Walker Jones, Harry Tudhope, Roly Krant and G. H. Roper.

Need 5-Cent Margin

VICTORIA, Oct. 14.— (CP)—A delegation of Victoria gasoline service station operators told Dr. W. A. Carrothers, chairman of the British Columbia Coal and Petroleum Board, they must retain their five-cent-a-gallon profit margin to operate. If this margin is reduced operators said they may have to cut staffs and wages.

Celebrates Centenary On Sunday



Oldest Baptist church in Peterborough County, Gilmour Church on the Chemong Road is celebrating its centenary on Sunday. Named after its first pastor, Rev. John Gilmour, this sturdy edifice has withstood a hundred winters and is still in good condition. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

CASE DISMISSED

When the crown offered no evidence a charge against James Robertson of stealing a cross-cut saw from Joseph Delore was dismissed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning.

TRUCK ROBBED

The truck of M. H. Gainey was broken into Thursday night by sneak thieves who broke a window of the vehicle which was parked on a lot south of the Capitol theatre. A quantity of razor blades and some other articles were stolen.

CARS DAMAGED

A car belonging to Campbell Rowatt, 573 Elm street, was slightly damaged on Waterford street when another car driven by B. E. Clark allegedly backed out of a laneway and struck Rowatts machine which was parked on the opposite side of the street.

HALLOWE'EN FROLIC.

Don Scott reported to the Kinsmen Club last night that preparations are well underway for the annual Hallowe'en frolic to be held at the Brock Street Summer Gardens. A good orchestra is being obtained and there will be cash prizes for novelties and games.

GOOD PROGRESS

Fourteen bricklayers are making great progress on the brick work of the new Bell Telephone exchange on Hunter street. In all there are 38 men employed and the builders expect to be finished by December 1st.

OCTOBER BUILDING

Two major building projects starting this month have swelled the October building totals to a sizeable sum. Loblaw grocery store permit gives $20,000 as the figure, and the permit for Braund's building alongside is another $15,000. George D. Rutherford has taken out a permit for a one-storey modern brick bungalow on Reid street.

SPEAKS TONIGHT.

Henry J. Moore, noted horticulturist who speaks tonight at Knox United Church, will be introduced by Mrs. L. M. McKee, who has been visiting in the city for some time. Mrs. McKee has been scheduled to speak on the Peace Garden between Canada and the United States, but relinquished the duty in favor of Mr. Moore, who is the originator of the Peace Garden idea.

BADMINTON STARTING

This week will see the start of the badminton season locally, and reports from officials indicate that a limited number of new players will be accepted in both the Peterborough Military Club which plays at the Armouries and the Market Club which holds forth in the market hall. Many new families have moved into the city, and several of them are devotees of the game.

TO MAKE DRAW.

Mayor James Hamilton will make the rugby prize draw at the Beaches-Orfuns' game here to-morrow afternoon. The draw will be made at half-time, probably about 3.30 o'clock. Ticket stubs should be left at the Playmor Sports Store up until noon to-morrow; after that, they must be taken to the Exhibition Grounds.

CITY PAYS FOR PROPERTY

The Point St. Charles property passed into the hands of the city Thursday afternoon with the payment of $1,500 to Sam Abbott. All that remained to complete the transfer was the registration of the deed by W. F. Huycke, K.C., city solicitor. So ended one of the projects that engaged the attention of the council in recent months.

BUTTER AS LUBRICANT

"Farmers might be just as well off if they could pack their butter into tins and sell it for axle grease," Wallace Anderson commented at Thursday night's meeting of the Cheese Patrons' Association. Butter fat is worth around twenty cents a pound, "but wait till the cheese factories shut down," Mr. Anderson remarked, intimating that the diversion of milk into seasonal butter channels would increase the supply, and tend to weaken the market.

LEG IS BRUISED

Allan Madill, 30 George street, had his left leg scratched and bruised when he was thrown off his motorcycle when it collided with an automobile driven by James A. Feir, 80 Aylmer street at the intersection of Rink and George streets on Thursday evening. Fair's car which had been proceeding north on George street was making a left hand turn into Rink street when Madill's motorcycle arrived at the intersection and there was a collision. Madill being tossed off his machine. The front part of the motorcycle was badly damaged and there was also considerable damage to the front portion of Feir's car, both headlights and the radiator suffering.

NEVER AGAIN.

Eddie O'Toole of Ashburnham, awarded $1,750 by a Supreme Court judge yesterday for damages resulting from a car and motorcycle accident, says he will never ride a motorcycle again. Fact is this type of vehicle should be strictly taboo around the O'Toole household for some years to come. Eddie was injured in May, 1937, and his fractured leg is not right yet. Exactly two years previously his older brother Lawrence was thrown from a motorcycle when he struck a truck and suffered a fractured leg also. It is unusual that the two accidents occurred within two blocks of each other, in the same month, two years apart, and both between 3.30 and 5.30 in the afternoon.

Citizens Prefering Unpasteurized Milk Go To Farms For Their Supply

Some of the people living in the city are going out to the country for unpasteurized milk, one of the cheese factory patrons reported at last night's meeting of the county association. "They prefer raw milk and cream. One farmer who has been in this business for years consulted his lawyer as to his right to sell dairy supplies from his own place. He was advised that he could sell all the raw milk he liked as long as he did not attempt to deliver it in the city."

Wallace Anderson of Warsaw said the law would make a considerable difference to the farmers who have been selling raw milk to the summer cottages around Stoney Lake. He understood that next year the law would be in effect and that no raw milk could be distributed in the old way even in such comparatively remote routes as along the lake shores during the summer months.

Canada Supplies 80 Per Cent. Of Insulators

That Canada supplies 80 per cent. of the insulators used in the Scottish electric system and a large percentage of those used in England was an interesting statement made by J. M. Somerville of the engineering staff of the Canadian Porcelain Company at Hamilton in addressing members of the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada at a meeting in the Paragon last night. Mr. Somerville spoke on the manufacture of high voltage wet process insulators, and gave his audience a new insight into the thoroughness with which the material used in the preparation of porcelain is prepared, the various processes of manufacture which are carried out, and the care with which the finished product is tested.

Mr. Somerville, who was introduced by W. J. Fanjoy, chairman of the local branch, began by pointing out that wet process porcelain had proved the best possible material for the insulation required by the present day electric transmission system. The process was originated, he said, in 1893 by Fred M. Lock, and wet process porcelain had been found to be impervious to moisture, unchanged by sunlight, and able to withstand thermal strain. Porcelain he explained was a homogeneous mechanical material, the principal ingredients of which included flint feldspar, ball clay, and china clay. All these materials were obtainable on this continent except the china clay, which was imported from England.

Lecture Illustrated.

Using a most interesting series of slides, Mr. Somerville proceeded to show how the materials were prepared, filtered, and aged for use in the manufacture of porcelain, and then followed with an explanation of the different processes carried out in the manufacture of insulators and in the exhaustive tests that were made afterward.

New types of wet process porcelain insulators designed for use in fog districts, and another type that had been planned and manufactured to stand up against shot gun fire in areas where youth used the insulators for target practice were shown on the screen by Mr. Somerville and explained by him as was the use of porcelain in connection with the field of radio and for other purposes.

An interesting discussion followed the conclusion of Mr. Somerville's address, and the speaker answered a number of questions asked by his audience. Among other things he explained that dry porcelain had its usefulness in low voltage insulation. There were two firms in Canada making the wet process porcelain, he said.

J. L. McKeever moved the vote of thanks to Mr. Somerville for his interesting and informative paper.

Mrs. Fred Hooper Leads Discussion

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Oct. 14 (CP). — Open forum discussion of work of the I.O.D.E. took place at the second session of the semi-annual meeting of the provincial chapter of Ontario I.O.D.E. here this morning.

Leaders of the various sections were: Immigration and Canadianization, Mrs. H. S. Griffin, Hamilton; I.O.D.E. Girl Guides, Mrs. William Ruttle, Hanover; service and ex-service men, Mrs. Hamilton-Merritt, Owen Sound; navy league, Mrs. G. A. McCarthy, Toronto; League of Nations society, Mrs. Fred Hooper, Peterborough; endowment fund, Mrs. Harold Smith, Chatham; empire study, Mrs. Aros MacLean, Toronto; empire correspondence, Mrs. M. S. Somers, Tillsonburg; press and publicity, Mrs. Gordon Fairclough, Hamilton.

The women held a short memorial service at the cenotaph where they laid a wreath.

Nursing Fees Are Being Sought

Judge Sheldon Smoke is presiding at a sitting of the Surogate Court to-day in the case in the estate of Harry Edwards, in which Mrs. Sarah Chandler is claiming nursing fees from the executors, Maxwell Kidd and Harry Chandler.

Mark Edwards and Emma Suddards were beneficiaries under the will of the late Harry Edwards and are contesting Mrs. Sarah Chandler's claim.

W. B. Gordon is appearing for the plaintiff, Mrs. Sarah Chandler, Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.S., is appearing for the executors, Maxwell Kidd and Harry Chandler, and W. J. A. Fair is appearing for the beneficiaries, Mark Edwards and Emma Suddards.

A 1902 Scare

DETROIT, Oct. 14.—(CP)—Detroit, where a year-old model automobile rates as a jalopy, was thrown into a bit of a turmoil by a 1902 car.

So excited was Charles Stemler of Detroit at the sight of the ancient car, he crashed into another car and forced Frank H. Christopher, driver of the old car into a three-way crash.

The Rambling REPORTERS

NOT A SHINER

"My mother wants to know if you can give her a black eye," was the rather startling request of a little girl when she visited the next door neighbor in Ashburnham last night. The man of the house who was sitting reading the paper let the pipe drop out of his mouth, he was so surprised, but his wife solved the mystery in short order by explaining that the neighbor wished a black eye for her dress. Evidently in the world of women's clothes there are such things as hooks and eyes, black, brown and other colors, and the woman wanted a black eye to match her dress. The husband certainly had visions of a woman with a discolored orb when he heard the request for the first time.—McG.

REFLECTIONS

Sentiment has unexpected but perhaps not strange reflections that sometimes cause little surprises, even if it is a universal. A little old man with the swinging stick walked down George street Thursday afternoon with a sheaf of maple leaves in his left hand and the brightest of them, a brilliant red, thrust in his hat band. The familiar cane may have dissociated the idea of sentiment from the grizzled man; but that was only an appearance, an illusion. Usually he seems to be alone, but his oneness with the rest of the city crowd was indicated yesterday by his gleaning of autumnal beauty, that is if you regard fading maple leaves as beautiful. Possibly he was thinking of many brown Octobers left behind him, and of the few ahead, a hint of sadness in his gesture, offset, however, by the jauntiness of that red leaf in his hat band as if he were celebrating something all by himself.—T.

Lakefield Man Placed Second

The little village of Minesing, eight miles from Barrie, holds the spotlight for farmers and urban dwellers alike this week as it is the scene of the annual Provincial plowing match where young and old vie for the Provincial championship and the honors that go to the man who can plow the straightest furrow.

The chief events today are the open horse show in the late afternoon and the large concluding banquet in Barrie Armouries at night. Prize-winners were announced last night in two classes and judging in three others was not completed—inter-county competitions, tractors open to those solely engaged in farming who had not previously won a prize.

James McGowan, of Lakefield, veteran plowman and a consistent winner in Peterborough County plowing matches in recent years, brought a portion of the honors to this county by placing second in the jointer plows, horse-drawn, in a class of twenty-one entries. Ern. Brockington of Dundas placed first, and William Hooton of Ida, another regular winner in local plowing matches, placed eighth, and in the money.

W. E. A. Commences Another Season

The Peterborough branch of the Workers' Educational Association began a new season with a preparatory meeting in the Public Library last night at which Drummond Wren, Toronto, general secretary, introduced Dr. Dhami of University of Toronto who will conduct the new course in psychology beginning next Monday night at the Collegiate Institute.

Dr. Dhami outlined the details of the course which will include as progressive topics the relative importance of heredity and environment, individual differences due to race, religion, sex, etc., nature and measurement of intelligence, how to learn and think effectively, memory, motivation, and the practical application of psychology to the immediate problems of life.

Osborne Smith, president, was chairman at the meeting. The Association hopes to enroll at least sixty members for this season's attractive and helpful study of psychology. Women as well as men are invited. The cost is $2 for the twenty lectures, and this fee is returned at the end of the season to those members who follow it to the conclusion. Meetings are held on Monday evenings. The course is for workers, and excludes only those engaged in the professions who have had a university training.

Youth Wanted For Theft Gives Self Up

Wanted in connection with some of the offenses for which his older brother Arthur, 23, and Victor Caban, 16, had already pleaded guilty James Woodcock, 17, gave himself up to the city police this morning and was arraigned before Magistrate Langley, K.C., on four charges to all of which he pleaded guilty.

They were the theft of automobiles belonging to Jesse Airriess, Reid street, and Reeve Chas. Tanner of Lakefield, stealing 20 gallons of gasoline from Hopkins' service station, Lakefield and breaking and entering the Foster store in Lakefield and committing theft.

Jacob Low appeared on behalf of the younger Woodcock and urged that the court extend clemency to his client. He argued that Woodcock had been influenced by the fact that his older brother was involved in the offenses and that he had been led into crime.

"Hasn't this boy already been in the reformatory?" asked Magistrate Langley.

Woodcock admitted that such was the case.

Magistrate Langley announced that he would sentence Woodcock on Wednesday next when his older brother Arthur and Victor Caban will also be sentenced.

Another Charge

Arthur Woodcock and Caban who had already pleaded guilty to ten charges of car theft, breaking and entering and theft faced still another charge today when they were accused of stealing a Martin guitar on September 29, valued at more than $25.

Both Pleaded Guilty

Both pleaded guilty of breaking and entering the store house of James Juby on Charlotte street to which they had previously pleaded not guilty the case was dismissed when Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., informed the court this morning that the crown was offering no evidence.

Magistrate Langley stated that he would pass sentence on Wednesday next.

"Have you anything you would like to say?" he asked the elder Woodcock.

"I'd like to get it over as soon as possible," replied the accused.

"I can understand that," replied the magistrate, "but I have something to say in that connection. I have a duty to the state to perform and I want some time to consider what to do in your case."

Two Children Bitten By Dog

Dr. Thos. Johnston, Humane Society inspector and the city police are anxious to obtain possession of the dog which bit two small children on Rink street Thursday morning, as the animal is wanted to be kept under observation.

The children who were bitten, Morley and Donelda Carnochan, son and daughter of D. T. Carnochan, 195 Rink street, were playing near their home when the dog, described as a small brown animal attacked them. The boy was bitten in the back and the girl on the foot.

Some children in the neighborhood started out with the dog to turn it over to Dr. Johnston, they declare but the canine disappeared en route.

Lucky Housekeeper

DETROIT, Oct. 14.—(CP)—Capt. William J. Burrell, widely known at lake ports in Canada, left his housekeeper, Miss Elizabeth Ariel, his home, his yacht and $75,000. AFRAID TO MARRY

by HELEN WELSHIMER

Written for and Released by CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Judy Rogers, New York heiress, whose father has been wiped out in a financial crash, finally lands a job as social secretary to the wealthy Abbey Boland. Heart-broken because Craig Denby, the man she loved, married another girl, she fids herself becoming interested in Ronald Birrell, brilliant young attorney from Tennessee who recently joined the firm of her father's lawyers. Judy's father has gone west with her stepmother while her own mother, remarried, is abroad. When Craig and his bride have a misunderstanding, it is Judy who brings them together. Abbey is making preparations for her marriage to a count. Judy observes that Ronald, one of the many guests at the Boland estate, takes an unusual interest in Abbey's affairs.

NOW GO WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 21

THE LIBRARY of the Boland home was a long, comfortable room. Its wide windows gave a sweeping view of the gray waters of the sound on the Sunday afternoon that Judy arranged the flowers and candles on the low table near the mammoth fireplace. There were tall autumn flowers, lavish with golds and orange and yellow, everywhere. And books. . . .

She caught her breath. The room reminded her of the great library in her father's house where the paneled cases marched sedately along the three walls, and the fireplace, on the fourth wall, was flanked with them, too. She remembered that she would not see that room again. The house had been sold for debts. She wondered, for a fleeting moment, in what kind of rooms her father and Sarita were living. Not that it mattered. Her path had left theirs as completely as though the two roads had been cardboard stuff, and a pair of gigantic scissors had severed them.

Judy's brown eyes were a little misty when the door opened and her low voice wasn't quite steady as she spoke.

"It's such a lovely room, Miss Boland," she said wistfully. "I used to know one like it."

Abbey Boland had been riding, though it was late afternoon. Her face was fretful. Plainly she had not enjoyed a pleasant drive. She saw the beautiful candles that Judy brought from abroad and her purple eyes narrowed.

"But, Miss Rogers, I can't accept them!"

"I wish you would. After all, a candle is meant to shine, and they have to melt sometime. They are nicer than the blue."

Reluctantly the violet eyes widened. "Yes, they are better. But you'll have to let me pay for them."

"I couldn't do that. Let it be my contribution to the tea please."

The wide eyes measured Judy — the slender, poised figure, the shining brown hair whose curls clustered at the nape of a white neck, steady brown eyes, tilted nose. They noticed the soft folds of green-gray velvet that made her long tea gown, and the Florentine cross and chain around her neck. Judy did not move.

Then Abbey smiled. It was a swift, radiant smile, as though the sun had broken through gray clouds.

"Thank you. I like them, too."

When the wealthy girl had gone, Judy strolled to the nearest book shelves. "She decided that I'd serve her purpose better as an ally," she told herself. "Keep your mind on your work, Judy my child. All you want is your salary. It won't be long. You're leaving when the contest ends—"

The contest! Maybe she wouldn't win. No, she wouldn't even think that. She had to win! She took a book.

Then she gasped. It wasn't a book. It was camouflage. An empty box, painted to represent a book, was in her hand. Quickly she reached to replace it. O low, mocking laugh sounded just beyond her. She whirled swiftly.

"I'm sorry I frightened you," the count's cool voice apologized. "Finding an interesting book?"

Judy stood before the shelves, hands behind her, as though she guarded a mountain pass or a secret door.

"I was just waiting for the guests to come down."

"You've given me an idea. I should take some books upstairs," Count Phillippe chattered on. "There are new novels by the dozens but I prefer something that's stood the test of time. Do you like the Maupassant?

He made some pertinent remarks Voltaire?"

about books and authors which caused Judy to look at him with new respect. He wasn't just a playboy. He couldn't be.

The talk drifted to poetry. He recited a few lines.

"They're beautiful," Judy exclaimed. "I don't know them. Who's the author?"

He didn't answer. The deep, musical voice went on with the poem, playing with the lyrical cadences.

"Where may I find it?" Judy asked softly.

"You can't, Miss Rogers. It's something of my own."

"You write poetry?"

"Now and then. A few have made the magazines abroad. And my book—" He shrugged. "It sold 239 copies. But it's a good book." His eyes twinkled. "The majority couldn't grasp it. "The 150 copies left. They make nice gifts for a week-end hostess. I carry a few along. Maybe I'll present you with one."

"No one knows you write—I'm sorry—I mean I didn't know it."

"No need to qualify the sentence. Only a few have been told. I write under another name when I do it. It's been a long time, a year or so since I've tried. You see, 239 copies are not conducive to a literary future."

The fire crackled. The sea cast forth its blues and greens and violets in the driftwood blaze. Dusk came quickly, and a maid drew the heavy velvet curtains which shut out the night and the long stretch of gray water. Guests began to come.

Judy forget the count as she poured tea, asked about lemon and cream and sugar, said polite words and smiled polite smiles. She was disturbingly aware that the count's dark, amused eyes were on her face often. With almost a sense of guilt, she realized that she had not been watching for Ronald. Where was he? For that matter where was Abbey?

The grandfather clock, at a far end of the hall beyond, chimed once —waited 15 minutes and checked on the passing hour again. The count's interest no longer intrigued her. She wanted Ronald to come. The depth of her interest startled her.

"Steady, Judy Rogers," she whispered to herself. "Don't misread directions. He's being kind to you, that's all. And anyway, love is as thin as a snowflake. Pour tea, laugh, drop in two lumps, ask about lemon—don't be a fool!"

But her heart quivered whenever there were steps at the door of the room, and her eyes swept the entrance hopefully. Guests were drifting away to dress for dinner when Ronald and Abbey came. They made their apologies. Ronald's eyes were warm and friendly, and he paused by Judy's side.

Abbey moved among the people, sweet and gay and lovely, the petulant lines of her face relaxed and erased.

"She's happy because she has been with Ronald," Judy perceived. "She is falling in love with him. But she wants to marry a count. She thinks she can have both—love and a title. And Ronald doesn't understand. But the count does. His eyes aren't missing anything. He won't care, though. He just wants the Boland money, so he can slide from polo ponies and write books that nobody reads."

Judy felt tired. She wanted to get away.

When the count came back to the table, with an empty cup as an excuse for his presence, she took it silently. He spoke in a low tone:

"Don't be afraid. Your red-headed hero is being kind, that's all."

"He isn't my red-headed hero and I don't care what he's being. I should think that would be your worry. It's your girl he was with."

"Oh, you don't know Abbey. She flutters hither and yon. But she comes back."

Then the titled guest strolled to another section of the book shelves. Judy caught her breath. He didn't know that imitation volumes were on the racks. Such a public humiliation as he might inflict, unconsciously, on the Bolands, would be hard to forgive. She waited, eyes on the long nervous fingers that reached for a volume.

The count took it from its shelf, turned it over, looked up with puzzled eyes. The room was still. He said nothing, but began to put it back. Abbey spoke quickly.

"Oh, how stupid of me not to have warned you. We are having most of our books rebound and the bindery sent some dummies until they came back next week."

"I mustn't forget to check on that order for you," Ronald said clearly in the ensuing silence. "It's my fault —I overlooked it."

There had been no order, Judy knew. So Ronald was so enamored he would play at pretenses to save the glittering-haired girl — to save her for another man!

Can You Speak Readily Before an Audience?

Make an Asset of Your Voice

Joan's the new president of her club. And why not? Joan not only has good ideas but she has learned how to express them.

You, too, may have good ideas! But when the opportunity comes, can you get up and talk easily?

You can, if you'll remember that to talk effectively you should—1. Know your subject. Get your facts together. Go to the library—it's a great place for fact finding.

2. Prepare your speech by jotting down your facts in logical order. Add incidents and examples to make your speech more colorful. If you're talking of your visit to a national park, tell about your ride on a mule.

3. Before giving your speech, practice reading aloud. Train your voice to express joy, enthusiasm, tenderness by seeing how much emotion you can put into meaningless sounds like um, pi, po.

Speaking well in public brings recognition. Our 32-page booklet gives you complete directions for preparing speeches. Shows you how to hold the interest of listeners. Sample speeches of welcome, introduction, taking office. Tips for toastmasters, radio speakers, club meetings.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of PUBLIC SPEAKING SELF-TAUGHT to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Many Women Make the Mistake of Transferring All Their Affections To the Children When They Come Into the World, And Thus Endanger the Future

ONE of the curious choices that most women have to make is between their husbands and their children. Few women ever realize this, but with the advent of the first baby there are conflicting calls made by their husbands and their children upon their time, their attentions, their interests and their affections, and they have to decide to which ones they will give the most, and whether they will be most mother or most wife.

Of course, in some families this problem does not arise because the man has the paternal instinct so highly developed that he joins his wife in making a double sacrifice on the altar of the children. The majority of men, however, look upon their offspring from a biological point of view and regard them as just a part of life, not its whole, and they have no desire to give up their wives just because they have become fathers.

Nor does a man expect to, and he gets the surprise of his life when he finds out that after the arrival of Junior his wife has literally no time for him; that his taste and pleasures, comforts and convenience are of no consequence to her whatever as compared with those of the little godling in the cradle.

This is the more of a shock because until up to the minute of the baby's birth the man has been the center of their little universe. For him the wife has adorned herself; for him she has been bright and gay; for him she has got up delicious little meals. His pleasure has been her pleasure and she has always been ready to step out with him, or go off chumming with him.

But now, no more. She doesn't doll herself up because baby pulls at her chiffons. Everybody must go on tiptoe around the house for fear of waking the baby. She interrupts husband's best story to demand if he didn't think he heard baby stirring. She can't go out of an evening because she has to stay and watch the baby sleep. In a word, husband is a dethroned monarch ousted by a squirming little creature that looks like a cross between a cream cheese and a boiled lobster.

There are plenty of women who never see their husbands as men again after their first babies are born. Thereafter their husbands are merely the children's fathers, whose sole function in the world is to provide luxuries for the youngsters. There are plenty of women who cheerfully work their husbands to death to get motorcars and fine clothes for their children, and to send them to expensive colleges. There are plenty of women who give to their children all the understanding and tenderness and love that they have in their hearts and never even think of showing their husbands any affection.

The mothers' alibi is that the children are little, helpless and need all of their care and attention, while the husbands are big, strong and capable of taking care of themselves. Which is as may be. Sometimes the husband is capable of taking care of himself, but generally he needs his wife to hold him by the hand and guide him along the safe path more than her 3-year-old does. Moreover, you can hire a good, reliable, middle-aged woman to take care of your babies, but you can't hire any safe woman to take care of your husband.

It may be said, though, in excuse for the woman who puts her children before her husband that she does not realize what a sin she is committing against him. She herself is so obsessed by her adoration of little Jimmy and little Sally that it never occurs to her that her husband doesn't feel the same way; or that he is jealously envious of the caresses she bestows upon them and never gives to him; or that he resents the close corporation that she and the children have formed and into which they never admit him. For in many families mother and the children are leagued against father, and the only use they have for him is to exploit him.

I believe that the woman who prefers her children to her husband makes a fatal choice for all three of them. It is bad even for the children because children take their opinion of their father from their mother. When they see themselves exalted above him they lose all respect for him and he loses the authority over them that he should have. In addition it creates a sort of unnatural rivalry between father and children that makes them latently antagonistic toward each other.

It is cruelly unjust to the man, for it deprives him of the love and companionship he had a right to expect from his wife and it sends him forth in innumerable cases to seek abroad the petting and coddling he does not get at home.

And it is bad for the woman because in the end she loses out. In a few years her children are married and gone and then she is left lonely and desolate, for she has alienated her husband from her by her neglect and she cannot rekindle the fires in his heart that she let burn out for want of fuel. Just for her own sake a woman is wise who puts her husband before the children, and who spends more time and attention spoiling him than she does her babies. As I said before, nurses are plentiful, but substitutes for wives are TNT.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, October 15.

Rather adverse planetary testimonies are shown for this day, with some unsettling conditions of a surprising or sudden character. These might possibly be attributable to illness, bereavement, or some other untoward state of affairs, causing disruption or change of plans, probably a journey. Money seems at stake and the feminine element is at least disconcerting, if not primarily involved.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to have to change their plans or revamp their objectives because of some sudden event or surprising situation. This might be due to illness, sorrow or another disappointing development, in which feminine factors have important part.

A child born on this day may be studious, serious, sensitive, shy, and aloof, preferring undisturbed pursuit of rather unusual knowledge to feminine comradeship, although it should not be unfriendly or unkindly.

Time To Separate

DETROIT, Oct. 14—(CP).—Mrs. Margaret F. Beedon told the court she didn't say a word when her husband of less than a month slapped her down. She even stood for him using a hairpin to rob her dime bank, but when she prepared a lunch for him and he fed that lunch to his milk wagon horse, that was too much.

The judge agreed, and she received a divorce.

The Examiner Fashion Service

An important item of every school wardrobe is a warm woollen coat of simple casual lines. Roomy raglan sleeves give that new square shoulder look to this smart double-breasted coat. Besides being comfortable to wear, they make the coat easy to slip on over your woollen school frocks. They also make the model exceptionally easy to sew, for they cut in one with the shoulders. Another feature of interest is the convertible neckline. It's nice and comfy worn snug at the throat on cold days to and from school. Tweeds, monotones, herringbones, camel hair, nubby wools, homespuns, Scotch plaids, etc., are suitable popular woollens. It's made at a big saving in cost.

Style No. 2681 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16 years. Size 16 requires 3 yards of 54-inch material with 2¾ yards of 39-inch lining.

A Blackout Test

FORT BRAGG, N.C., Oct. 14 (A.P.). — The efficacy of the "black out"—a passive weapon against night flying bombing raids—will be tested to-night on by far the biggest scale ever attempted in the United States.

Thousands of persons in North Carolina over an area of more than 8,000 square miles will darken their homes, stores, factories, and even cut off lights of their automobiles in an effort to confuse "attacking" bombardment planes. The test is part of the United States Army's manoeuvres here.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

Hanid and Knarf, the shadow-children with the turned-about names, were down on their knees on the edge of the pond, gazing into the water. They both looked as hard as they could.

"I can't see that frog at all," Hanid said.

"Neither can I," her brother agreed. "He's disappeared. He's hiding in the mud at the bottom. And that's a shame because I'm sure he knows where our friend, Tad Tadpole, went to when he left the pond. He's the only one that can tell us. I wish he'd come back."

At this Hanid began calling down into the pond: "Frog! Come back here, please!"

"I'm pretending I'm a fly."

"That's no way to call a frog," Knarf said.

Knarf Shows Her.

"Isn't it? How would you call him?"

"I'll show you." Knarf bent over as far as he dared. Then he went: "B-zz-zz-z....b-zz-zz!"

"What does that mean?"

"I'm pretending I'm a fly. Frogs love flies. He'll be right up."

Sure enough, the next instant the frog came popping up through the water and came down in the centre of the waterlily leaf which was floating on top of the water just a few feet away from the edge of the bank.

He looked at Knarf and said: "Gr-rr-rump! You didn't fool me, Knarf. I knew you weren't a fly."

"Oh, how did you know my name?" Knarf exclaimed in astonishment.

The frog chuckled. "I know you and I know Hanid, too. I met you quite a while ago."

"Then you are Tad Tadpole" Hanid said.

"I used to be," the frog answered. "I'm Fred Frog now."

"You've completely changed," said Hanid. "You used to have a long tail."

"And now you haven't any," said Knarf.

"That's right."

"And you didn't used to have any legs," Hanid went on.

"And now you have four of them."

"And you used to have little eyes and a small mouth."

"And now you have large eyes and a great big mouth!"

Tadpole No More.

Fred Frog nodded his head. "Yes, everything you say about how I've changed is right. I lost my tail—it just grew smaller and smaller until it vanished. I grew four legs, and my eyes and my mouth grew bigger. When all that happened, I hopped out of the water and sat on this water-lily leaf. Then I looked at my reflection in the water and I saw that I wasn't a tadpole any more. I saw that I was a frog. So I said to myself: 'Tad Tadpole—your name doesn't fit you.' Then I changed my name to Fred Frog. Well—gr-rr-rump!—I guess I'll have a swim. Even though I'm a frog now, I still haven't forgtten how much I liked to swim as a tadpole. Come again and see me. And if you come at night, I'll show you how I can sing." Then he gave a little spring and—plop, Freddie Frog had disappeared in the water again.

Euchre And Dance Is Pleasant Affair

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hardie, of 499 Patterson street, entertained this week at a pleasant card party and dance. Four tables of progressive euchre were played, and tea was served by the hostess. The remainder of the evening the guests enjoyed dancing to radio music in gaily decorated rooms.

The lady's prize was won by Miss Mildred Henthorne, and the gentleman's prize by Mr. Keith White.

Guests included: Gwylda Pakenham, Betty Runnett, Jane Harvey, Dorothy Freeman, Mildred Henthorne, Nancy Pooley, Hazel Palmer, Violet Freeman and Jessie Wright, and Messrs. J. H. Alex. Runnett, Albert Porter, Les. McLaren, Carlos Palmer, Arthur McLaren, Clarence Porter, Fred. Thompson and Keith White.

St. James' S.S. Holds National Night

On Tuesday evening, October 4th, the Young People of St. James' Sunday School held a very impressive service of thanksgiving following the crisis in Europe.

The hall was profusely decorated with flags and patriotic music was sung. Mr. J. H. Alex. Runnett was the speaker and he gave a very interesting and appropriate address. Mrs. R. Hardie sang a solo, "O Canada," which was very much enjoyed by everyone present. The chairman for the evening was Mr. R. Hardie, devotional convenor. The meeting was well attended by young people.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. R. Hardie were presented with a handsome lamp for their active part in Young People's Society work, and also as a wedding gift following their recent marriage.

The meeting closed with a brief prayer for continued peace by Mr. A. Runnett and the singing of the National Anthem.

Stinson—McLacklin

The marriage of Margaret Dexter McLacklin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ross McLacklin, Kingsville, to Ford Andrews Stinson, of Delhi, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stinson of Norwood, took place in Kingsville. Rev. Cowan of Epworth United church, Kingsville, conducted the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mary McLacklin, and the groom by Mr. K. G. McPhee of Toronto.

Immediately following the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stinson left on a trip through eastern Ontario and the New England States. They will live in Delhi.

There's Beauty In Your Bath

There's beauty in your bath if you go about it the right way; it's not merely a matter of cleanliness.

Friction is a plendid beautifier, because it tones up the circulation and makes you all a-tingle.

A good rub down with a sponge, followed by drying, with a rough towel, works wonders. It is especially good for your back if your skin is not as clear as it should be.

Rev. Maloney Speaks to League

Rev. Father Maloney of the Sacred Heart parish was guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Catholic Women's League held at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum on Wednesday evening.

In his address, Father Maloney, who had recently returned from Ottawa where he attended the national convention of the Catholic Youth of Canada, pointed out the aims and objects of this convention. He explained that the mission of the convention in bringing together 600 eager young men of all nationalities throughout Canada was to give them an opportunity to know and study each other, and by laying aside racial differences to show to the world how heterogeneous groups can work out a living unit among themselves.

A short musical program consisting of a piano solo by Miss Doris Strickland; a humorous reading by Miss Maureen Hickey; and a vocal solo by Adele McMurray, was followed by the business of the meeting.

On the motions of Mrs. F. Lynch, it was decided to send donations to the national scholarship fund, and to assist the local Girl Guide company. The question of the formation of more study clubs was held over until the next meeting.

Named to Attend W.I. Convention

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 14.—Two delegates from the Seymour West Women's Institute will attend the annual convention of the Eastern Ontario Division, which is being held in Belleville on October 20 and 21. Representatives from Prince Edward County, Hastings, and Northumberland will attend this convention which is designed to discuss the problems concerning the institute in their work throughout the province. Mrs. Charles Macoun will attend as publicity convenor, and Mrs. Fred McCulloch will be a voting delegate from this section.

Masquerade Party Is Held by I.O.D.E.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 14.—Results of the Bemmerside Chapter I.O.D.E. draw were announced at their meeting held at the home of Mrs. Robert Fox on Wednesday, when members gathered for their monthly meeting which took the form of a masquerade party. Mrs. F. Burgar won the blanket as first prize and Miss Georgie Davidson drew second prize: a breakfast cloth. The third prize, a pair of bath towels, was won by Thomas Fox. During the evening prizes were also given for the best costumes to Mrs. Jack Storie, Miss Marie Crosson. Following the regular business discussion the members played bridge, at the conclusion of which a delightful Hallowe'n lunch was served. Miss Dorothy Kingston won the bridge prize.

Vases For Centrepieces

Vases, of clear, heavy crystal, fashioned like urns, or bubble bowls, either of heavy pressed clear glass, or colored in rich blues, burgundies, or woodland greens to contrast with an otherwise white table, are among the favored centrepieces for formal fall tables. But unlike the centrepieces of another year, this year's come in pairs. Smart hostesses are arranging two of the urn vases, with perhaps the pair of candlesticks in the centre, or a pair of bubble bowls at either side of the candelabra. Reproductions of old colonial glass, or the heavy new modern, are shown for the formal table.

A clever combination of animal figures, in frosted glass, at either side of a colored buble bowl, is an unusual centrepiece for a fall table.

Alumnae Tea Is Delightful Event

A delightful event of Thursday was the tea held by the Alumnae of St. Joseph's Hospital from four to six Thursday afternoon at the charming home of Mrs. J. M. O'Brien, Aylmer street.

Miss Anna Lynch, president of the Alumnae, assisted the hostess in welcoming the guests.

The door prize was won by Miss Marjorie McNulty, and the down comforter, drawn for by little Justine O'Brien, was won by Mrs. L. D. Letellier.

The tea table, laid with a cloth of ecru lace, was centred by a silver vase of flowers in autumn clors, and lighted ivory tapers brought out the gleam of silver services, which were presided over by Mrs. (Dr.) Herbert Young; Mrs. L. D. Letellier; Mrs. J. D. Fitzpatrick, and Mrs. W. O'Brien. They were assisted by members of the Alumnae, and a number of student nurses.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Night brings out stars as sorrow shows us truth:
Though many, yet they help not; bright, they light not.
They are too late to serve us; and sad things
Are aye too true. We never see the stars
Till we can see naught but them.
So with truth.
And yet if one would look down a deep well,
Even at noon, we might see those same stars."
—Philip J. Bailey.

Dear Friends:

Sometimes we look for understanding from our friends. We have done something that cried out to be done, but understanding is withheld.

We have temporised with this thing, not wanting to be too hard nor too soft. We realize that there are often extenuating circumstances, such as not enough education maybe, or a different nature from ours.

And this lack in education, or the difference in nature gives others a different view point. Yet the thing stares us in the face to be done, and we would lack truth in its most essential part if we compromise too much.

So, we go ahead, and where we looked for sympathetic approval, we meet with stony silence, and it becomes like a thorn in our side.

We try explanations, but they too meet with no response. We wonder why our friend cannot see that we could do no other than we did do, and yet this silence irks us terribly.

As a rule, when something is indicated, we generally shrink from the doing, especially when it may annoy or hurt another. But when we have gone ahead even against our will, it is hard indeed to meet with this disapproving silence.

So, we stand alone where we expected to stand with friends. Now, I would not have you think that, because I do not approve of the ways of certain people that I expect everyone else to agree with me.

Neither would I have you think that I lack a broad point of view, or am out of step with a changing world. But truth is truth, and one must live up to their code of honor and hold fast to their principles even if they do meet with stony silence.

Generally, those who will not understand, have had little experience, or their own code is wobbly and will not stand up under any pressure, so by their silence they straddle the fence, neither for you, nor having the courage to come out against you.

Well, I once read of a man who was being shown through hell, and after he had seen quite a lot, he asked the one that was acting as his guide, why there were so many people hanging over fences, neither in hell nor out of it.

And his guide told him that these were the people who straddled the fence when they were on earth. They were always afraid to give an honest opinion, always afraid to come out straight forward for one side or the other.

So they were condemned to straddle this fence for all eternity. They never knew when they would lose their grip and fall into the deep fires below them, so they were kept shifting about all the time to get a better hold.

Not a very nice idea, yet a fitting punishment I think. If you have an enemy, you know where you stand with him, but if you have a friend who has no backbone, you never know when they will let you down.

It isn't that they cannot see the star of truth, but they want to depend on you without giving you the same dependance on them. Truly I have no use for people like that, for they are no good to themselves or me either. More later. Your Friend, ROBERTA.

Gay Trimming Brightens Frocks

Too many trimmings, we all know, spoil the most high-styled frock. But one or two, picked with care and discrimination, can make a plain outfit look modish.

One warning. When you are choosing a little something to revitalize a frock, a bag, a glove, or your new hair-do, go for the newest, boldest ideas. If feathers are the fashion, better wear the whole bird than a timid wing-tip which will only look fussy. If buttonholes are featured make yours bright and showy. It need not cost much and you will not wear it for long, but while you do it will succeed in making last year's suit look fresh from the fitter.

This year's trimmings tend to the Edwardian style, to suit the 1905 evening dresses and the swept-up hair. There's a glitter about them; fantasy has gone all feminine. If you have any old-fashioned jewelry get it out, polish it up, and wear it, not on your bosom, but on your glove, your shoulder, or in your hair. The new high-curled hair style can take almost any sort of trimmings; feathers or flowers; bows or ribbons; sequins or stars.

Do You Know?

That the sudden and disappointing sinking of meringues can be prevented if a generous pinch of cream of tartar is added to the eggs when they are half beaten? Continue to whip the eggs in the usual way until firm, and bake in a slow oven.

❖ ❖ ❖

Your roly-poly or suet pudding will be much lighter and there will be no greasy cloth to wash afterwards if you wrap the pudding in double grease-proof paper and tie with a string in the usual way?

❖ ❖ ❖

Potatoes, when mashed, should always be moistened with hot, not cold, milk and a little oiled butter? Besides keeping the potatoes hotter than if cold milk and a knob of butter were added, this will also make them mash smoothly.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often brink quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.—(Advt.)

LILLICO MOTORS OPENS MODERN GARAGE AND AUTO SHOWROOM

Ivan T. Lillico Started Out As A Banker, But Lure Of Selling Cars, Too Great

At the new and shining mile-post in his career, represented by the recently - constructed, attractively modernistic automobile sales and service building at Charlotte and Aylmer streets, Ivan T. Lillico pauses briefly to glance back over the distance he has come and the unexpected turns and retracements in the path that led him along to his present individual success. One doesn't look back at the end of the first mile or two, but far along the road, and when you become aware of the leagues you have left behind there is a natural tendency to stop occasionally and perhaps reflect awhile on the toiling up the hills and the free-wheeling down their opposite slopes, the hazards avoided and the level stretches taken in easy strides.

Enters a Bank.

In a mood of reminiscence this morning, Mr. Lillico recalled graduating from the Peterborough Collegiate Institute with the ambition to become a banker. Entering as a junior in the Bank of Montreal he rose quickly in the service to find himself in short time the youngest accountant with the bank. About this time the war broke out and Mr. Lillico enlisted with the Canadian Engineers, serving at the front until the end of the war. The Bank of Montreal had kept a place for him and he re-entered their service at Toronto in the Bathurst Street branch as assistant manager. It was at this time he was approached by W. S. Howson of Peterborough to enter a partnership with him in the selling and distribution of Chevrolet automobiles. Returning to Peterborough, this partnership was formed and continued over a period of four years. In 1926 Mr. Howson disposed of his half-interest in the partnership to J. K. Hughes and the partnership of Lillico & Hughes was formed, Mr. Lillico being the senior member in the firm. Their place of business was on Water street, where the Howson motor sales is at present located. In the second year of the Lillico-Hughes' alliance they acquired the corner property, the old Munro House, completely remodelled it at their own expense, and drove their enterprise along at an accelerated and expanding rate. In July, 1929, Mr. Lillico sold out his interest in this firm, and took a well-earned holiday. The lure of the automobile business, however, proved too much for him, and in 1930 he obtained the distribution for this district of Dodge and Plymouth automobiles, occupying the premises at 383 Water street. Later, this franchise was changed to Dodge and DeSoto distributorship, which embraced a wide section of the district from Campbellford and Havelock on the east, Apsley on the north, and Millbrook on the west, and including Norwood, Lakefield and other neighboring communities.

It soon became necessary for him to look for larger and more convenient quarters, and about three years ago he leased the property at the south-east corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets, with the intention of later setting up there, a centrally accessible automotive sales and servicing building of the latest design and efficiencies, believing that this was one of Peterborough's finest business locations.

Another step in the progress of the Lillico enterprise was the leasing of the Red Arrow Tire building, Water Street North, and equipping it as a separate department for painting, simonizing, welding, body-bumping and fender work.

Dutch Treasure Chest Shut 200 Years Contains Only Key

Gask, Perthshire, Scotland, Oct. 14 (CP Cable)

THOSE who had hoped something unusual would be found when an old iron Dutch chest was opened were disappointed last night.

Captain G. A. Buchanan of Gask, who has obtained possession of the chest that lay unopened for 200 years in Gordon Castle, Fochabers, Morayshire, announced he had it opened and that it contained only part of a broken key.

The chest was found in the River Spey in 1746, near the spot where the Duke of Cumberland's army crossed the river enroute to the Battle of Culloden.

Skilled Men Are Employed By I. T. Lillico

When Ivan T. Lillico wanted experts for his automobile department for which he obtained ample space by leasing the Red Arrow Tire building in May, 1937, he engaged Albert and Rod Shadgett, generally recognized in this city as outstanding specialist painters. The Shadgett brothers learned the trade from their father, the late James Shadgett, who for years carried on the business of painting automobiles and carriages at the very corner the new Lillico building now occupies, and in the old brick structure that was demolished only a few days ago. The younger men had a shop on Simcoe street painting and simonizing cars. Their experience and skill was what Mr. Lillico knew he needed in his paint department, so he persuaded them to fold up and join his organization, Albert Shadgett becoming foreman of the painting and simonizing. With men like the Shadgett brothers Mr. Lillico is confident his customers will obtain the best possible service in all kinds of automobile painting and simonizing jobs they may want done.

For fender work, body-bumping and welding, Mr. Lillico lined up Russell Davidson of Toronto, who came to Peterborough with nine years' service in the employ of A. D. Gorrie, Limited. Every car owner knows that body-bumping means taking the bumps and bangs out of bodies, an accomplishment of surprising results, a trade that comes close to being an art. A good body-bumper can make look like new almost the worst of cars that seem hopelessly headed for the scrap heap. And they can make crushed, twisted and torn fenders practically as smoothly rounded as when they first came from the giant presses. Mr. Davidson straightened out and reclaimed hundreds of them before coming to Peterborough, and it was that variety of experience and ability Mr. Lillico sought in engaging him.

These men are only three of the personnel who reflect the general quality of Lillico service.

"Pete" In Swank New Home

Ivan Lillico's faithful companion "Pete" has become so associated with the business that he is almost in the position of being one of the staff. Everybody knew him along Water Street in the neighborhood of Lillico Motors old headquarters and office. Now "Pete" realizes the establishment has moved down to Charlotte and Aylmer Streets, and will be one of the gang at the formal opening of the new sales and service building Saturday afternoon.

Store At Bonarlaw Visited By Robbers

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, Oct. 14.—A very bold robbery was committed here Wednesday night when thieves entered the general store of Bell and Barlow by way of the front door in spite of the fact that this entrance is always in the light of an electric bulb over the entrance. A small amount of cash, chiefly coppers, was taken and some canned goods and tobacco. Officers Gray of Marmora and Dymond of Madoc are investigating.

New Home Of Lillico Motors Is Now Located On What Was Tanners' Corner

Not how many, but how few of the survivors of an earlier and bygone generation can remember the days when the new Lillico Motors site at Charlotte and Aylmer Streets was known as Tanner's corner!

Flush on the southeast corner and along the street line was a clapboard house owned by Edward Tanner, whose daughter was the mother of the late Dr. Fred L. Robinson, V.S., of recent memory. A spacious garden extended from the house along both streets, a garden that brings back recollections of its tremendous cabbages. Extending south on Aylmer Street an intervening gap reached to Dr. Harvey's house about where the Free Methodist church stands. In later years the first house going south was occupied by Frank Sandy and his mother. Mr. Sandy eventually became C. N. R. agent here and died several years ago. Next to Sandy's was Whitehead's old school where the fee was 25 cents a month for each scholar in the days before the public school system was instituted.

Thomas Bradburn built the white double house now immediately east of the Lillico Motors building, and east of it was the house occupied by James Henry, the first market clerk. Dick Trenwith had a shoe shop at the Louis Street corner. Later he moved down to the site of Canada Packers Limited where he lived and died in the house he built down near the bridge. At one time the Lacheur family lived at the southwest corner of Charlotte and Louis Streets.

Tobias Fitzgerald, it is reported, erected the building at the Charlotte corner recently demolished to provide space for the Lillico Motors enterprise. He had married into the Robinson family. In its day the wagon works and blacksmith shop built by Mr. Fitzgerald was considered as smart in its Mansard roof and strong as is the new Lillico Motors sales and service structure. When he later built the big livery barn and stable on the premises of the wine shop, and eventually with an entrance on Aylmer Street, the wagon shop was taken over by Charles and David Porter. It is related that Charles Porter moved to Toronto after his Peterborough experience and was a foreman in the old Massey-Harris Company's plant. And of David Porter it is said he won $15,000 in a London lottery and was able to retire on it.

The old building subsequently was partly occupied as a meat shop by the late Michael O'Brien, and others were Patrick Delaire, shoemaker and Elric White, upholsterer. There was also the period during which it was the Shadgett paint shop. These are only composite recollections pieced together. One source of information mentioned a little grocery shop that once stood somewhere near the old corner where whiskey was sold at fifteen cents a pint.

Many citizens can recall the old residence of Dr. F. L. Robinson on the identical site of the Lillico Motors building, and the figure of a deer that was something of a professional mark of Dr. Robinson's profession.

Man Wakes In Morgue Because Doctor Tested Glass Eye

San Francisco, Oct. 14 (AP)

WENDALL BRABHAM, 40, intervened in a free-for-all street fight. He woke up on a cold slab in a white room.

"Where am I?" he asked.

"In the morgue," replied a startled attendant.

"Hey, I'm not dead!" exclaimed Brabham.

He had been pronounced dead because there was no reflex action when doctors opened an eyelid.

"No wonder," said Brabham, "it's a glass eye."

Old Corner Has Acquired New Beauty

An old business corner has acquired new beauty and life and importance with the completion of the handsome new building and premises of Lillico Motors which Ivan T. Lillico is formally opening at the southeast corner of Charlotte and Aylmer Streets tonight and on Saturday at 2 p.m.

Steel, concrete and brick, the materials of fireproofing, have been fashioned on modernistic design into the smartest and most attractive structure of its kind between Toronto and Ottawa. It has been planned and laid out, with its ample ground space for every last convenience and efficiency in the broad service that has grown up with the automobile industry. That service includes, of course, sales and display accommodation for Dodge and De Soto automobiles, also for accessories, repairing of cars, battery and tire departments, gasoline, oil and washing, and a complete repair section.

The modern influence of design appears in the sweeping curves that replace the hard and sharp corners, strikingly decorative exterior finish in a basic color of white with touches of blue and red trim in crystallite stucco. Efficient arrangement of equipment affording economy of movement is noticed in the interior designing.

The general contract was carried out by H. T. Hickey, and the sub-contractors were W. R. Turner heating and sheet metal; Archibald and Richmond plumbing and airlines; Grant and Loucks wiring; Alex McLeod roofing; Arthur Bennett painting and decorating.

Representatives of the Imperial Oil Company, Toronto, and the Chrysler Corporation of Toronto and Windsor will be in Peterborough for the opening of the splendid new home of Lillico Motors Saturday afternoon. The old corner, associated with the growth of Peterborough for more than one hundred years, enters upon a broader stage of activity in its modern transformation which provides Peterborough with one of the finest sales and automobile servicing properties in Ontario.

With Coming Of Fall and Falling Of Leaves Efficient Tires Needed

October ushers in again a new season that emphasizes the need of efficient tires that will grip the road in conditions that have generally been absent since the advent of the 1938 Spring. When the leaves come tumbling along the pavements, and the dew and rain dampen them leaving a slippery moistness on the concrete, motorists become aware of the danger of driving with tires that are outworn and should be replaced. With the many opportunities for buying brand new tires that will do an efficient road job in these conditions that set in during October, especially with the advantage of the budgeting plans offered the public by various companies, drivers do not have to take a chance on driving with the odds against them. You can budget a purchase of tires that will ensure added safety and protection on terms that are decidedly attractive.

The weeks and months of the hard dry roads are passing with the change of the seasons, and the wise motorist looks to his tires and their traction to meet those new conditions with a lot of new confidence and security.

HIGH SCHOOL DAMAGED

HAMILTON.—Close to $200 damage was done to Cathedral High School during the night by a gang of vandals, it was revealed when pupils and staff reached the building today. A costly rockery and ornamental planting had been torn to bits, and rocks moved on to the steps of the school.

Marmora Institute Drafts Fair Places

MARMORA, Oct. 14—The monthly meeting of Marmora Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. George Kerr on Thursday afternoon drew a large attendance.

Prior to the opening exercises, the members were filmed by Dr. Frank Carlton in connection with the film which he has been taking of the village.

The president, Mrs. J. Gordenier, occupied the chair. The roll call was "My Pet Superstition", and was well responded to. It was decided to approach one of the High School teachers with a view to the teacher acting as a captain for the Tag Day for the National Institute for the Blind. Plans for the operation of the booth at the Fair were concluded.

Mrs. W. C. Spry followed with some thoughts on "legislation". Current events, prepared by Mrs. F. R. Wells, were given by the secretary, Miss Grace Warren. Mrs. F. R. Wells gave a humorous reading which was also much enjoyed. Another reading, "Old Shoes" was given by Mrs. Robert Phillips. A splendid paper on the monthly motto, "The happiness of your life depends upon the character of your thoughts," was given by Mrs. J. A. Rice.

The meeting then adjourned folowing which lunch was served.

COMPLETE NEW STYLING MARKS DODGE SIX AND DELUXE CARS

New "Safety Signal" Installed On The Speedometer Of The 1939 Model Dodge Cars

Drivers of the new Dodge will have amber, green and red lights to tell them just how fast they are going. For on the dashboard of the 1939 model has been installed a new "safety signal" speedometer that automatically flashes a warning for three different driving speed zones.

All illumination of the dial is indirect except one bright colored light on the indicator needle that changes from green to yellow at 30 miles an hour. Between 30 and 50 the color remains yellow, but above 50 it changes again to bright red. Thus the same colors the driver is used to obeying in traffic lights now automatically flash inside the car whenever he drives outside the safest speed range.

Complete new styling with lavish use of chromium and long sweeping line marks the new Dodge Six and Dodge DeLuxe for 1939, the Dodge entries in the low price field. Interiors show the modern touch, both in design and materials. The ride is much improved and the designers have made comfort and safety go hand in hand.

Gear Shift On Steering Post

One outstanding change in the new Dodge is that the gear shift is now located on the steering post. The steering column jacket has a flare at the top, which curves out to the base of the steering wheel. Out of this comes the new "Handy-Control" gear shift lever, that is standard equipment on DeLuxe models. In introducing this feature to the low price field, Dodge presents a specially engineered design with control linkage inside the steering column, so that the shifting lever travels in exactly the same arc as the rim of the wheel.

The remote control gear on Dodge DeLuxe models, is accompanied by a new all-quiet, auto-mesh transmission that cuts shifting effort in half-despite apparently smaller leverage. All gears are carburized nickel molybdenum steel, and second and direct gears are automatically synchronized for positive, silent engagement even when shifted faster than before.

Enclosed within the new transmission synchronizing unit is an intermediate member that takes up the difference in speed between second and direct gears, and brings them into perfect synchronization before engagement takes place. This completely eliminates clashing, and also reduces the amount of shifting effort required.

Longer Wheelbase

The new Dodge Six and DeLuxe has a longer wheelbase—measuring 114 inches—that ensures improvement in riding comfort, safety and performance. Headlights are also improved, now being built right into the forward sweep of front fenders, and having lenses shaped like oblong shields. An ornamental bezel sets off these units in the fender front contour. Tail lamps also are built in this year, being streamlined into the surface of the extended rear-fender skirt.

The bigger hood for 1939 remains the same type as before with top panels only hinged for service, water and oil. A twist of the handle raises up one top section part way for convenience in lifting, and an automatic spring holds the panel in open position.

The hood side panels are for additional stiffness, and have one section on each side that is securely fastened but easily removable when more elaborate service is required.

Hand-Brake On Left

To take full advantage of the new, handy location of the gear shift, the hand-brake lever is moved over to the left of the steering column, but remains up underneath the cowl, out of the way. Thus the new setup presents not one, but three improvements— a wide-open front compartment floor, unobstructed in any way; quicker, easier shifting, with nothing new to learn.

Safety-styling follows the same basic pattern as that introduced in recent models. The new interiors for 1939 protect passengers in case of sudden stops. All inside door handles and window controls curve safely back out of the way. The back of the front seat is thickly padded and rolled at the top for the benefit of children or rear seat passengers. Windshield wiper buttons are of soft rubber. The reading light is kept away from the dome, and is over the back window, behind all passengers.

All interior hardware is of new design this year, in a bright-finished, classic pattern. The instrument board has a grille design in the centre with provision for a row of automatic station-selector buttons to be recessed into the panel. A corresponding narrow panel on the other side of the grille is to accommodate a vertical radio dial when the radio is installed.

Improved defrosting vents are built into the base of both halves of the new "V"-type windshield. When hooked up with the heater fan these quickly clear the glass of frost or mist.

The front seat adjustment now allows a full five inches of fore-and-aft travel to suit the leg-length of individual drivers, travelling on inclined runners so that it rises as it is moved forward, automatically adjusting the eye level for drivers of any height.

There are many engineering improvements in the new Dodge, including an even sturdier frame than hitherto; new amola steel coil springs heretofore available only in cars of higher price; high-torque engine performance; "centre" steering, reducing road shock and steering fatigue; new auto-mesh transmission; softer clutch and brake pedals.

Besides the innovations for 1939, Dodge retains all the famous extra comfort and fine-car features it pioneered in the low price field.

GILMOUR

Jim Moore, who left recently to take up a course of studies at Kemptville Agricultural College, was guest of honor at a pleasing "Box Party" at the home of Jean, Dorothy and Braden Mann, his cousins. Guests were Junior Farmers of the district.

The young student was again honored before his departure at "Pinecrest," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Mann, who lent their spacious home to the Young People of Gilmour Church. Misses Hazel Telford and Dorothy Clarke were in charge. During the evening an address was read by Harry Blewett and the departing guest was presented with a fountain pen by the Young People of his church. Lunch was served by the girls.

Special speaker at the Women's Thankoffering service at Gilmour Church on Sunday was Miss Turnbull, a missionary in India who is visiting at the home of her cousin, Mrs. Gratten Telford. Miss Turnbull also addressed a Sunday night Young People's meeting at Mrs. Telford's home.

A large number from Gilmour B.Y.P.U. attended the rally held at Belleville on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Mahood and daughter Carol of Hamilton visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mahood over the holiday.

DODGE SIX and DODGE DE LUXE FOR 1939

New 1939 Dodge DeLuxe Four-Door Sedan

A Challenge to all LOW PRICED CARS!

LOWER PRICES
•
Longer Wheelbase
New Spring Suspension
.. New Gear Shift .. New Safety Signal Speedometer

TAKE A GOOD LOOK at the most beautiful Dodge ever produced in all the 25 years of Dodge history. Actually two inches longer wheelbase, it looks even longer ... Fenders are broader, deeper, longer and more massive. Definitely these 1939 Dodge cars are big cars and their appearance is ringing a challenge to all low priced cars.

Gear shift lever is now on steering column in De Luxe Models ... Front compartment floor is clear—lots of room for three people.

And the RIDE! The physical sensation of riding in the new Dodge is that of gliding ... Big bumps raise the whole car gently and as gently it settles back again ... Small bumps are absorbed by the rugged new independent front wheel suspension and the aeroplane-type shock absorbers. Dodge gives you a true, Relaxed Ride!

Driving is simpler and easier. Steering these new Dodge cars is more positive and at the same time easier! Gear shifting in the Dodge DeLuxe is very much easier than before. The gearshift lever has been moved off the floor on to the steering wheel where the same gear shifting motions become simpler and more convenient. The hand brake is at the left of the steering column so the whole front compartment floor is clear and roomy.

DODGE—a leader in the introduction of all-steel bodies and double action hydraulic brakes again brings you these priceless safety features. The Dodge "Safety Signal" speedometer is a NEW safety feature ... When driving at speeds up to 30 miles per hour a green light glows on the speedometer dial, from 30 to 50 a yellow light and over 50 miles a red light warns you ... A speed guardian for city and highway driving.

"SAFETY SIGNAL" Speedometer on all Dodge cars for 1939. A speed guardian for night driving.

Come in today and see the New Dodge Six and the Dodge De Luxe. Give yourself the pleasure of driving one of these new cars. They are priced right down among the lowest priced cars. Your Dodge dealer will gladly let you drive and judge their brilliant new performance for yourself.

IN MEMORIAM

MILLER.—In loving memory of our dear mother, Florence Alberta Miller, who passed away three years ago to-day, October 14, 1935.

When evening shades are falling,
And we sit in quiet alone,
To our hearts there comes a longing:
If she only could come home.
Friends may think we have forgotten,
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the heartache
Our smiles hide all the while.

—Ever remembered—Evelyn, R. J., and Kenneth.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our many neighbors, friends, relatives, the staff of the Nicholls Hospital, Rev. Mr. Parr and Rev. BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

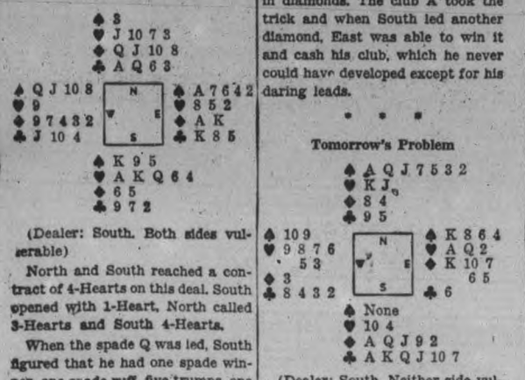
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

LEADING TO A TENACE

HOW OFTEN HAVE you seen a player deliberately lead away from his guarded king up to dummy's ace-queen? Not very often. Usually that would be terrible bridge. But there are times when it represents real brilliancy.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable)

North and South reached a contract of 4-Hearts on this deal. South opened with 1-Heart, North called 3-Hearts and South 4-Hearts.

When the spade Q was led, South figured that he had one spade winner, one spade ruff, five trumps, one club and two diamonds, but he reckoned without East, who found a way to set him.

East overtook the spade Q with the A and led the club 5. West's 10 forced the Q. Three rounds of trumps were then drawn and declarer went after diamonds. East won the first lead of that suit with the K and led the club 8, thus establishing his K while he had an entry in diamonds. The club A took the trick and when South led another diamond, East was able to win it and cash his club, which he never could have developed except for his daring leads.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable).

What is the correct defense against South's 5-Club contract?

Hungary Calls 200,000 To The Colors

Czechs Move Closer Hint Troops May Grab Land Back

BUDAPEST, Oct. 15. — (AP). — Hungary started doubling her army to an estimated 420,000 men to-day for what officials said was peace, not war.

The mobilization of five classes (age groups), totalling approximately 200,000 youths, was called a measure necessary for Hungarian security, "endangered by the continued mobilization of the Czechoslovak army" and the collapse of negotiations on Hungarian demands for parts of Czechoslovakia.

Surprise was occasioned by disclosure the Hungarian army numbered about 220,000 because the post-war Trianon treaty, declared abrogated just two months ago, limited the force to 35,000.

The official press declared Hungary was not alone in demanding Magyar-inhabited slices of her already-dismembered neighbor. "We have powerful friends, who fully support us," said the newspaper Pester Lloyd. The reference was perhaps to Germany and Italy.

Czechs Ready to Act

KOMAROM, Hungary (on the Czechoslovak border), Oct. 15. — (AP).—A Czech officer declared today his soldiers would resist occupation of frontier communities by Hungarian troops under any circumstance.

The captain, who commands a regiment stationed on the Czechoslovak side of the Danube near here and who fought with the Czech Legion in Russia during the Great War, added that "I think it will not be long until our soldiers try to take back territory already taken from them."

Czechoslovakia continued to move more troops closer to the Danube as news spread of Hungary's orders to mobilize five new classes by Monday.

The Czechs kept light artillery and heavily-armed troops at the entrance of bridge leading over the Danube into Hungary.

On the Hungarian side there were counter precautionary measures and the possibility was discussed here that thousands of newly-mobilized men would be moved shortly toward the frontier.

A Hungarian general staff officer said Hungary probably would mobilize 1,000,000 men if her territorial dispute with Czechoslovakia leads to war.

He emphasized, however, hungary needed more time to complete defence preparations and equip the soldiers.

"In about four or five months we would be ready for any eventuality," he said.

Rescuers Miss Hat So Owner Sends Bill For $10

Portland, Ore., Oct. 15 (CP)

CAPTAIN KARL PREHN wasn't surprised when only three of 25 persons saved from drowning in 1937 thanked the harbor patrol. What amazed him, Prehn told a club audience, was this. The day following his rescue, one man sent a lawyer to Prehn's office with a demand for $10 because the patrol overlooked fishing out his hat, too!

Manion Is Given Nomination Without Fight

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 15—(CP).—Hon. R. J. Manion, National Conservative leader and party candidate for the London Federal by-election November 14, will leave here to-day for his first trip to Western Canada since his election last July as party leader. The first stop will be at Edmonton.

To the convention that last night unanimously nominated him for the House of Commons seat vacated by the death of Fred Betts, Dr Manion made his first extended declaration of policy on Canada's railway problem. He was opposed to unification of the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railways.

Even if economic reasons could be found for it—and Dr. Manion said figures furnished him seemed to disprove the claims of those who foresaw huge savings in unification—there was ample justification for opposing it on the ground the great majority of Canadian people did not want it.

Calls For Economies

Reading from a prepared statement on the railway problem, Dr. Manion said "all reasonable economies should be instituted on both roads through their own headquarters as well as through co-operative measures decided on by the two railways in consultation with their employees, such co-operative measures not to be put into effect at the expense of railway labor."

He re-stated his belief in a protective tariff both to build home industry and to protect the home market for Canada's farmers. In practice both major parties in Canada subscribed to the protectionist policy, he said.

Thanking Prime Minister Mackenzie King for his suggestion that led to a decision the Liberal party would not contest the by-election, Dr. Manion regretted that the entry of a Co-operative Commonwealth candidate would put the country to the expense of a by-election. It was typical of the "nuisance value" of third parties.

New Defence Setup Proposed

All Civilian Details To Be Handled By Special Ministry

By J. F. Sanderson
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 15.—(CP Cable).—A ministry of national service to supervise every aspect of civilian home defence may be formed by Prime Minister Chamberlain's Government.

The scheme will be discussed by the Government at a Cabinet meeting Wednesday, although it is understood details already are in an advanced stage. One report mentions Sir John Anderson, former Under-Secretary at the Home Office, as likely minister in charge of the new department.

One function of the new ministry would be to organize men and women for service in time of war.

A national census would supply the Government with information on every man and woman, such as age, occupation, physical condition, technical abilities, previously military or other training and the form of national service preferred. They could choose either the territorial army, air raid precautions, auxiliary fire brigades, first aid crews or munitions making.

The register, to be on a voluntary basis, would enable the Government to make sure that technical experts would not be wasted in routine jobs. It also would provide a list of key men who would keep jobs in wartime and ensure that men's eagerness to join the fighting forces would not disrupt the essential services.

Jobs For The Women

Women would be classified for specialized jobs such as motor and ambulance driving, nursing and munition work.

Professional organizations like the British Medical Association may be requested to circularize members asking for special information. Doctors would be classified according to their willingness to serve anywhere in Great Britain or in their immediate localities. The same thing applies to scientists, architects and engineers who, in the last war, often fought in the front trenches while others lacking specialized knowledge attempted to carry out their work at home.

It also was reported the government is considering plans for a vast network of bomb-proof shelters throughout London, costing £4,000,000 ($28,000,000). They would necessitate a change in the government's plans for evacuation of the city.

Taking a lesson from Madrid and Barcelona, Britain would construct shelters for men, women and children rather than move them to the country in vast numbers. The two Spanish cities found shelters the best defence against sky raiders and despite the large number of bombings casualties have been comparatively small.

At the height of the crisis two weeks ago shelters were started in many city parks and open spaces. Gangs of men worked day and night but a halt has been called until a definite long-range policy is settled.

Demand For Building Highway To Port Perry Is Re-affirmed At Fiery Meeting

(By Staff Reporter)

PORT PERRY, Oct. 15.—Representatives from every municipality between Orangeville to Peterborough attended an emergency meeting held in the Town Hall at Port Perry last night and re-affirmed their stand that the Central Ontario Highway from Schomberg to Peterborough must be completed and no other route which might be substituted.

The meeting went on record as favoring a plan whereby the existing organization would take a broad view of the plan to urge early completion of not only the links which they are interested in but the entire highway system from Sarnia to Montreal. They will demand from the Government that year by year contracts for this work be carried out, and some of the work started at once. The meeting served as a public endorsement of the project for which the heads of the various municipalities have been striving, and the idea is to have a uniform resolution passed by every municipality between Port Huron and Ottawa and presented to the Minister of Highways.

The meeting was formally opened by Reeve W. M. Letcher of Port Perry who tendered a welcome to the different mayors, reeves, and representatives of service organizations between Orangeville and Peterborough. He explained the meeting had been called at Port Perry because the municipality was midway between Orangeville and Peterborough. He explained the meeting was strictly non-political in nature, and was more or less of an emergency get-to-gether made necessary by unusual developments during the past two weeks.

The meeting was then turned over to Ald. James Dutton, president of the Central Ontario Highway Association who in turn asked Wm. Bowes, secretary of the Association to explain the reasons for the meeting.

Contract Cancelled.

Bowes said there were two primary reasons for the meeting, the first being that a contract to grade and gravel five miles of the high-

German Colony Demand Coming Soon

PARIS, Oct. 15— (CP Havas) — Genevieve Tabouis reported today in L'Oeuvre (Radical-Socialist) that a memorandum demanding the return of pre-German colonies will be presented "in these coming days" to Great Britain by Chancellor Hitler.

The well-known commentator on foreign affairs predicted Great Britain would refuse but might agree to set up a colony for Germany in Central Africa, asking a share from France and a slice of Ethiopia from Italy.

"Every day recently Hitler has conferred on colonies with General Franz Vonepp (Nazi Colonial campaign leader) and most of the colonial governors of the pre-war Reich," Mme. Tabouis wrote. "After great hesitation, the Fuehrer is understood to have prepared a memorandum in which he purely and simply calls for a return of all former German colonies which the Treaty of Versailles tore from it.

"In this memorandum the Reich declares that it is a question of honor, these colonies having been taken away under the pretext that the Reich did not know how to colonize. The memorandum adds that the old Germany, however, in its possessions never had incidents similar to those which Great Britain now has in Palestine.

"Great Britain's position on the subject of the return to Germany of its former colonies is known. It would not seem about to change, according to information gathered yesterday evening.

"Great Britain cannot take back from its Dominions the colonies which were given them.

Australian Labor Sweeps Election

WELLINGTON, Oct. 15 (CP-Havas).—The Labor government of prime minister Michael Savage won an overwhelming victory in the New Zealand general election today, electing 55 candidates to the house of representatives as against 25 Nationalists.

In the last election three years ago, when Labor came to power, the party won 52 seats in the house as against 0 for the Nationalists and eight for the independents. Since that time the independents lost one seat to labor.

The labor government carried through an important program of social reforms in the past three years and these formed the principal issue of the campaign.

New Major Campaign Brewing In Spain

HENDAYE, France, Oct. 15—(AP) — Dispatches from Spain reported fighting today on three major fronts in what may be a preliminary to another large-scale campaign.

The Ebro River front in Eastern front in Central Spain and on the fighting approached important proportions. But on the Tagus River front in Ceneral Spain and on the Estremadura front in the southwest the opposing armies were searching for enemy weak spots.

In the centre south of Madrid, insurgents reported they had rectified front lines slightly by local attacks in the Borox sector. Government advies retorted, however, that "an enemy attack was repulsed."

Germany Bars Jews From Law Practise

BERLIN, Oct. 15—(AP)—Germany followed up a recent ban on Jewish doctors today by barring Jews from the practice of law.

A decree published in the official gazette ordered Jewish attorneys to get out of the Bar Association by November 30. In recently-annexed Austria the licences must be withdrawn by December 30, with exceptions.

The order provided that the deletion of names of Jews from the Vienna Bar Association may be suspended temporarily in the case of world war front-line soldiers whose families have resided in Austria at least 50 years.

U.S. To Link Recovery With Arms

Spending Of Millions For Defence To Revive Industry

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—(AP).—The United States administration's revised defence program, informed officials said today, is expected to tie in closely with its business recovery efforts.

The program already is taking shape around plans to stimulate $1,000,000,000 worth of construction work by private utilities. This will have the two-fold objective of assuring an uninterrupted flow of power to vital defence centres in time of emergency and of pumping new life into the heavy industries.

The power program is one of several phases of national defence which are being restudied in the light of world developments. President Roosevelt indicated at his press conference yesterday that proposals for a stronger army, navy and air force were being prepared for consideration by congress.

Meanwhile, the president is delaying his budgt estimates for the next fiscal year until he can determine the probable cost of the program.

Tips Starts Action

The president said the re-survey of the country's defence needs had been in progress for a year, but was brought to a head by events of recent weeks and by the receipt of technical information.

The president's disclosure that re-examination of defence needs included studies of possible mass production of war equipment was in line with war department preparations to gear industry to high speed production of munitions in the event of war.

Military officials said they believed that with proper organization, American manufacturers could turn out as many airplanes on a mass production basis as Germany's mobilized industry and produce superior types.

Recommendations given Mr. Roosevelt, authoritative sources indicated, possibly would call for army and navy expenditures totalling $1,500,000,000 in the next fiscal year, an increase about one-third over this year.

Canadians Do Well At Dairy Show

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15 (CP)—With judging at the National Dairy Show completed, a review of the prize list disclosed today that Canadian exhibitions took a large share of the awards.

In the Ayrshire classes, they included a grand championship, a reserve championship, a junior championship, nine first prizes, eight seconds, six thirds, six fourths, seven fifths, six sixths, seven sevenths, two eighths and one twelfth. This was a a total of 55 awards for the 50 animals shown, 30 of which were Quebec and 20 from Ontario.

There were 15 Holsteins shown and the final tally showed they won a reserve grand championship and 14 other awards—one first, two seconds, one third, one fourth, two fifth, one sixth, one seventh, one eighth, two ninths and two tenths. All the Holsteins were from Ontario, except one from Prince Edward Island which was judged the reserve grand championship bull of the show.

Jap Ships Within 80 Miles Of Hankow

SHANGHAI, Oct. 15—(AP).—Japanese warships, steaming up the Yangtse river toward Hankow, were reported today to have advanced to within 80 miles of the provisional capital after heavy artillery exchanges with Chinese shore batteries. The Chinese said their batteries had sunk a Japanese munitions transport in the Yangtse.

Severe fighting continued around Sinyang, Telan and Yangsin. In the Yangsin sector, Yulungling Peak changed hands three times during fighting last night and this morning.

As a prelude to a drive down the Peiping-Hankow railway toward Hankow, Japanese warplanes bombarded Chinese troop concentrations and trains south of Sinyang. Sinyang is 100 miles north of the provisional capital.

Nab Sudbury Pair For Robberies In Three Centres

TORONTO, Oct. 15 (CP)—Police in three Ontario municipalities today investigated the recent activities of two youthful Sudbury residents, held in custody in the Northern Ontario city on warrants issued by Huntsville and York township police.

Authorities sought to link Willard Lark, 23, and Woodrow Racicot, 21, with the holdup of a motor-car sales room and burglary of stores in Huntsville, 150 miles north of Toronto. In suburban York township, the men were wanted on charges of shooting with intent, laid in connection with the hold-up of a King City, Ont., bank last Sept. 23.

Acting on a request from police here, Sudbury officers yesterday arrested Lark as he walked along a street. Racicott was taken into custody at the International Nickel Company's refinery at nearby Copper Cliff where he had been employed for several days. Both men had lived in Sudbury most of their lives.

Wanted at King City.

Informed of the arrests, Chief Constable Robert Alexander said the men were sought here in connection with the King City hold-up. In that robbery, two youthful gunmen held up a branch of the Bank of Commerce in King City, 12 miles north of Toronto, and escaped with $800.

A spectacular 80-mile-on-hour chase followed. Fifteen minutes after the hold-up, as the bandits fled southward, York Township police sighted the gunmen's automobile. Several shots were ex-

Hooked Caddy?

VANCOUVER, Oct. 15—(CP).—Four members of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club yesterday told of encountering what they believed to be Vancouver Island's sea serpent, Caddy, as they sailed about Flat Tops Islands near Nanaimo, B.C., on Thanksgiving Day. One of the four, a Vancouver artist who wishes to remain anonymous, said he believed he hooked the serpent while fishing.

North Fears Craigavon, Valera Plot

Suspect Union Move As The Price Of Aid For Britain

By Sean O'Cathain
Canadian Press Correspondent

BELFAST, Oct. 15.—(CP Cable.)—Although newspapers reflecting the views of Viscount Craigavon's government are keeping silent, fears are being expressed in government circles in Belfast that a deal with Prime Minister Eamon De Valera on the question of Northern Ireland is afoot, "for the good of the Empire."

The view is gaining strength in Northern Ireland that it behooves loyalists to be alert lest the six counties some day should be quietly handed over to Mr. De Valera as the price of Ireland's undivided support of Great Britain in the event of war.

Reports reaching the north from Dublin that a new partition drive is being planned in the south have intensified local feelings of alarm. There has been talk of the possibility of a plebiscite but northern loyalists declare the demands have been advanced purely for propaganda purposes.

The Vote Dilemma

No one doubts that Fermanagh, Tyrone, South Down, South Armagh and Derry City would vote themselves under the Eire constitution. The authorities point out, however, that if a plebiscite were granted to these areas, a similar concession must be made to the remaining districts of Northern Ireland which "unquestionably" would declare for continued association with the United Kingdom, leaving the partition problem unsolved.

The real threat to the present position of Northern Ireland is believed to be contained in proposals advanced by Mr. De Valera last January during discussions with the British Government leading to the Anglo-Eire agreement.

Meanwhile, reports reaching the North indicate a world-wide campaign against continued partition will be launched. It is understood special emphasis will be laid abroad on the argument that separation would be a menace to Great Britain in time of war, while a peaceful settlement would ensure uninterrupted supplies of men and materials, apart from the fact that Ireland would be effectively defended by her own people.

More 'Peg Building

WINNIPEG, Oct. 15.— (CP). — Winnipeg building activty is ahead of last year, City Engineer's Department statistics showed to-day. To date this year 1,459 building permits valued at $1,647,450 have been issued compared wth 1,301 permits valued at $1,633,650 last year at the same time.

Bracken Issues Call For Low Tariff If Agriculture To Be Saved

WINNIPEG, Oct. 15.— (CP). — Premier John Bracken of Manitoba, urged the people of Canada and particularly of the west, to dedicate themselves anew to low tariff policies when he addressed the Manitoba Liberal Association last night.

"If wider markets are not secured, a guaranteed price for wheat is essential, he told delegates closing a one-day convention. "The alternative is a ruined agriculture, meaning the abandonment of one-quarter or one-third of the wheat farms of Western Canada."

Westerners must endorse a guaranteed price for wheat, he said and "there should be no criticism of that policy in other parts of Canada unless and until it costs the nation more than the handicap of $58,000,000 a year which the tariff at present imposes on the prairie provinces."

Mr. Bracken said some experts believed the Dominion government would lose $30,000,000 this year as a result of the guaranteed wheat price of 80 cents a bushel for No. 1 Northern at Fort William.

Fear of war had caused nations to try to become self-sufficient in wheat production. "As a result of war psychology the world to-day buys 87,000,000 less bushels of Canadian wheat than it did formerly."

Discover Four Coins Worth $1,000 Pawned For $14

Vancouver, Oct. 15 (CP)

FOUR COINS, valued at $1,000, were discovered by police yesterday in a downtown pawn shop. They had been pawned for $14.

Earlier J. Marshall reported the coins had been stolen from his home Thursday night.

The gold pieces included a seven shillings sixpence piece, only four of which are believed in existence, a spade guinea, a $5 gold piece and $1 gold piece.

Only by removal of war psychology and renewal of confidence could Western Canada's economic life be restored to health.

Hitler Follows Up His Munich Coup By Trade War That Hits Britain

LONDON, Oct. 15—(AP).—German trade expansion on the heels of Nazi political victories in Central Europe is compelling British industrial leaders to face the necessity of economic rearmament.

The business community faces two facts:

1.—Britain's foreign trade will suffer under Germany's robust gains.

2.—There are few signs of an upturn in home business.

The attack on the foreign trade problem covers three fronts.

The first consideration is greater trade—especially reciprocal trade—within the Empire. Britain, in effect, says to the Dominions and Colonies, "If we buy primary products from you then you must buy manufactured goods from us."

On the second front, Britain wants to have other good customers such as the United States, Soviet Russia and Argentina buy more British goods, with the alternative a cutting down of purchases in those countries.

The third drive is aimed at new markets in competition in many instances with Germany.

Delegates of the British Chamber of Commerce will meet next Wednesday and Thursday to discuss export problems along those lines.

A strongly-worded suggestion to "Buy British" is expected to be thrown out on the first two fronts, but German competition represents a problem of a different character.

Britain last Spring planned a series of loans and credits to Central European countries. But Germany gradually offered better terms to the same countries and Britain made little headway.

Third Schooner Race Is Again Postponed

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 15.—(AP).—A flat calm for the second day in succession forced postponement to-day of the third race between Captain Angus Walters' Bluenose and Gloucester Ben Pine's Gertrude L. Canada's Great Century of Art Exhibit Takes London By Storm

London, Oct. 15 (CP Cable)

CANADA'S "Century of Art" exhibition which yesterday began its two-months run at historic Tate Gallery has taken London by storm.

Following the opening ceremonies which were attended by London's elite, including representatives of the entire diplomatic gorps, crowds thronged the Thames-side gallery today to view the highly - praised Canadian paintings and sculpture.

"England has vaguely known for some years that Canada has a mind of her own in matters artistic," says the Manchester Guardian, which describes the exhibition as "vigorous and extraordinarily interesting."

"Whatever may be happening in other corners of the empire Canada alone can claim to have founded an independent school of painting," the Manchester Guardian adds.

"The exhibition covers its field more completely than any previously held in Europe, or even in Canada itself," says T. W. Earp, the Daily Telegraph art critic. "There are no untutored efforts of vision workmanship. From the beginning, Canadian art, given the difference of environment, runs parallel with that of Europe."

Police Nab Car, Driver, Load Of Liquor As Racket Busters Go In Action

Toronto, Oct. 15 (CP)

PATROL SERGT. George Crawford and his "gang-busting" squad swung into action early today and Edward Dyment, Mimico, was the first casualty.

Dyment was arrested by Crawford and two plainclothes officers on charges of transporting and illegal possession. His car, which police said contained 36 bottles of beer, two bottles of whiskey and two of gin, was confiscated.

Crawford was appointed yesterday as head of the squad which has the task of smashing gangs of warring beer-runners.

Dyment is said to have circled a block twice before the police cruiser forced his machine into the curb and arrested him. Bail for his release was set at $1,000.

Meanwhile Edmund G. Odette, chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, said last night an investigation would be launched immediately to determine the source of the runners' supply. Heads of breweries interviewed in Toronto disclaim any connection with illicit trade.

Conant Has Different View, Decides Inquiry In Heiress' Death To Go On

Court Rules Crown Exceeded Authority In Ordering Inquest And Grants Motion Forbidding It

TORONTO, Oct 15 (CP).—Investigation into the death of Mrs. Maybelle Horlick Sidley, Racine, Wis., heiress to the malted milk fortune, will continue despite an adverse ruling by Mr. Justice C. P. McTague on the legality of an inquest.

Hon. G. D. Conant, Attorney-General of Ontario, announced last night the government "have by no means exhausted either our efforts or our facilities" in inquiring into Mrs. Sidley's death last July 6 in the home of W. Perkins Bull, noted Toronto lawyer and historian. Her death has been ascribed to a disease of the spinal column.

The announcement was made after four executors of Mrs. Sidley's estate obtained from Mr. Justice McTague an order preventing Chief Coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson from continuing an inquest into the circumstances of her death. His Lordship upheld the executors' contention the Attorney-General had exceeded his authority in ordering the inquest.

The Supreme Court Justice ruled "wholly void" inquest proceedings launched July 15 by Dr. Lawson on orders from Mr. Conant. The inquest opened July 26 and after some evidence was taken it adjourned pending injunction proceedings. Argument was held in chambers in a two-day hearing.

Weedy Farms Draw Attack By Dewan

MINESING, Ont., Oct. 15.—(CP).—Officials of the Ontario Ploughmen's Association pointed with pride today to "the greatest ploughing match held since its inception 25 years ago." Total attendance at the four-day match, which ended yesterday, was estimated at 132,000—a new record.

One thousand contestants and friends gathered at a banquet in nearby Barrie last night in closing ceremonies and heard an address by Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, in the absence of Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn. Mr. Hepburn was scheduled as main speaker but was called back to Toronto on business following an inspection of the ploughing fields.

Mr. Dewan told the gathering he was "not at all satisfied with the existing Weed Control Act." He said he felt sure some changes must be made, "or else the province will not be worthy of its trust."

He said he was "seriously concerned" with what he termed "lack of cleanliness and freedom from weeds on the farms of this province" The agricultural department must battle weeds during the next few months "more effectively than in the past."

Frank Arnoldi, K.C. Dies In Toronto At 90

TORONTO, Oct. 15.—(CP) Frank Arnoldi, K.C., 90, one of Canada's oldest practising lawyers, died at his home here last night. He was active in legal circles up to the time of his retirement about a year ago.

Mr. Arnoldi was a member of the Toronto law firm of Arnoldi, Parry and Campbell until his retirement. He came to Toronto as a youth and attended Upper Canada College. He had the distinction of being the second oldest "old boy" of that institution—Sir William Mulock, former Chief Justice of Ontario, being the first.

Until a few years ago, Mr Arnoldi was chairman of the honor board of the National Boy Scout organization.

Lady Tweedsmuir Honored By U. of T.

TORONTO, Oct. 15.—(CP)—The three-day visit to Central Ontario of Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir neared an end today as Canada's Governor-General moved on to London to receive an honorary degree from the University of Western Ontario.

Lord Tweedsmuir, Dr. R. C. Wallace, principal of Queen's University and other distinguished Canadians will receive degrees of Doctor of Laws at the University's autumn convocation. Rt. Rev. Charles A. Seager, Anglican Bishop of Hudon, will pronounce the invocation.

Their Excellencies travelled to the Western Ontario city after a busy day in Toronto yesterday during which Lady Tweedsmuir received a degree of doctor of laws from the University of Toronto. She was one of 11 distinguished Canadians and visitors so honored.

The Governor-General and Lady Tweedsmuir last night attended the eighth annual creche ball where 40 of the season's debutantes were presented.

Thirty Entered In Baby Show Roseneath Fair

(By Staff Reporter)

ROSENEATH, Oct. 15.—It takes the sun to make things grow and bloom, even fall fair crowds. With autumn weather like an afternoon in fairy land, warm and sunny and hazy, Roseneath Fair Friday afternoon ran up a new attendance record with a crowd that looked like at least 8,000, and might have been more. And that means another surplus for the treasury.

President Fred J. Slade and his directors filled the streets of the hamlet with automobiles, and packed hundreds of them around the grounds. The parking on arrival was comparatively easy, but the outgoing from four until six o'clock was a slow procedure, as the crowd gradually untangled itself and dispersed in all directions.

Several young men in charge of an automobile that will be given at an L.O.L. draw in Barrie next month showed The Examiner the stubs of the tickets they had sold. Some of the addresses were of visitors from Windsor, Stratford, Dundonald, Montreal, Niagara Falls, Picton, Peterborough, and so on.

It was a wonderful day for the Fair Board, and they had all kinds of attractions, twelve horse races in four classes, a big midway, music, public speaking and variety programs on two platforms at opposite ends of the park, merry-go-round, and high-grade exhibits in all departments, especially horses, cattle and domestic products.

Thirty in Baby Show

Clarence Varcoe, secretary, reported nearly thirty younb hopefuls entered in the baby show. The winners and their mothers were:

Under seven months—1, Mrs. Andrew Macklin (Doris Mae); 2, Mrs. Earl Drope, Harwood (Pauline); 3, Mrs. Harold Petherick (Betty Lou).

From seven to fifteen months—1, Mrs. Percy Honey, Dartford (William Franklin); 2, Mrs. James Baskin, Norwood (Betty Ann); 3, Mrs. Douglas Lochead, Norwood (Douglas).

Sweepstakes—1, Mrs. Percy Honey; 2, Mrs. Andrew Macklin.

Two Peterborough County horseshoe pitchers, W. A. Fairbairn, of Lakefield, and R. J. Girven, Norwood, again defeated Amos Marsden and Ernest Crowe, of Aldersville, the second time this week. Jack and Joe Graham, of Norwood, were third.

Directors of most of the fairs in the district were noticed among the crowd that swarmed over the grounds.

Results of Races

Dr. Locke's Williamsburg Stables picked up a considerable piece of change with their entries across the card of twelve heats in four different classes, every heat a race. Only three classes were advertised, but with a lot of horsemen converging in penultimate races of the Central Ontario fairs circuit, and a big crowd on hand, Fred Slade and his board decided to add another class. That made twelve heats for the entire afternoon. The clay track was fast, but inclined to be too hard. The results were as follows:

Lapointe Weds

OTTAWA, Oct. 15.—(CP).— One of the most interesting weddings of the early fall season took place here to-day when Lucette, only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Valin, became the bride of Hughes Lapointe of Quebec, only son of Justice Minister Ernest Lapointe and Mrs. Lapointe of Quebec.

The dark-haired bride, who is known across the Dominion for her work in Liberal organizations, was given in marriage by her father.

WELL CAUGHT ,WILLIAM

LIVERPOOL, England—(CP). — William Venables, 30, was congratulated for saving a youth from serious injury by catching him in his arms when the boy fell 50 feet from the fourth floor of a building.

An Old Roosevelt Custom

Reeve Tanner's Car First Stolen Then Burned In Garage Fire

Reeve Charles Tanner of Lakefield is convinced that hard luck comes in bunches for him at least, following a fire at J. K. Hughes' Garage on Friday afternoon.

More than a thousand dollars' damage was done by the blaze, which started in a small service truck at the rear end of which an employee was doing a welding job. Sparks apparently ignited some gasoline on the floor and flames burst out, spreading very rapidly, according to Fire Chief George Gimblett.

In the garage was Reeve Tanner's car, which had just been overhauled after thieves had stolen it in Lakefield. It, along with the truck, and a coupe that had been impounded, was badly burned. Reeve Tanner's car will have to be completely repainted, re-upholstered, and will require a new windshield. The garage itself was damaged considerably, all the glass in partitions between office and workshop as well as the glass windows at the front of the building, were broken, and the roof was badly charred.

The blaze broke out about 3.40 p.m. and was of intense heat, Chief Gimblett said. Dense black smoke and the speed with which the fire spread made difficult the task of firemen, some of whom suffered painful burns. Chemical and water extinguishers were used and the blaze was halted before it had assumed impossible proportions.

Discover Turpentine At Church Fire

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Oct. 15 ;CP) —Inspectors of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office, investigating an incendiary attempted to fire St. Francis Xavier's Roman Catholic Church here yesterday, have found a bottle containing turpentine.

The bottle, said to show fingerprints, was sent to the fingerprint bureau of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Ottawa for further examination.

Attempts to fire the large stone church, only a few blocks away from the Brockville fire department headquarters, were discovered yesterday.

Inspector Edouard Desjardins of Ottawa, deputy Fire Marshal for Eastern Ontario, said the fire was definitely of an incendiary nature.

It was recalled that 25 years ago the same church was set on fire but the church suffered little damage.

Off For Rumania

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP)—Alexander Papana, one of the world's foremost stunt fliers, took off from Floyd Bennet Field at 9:01 a.m. EST today for Miami, first leg of a flight to Bucharest, Rumania, by way of the South Atlantic. He will make the trip in easy stages.

Accompanying him was Max Constant, Burbank, Calif., flier and former movie writer.

HASTINGS

Miss Beryl Pulfer of Weyburn, Sask., who is visiting her many relatives in this district, was guest of honor on Wednesday evening at a delightful house party held at the home of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. James Beamish of Percy. Over thirty-five relatives were present. James, Arthur and Donald Beamish furnished the music for dancing. Refreshments were provided by those who planned the social function.

Mrs. Donald Pollock of Dartford, a bride of a few weeks' standing, was joint hostess with her mother-in-law, Mrs. William Pollock on Tuesday evening, when they entertained the members of Trinity United Mission Circle for their regular monthly meeting. Fourteen girls were present for the annual thankoffering meeting. Miss Jessie Lamb presided, and Miss Margery Scriver had charge of the thankoffering service which opened with a hymn and special prayers by Miss Claudine Hoard. A story of the missionary work in Honan, China, was read in parts by Mrs. Don Pollock, Misses Helen Collins and Irene Oliver and the readings were interspersed with a hymn, a story on "The Deep Channel," by Mrs. Wallace Orr; a passage from the new Mission Circle book on "Through Missionary Windows," by Miss Jessie Lamb.

Mrs. A. Thompson and Miss Pauline Scriver were suggested as delegates to attend the W.M.S., to be held in Havelock on Tuesday, October 18, and to contribute a duet towards the program.

The Circle will sponsor the showing of motion picture on "Better Buymanship," in the basement of the church on November 14.

Following the meeting the joint hostesses served delightful refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cavanagh and two granddaughters of Bethany, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Gillespie and two sons of Lindsay were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Gillespie.

Mrs. William Whitred is a guest at the home of Mrs. D. Donaldson of Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. James Montgomery are spending two weeks with friends in Rittman, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reuter and Mr. and Mrs. E. Martin of Niagara Falls, N.Y., spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. W. Methan and other relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bapty of Grimsby spent Thanksgiving at Deloro with the formers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Bapty.

Publisher Offers Rival Candidate Free Advertising In Own Paper

Rouses Point, N.Y., Oct. 15 (AP)

LESLIE G. RYAN, Rouses Point newspaper publisher and Clinton County's Republican candidate for the state assembly, today offered his Democratic opponent free advertising space in his paper.

"I plan on using a considerable amount of advertising space in the North Countryman (Ryan's newspaper) to discuss the issues of the campaign. Because the space is available to me without charge, I feel that you may be placed at a disadvantage in the territory covered by our paper.

"I am, therefore, glad to offer you, without any charge, as much advertising space in the 'North Countryman' as I use myself, and I hope that you will feel free to take advantage of this offer."

Roach, in confirming he received the letter, said he would thank Ryan "immediately." He did not indicate, however, the amount of space he would use, if any.

WEEKLY GRAIN REVIEW

WINNIPEG, Oct. 15. — (CP). — World wheat traders turned to Southern Hemisphere crop conditions this week for trading inducement and found some hope for slightly higher prices from Australian drought reports. Price changes on most exchanges were narrow with Winnipeg taking leadership on renewed export demand.

At the close of the week yesterday wheat futures here were 1⅞-¾ cent up, scoring the first weekly gains in nearly a month. October climbed to 61⅜, November 61¼, December 60⅝ and May 63¾-⅞ cents.

Canada's 1,000,000-bushel export business Friday boosted the week's sales to around 2,000,000 bushels. The volume was lower than previous weeks, but general wheat operations this week were the quietest for some time. Speculative interest fell to a low ebb. Apart from moderate seaboard demand and local spreading, brokers were idle.

Heavy crop deterioration and urgent need of rains in sections of Australia brought the year's wheat crop estimates there to only 130,000,000 bushels, which would be the lowest yield in nine years. Last year's Australian crop totalled 188,000,000 bushels. Any sharp crop reduction in the Commonwealth might bring improved demand for North America wheats.

OBITUARY

FLORA E. ELLIOTT

The funeral of the late Flora E. Elliott, was held Thursday afternoon, from her late residence Elias avenue, to St. James' United church, where a large concourse of friends gathered to pay their last tribute of esteem.

Attending the service in a body were her co-workers of the Women's Association and the King's Own Bible Class, of which, Mrs. Elliott had been the teacher.

The service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. F. W. Craik who chose his text from Revelation, 14:13. "And I heard a voice from heaven, saying unto me, write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth." Yea, saith the spirit, that they may rest from their labours and their works do follow them.

Favorite hymns of the departed were sung, "The Lord is My Shepherd" and "Breathe On Me Breath of God." By request, Mrs. H. F. Doig sang the beautiful solo, "There Is A Place of Quiet Rest".

The pall bearers were E. R. Frost, Ernest Kitney, Wm. Fell, Alex. Rosborough, George Cuff and M. H. Drysdale. The many beautiful floral tributes testified to the place she held in the hearts of her friends in the various organizations in which she was identified. Among these were the W.A., W.M.S., the X.L. Mission Circle, the King's Own Class, The S.S. teachers, besides many personal offerings. These lovely pieces were carried from the church at the close of the services by representatives from each organization.

The funeral cortege proceeded to Little Lake cemetery where again the pastor officiated in the last sad rites in the solemn graveside service

Canadian Legion Notes

The Legion concert party met on Tuesday evening and decided to go ahead with the formation of a minstrel troupe to be known as the Tipperary Minstrels. Morley Plunkett of the old Dumbells was present and the committee is greatly indebted to him for the practical advice his experience enabled him to give. Rehearsals will be held regularly from now and it is hoped to be able to make the debut in the near future.

The carpetball players are busy again at the start of the new season and once again the Douglasian war whoop of "Golly boys, look at that" is echoing through the hall. A new bowling floor has been laid in the dining hall and first class bowling should be seen from now on, and no allbis about the floor being at fault will be accepted.

If sufficient interest can be aroused a billiard league and a Russian pool league will be run. All entries will be limited to members in good standing and the winners will be decided at Christmas time with turkeys and geese as the prizes. Will all members interested enter thier names as soon as possible?

The branch executive is indebted to the comrades and friends who have given their patronage to the euchre drives that are being held each Thursday in the main auditorium and hopes to retain that patronage during the season.

The monthly meeting of the branch will be held on Monday evening next and a large attendance of the members is desired. Comrade R. Rayner, investigator for the War Veterans Allowance Board will be present and will address the meeting and explain the new amendments to the act.

Any ex-service man will be welcome to attend the meeting after 8.45 and Comrade Rayner will be glad to answer any questions about the Veterans' Allowance Act.

The tickets for the Remembrance Day dinner on Nov. 11th will be on sale in a few days and all comrades are urged to do their best to make it a great success. The principal speaker at the Memorial parade will be the Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor who will also be the principal guest at the Armistice dinner.

Potatoes Make Men

Selecting an Irish Cobbler from the Fall Fair exhibit of a potato grower, Mr. Picobac held forth to all and sundry.

"Potatoes make men," said he. "Potatoes, buttermilk and tobacco."

"It wasn't potatoes that made me," said Herb, hired man to the highest bidder, "It was pork and beans."

"I'll tell you something that makes good Canadians better Canadians," declared the Burley philosopher; "Canadian Burley—and Picobac, the pick of Canada's Burley Crop."

"It's a mild . . . cool . . . sweet . . . smoke," agreed Herb. "Don't I know it?"

SERVICES IN PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES TO-MORROW

3,000 Of The Old Imperial Regime Mourn At Grand Duke's Funeral

PARIS, Oct. 15—(AP)—Russian workmen in threadbare clothes rubbed shoulders with bearded generals in faded Czarist uniforms today at funeral services for the Grand Duke Cyril, Pretender to the Throne of all the Russians. He died Wednesday at the age of 62.

Three thousand White Russian emigres, representing the aristocracy as well as other classes of the old Imperial regime, crowded the Russian Orthodox church on the outskirts of Paris to pay last respects to the late head of the House of Romanoff.

Thirty priests officiated at the service, which was attended by Prince George of Greece, Princess Olga of Yugoslavia, and the ministers of Rumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Greece. Representatives of President Albert Lebrun and former Kaiser Wilhelm were present also.

The 14 ushers were members of prominent old Russian families and included a bartender in one of the fashionable Paris hotels and a taxi driver.

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James, Toronto

THE TEMPTATIONS OF OUR LORD 2.

Immediately the Spirit driveth Him into the wilderness and He was tempted of Satan. St. Mark 1, 12.

We saw that the first temptation meant a subtle appeal to selfishness. He was tempted to shirk discomfort and pain. A painless Gospel is most attractive, especially in our age.

The second temptation, according to St. Luke, is an appeal to power. The Messiah, the Christ is to be a KING. Constantly in that Galilean atmosphere He heard men speak of the expectation of a King, a Messiah, who would drive the Romans into the sea and sit upon the throne of David. Galilee was the centre of such disaffection; it was the Ireland of Palestine. The country people were passionately nationalistic and loved their country. Even after the resurrection we find the disciples enquiring: "Lord, wilt Thou at this time restore again the Kingdom to Israel?" The King is in the wilderness and the evil spirit gives Him in vision a sight of all the kingdoms of the world. He is to be king, the ideal king bringing righteousness and peace to His people. Why not enlarge that kingdom and bring these blessings to the whole world? So the voice whispers: "All thispower will I give Thee if Thou wilt fall down and worship me." The vision has its appeal for the Lord loves His country: "Salvation is of the Jews", He tells the Samaritan woman. In that hour of stress and strain another whisper arises in His heart. From His earliest childhood He had been taught these words: "Hear, O Israel, the Lord thy God is one Lord, and Him only shalt thou serve". What a lesson in practical religion. Have you stamped the thought of God in your child's mind so deeply that he will never forget though he may wander far?

Once more the scene changes? It is the pinnacle of the Temple. It is His Father's House. The whisper is still more subtle. "Are you sure you are the SON OF GOD?" The people expect the Messiah to come suddenly into the Temple. "Cast Yourself down for the angels will take care of You." You will satisfy yourself and your people that you are indeed the Son of God." It is the temptation to force Himself upon His people. It is a temptation that makes a tremendous appeal to the Jewish mind. They were always looking for a sign. That cry runs through the Gospels. Our Lord performed miracles because men and women with faith came into His presence and He could not but heal them. Yet this was not His primary work. It was not His highest ideal to work miracles and to be known as a miracle worker. He had a higher and more lasting message for His people. So in the wilderness comes the suggestion that He can obtain the following of his people if He would give them a sign. In simple language it means that He must force Himself upon them. This is not the principle of the Gospel. He came to His people and His people received Him not. They had no desire for such a Christ, such a Messiah.

Our Lord's answer is once more from the same Book of Holy Scripture: "It is written, thou shalt not test the Lord thy God".

It is a principle that God makes no attempt to force Himself into your heart. "Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If any man will open unto Me I will enter". God cannot and will not force Himself upon you. You are a free agent. Christ asks you to accept Him only after your mind and heart is convinced that He is indeed the Christ, and you cry with deep feeling: "Lo, I come to do Thy will, O my God; I am content to do it".

Thus Our Lord begins His ministry knowing clearly what the Christ must not be. He is not to be a king such as the multitude desires. He makes no appeal to popular ideas. He knows He will meet with disappointment and opposition. He will not force Himself upon them.

So the Lord came out of the wilderness determined to put His whole trust and confidence in the will of His Father. A modern scholar reminds us that the wilderness produced all the greatest Old Testament prophets. The wilderness will either make you lose your faith in God or deepen it. The loneliness of the wilderness will pour its fear into your heart and drive you back to the habitations of men. On the other hand the wilderness will drive you to God and deepen your faith in Him because you are so utterly helpless and lonely.

Dr. Knight has written an illuminating work on this subject, summing it up in three words: Bread; authority; mystery.

I am the bread of life.

I am come to do the will of Him that sent Me.

The word was made flesh and dwelt among us.

Reverence For God

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for October 16 is Exodus 20:7; Matthew 5:33-37; 12:33-37, especially Exodus 20:7, the Golden Text being Matthew 6:9, "Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed by Thy name.")

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

"SWEAR NOT at all," said Jesus Swearing not only takes the name of God in vain, which is forbidden in the commandment; but it shows a lack of self-control. Control of one's feelings and temper are very necessary in these troubious days.

Character Shown by Words

You see, your character is shown clearly to those with whom you associate by the words you speak. In His talk to the people who had followed Him up into a mountain Christ said that if we speak the truth we do not need to use strong language to confirm it, for it is true. He pointed out that a tree that is good gives good fruit; but that a tree that is "corrupted"—rotten or infected — cannot produce eatable fruit; that by the kind of fruit the tree bears we can tell whether it is food or bad.

So, He said, it is with human beings. In the picturesque language of that day He stated: "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. A good man, out of the treasure of the heart bringeth forth good things; and an evil man out of the evil treasure bringeth forth evil things."

It is not that God needs our reverence. He cannot be hurt by our profanity. It is our characters that suffer when we use too strong language. It grows to be habit after a while, so that we cannot make even the simplest statement without adding an oath. Jesus' advice is to simply say, "yea, yea; nay, nay"—excellent counsel, is it not, in an age when few can talk without what the Bible calls blasphemy?

Showing Reverence

There are people in the world who take pleasure in thinking that they have no reverence for anything. They boast of it as if it were something to be proud of. Is it? Can anyone look at a lovely sunrise or sunset, at mountains, clouds and other wonders of nature, and not have a feeling of awe or reverence for the Maker of them? Isn't there something very wrong with a person who does not feel a thrill at the miracle of the blossoming of spring or the turning of the leaves in autumn?

And why should anyone be ashamed to show such reverence and acknowledge that it is not the things alone that cause that feeling, but for the One who created all the beauty?

On the dash-panel of an automobile there are various indicators. One shows the amount of gasoline in the tank; another shows how fast the car is moving; others show the temperature of the water in the radiator, the oil pressure, etc. There are indicators in our faces and in our talk and actions, too, that show to the world the condition of our souls. They show us ill-tempered, untruthful, sweet-tempered and having a proper reverence for the things that are worthy of reverence.

"Let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the Lord, our Maker."

Evangelism Is Need Of Times

One of the great necessities of the present times is evangelism. Not only do people generally need to renew their allegiance to the gospel of Jesus Christ, but they need to learn as well how Christianity is fully adequate to meet all the problems of personality so manifest on every hand. To emphasize the evangel the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr has planned a series of evangelistic sermons for every Sunday morning commencing next Sunday. The main theme will be "The Call of Christ", and the particular subjects will be as follows: 1. To the unconverted; 2. To those who have been converted; 3. To those willing to take risks; 4. To those who lack discipline; 5. To those who are sceptical; and 6. To all who are maladjusted. No matter what the need may be, these sermons are designed to meet the special problem of every human soul; so that attendance at these services should bring blessing to everyone.

A National Message

Now, this resistance is valuable, as it compels the demonstration of facts and truths. When such a demonstration is wanting, science and religion are adjudged to be not proved, or false.

The resistance of preconceived opinion was set in active motion, like a strong tide, against the Reformation. This culminated in the noble army of martyrs who were put to death for standing for the true faith. The same resistance was manifested at the time of the Puritan revival in Scotland: the Covenanters were hunted down by dragoons, and were shot like wild game upon the hills or tortured in the prisons. In Britain, preachers of the Word were confined to gaols, and otherwise caused to suffer.

The Bishops of the Church caused John Bunyan to be confined in Bedford Gaol for the preaching of the Gospel in form and manner differing from established conventions.

On a late occasion a most honored and beloved Bishop was speaking on the subject of Calvary and the Tomb of our Lord. He sat as he talked, as to an enlarged family circle, until he reached his peroration. Then he arose, and he, a Bishop of the Church of to-day, read from the Pilgrim's Progress Bunyan's description of Christian arriving at the Cross, and being freed from his burden of sins.

Loyalty to form and dogma caused Bunyan to be imprisoned by the Bishops of the Church of his day. But the cause progressed, and the preaching for which Bunyan was imprisoned formed the impressive peroration of the address of a Bishop of the Church of to-day.

Cathedral Musings

It is well to realise that many of the things we consider to be true are only true within our limitations and that many of our fondest conceptions are illusory in the extreme. For instance, we think of things as being of three dimensions, existing in time, yet no one knows what time really is, or space, for that matter either. Both time and space, whether we think of them as existing separately, or combined in a time-space continuim, are inseparably associated with material existence, but have no existence otherwise. They are very real to us here, but when we look at things from the higher and true sense, they are seen to be but an illusory aspect of matter. We cannot conceive of a God who is not conscious of everything at once whether it be of happenings here, or of things occurring in some distant universe many thousand of light-years away. Nor can we say that the part of His consciousness that is cognizant of earth is in any way disassociated with that part which is concerned with the distant system, yet one part is relatively ahead or behind the other, in time, many thousands of years. This, of course, is absurd, because God's consciousness being infinite, cannot be divided either in time or space, hence it follows that with Him, time or space cannot exist, that there is only an eternal 'now'. If this is true of God, then it must also be true of man in his spiritual aspect. Hence eternity is not, nor can it be, an infinite progression of time, it must be an infinite duration of the present, that contains all things within itself so that we are in eternity now as much as we will ever be. Also we are in life, for life is ours only to use, not to possess. We cannot create it, neither can we destroy it. All we can say is that through us is manifest an inseparable segment of the One Life. The same holds good with everything. Even our earthly loves are not of ourselves, but are only reflections from above, sometimes, it is true, very much perverted and distorted into evil forms by our ignorance, but none the less, originating in the Divine. So that we possess nothing of ourselves that is really enduring, everything comes from God. Lactantius III

CAMPBELLFORD

Candidates Named For A.Y.P.A. Office

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 15.—The Anglican Young People's Association voted $20.00 towards the general funds of the church at a business meeting held in the Parish Hall on Tuesday. The president presided at the meeting at which the annual nomination of officers was held and resulted in the following being nominated for office: For President, Earl Wood and Mrs. Alex Kennedy. Vice-Presiddent, R. C. Ramsden (acclamation); Treasurer, Miss Marion Hieginson (acclamation); Secretary, Miss E. Southern, Miss Glennis Shaw. The election will take place at the next meeting. Following this the matter of holding a Hallowe'en dance was discussed and Miss Alice Tripp was appointed to attend as delegate to the A.Y.P.A Conference in Peterborough.

Religious Film Teaches Christ

The question has often been asked whether the church can make any use of motion pictures. It is recognized that the talking films have become one of the chief educators of the human race. Millions flock to the movies every week, and are influenced by what they see there. A movement has sprung up in England in the form of the Religious Film Company with the object of teaching Christianity on the screen. Already several religious films have been shown in the great cathedrals of England, and have had the blessing of the majority of the bishops and the criticism of some.

The New Outlook, the official paper of the United Church of Canada dated September 30, says "There is tremendous enthusiasm in England over the possibilities of motion pictures serving the church in two ways. First they are considered valuable for religious educational purposes; second, pastors working in underprivileged sections consider films important as an attraction churches may offer their parishioners."

The Bishop of Chichester wrote to The Times as follows: "There is abundant room for fresh work in films by the best artists and producers using their highest gifts to deal with all sorts of cultural and educational themes, with the interpretation of painting, sculpture, architecture, poetry, music and drama, as well as by no means least, with the domain of Biblical history, and religious teaching.

A year ago Dr. A. O. Dawson of St. James United Church, Montreal, imported two outstanding religious talking pictures from England. These films were purchased for the sole purpose of ascertaining if movies could be helpfully used in the churches of Canada, as they are being used in Britain and elsewhere.

Mr. Duck, an inman of Montreal, is at present on a tour of Ontario, and showed these films one evening to the members of the General Council of the United Church recently in Toronto. He will visit Peterborough on Thursday, October 20, and use them in St. Andrew's church at 8 p.m. under the auspices of the Elizabeth Bell auxiliary.

The leading film is entitled Barabbas. The story of the rebel redeemed by love, the minor picture is "The Common Round", the story of a missionary in a remote African station fighting single handed, an outbreak of plague amongst the natives. The admission will be by silver offering at the door, and the religious atmosphere will prevail. Ministers are specially invited to come to see this the first religious film to be shown in this city.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Reverence for God — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 20:7; Matthew 5:33-37; 12:33-37.

Moses came down from the mountain where he had been in communion with the Lord, and talked to the Children of Israel. And the third commandment that he gave them was: "Thou shalt not take the name of thy God in vain."

The tree that is good bears good fruit, but the one that is corrupt or infected can only give poor fruit. So the tree is known as a good or a bad tree according to its fruit.

"How can ye, being evil, speak good things?" asked Jesus of the people. Those who are bad speak evil and do bad deeds; but "out of the treasure of his heart" a good man bringeth forth only good.

By the way a man or woman talks, and by his actions he is judged. And by what he says and his attitude toward God he is rewarded or condemned.

(GOLDEN TEXT—Matthew 6:9).

The Safer Way

A decision has been announced which prevents Dr. Smirle Lawson of Toronto proceeding with an inquest into the death of Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley who died at the home of Perkins Bull in Toronto several months ago. Four executors of Mrs. Sidley's $2,000,000 estate contended there were no grounds for an inquest and further claimed the Toronto coroner had exceeded his authority in ordering one after the woman's remains had been removed and interred in another country. Following the death there had been a post-mortem examination and the finding was that the woman had died of natural causes. Apparently there was information in the hands of Dr. Lawson, the coroner, which caused him to believe there should be further examination by way of an inquest.

We doubt whether refusal to have the inquest is the best solution for such a matter. Everything in connection with the death of this wealthy woman may have been as natural as the first finding indicated, and it might well be that the inquest would reveal nothing of substance which has not been made known.

Admitting all that, the closing off of the case and the denial of the coroner's request for an inquest leaves the field wide open for all those who wish to place their own interpretation upon the events preceding the woman's death. Stating that an inquest must not be held will not cause the case to subside and cease to be of interest. Rather it will create in the minds of many people the belief that there is something which is being sheltered from revelation. There may actually be small enough reason for holding an inquest but it is more advisable to go ahead and have all facts brought out. It is a safer way for all concerned.

They Sent Him Home

Bruno Anton was such an ardent Nazi supporter in London that he attracted attention of the authorities. So persistent were his efforts that it was decided it would be better for all concerned if he were sent back to his native Germany. He would fit in nicely with conditions in his own land, and if he stayed in London there was the ever-present danger that he might get into trouble.

But Bruno Anton did not desire to go back to Germany. He wished above all else to stay right where he was in London.

Reason? Simply that he had a good position in a good restaurant where they were paying him $100 per week. He was making a very nice living and had no desire to be disturbed, although he had not hesitated to disturb a good many other people.

Bruno Anton was willing enough to accept all the advantages of a good position under the British flag, and he was also willing enough to make it as difficult as possible for British institutions to maintain their existence. There are others in the same class but for the moment we are considering Bruno Anton. He is now back in Germany where he will have opportunity to secure another appointment from which he can draw $100 weekly. That is, of course, provided he can find it.

According To Schedule

Lord Tweedsmuir paid a visit to the international plowing match near Barrie. There was a great crowd there and the visit of the Governor-General would make it greater. Always is there considerable formality connected with such a visit and the length of time which can be spent at the place is generally measured and regulated.

But Lord Tweedsmuir was no mere spectator. It is recorded that he got the lines over his shoulders, settled down between the plow handles and started off on a furrow himself and by that apparently simple little action he brought himself very close to thousands of people in this agricultural land. He was not merely a disinterested spectator who knew little enough about what was taking place, but he was for the moment a participant. All of which leads one to wonder what a Governor-General would do if his time were his own.

When the Duke of Devonshire as Governor-General visited the Agricultural College at Guelph some 20 years ago there had been a well-timed program arranged for his visit. There were several functions which had to be attended; there were receptions and he would have to stand and listen attentively while addresses were being read in his honor. The trouble was it was difficult to make the then incumbent of the vice-regal office pay attention to the routine of the day. Those in charge found that when he got into the barns of the O.A.C. with the herdsmen it was difficult to follow. The Duke had the eye and the hand of an expert; he asked to have this animal or that one untied and brought out where he could see it better. He was having a far better time talking stock with the herdsmen than he had previously experienced, although the day's schedule was being sadly disarranged, and if he had to consult only his own desires it is likely the Duke of Devonshire would have remained for hours looking over the herds at the O.A.C.

Similarly Lord Tweedsmuir would probably have enjoyed himself if he could have remained and visited with the people at the plowing match. But his time was well parcelled out and he had to move along. The occupant of such a position has to move according to schedule and the schedule is seldom of his own making.
